I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prabasika, of the 6th January, says:—The news from the West is of an alarming nature. This comes from several quarters. First of all let us take up the Armenian question which is certain to affect India should a war occur. The Turkish Empire is in a miserable condition. The powers should have taken it out of the way long ago had it not been for the jealousy that exists among them. It is not improbable that war may break out over this question, for one of the powers—probably Russia—may determine to seize a part of Turkey, and others may object to the step, and a war may break out which is sure to affect India if England should form one of the parties. Troops from here would have to be sent and the cost to India would be great.

Karnataka Prakashika, Bangalore, Jan. 6th, 1896.

The complications in Europe and India.

Then there is what may be called the American question. The dispute is between the British subjects in Guiana and the Venezuelans for certain territories; but the interference of the United States Government complicates matters. It would be a terrible thing if the two countries—Great Britain and United States—should go to war. Such a war would be felt even in India. Troops would be sent from this land. In one respect war with America might do good to India. It would lead to many more things being sent to England than is now the case, for instance, cotton, wheat, and other things, which are now chiefly imported from America.

2. Under the head "Turkish affairs" the Alhami, of the 4th January, after briefly narrating the several events which occurred with reference to the Armenian question, states that the educated Muhammadans of India are glad to observe that the good wishes of the Indian Muhammadans in general outweigh their sympathy towards Turkey, and that England is the guardian and defender of her Muhammadan subjects who should be grateful to her.

Alhami, Madras, Jan. 4th, 1896.

Loyalty of the Indian Muhammadans towards England.

3. On the authority of the Westminster Gazette the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 23rd December, states that the appointment of Sir Arthur Havelock as Governor of Madras has produced great discontent and disgust in Her Majesty's Court, inasmuch as a noble Lord of the Court, who is a relative of Her Majesty the Queen, and several other Lords, who have been longing for this post of distinction for a long time, have been passed over. Lord Salisbury, on account of his conduct in this matter, has incurred the displeasure of the whole of Her Majesty's Court.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Dec. 23rd, 1895.

Sir Arthur Havelock.

4. In reviewing certain political events of the past year, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 2nd January, states that the Christian powers of Europe, particularly England, attempted to put undue pressure upon the Sultan, and that this disturbed the minds of the Indian Muhammadans and wounded their feelings, but it is a source of gratification to them to find that the Sultan resolutely and successfully maintained his prestige and position and upholds his policy against all the great powers which are now ashamed of their action and have given up the idea of putting any further pressure upon the Sultan. The editor adds that His Majesty has turned his attention to the improvement of the Armenian administration and hopes to successfully accomplish this task at an early date.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Jan. 2nd, 1896.

The Sultan and the great powers.

5. In connection with the Venezuelan question, which is likely to lead to a declaration of war between America and England, the Tilism, of the 5th January, states that the undue and unsuccessful interference of England in Armenian affairs has jeopardised the prestige and credit of England throughout the world and has disclosed the fact that she is weak and unable to cope with any great power without the help of other nations. The causes of this ill-repute and disgrace are the bigotry of the clergy, the bribe-taking press, intriguing committees, and the late aged Prime Minister (Mr. Gladstone). Had England carefully preserved herself from falling into their deceitful snares, she would have maintained her prestige and fame intact as heretofore and America would not have been bold enough to challenge her.

Result of the undue interference of England in the Armenian affairs.

ALBAMI, Madras, Jan. 12th, 1896.

Turkey and the European powers.

6. Under the head "Turkey and England" the Albami, of the 12th January, on the authority of the National Opinion, notes that several nations of Europe are interested in the Turkish question and the aim of each nation is different from that of any other. Lord Salisbury, who is well acquainted with foreign politics and fully understands their intricacies, is not able to adopt a wiser and better policy in this respect than what he has now adopted and can do nothing more than what he has recently done.

Views of Rafi-ud-din Ahmad Sahib regarding the Ottoman Empire.

7. The same paper states that the Nineteenth Century contains an expression of the views from Rafi-ud-din Ahmad Sahib regarding the Ottoman Empire, in which the writer warns the Sultan to introduce wise and wholesome reforms in the administration of his country soon, and advises His Majesty to adopt the English system of administration of India which is based on sound and moderate principles. He further states that the English press has begun to write articles against Turkey, which procedure is very ill-advised. God knows, says the writer, what has actuated it to do so. England will injure itself by adopting the views of the English press and Turkey will, through disgust and distrust, go over to Russia and France, which are England's traditional antagonists. The result of the triple alliance against England can better be imagined than described.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Dec. 15th, 1895.

A caution to the police.

8. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th December, cautions the police "that traffic in girls for immoral purpose is going on between Madras and Rangoon without any sign of abatement, notwithstanding the precautions said to have been adopted by the river police of both the ports."

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1895.

Complaint against police constabulary.

9. The Lokopakari, of the 18th December, reports that four police constables, in conjunction with one karnam and another person, accusing one Kanji Reddi Pethanna, living in the village of Tirunampettai, with the false charge of having stolen a cow, proceeded to his house at 7 P.M. with a forged warrant, arrested him with violence, kept him in the station lock-up throughout the night, intimidated him, seized some of the property which he was wearing on his person and drove him away the next evening.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1895.

Advisability of removing the Triplicane hackney carriage stand.

10. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 21st December, suggests the advisability of removing the Triplicane hackney carriage stand to some other quarter on the ground that it seems to cause danger to the electric tram cars that pass by it and also the passers by.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 27th, 1895.

A complaint on the insufficiency of the police at Milattur.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th December, complains that burglary and theft are of frequent occurrence in the village of Milattur, which is about ten miles from Tanjore, and that although there is a police station in the village no cases have been detected.

JANAVINODHINI, Tiruvadi, Jan. 3rd, 1896.

A suggestion to the Benares police authorities.

12. The Janavinodhini, of the 3rd January, says that as Benares is a sacred shrine for the Hindus, it is desirable that the police constables should be Hindus, as they only know how to deal with the Hindu devotees and to maintain public peace. The paper wishes the authorities to please the Hindu public by adopting the suggestion.

(b) Courts.

13. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 20th December, referring to the Kalugumalai case, endorses the opinion of the Madras High Court that the evidence for prosecution was insufficient and that the proceedings were unsatisfactory. It says that the Judicial authorities in Tinnevelly, even while recording the deposition of the witnesses, subjected them to cross-examination without having sufficient grounds for doing so, and incriminated many an innocent person; and that as such high-handed dealing is not desirable, it behoves Government to adopt measures to punish the persons who were at the bottom of the mischief.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, Dec. 20th, 1895.

A remark on the Kalugumalai case.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 31st December, remarks that it is not desirable that the munsif of Tiruvarur should keep his court late in the evenings to the great inconvenience of parties and vakils. He wishes the munsif to consult the convenience of the people and dismiss his court in the evening.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 31st, 1895.

A request to the munsif of Tiruvarur.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th January, complains that a certain district munsif, Brahmin by caste, in the district of Chingleput, uses unbecoming language to parties and witnesses in the open court, and apprehends that this indecent treatment of the munsif would cause a breach of peace in that place.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 7th, 1896.

A complaint against a certain district munsif in the district of Chingleput.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st January, says that Deputy Collector Kunhi Kannan, who was convicted of bribery recently, put in a complaint to the District Magistrate of Malabar against Ashtamurti Nambudripad and others alleging that the kanam (mortgage) deed and account books produced by the accused as evidence in the bribery case were all forged. The District Magistrate dismissed the complaint. A revision petition was presented to the District Judge of Calicut, who also dismissed it. Mr. Kunhi Kannan then presented an appeal to the High Court against the decision of the District Judge, which was heard by the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Parker, who decided that the matter under appeal was barred by limitation and that the matter should be brought before Government. It was Government that sanctioned the prosecution which led to the conviction of Mr. Kunhi Kannan, and it is therefore the duty of Government to take the necessary steps to ascertain whether the documents which were then accepted in evidence, and which Mr. Kunhi Kannan now contends to be forgeries, are really so. The editor hopes that Government will not hesitate to discharge a duty in which the public interests as well as those of justice are so deeply involved.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 1st, 1896.

Late Deputy Collector Kunhi Kannan's case.

(d) Education.

17. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 28th December, referring to the rumour that is now abroad among the student population that there is to be a re-examination in the Matriculation and F.A. Examinations, condemns the present system of selecting examiners to conduct the various examinations of the University of Madras from among the professors and teachers of local colleges and schools, on the ground that they give the candidates clue to the portions on which they are to be questioned and thus make the examination a farce. The paper is of opinion that if examiners be selected from among the officials of other presidencies, there will be no room for such abuse and the real object of holding University examinations would be secured, and concludes by saying, in support of its opinion, that ever since the foundation of the University there has not been

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Dec. 28th, 1895.

A suggestion to the University of Madras to select examiners from other presidencies.

a single case in which candidates had any clue to the questions prescribed for the Engineering, Medical and Law examinations of the Madras University, for which persons other than professors and teachers have been generally appointed examiners.

PARIYAN, Madras, Jan. 4th, 1896.

A suggestion regarding Pariya schools.

18. A correspondent to the Pariyan, of the 4th January, reporting that the Local Fund school opened for the Pariyas in the village of Nattarasankottai in the Sivaganga zamindari is without a teacher, says that Vellala teachers and Brahmin inspectors will never do for Pariya schools, and suggests the advisability of keeping all the Pariya schools in the district of Madura under the management of the missionaries or of the Madura Pariya Reform Society with a Pariya as superintendent, on the ground that he will evince a greater interest in the education of his own race than what may be expected from high castemen.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 27th, 1895.

Necessity for a road from Edappadi to Jalakandapuram.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th December, speaks of the Union authorities of Edappadi as follows:—They oppress the people with heavy taxes, but pay no heed to local wants. Roads all around are bad, public thoroughfares are not lighted, and yet the union can afford to waste Rs. 1,100 on a luxury, such as the construction of a building for holding fares, i.e., weekly markets. If instead of spending so large a sum of money on the proposed building they spend about Rs. 3,000 for the construction of a road from Edappadi to Jalakandapuram they would be conferring a real blessing on the people.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Jan. 1st, 1896.

Wretched condition of a certain road in South Arcot.

20. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 1st January, remarks that the road which branches off from the Trichinopoly trunk road near Ulunthurpet in South Arcot district is in a wretched condition and proves highly dangerous to carts and passengers. He hopes that the authorities will execute its repair at once.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

Local Fund public works.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 11th, 1896.

Deplorable condition of a bridge in the Calicut municipality.

22. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 11th January, invites the attention of the Calicut Municipality to the necessity of repairing the bridge over the canal between Tiruvannur and Panniyankara. That the Municipal authorities has not repaired the bridge, which has been out of order for a year and a half, and which is greatly used by the public, is a matter to be deplored.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

23. The Lokopakari, of the 18th December, after making a brief reference to the rigour of the Settlement authorities in Trichinopoly district, and to the suffering of the ryots in consequence, remarks that it is not desirable that Government should oppress the ryots in this manner for making up the deficit in the exchequer caused by the grant of compensation allowance and Chitral expedition, &c. The paper complains that during last year persons who had not sufficient knowledge in surveying were allowed to survey in the district of Trichinopoly and consequently the surveying proved very unsatisfactory. The paper advises Government to appoint in future men of real professional knowledge for such work.

Rigour of the Settlement authorities in the district of Trichinopoly.

(h) Railways.

24. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 21st December, referring to the arbitrary rule of the Railway authorities subjecting passengers, who travel beyond the station for which a ticket was purchased, to criminal prosecution, says that even the Steamer authorities are considerate enough to allow passengers who have failed to obtain tickets in the Agent's office to pay their steamer fare to the officers of the steamer. It concludes with the remark that the recent order is nothing but a piece of cruelty on the part of the Railway authorities.

A remark on the novel order passed by the Railway authorities.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 31st December, while praising Captain Shelley, R.E., Agent of the South Indian Railway, for the prompt attention he bestows on matters tending to increase the comfort and convenience of passengers, draws his attention to the inconvenience suffered by the passengers owing to the absence of lights in the train running on the Máyavaram-Muttupet line, and to the absence of zinc-roofed sheds for the accommodation of passengers on the platform of the various stations and also to the dangers sustained by cattle by the absence of fencing on either side of the line.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 31st, 1895.

Certain defects in the Máyavaram-Muttupet line.

26. The Nagai Nilalochani, of the 30th December, draws the attention of the South Indian Railway authorities to the necessity of connecting Mannárgudi with Nídámangalam, a distance of nine miles, and Pattukkóttai, either with Tanjore or with Adirámpatnam, a distance of seven or eight miles, by extending the Máyavaram-Muttupet line as far as the latter town. The paper says that of the nine taluks in the district these are the only two which are devoid of railway communication.

NAGAI NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Dec. 30th, 1895.

A suggestion to the South Indian Railway authorities to have railway communication with Mannárgudi and Pattukkóttai in the district of Tanjore.

(k) General.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th December, speaking of the importance of the village of Malayankulam in Chingleput district and of the disadvantages suffered by the people owing to the absence of a post office in the place, prays the authorities to open a post office there and help the people.

Expediency of opening a post office at Malayankulam in Chingleput district.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 28th December, observes that officials in times of festivals in Hindu temples visit the temples with great pomp and ostentation by directing their peons to run before them to make way for them amidst crowds of devotees, and that the peons in discharging this duty elbow their way through the

Conduct of public officials in times of festivals in Hindu temples.

throng to the great inconvenience and annoyance of the devotees. The paper regrets to note that such a rash treatment of the multitude by the peons is sometimes attended with even loss of life. The paper advises the officials not to arrogate to themselves too much privilege owing to their official position, but to regard the devotees as their fellow-beings deserving a humane treatment.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 7th, 1896.

A remark on the Court of Wards.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th January, regrets to learn that the Court of Wards, under whose fostering care the minor members of the family of Tiruvarur Chokkappa Mudaliyar are now placed, is devising means to sell the estate for defraying the family debts. He complains that the management by the Court of Wards has been very unsatisfactory for the following reasons:—(1) Proper securities have not been taken from the lessees; (2) lands were not leased out in proper season; (3) nearly 2,372 kalams of paddy and Rs. 1,532 have fallen in arrears during the last two years.

A remark on the device invented by the Inspector-General of Registration.

30. The same paper is glad to report that the Inspector-General of Registration, with a view to prevent the commission of the offence of personal misrepresentation, fraud, execution of false document and so forth, has invented the device of taking the impression of the right thumb of the parties executing a document both on the document and on the register kept for the purpose. The paper assures that the new system will, while preventing fraud, on the whole do good to the country.

VARTADARSINI, Nellore, Jan. 4th, 1896.

Income-tax in the Pólúr division.

31. A correspondent to the Vartadarsini, of the 4th January, complains that the assessment of the income-tax by the Tahsildar of the Pólúr division, Nellore district, is altogether arbitrary and unjust. He says that the income-tax is fixed without reference to the actual income, and regrets that the Tahsildar causes additional trouble and expense to the parties by hearing objection petitions at some distant places from the head-quarters. He instances a case in which the parties were ordered to be present at the islet of Srîharikóta in spite of their earnest prayers to be heard at the head-quarters. The correspondent considers that no loss would be incurred by the Government if the objection petitions were disposed of by the income-tax officers when they are at their head-quarters, and remarks that there is a universal complaint against the procedure adopted by the taluk officials in administering the Act.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

Postal value payable system.

32. The Sasilekha, of the 10th January, states that since the Post office takes its commission, whether a value payable parcel is accepted or refused by the consignee, it is but just that it should secure the interests of the sender, and suggests that, when the addressee refuses a value payable parcel, the Post office at the place of residence of the addressee should, on the sender handing in the order or indent for the parcel to the nearest Post office (to establish his bona fides perhaps), withhold from the addressee all letters and parcels directed to him by others until he pays for and takes delivery of the refused parcel. The paper considers that this will be the easiest method of recovering the sum due on the parcel. It remarks that as fraud among people increases owing to the present system, merchants show an increasing disinclination to send value payable parcels, and that though the system may now be profitable, it will cease to be so in course of time.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 13th, 1896.

Economy in little things in Madras.

33. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th January, writes thus:—The Government of Madras is evidently appreciative of economy in little things. By a new order issued to the Superintendent of Government Stationery, that officer has been directed in future to make up and issue clothing, badges, &c., to the peons, duffadars, &c., attached to the High Court, the Secretariats and the Revenue Board. Though every mickle may make a muckle, it is time that larger measures of economy were introduced if the Government really intends to economise.

Lord Elgin's visit to Madras.

34. In commenting upon the recent visit of Lord Elgin to Madras, the Tilism-i-Hairuth, of the 25th December, states that the visit was void of any interest. His Excellency is not gifted with that fluency of speech which Lord Dufferin is blessed with and therefore his speeches did not attract any one's attention. His tour was intended more for pleasure than to ascertain the condition of the country and to do good to the people. Divers entertainments, pyrotechnical displays and dances, &c., fully occupied his time, and His Excellency therefore had no opportunity to attend to the state of the country and its people. He refused to accept the address of the Mahajana Sabha for the reason that it was not couched in flattering terms. It is well known, however, that this address referred to certain real requirements of the country and pointed out the necessity for improving its financial condition and for the curtailment of unnecessary expenditure in various departments. It also referred with disapproval to the compensation allowance and to the requests of the Lancashire and Manchester weavers for the repeal of the cotton duties. The Tilism, after passing several remarks on these subjects, states that had His Excellency accepted the address and permitted the people to open their hearts to him freely his visit would have been considered a great blessing to this place and to have added to his dignity.

TILISM-I-HAIRUTH, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1895.

Insult offered to the British at Cairo.

35. The Alhami, of the 12th January, states that the populace at Cairo is said to be causing much trouble to the British and to be doing divers acts of mischief. Recently at Alexandria some rowdies threw brickbats at the colours of a guard of honour of the 1st Battalion of the East Yorkshire Regiment which was returning from the railway station at Alexandria after receiving the Khedive, and the officer who was carrying the colour was obliged to protect his head against the flying stones. The paper finally remarks that the insult offered to the British colours should not be tolerated.

ALHAMI, Madras, Jan. 12th, 1896.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Remarks on the questions put in the last meeting of the Legislative Council and the replies thereto, &c.

36. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th December, says that the replies given by the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss to the questions asked in the last meeting of the Legislative Council by the Hon'ble Jambulinga Mudaliyar in connection with the union panchayats were, as the editor had already anticipated, very unsatisfactory. The Government is waiting for some opportunity or other to disenfranchise, one after another, all the municipalities in this Presidency, and it is therefore idle to suppose that the union panchayats will be established on an electoral basis, especially so long as Mr. Bliss remains in office.

Reference is next made to the Malabar Land Registration Act. Section 14 of the Act, which provides for the attachment and sale of the crops or ungathered products of land on which an arrear is due, is disapproved of on the ground that as the kanamdars to whom the landlord mortgages his land and who are by virtue of their interest in the land registered jointly with the proprietor and required to pay the assessment do not themselves cultivate the land, but only rent it to some sub-tenants on a simple lease from year to year; the attachment and sale of the crops raised by the sub-tenants for arrears that have accrued by default of the kanamdar is not only injurious to the welfare of the sub-tenants, who are very numerous, but is likely to cause disturbance in the district. The remark is made that if the Government had the least conception of the Malabar tenancy they would not have enacted a law that for the debt of one man the property of another could be attached and sold.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 28th, 1895.

A Partition law for Malabar to be passed.

37. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes about the idiosyncracies of the karnavars (heads of families) of the Marumakkatayam tarwads in Malabar, and also about the difficulties experienced by the junior members of those families in getting their maintenance, &c. The correspondent suggests, as a remedial measure, that a law should be passed giving power to the members of the tarwads to effect at any time a partition of the joint family property and get their share, which benefit is now denied to them.

Tahsildars to be empowered with civil functions.

38. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 6th January, writes that as the Madras Rent Recovery Act has been made inapplicable to Malabar, the landlords, with whom Government has conducted the settlement, have, in future, to resort to the civil courts to recover the arrears of rent due by their tenants. As this procedure entails unnecessary expenditure for stamp value, &c., the correspondent suggests, as a remedial measure, that a law should be passed to the effect that if the landlords put in a complaint with 8-anna court-fees stamp affixed thereto in the revenue courts, such courts shall, after due inquiry, give a decree to the complainant and shall attach and sell the interest of the tenant in the land in satisfaction of the decree. The correspondent further suggests that the Tahsildars, who do not now exercise magisterial functions, should be empowered to try such cases without prejudice to their own duties.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 13th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the appointment of a Malabar Tenancy Commission.

39. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 13th January, says that Mr. R. S. Benson, who has been appointed as the permanent Collector of Malabar, has been deputed by Government to make inquiries into the Malabar tenancy question and to report thereon with a view to legislation in that direction. Mr. Benson has not stayed long enough in this district to know thoroughly the different land tenures peculiar to it. It is doubtful whether there is any matter in Malabar which is more important than the tenancy question, and so a janmi and a tenant who have a thorough knowledge of the land tenures should be appointed as Commissioners to assist Mr. Benson in the business and also to represent both sides of the question—from the landlord's and tenant's point of view, respectively. The editor remarks that as he thinks that the appointment of such a Commission would not even now be too late, he has brought the matter to the notice of Government.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 11th, 1896.

Condemning the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill.

40. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 11th January, says that the Hindu Gains of Learning Bill, which was introduced into the Legislative Council some two years ago by the Honourable Bhashyam Aiyangar, and which was referred to some of the leading men for opinion, is shortly to be considered by the Council. The article condemns the Bill on the ground that it will do more harm than good to the country, especially to Malabar. The Bill will not affect the Makkatayam families so much as it does the Marumakkatayam tarwads, for, no sooner does a member of a Makkatayam family begin to earn money by means of his learning than he can cause the joint family property to be partitioned and get his share, but the member of a Marumakkatayam family is unable to do this as there is no law of partition in Malabar. The children of the Marumakkatayam tarwads are educated with the aid of the joint family funds, and if the property acquired by them by means of their learning is to be treated as their self-acquisitions, the karnavars of Marumakkatayam tarwads will refuse to educate them with the aid of the joint family funds unless they get the consent of the other members of the family, and in case the karnavars educate the children against the will of the latter it will cause disunion among the members of the family. In fact, the Bill will be ruinous to both the Makkatayam and Marumakkatayam families in the Presidency. Mr. Bhashyam Aiyangar may perhaps have some ulterior object in bringing forward such a Bill, but so far as the people are concerned there is no necessity for such a law.

The Manorama, of the 13th January, referring to the above Bill at great length expresses a similar opinion.

IV.—Native States.

41. A correspondent to the Travancore Abhimani, of the 1st January, reports that the Registrar of the Susindram Registrar's office refused to allow a certain catechist to stand as a witness. The correspondent is unable to account whether the Registrar did it out of mere personal spite or out of dislike to see the civilised dress of the catechist. He remarks in conclusion that witnesses who make a living thereby are regarded as honest beings, whereas honest men are not trusted.

Travancore, Abhimani, Nagercoil, Jan. 1st, 1896.

A complaint against the Registrar of Susindram Registrar's office.

42. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 11th January, complains that as the Vanduritti canal near Tripunattara, which is much used by travellers as well as for traffic, is silted up, the boatmen experience serious inconvenience in plying their boats to and fro. The attention of the Sirkar is therefore invited to the matter.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, Jan. 11th, 1896.

Bad state of a canal in the Cochin State.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st January, comments upon the memorial submitted to the Diwan of Travancore by Mr. Palpu, an Assistant Surgeon in the Mysore service, regarding the deplorable condition of the Tiyas of Travancore and their exclusion from the public service as well as from schools of that State. It is the bounden duty of a Government to treat all its subjects impartially, and it is owing to this redeeming feature in the British Government that the people are satisfied with its rule. If the Tiyas of Travancore had been entertained in the service of that State they would have also occupied high and responsible posts like the Tiyas in British Malabar. The statement given by the Sirkar that the Tiyas are not admitted into the service chiefly owing to the objection of the high caste Hindus, shows how utterly the authorities are wanting in moral courage in doing bare justice. The same feeling was once entertained by the high caste Hindus in British Malabar also. When Mr. Churiyil Kanaran was appointed as the police munshi in the Calicut Huzur office, the high castemen employed in the office raised a hue and cry against it, and several officials from sheristadar downwards tendered resignations, but as the then Collector showed that firmness which comes naturally to all Englishmen, one and all withdrew their resignations. Therefore we can only say that the reply of the Travancore Sirkar betrays their lack of decision of character. If the Collector we alluded to above had not acted with determination, the very same high castemen who now use such honorifics as "ejaman" (literally master) to the Tiya sub-judge and the fisherman magistrate in Malabar would with equal success have objected to the entertainment of these low castemen in Government service. It is surprising that the Travancore Sirkar, which knows all these things, and which has been under the protectorate of the British Government for a length of time, is still slow to effect such improvements when times call for it.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Jan. 1st, 1896.

Disabilities of the Tiyas of Travancore.

44. Referring to the contemplated visit of the Nizam to England, the Qasim, of the 30th December, says that the visit will prove beneficial to His Highness and afford an opportunity to British statesmen to become personally acquainted with the superior qualification of this enlightened ruler. On the other hand, His Highness will be able to observe personally how the European monarchs live and rule their countries and what relations exist between the rulers and the ruled. In conclusion, the Qasim remarks that the visit will also settle the Berar question and strengthen the bonds of alliance and friendship existing between the Nizam and the British Government.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Dec. 30th, 1895.

Nizam's visit to England.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 28th, 1895.

Failure of crops in some taluks in Malabar.

45. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th December, while writing about the failure of crops in Walavanad, Palghat and Ponnáni taluks in Malabar, observes, among other matters, that to the petition submitted to Government by some ryots last year a reply was given to the effect that the Government saw no reason under any circumstances to grant the remissions prayed for therein. If the revenue officials had made a true report on the condition of the crops, &c., such a reply would not have been given by Government. Now the second crops are said to have almost withered for want of water. Water from small private tanks here and there is now being taken for irrigation though it is insufficient in quantity. That the revenue officials will not truly represent the grievances of the people is a well-known fact, nor will they try to understand them. In all districts except Malabar tanks are constructed and maintained by the Sirkar and remissions are also generally granted. Moreover, assessments are not levied on uncultivated land. Government make no difference between Malabar and other districts in point of settlement, but they show great reluctance in the matter of granting remissions in the former district. Even in Malabar the scale of settlement varies according to the taluk, and for this no satisfactory explanation has been given. There is a rumour among the people that the British administration is not on the whole good. It appears that the belief at first formed by the people that the motive of Government in every one of its acts is pure and disinterested is now no longer entertained. The Europeans thoroughly know that the Indians are harmless men whom they can deal with as they like, and this state of things has been brought about by the incapacity of the Indians.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Vettikkodiyon, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1895.

Maltreatment of natives in South Africa.

46. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 21st December, brings to the notice of the Tamil public of Southern India the sufferings of their brethren, who are settled in South Africa, at the hands of the European settlers. There is small-pox prevalent in the town of Kimberley and other places. Imagining that the spread of the disease is due to the sale by the Tamilians of rotten fruit, &c., the Europeans enter the shops kept by the former and destroy wholesale the articles stored in them for sale. This causes great loss of property and distress to the Tamil settlers. The paper hopes that the Indian brethren of the Tamil settlers will take steps for getting redress to the aggrieved.

Dravida Bhanu, Tuticorin, Dec. 28th, 1895.

Opinions of Messrs. Wedderburn and Nowroji regarding the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the expenditure in India.

47. The Dravida Bhanu, of the 28th December, referring to the Royal Commission appointed for inquiry into the expenditure in India, says that Messrs. Wedderburn and Nowroji are of opinion that there should be a permanent committee in the Parliament to demand every now and then accounts from the Secretary to the Indian Financial Department and to make inquiries into the matters connected with the Indian finance.

Pariyan, Madras, Jan. 4th, 1896.

Opinion regarding the Congress movement.

48. The Pariyan, of the 4th January, says that the Anti-Conference Society of Poona, headed by the Honourable Tillak, B.A., LL.B., obstinately refused to allow the Congress to hold its social conference in the Congress pandal for the reason that the Congresswallahs were in favour of the Age of Consent Act. The paper remarks that if men of such vast erudition and culture are opposed to social reform, how can ordinary men of little or no learning have a liking for it? How will such persons have a mind to endeavour to elevate the abject and degraded social position of the Tates of Northern India? It concludes with the remark that a little reflection on the affairs of the Congress will induce one to think that the Hindus have an ambition to drive the English off the shores of India and be rulers themselves.

49. The same paper says that the Madras Times and newspapers of Ceylon and Burma, in consideration of the fact that Europeans, owing to the misconduct and carelessness of their menial servants, are often obliged to lose their temper and suffer loss of property, suggest to Government the advisability of checking such irregularity by legal enactment and also of opening a Registrar's office for having the testimonials of the servants registered. It adds that in Ceylon there is a special enactment to govern the menial servants employed under Europeans, and that as Sir Arthur Havelock is shortly to assume charge as Governor of Madras, there is every possibility that if this subject be mooted in the Legislative Council he would gladly uphold the suggestion of the press and pass the desired enactment. The paper remarks that, as the sufferings and annoyance caused to the servants by the mistake and carelessness of their masters are equally great, it behoves the servant-public to avail themselves of this opportunity to band themselves together to ventilate their grievances and also to devise means for the alleviation of their sufferings.

An advice to the Pariyas.

50. The Ariya Jana Priyan, of the 8th January, regrets to remark that many of the zamindaris in Southern India, specially referring to the zamindaris in the districts of North Arcot and Madura, unlike the zamindaris of the Bengal Presidency, are on the verge of extinction owing to the extravagance and indifference of the zamindars. The paper adds that should such a state of things be allowed to continue longer there is every certainty that all zamindaris would be in the hands of European merchants. The paper advises the wealthy classes of the people of Southern India to adopt measures to save the zamindaris from the apprehended extinction.

ARIYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Jan. 8th, 1896.

An advice to the wealthy classes of the people of Southern India regarding zamindaris.

51. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd January, after giving a brief account of the proceedings of the Congress, remarks thus:—On the one hand it must be admitted that the officials do commit mistakes, and that the people are perfectly right in pointing them out and trying to prevent a repetition of them. On the other hand, it must not be supposed that the mistakes committed by the officials are all wilful. Most of them arise from the imperfect knowledge of the country. Under these circumstances it is necessary that such organised associations as the Congress must exist to bring to the notice of the rulers the wants and aspirations of the people, and the rulers should not look upon them as antagonistic to themselves, but consider them rather as helps for the efficient administration of the country.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Jan. 2nd, 1896.

The Congress and the Government.

52. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 1st January, gives a brief account of the National Congress meeting at Poona and approves of all the resolutions passed at it, especially that showing the urgent necessity for the separation of judicial and executive functions and that relating to the proportionate distribution of military expenditure between India and England.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Jan. 1st, 1896.

The National Congress meeting at Poona.

53. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th January, speaking of the last meeting of the Indian National Congress, says that it was a thorough success in spite of the ugly squabbles that threatened it in the beginning, and defends the institution thus:—It might be asked whether there is any necessity for such an institution, whether the rule of the country is not good enough for the people; but acknowledging that the Government has accomplished much, still there is much to be done. It is this that the Congress wishes to do; it wants to correct what is amiss, and it cannot be said that the objects aimed at by the Congress are unworthy. We cannot say that every item of the Congress, if carried out, would be beneficial to the people, but the programme, as a whole, would be of the greatest benefit to them.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 13th, 1896.

The National Congress.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 11th, 1896.

Iniquities of the toll-gate contractors in Malabar.

54. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 11th January, says that some of the toll-gate keepers in Malabar collect tolls twice over for carts which pass and repass the toll-gate on the same day. It appears that last Monday the contractor of the toll between Ferok and Ramanattkara levied from a certain cartman two annas on the same day. Such oppression of poor cartmen ought to be put a stop to.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 28th, 1895.

The Poona Congress.

55. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th December, says that, according to the maxim "Better late than never," the Calicut public held a meeting at the eleventh hour to elect a delegate to the Congress recently held at Poona. Mr. Komu Menon, editor of the Kerala Patrika, was elected delegate, whose expenses to go to and return from Poona were defrayed by the public. If the public had made this effort a little earlier, they could have sent at least two or three delegates. If at least a fourth part of the money unnecessarily spent by the people on festivities were utilised for benevolent public purposes like this, they would not only earn an honourable name but also do themselves good into the bargain. The editor says that if the Calicut public will rise from their lethargy which now prevents them from devoting their attention to the public cause, they have the ability and capacity to fight out any cause and this is amply proved by the Calicut Torture case and the Town Hall meeting.

The Kerala Patrika of the 11th January while referring to the Poona Congress, observes, among other matters, that when Mr. A. O. Hume, General Secretary to the Congress, finally left India for England many expressed the opinion that the collapse of the Congress movement was certain, but the subsequent congresses, especially that held at Poona, have demonstrated that opinion to be groundless. While the majority of the subjects discussed in the Congress are such as concern the people of India in general, the statement of the critics that the Congress is intended for a section only of the people is untenable. Although the Anglo-Indians make much of the Muhammadans holding themselves aloof from the Congress, yet it cannot be considered as a proof of their hostility to that movement, for there are very few educated men among the Muhammadans who can take part in its deliberations. Moreover, it is the educated and not the uneducated that generally take the lead in all public movements and the Congress cannot be supposed to be an exception to this.

The Kerala Sanchari, the Kerala Mitram and the Manorama of the 8th, 11th and 13th January, respectively, give a summary of the resolutions passed in the Congress at Poona.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th January, regrets to remark that the English have disgraced themselves by unwarrantedly interfering in the affairs of Armenia. It says that the English in India do both good and evil, and asks "Would they like to see any of the powers, such as Russia, America or China, interfere in their administration of India."

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A remark on the interference of the English in the affairs of Armenia.

2. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 13th January, contains a long article on the subject of the invasion of Kafiristan by the Amir, who has finally made up his mind to annex that country, and states that the question of annexing Kafiristan and Asmar with Afghanistan has been already settled between the Amir and Sir M. Durand's mission. It is asserted that through jealousy certain Englishmen are conspiring to raise a hue and cry against the Afghans, which, if true, is undoubtedly caused by the instigations of the restless and intriguing missionaries who believe that the people of Kafiristan dislike the Afghans and their religion, and consider that if they help the former at this time they will readily embrace their religion. This course of action on the part of the intriguers, the Akbar remarks, will seriously affect the friendly relations which exist between the Amir and the British Government in the same manner as the bigotry and intrigues of Mr. Gladstone and the clergy recently affected the long-standing alliance between Turkey and England; and, finally, advises the English Government to observe strict neutrality and to maintain intact the existing friendly relations with the Amir and not to heed the evil advice of the English Press, the result of which will subject England to serious loss and trouble.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Jan. 13th, 1896.

Invasion of Kafiristan by the Amir.

3. Alluding to the friendly relations which at present exist between Russia and Turkey, the Alhami, of the 19th January, says that not only the Sultan and His Majesty's Government love Russia, but love for her has found place in the heart of every Turk who confidently regards her as the guardian and defender of Turkey; but, on the contrary, England is looked upon as an inveterate enemy of Turkey and Islam.

Alhami, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1896.

Friendly relations between Turkey and Russia.

4. The same paper states that as the season of the pilgrimage to Mecca is fast approaching, it is necessary for the British and the Turkish Governments, respectively, to make satisfactory arrangements for the safety and protection of their subjects who go on pilgrimage to that place. It is alleged that the misunderstanding between the Bedouins and the Turkish authorities, which arose by reason of the late incident at Jeddah, still exists. Moreover, the road to Medina being unsafe, it is apprehended that pilgrims will encounter serious difficulties on the way. It is also said that latterly no caravan ventures to go to Mecca from Jeddah without an armed escort.

Approaching pilgrimage season to Mecca.

5. The same paper states, on the authority of an English contemporary, that so long as Sir Philip Currie, the present British Ambassador, who is a bitter enemy of the Sultan and his Government, and the cause of the ill-repute of the government of Lord Roseberry and Lord Salisbury, remains in Constantinople, there is no hope of peace and tranquility prevailing in the Turkish Empire.

Sir Philip Currie and Turkey.

6. Referring to the invasion of Kafiristan by the Amir, the Qasim, of the 30th January, on the authority of the Civil and Military Gazette, writes that the English Press, particularly the Globe, is much disquieted and disappointed on account of the conquests achieved by the Amir's troops, but finding no political ground for raising its voice against the invasion or asking the English Government to interfere is trying to give the question a religious aspect. These papers say that if England had espoused the cause of the people of Kafiristan and treated them with kindness and love, the English would have won them over to their religion and succeeded in planting a Christian colony in the very centre of Asia. They condemn the inactivity of the British Government in this case and ask why it does not make war on the Afghans, and why it has not given missionaries the opportunity of preaching the gospel in that country. With reference to the above, the Qasim says that perhaps the Globe is not aware of the fact that missionaries have not been able to make many conversions in countries which have been the field of their operation for hundreds of years past, they have not met with success amongst the lowest and most backward races of the world, and what success can they expect to meet with when working in high and refined society. The Akbar lastly observes that, in comparison with India, vices and crimes are ten times greater in European countries where the work of the Christian clergy has been carried on day and night for centuries past.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Jan. 30th, 1896.

Kafiristan and the English Press.

II.—Home Administration.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A complaint against the police.

7. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th January, complains that the people are beaten with stones and waylaid at Kalculam, on the Kodampakkam road, and at Subraya Chetty's korakkapalli garden, on the St. Thomas' Mount road, and that there is no police at that place to come to their rescue. He thinks that constables will go on beat if Allidose Sahib be again made an inspector of that division.

Sasilekha, Madras, Jan. 24th, 1896.

Police and other departments.

8. A correspondent to the Sasileka, of the 24th January, remarking that thefts have been increasing for the last five or six years, regrets that the police, though unable to detect crimes, are tormenting innocent persons. He notes with pleasure that the Collectors and other higher magisterial authorities of former days used to go out in disguise at nights to see if the police were on the alert and to learn whether the tahsildars and other officials were discharging their duties honestly, but regrets that this practice continued only so long as the Civil Service was recruited from high families. The members that are now enlisted, belonging generally to poor families, are, he says, utterly unmindful of public welfare. He is opposed to the Government giving sure and rapid promotions to the police and forest officials and to the engineers of local boards, notwithstanding their utter unfitness for higher appointments, on the simple ground of their having served as subordinates for some time. He remarks that these higher officials, whose pay is actually less than that of the Civil Servants, feel themselves constrained to earn, somehow or other, large sums of money in order to secure for their wives as decent and respectable a status as that of the wives of the civilians. He further remarks that these higher officers scarcely punish their subordinates, lest their own shortcomings should be exposed. Otherwise, the police and other crimes in large towns would certainly see the light. As an instance in point, the correspondent refers to the case in which the police superintendent and the Collector, Mr. Moberly, and other white-skinned gentlemen tried their best to exculpate the police of Calicut who had without any cause whatever tortured certain innocent persons, though at last they (the police) were providentially punished. He complains that the Government seldom enforces its Acts and Regulations which appear only in print and that, though excellent resolutions have been passed in connection with the Forest department, the people have not been relieved from the molestations of the forest officials—from the "watchman" up to the highest dignitary. He earnestly prays that the Government will lose no time in enforcing the regulations of the various departments and to remove the grievances which the people suffer at the hands of the officials in those departments.

(b) Courts.

Questions raised regarding the conduct of the district munsif of Tiruvádi, now transferred to Sivaganga.

9. A correspondent to the Janánukulan, of the 11th January, reporting that Mr. Srinivasa Rao, manager of the High School, Tiruvádi, gave a farewell entertainment to M.R.Ry. N. Sambasiva Aiyar, District Munsif of Tiruvádi, who was transferred to Sivaganga, says that Mr. Srinivasa Rao was a particular friend of the district munsif, and many of his suits had been specially filed in his court and were disposed of by him. The correspondent asks whether the district munsif was justified in admitting into his court and adjudicating upon the cases filed by a person who was his particular friend, and whether he was right in accepting the entertainment given by Mr. Srinivasa Rao, knowing that he is his friend, and that he was a party to the suits which were disposed of by him. The correspondent requests the editor to draw the attention of the District Judge of Tanjore as well as that of the Judges of the Madras High Court to this subject.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Jan. 11th, 1896.

A remark on the nomination of Messrs. V. P. D'Rozario and Srinivasa Rao as the Judge of the City Civil Court and the High Court, respectively.

10. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 11th January, is glad to report that Mr. Srinivasa Rao, Judge of the Madras City Civil Court, has been nominated the 5th (?) Puisne Judge of the Madras High Court, a post lately sanctioned by the Secretary of State for India. With reference to the nomination of Mr. V. P. D'Rozario as the Judge of the City Civil Court in preference to Messrs. Michell and Subrahmaniem, the paper is unable to understand the reason that guided Government in making such an arrangement, but thinks that the nomination may have been due to the fact that both Messrs. Srinivasa Rao and V. P. D'Rozario are about to retire from the service or that the posts for which they are nominated are only temporary.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1896.

Stationary Magistrate of Calicut using abusive language to clerks and parties.

11. A paragraph in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 20th January, notices with regret that bad reports are current about Mr. P. V. Kunhi Raman, Stationary Magistrate of Calicut. It appears that the magistrate generally abuses the clerks and parties, calling them "fools" and so forth. When a clerk recently told the magistrate that his conduct in this respect was a source of great sorrow, he said to the clerk that he would call him a fool hundred times, and true to his word he did so. If the magistrate cannot himself feel that this practice is unsuited to the present time and to the British justice, the authorities should warn him to be polite.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 20th, 1896.

Regretting the retirement of Mr. Krishnan, Sub-Judge of Palghat.

12. A leader in the same issue of the paper regrets to hear that the High Court has asked Mr. E. K. Krishnan, Sub-Judge of Palghat, to retire at the end of the official year. There are very few judges, if there are any, who are so conscientious, upright, just and sympathetic as Mr. Krishnan. Of course he takes some time to decide suits, but few of his decisions go wrong. To order such an able judge to quit the service on the ground that he makes some delay in disposing of cases is a matter for profound regret.

Remarks on a certain order of the District and Sessions Judge of Calicut.

13. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th January, says that Mr. O'Farrell, District and Sessions Judge of Calicut, has issued an order to the effect that the witnesses, assessors and jurors in sessions cases should be present in court on the first day on which the sessions begin. This order not only causes great hardship to such persons but also loss to Government, as witnesses in cases posted for different dates have, under this order, to be present in court from the first day until their cases are taken up and disposed of, Government will have to pay a large amount as batta to these witnesses. Again, it is hard that witnesses should wait in the court for so many days leaving their professions and callings. It is therefore hoped that the Sessions Judge will re-consider this order.

The Manorama, of the 20th January, referring to the same order expresses a similar opinion, but suggests that in case the Sessions Judge does not wish to change his order and revert to the old system, Government should give an allowance to the assessors and jurors as well as to witnesses.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Jan. 5th and 12th, 1896.

The Primary School examination.

14. The Rajayogi, of the 5th and 12th January, writes thus (in English):—"There is one examination which we consider to be a bane to the progress of education among little children—the Primary School examination. Examinations produce a very bad effect, inasmuch as they tell very seriously upon the intellectual freedom and indirectly upon the bodily health of the school-going populations; but if grown-up boys are subjected to these examinations, these evils are greatly minimized. On this ground we may not take such serious objection to the Lower Secondary examination as we do to the Primary School examination.

"The constitution and the management of this examination are very unique and cannot but strike any impartial judge as absurd.

"This is an examination held among pupils of the IV standard of all recognised schools and private candidates who seek public service. Inspecting officers are not allowed to examine the IV standard for grants, so that all schools who seek support from Provincial funds are compelled to send their boys for this examination. The examination is held in certain centres of the district where these boys go and is conducted by a board consisting of a chairman and two or three members. The examination is altogether oral.

"Hitherto several places used to be chosen as centres and boys could easily appear at a place nearest to their home and the members of the board continued to be the same persons, so that there was uniformity in the examination conducted at the several centres. Now it has been ruled by the Director that only tahsildar and deputy tahsildar stations ought to be the centres of examination and members should be selected at each centre, the chairman and the sub-assistant inspector of schools alone travelling. This arrangement nullifies the benefits mentioned above.

"Let us see what purpose is served by dragging small children of eight and nine from their mothers and subjecting them to the fatigues of journey and inconvenience of sojourn in a strange place. The teacher generally accompanies his school boys and is expected to look after their comforts at the place of examination. They are almost univerally made to undergo examination for two days. We have personal experience of the sufferings of these little children for want of proper food and proper accommodation. This misery is augmented by the recent rules. Sometimes tahsildar stations happen to be some miles away from the villages in which the pupils reside, and we leave it to the Director of Public Instruction to imagine how cruel it is to make children, most of whom cling to their mothers' breast, travel miles and miles together.

"In the next place application to the Primary School examination means money; pupils have to pay the doctor for getting a vaccination certificate; they have to pay the examination fees, undergo the expenses of travel and lodgings, &c.

"What is the object gained after all? The pass lists are out. The school passes 80 per cent. Certifying memo. is ready, but where is the allotment? It has been exhausted already on account of the girls that have passed from the III standard, so that the teachers are in no way benefited by the examination.

"It is therefore clear that to subject school boys to this examination is cruel and serves no purpose. It is enough if men who seek public service are made to undergo the examination."

(e) Local and Municipal.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th January, requests the authorities concerned to expedite the construction of a road from Ettiyapuram to Vilathikulam, in Tinnevelly district, sanctioned by the local board. He says that, owing to the absence of the said road, the postal bags which would ordinarily reach in four hours are delayed for two days as they are sent through Ottappidáram.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A request to the authorities to expedite the construction of a certain road in Tinnevelly district.

16. A correspondent to the same paper says that after the introduction of A system, roads in Cuddalore, instead of being metalled, are being filled with the earth excavated from the side channels and consequently prove to be wretched. He adds that people fell the avenue trees standing on high roads with impunity and the authorities do not take any notice of such acts. The correspondent requests the Collector to pay attention to the matters here complained of.

A prayer to the Collector of South Arcot.

17. A correspondent to the Pariyan, of the 11th January, says that as the Pariyas living in the paracherries of the town of Villupuram are very poor, it behoves the Pariyas to exert their best to get the land-tax, which has been arbitrarily imposed on them, repealed.

PARIYAN, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1896.

An appeal to the Pariyas to get the land-tax imposed on paracherries of Villupuram repealed.

18. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 15th January, complains that at Puddupalayam, in South Arcot, carts pass during nights without lights on them and thereby cause serious accident both to the people and carriages, and that the authorities pay no heed to such a piece of irregularity.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Jan. 15th, 1896.

A complaint against the municipality of Cuddalore.

19. A correspondent to the same paper says that the present Chairman of Tirukkóyilúr union, in South Arcot district, being an apothecary, has hardly time to attend to the union work, and that the municipal administration of the place is therefore totally unsatisfactory. He hopes that the Collector will direct his attention to this matter.

A request to the Collector of South Arcot regarding the maladministration of Tirukkóyilúr union.

20. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th January, speaking of the scarcity of water in the village of Seranmathevi, Ambásamudram taluk, says that if the municipal authorities are pleased to pump out the stagnant water of the Ramaswami's temple teppakulam of that place and replenish it with good water, it would be of great use to the people, and hopes that the Chairman will pay heed to this suggestion and do the needful.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 17th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Chairman of Seranmathevi union in the taluk of Ambásamudram.

21. The Sasileka, of the 17th January, states that the villagers in this country have been, from time immemorial, accustomed to keep and use vacant grounds around and in front of their dwelling houses for purposes of drying and preserving grain, but that the district and taluk boards have instructed the unions under their jurisdiction to occupy the said grounds, and issued strict orders that no permanent buildings, such as verandahs, should be built even on the vacant grounds lying between the road and the walls of the houses, and that the union's sanction must be obtained even for raising temporary pandals thereon, thus claiming all the vacant land for the Government. The paper remarks that if this had been anticipated by the villagers, they would have taken care to enclose their vacant grounds with walls and hedges, and regrets that this omission has caused them so many difficulties. It suggests that the district conferences and associations will do well to consider the question and send memorials to the Government, and it further appeals to the honourable representatives of the district boards in the Legislative Council to exert and do the needful for the benefit of the villagers.

Vacant grounds in villages.

DESOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1896.

Village teachers.

22. A correspondent to the Desopakari, of the 19th January, regrets that the taluk boards of the Gódávari district, especially those of Narsapur and Bhímavaram, are unnecessarily transferring and dismissing innocent teachers without consulting the Educational authorities. He remarks that owing to these frequent transfers the teachers lose their interest in the work and are also unable to command the respect and obedience of their pupils. He suggests that the Government may be prayed to enforce the old rule authorising the Educational department to appoint village teachers with the approval of the local fund boards and to instruct that no teacher should be transferred from any place before he has been there for two years, except in cases of promotion or neglect of duty, or at the reasonable request of the people or of the teacher.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 25th, 1896.

Remarks on the Calicut municipal budget for 1896–97.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 25th January, referring to the discussion that took place in the Calicut municipal council when the budget estimate for 1896–97 came on for consideration, says that some unnecessary items were scored out, while funds were provided for certain very useful and desirable purposes. The year 1895–96 opened with a balance of Rs. 4,000 and, considering the fact that within eight months the municipality has run short of funds to the extent of Rs. 720, it is difficult to foretell how much the chairman will have to borrow by the time the budget for 1897–98 has to be presented. If the present chairman continues to administer the municipality in this fashion it will be almost hopeless to improve it ever after. The most important provision made in the budget for 1896–97 is the allotment of Rs. 1,500 for the construction of the Mankava bridge. The memorandum of one of the councillors, Mr. P. P. Karunakara Menon, regarding the repair of the Mankava bridge, which has been approved by the council and incorporated in the budget, is very much to the point. On a careful perusal of the memorandum it would appear to any one that the chairman has misrepresented to Government the matters connected with the bridge. Considering the fact that the council has, at the request of the ferryman, given him a bigger boat than the one which was first given, is there any meaning in the statement of the chairman that the above bridge is solely intended for the Calicut princes and their men? The chairman ought to have raised objections at the time when the council passed a resolution that a bridge at least sufficient for the people to walk over should be constructed, but instead of doing so, he wrote demi-officially to Government about the matter after a resolution had actually been passed by the council. The remark is made that the chairman's suggestion that subscription should be collected locally for doing a work of public utility is very absurd.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A request to Government to increase the salary of karnams.

24. The Lokopakari, of the 10th January, describing at length the multifarious and onerous duties discharged by the karnams, regrets to remark that the small salary now paid to them is inadequate for their hard labour. The paper requests Government to increase their salary at least at the time of re-survey and settlement. In regard to appointing assistant karnams as suggested by Collectors in reply to the question put by the Board of Revenue for utilizing the surplus balance of Service fund, the paper says that this system, while involving a large waste of money, cannot in any way lessen the hard work of the karnams.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 27th, 1896.

Landowners in Malabar to be furnished with the sub-division registers and plans.

25. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 27th January, says that several blunders have been committed in the entries made in the adangal register prepared for the Palghat and Walavanad taluks after the recent survey. It appears that the names entered in some cases are not those of the real proprietors of land. The editor therefore requests Government to direct the authorities to furnish the proprietors of lands with the sub-division registers and plans which have been correctly prepared for the purpose of registering titles and which the settlement officer now refuses to give on application, so that they may be able to point out errors, if any, committed in the registration of lands now being carried on in Malabar. In order to test the accuracy of the Government survey, the landowners themselves have commenced to survey their lands, and in this connection it is suggested that Government should lend the services of their surveyors to these men and cause the lands to be re-surveyed wherever it is necessary, the cost being borne by the owners.

26. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 8th January, complains that a few Hindu temples are enclosed within the forest reserves of the Tiruvannámalai circle, and that if devotees proceed to these temples for making their offerings, the forest authorities object to their doing so.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Jan. 8th, 1896.

A complaint against the forest authorities of Tiruvannámalai circle.

(h) Railways.

27. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 8th January, describing the importance of Tiruvannámalai as a Hindu sacred shrine to which resort thousands of devotees in times of festivals, says that the present railway station is incommodious, and that the railway authorities should extend the buildings so as to secure resting accommodation for the passengers.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Jan. 8th, 1896.

Expediency of extending the railway station of Tiruvannámalai so as to secure resting accommodation to the passengers.

28. The Janavinodhini, of the 10th January, hopes that Government will grant the request prayed for in the memorial submitted by the people to adopt measures for supplying passengers with water at the railway station of Lukkadis where the through mail arrives at midday when passengers stand in need of water-supply.

JANAVINODHINI, Tiruvádi, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A prayer to Government.

(i) Public Works.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th January, draws the attention of the authorities to the necessity of erecting a bridge over the river Agalikkottai near Tirukkóttiyur on the high road leading from Tanjore viâ Pudukkóttai and another bridge over the river Tenar which passes between the villages of Karaikkudi and Koilur.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 17th, 1896.

Necessity for the erection of bridges on certain roads.

30. Under the head "Just complaint," the Qasim, of the 30th January, inserts a correspondent's letter as follows:—Quarters for military hospital assistants which have been constructed in different places under the regulations generally consist of a room 16 × 12 feet, a verandah 16 × 6 feet and of an apartment for females, but have no privy and kitchen room which are essential. Hospital assistants generally, and particularly those who are Muhammadans and whose females as a rule observe gosha, are much inconvenienced on this account and are obliged to use the only room which each set of quarters contains both as a sleeping and kitchen room. In these circumstances the correspondent implores Government to issue orders to the proper authorities to adopt remedial measures, having due regard to the comfort and convenience of medical subordinates.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 30th, 1896.

Military hospital assistants' quarters.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

31. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th January, referring to the iniquities of the salt officers of the Chowghat range, writes that the powers exercised by some of the petty officers have been always unlimited. The salt officers in Madilakam are alleged to enter the houses at midnight on the plea that there is illicit ganja or toddy therein and frighten the inmates. Whatever arbitrary acts these officers do, the blame falls at last upon their innocent victims.

(k) General.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Jan. 8th, 1896.

A request to Government regarding the postmaster of Tiruvannámalai.

32. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 8th January, says that the work of the postmaster of Tiruvannámalai is indeed so heavy that he is obliged to work both day and night without a moment's leisure. He thinks it desirable that he should be helped with the service of a clerk and requests Government to do the needful.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A request to publish a novel order passed by the Head Assistant Collector of Negapatam.

33. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th January, announcing that Mr. N. E. Marjoribanks, Head Assistant Collector of Negapatam, has issued an order that no covers addressed to his office would be received after 12 A.M., requests the authorities to make a public notification of such an order in the interest of the people of that taluk.

Necessity for a hospital in Milattur.

34. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th January, requests the authorities to open a hospital in Milattur as it is a populous place consisting of about 15,000 people who are in sore need of medical aid.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Jan. 18th, 1896.

Advisability of opening a hospital in Kathivakkam, which is ten miles to the north of Madras.

35. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 18th January, dwelling on the sufferings undergone by the people living in Kathivakkam, which is ten miles to the north of Madras, and in villages adjoining it, owing to the absence of medical aid in that place, requests the authorities to open a hospital there and help the people.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 21th, 1896.

The exchange compensation allowance.

36. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th January, in the course of its remarks on the President's address at the last meeting of the Indian National Congress, says:—The exchange compensation allowance is very unjust and it is uncalled for. It was given on account of the clamour raised by some of the officials, and we are glad to find that the Congress took the matter up in right good earnest; but while the higher officials got their salaries raised they did nothing for those who were lower down on the ladder. Not a cash has been added to their pay. This shows great selfishness on the part of the European officers and they well deserve to have taken from them what they now obtain from the coffers of the State.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 15th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the appointment of a Deputy Collector for the acquisition of lands for railway purposes in Malabar.

37. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th January, states that there is a proposal to appoint one of the tahsildars in Malabar as a Deputy Collector for the acquisition of lands for the construction of the Calicut-Cannanore railway, and suggests that Mr. Karayi Govindan, who is most honest and the ablest tahsildar in Malabar, and whose merits Government has not hitherto recognised in any way, should be appointed for the post.

Approving of the appointment of Mr. Benson as the Collector of Malabar.

38. A leader in the same issue of the paper approves of the appointment of Mr. R. S. Benson as the Collector of Malabar. While Mr. Benson was District Judge of South Malabar, everybody was satisfied with him, and the vakils and parties are said to have actually shed tears at the news of his transfer. After the transfer of Mr. Winterbotham the sorrow which the people of Malabar felt at their not getting for his successor so good a Collector as he was cannot but now be removed by the appointment of Mr. Benson. Malabar had not the fortune or perhaps the misfortune to see again any persons who had previously been permanent Collectors unless it were on paper. There is a rumour that Mr. Hewetson will be transferred shortly, and it is therefore hoped that Mr. Benson, whose appointment has given universal satisfaction, will soon come to Malabar.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 18th, 1896.

Remarks on the postal insurance system.

It is also suggested that the present letter-box in the above post office should be replaced by a larger one, for, owing to the small size of the former, it is soon filled up and consequently opportunity is given for the people to meddle with letters that are easily accessible through the opening of the box. The attention of the authorities is further invited to the necessity of establishing a pillar-post between Chalapuram and Talli, which are said to be the most populous parts of the town and far away from the post office, and also of causing two deliveries in these places instead of one as at present.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 20th, 1896.

Passing remarks against the unjust dismissal of Mr. Le Mesurier.

III.—LEGISLATION.

41. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 11th January, remarks that the system now in vogue, that persons intending to execute a power-of-attorney should appear before a magistrate and execute it in his presence, works a hardship on those persons who, by illness or otherwise, are unable to attend the magistrate's court. The paper says that if a rule be passed permitting magistrates to attend, if so desired, the house of the applicant wishing to execute the power-of-attorney and to charge the applicant with a certain scale of fee for this trouble, even as is done in the Registration department, it will remove the hardship above complained of. The paper invites the attention of the members of the Legislative Council to the subject.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1896.

Necessity for passing a rule permitting magistrates to attend the house of parties wishing to execute documents, such as power-of-attorney, &c.

42. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd January, says that after the passing of the Malabar Tenants' Improvements Act, it has become the practice of the tenants to plant cocoanut and other trees indiscriminately on the lands held by them. Formerly it was the custom to plant from 60 to 70 cocoanut trees and a proportionate number of other trees on an acre of land, but the tenants now, it appears, plant from 100 to 120 cocoanut trees and a similar number of other trees on the same area. The object of the tenants in doing so is said to be twofold, viz., (1) to prevent all facilities for capricious evictions by landlords, and (2) to get a larger sum as compensation. The article says that as the planting of trees

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 22nd, 1896.

Reflections on the Malabar Tenants' Improvements Act.

in such large numbers will not only diminish the yield, but will also cause the soil to deteriorate very soon, Government should take steps to put a stop to this injurious practice in the interests of both the landlords and tenants. The existing relations between the landlords and their tenants are not so cordial as they ought to be, and to leave them in that state without concerting measures to mend matters is not only injurious to the welfare of the country but also very impolitic. It is recommended as a remedial measure that a law should be passed in the sense of the following suggestions. They are (1) the maximum number of trees on an acre of land should be fixed on an average, (2) the trees in each taluk should be classified and the amount of compensation to be paid for each kind settled, (3) landlords should be prohibited from putting their lands on melcharts (overlease), (4) the improvements effected by tenants as well as their moveable property should be made liable for arrears of rent due by them to the landlords, (5) landlords should have facilities for collecting arrears of rent without resorting to the civil courts.

IV.—Native States.

Travancore Abhimani, Nagercoil, Jan. 10th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Government of Travancore to utilize the services of convicts in the construction of railways now opened in that Native State.

43. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 10th January, suggests to the Government of the Native State of Travancore the advisability of utilizing the services of convicts in the construction of railways, which are being opened in different parts of the State, as is done by the Government of Russia.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Jan. 15th, 1896.

The unsatisfactory state of the administration of civil justice in Mysore.

44. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 15th January, complains that the Government of Mysore does not attend to the evils arising from the arrears of undisposed of civil suits in the province. Although most of the revenue officers in the districts have not work enough even for three hours in a day, the number of Assistant Commissioners is increased every year, but Government never attends to the cry of the Shimoga people for subordinate judge's court in the place. An additional munsif is urgently required for the city of Mysore itself. The number of suits in Mysore and Seringapatam is so large that there is no time enough even for adjourning the hearings of cases. The cause of this accumulation of arrears is due to the appointment of inexperienced young men as munsifs in these heavily-worked courts, while experienced men are sent away to rust in out-of-the-way corners. We hope the Government would afford some relief to the people who spend so much money in trying to obtain justice.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Jan. 15th, 1896.

Children of the Tiyas refused admission into the schools in Travancore.

45. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 15th January, writes that although the Travancore Sirkar pays sufficient attention to primary education and have established for this purpose several schools, yet it is a matter for regret that the children of Tiyas and other kindred classes are refused admission into such schools.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Vettikkodiyon, Madras, Jan. 4th, 1896.

Blame cast upon the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

46. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 4th January, dilating on the usefulness of the "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," writes as follows:—The Commissioner of Police, Madras, has, in the Hackney Carriage rules, provided that a horse or bullock should carry four persons only; but as to the maximum weight of load or luggage these beasts of burden may carry the Hackney Carriage Act is silent. The authorities of the said institution have not striven to invite the attention of the Commissioner to the necessity of framing a rule on the subject. Again, the extremely rugged and wretched condition of many of the roads, streets and lanes, in the City of Madras, renders it extremely hard for horses and bullocks to draw carriages and carts along them. The society does not seem to have drawn the attention of the Municipal authorities to the badness of their roads.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th January, writes as follows:—The annexation of Burma, Manipur and Chitral by the Government of India and the heavy taxes imposed on the people by Government are indeed subjects too well known to need repetition here. In these days, English soldiers, doctors, priests and merchants being filled with an inordinate desire for the acquisition of territories, wantonly interfere in the affairs of foreign dominions and fall out with them. The English possess great influence only in the continent of Asia; for, during the last two years they, with the revenues of India, have annexed many territories in Asia and reduced their rulers to the condition of paupers. In Europe, Africa and America the English seem to have little or no influence. The English, impelled by the same desire for conquest, attempted in Europe to wage war with Turkey but to no purpose. Even in America they interfered with the affairs of Venezula; but as Mr. Cleaveland obstinately protested against their interference, their attempt in that continent also proved ineffectual. In Africa, during last week, a few Europeans by unnecessarily interfering with the political affairs of the native princes of Africa caused the outbreak of a war; but the leader of the Moors however, with the help of the Germans, thoroughly defeated the English. Africa is now the scene of great confusion and consternation, and it is a matter for regret that the English were not successful even in this war.

Ambition of the English to make fresh conquests and the trouble resulting therefrom.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1896.

48. The Pariyan, of the 11th January, suggests that small treatises on agriculture should be written in easy style in the vernaculars of Southern India and published in the school books prescribed for elementary classes, so that boys and girls may learn the principles of agriculture and apply them in cultivation.

A hint to the Government of India regarding the spread of knowledge in the science of agriculture.

Pariyan, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1896.

49. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th January, referring to the imposition of import duties, says that the Lancashire merchants are urging the Secretary of State for India to have the import duties repealed, and that there is every certainty that they will soon be abolished. The paper remarks that if the Lancashire merchants would move the Secretary of State to reduce the military expenditure and the salary of European officials, they would not only profit themselves thereby but would also do great good to India.

A suggestion to the Lancashire merchants.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 17th, 1896.

50. The Vikata Dutan, of the 18th January, says that the English rose in arms against the Boers of South Africa for the reason, firstly, that the latter violated the terms of the treaty of 1884 and longed to acquire Tangaland, a British possession, against the wishes of the English; and, secondly, that the Boers treat the natives of South Africa rather cruelly. The paper concludes with the remark that the English, who regard the lives of others as their own, spend their revenue and energy on foreign wars not, as imagined by some, in vain, but with the avowed object of protecting the weak and the undefended against the cruelty of their oppressors and to punish the unjust.

Causes that led to the outbreak of a war between the English and the Boers in South Africa.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Jan. 18th, 1896.

51. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th January, says:—There were incidents in the Poona Congress which have not found their way into the reports. "While passing by the Congress pandal I noticed," writes a correspondent, "a figure about 24 feet in height and representing a peasant reduced to a skeleton, who was advocating the cause of his class. It had a board upon which was the following inscription in golden letters:—'An Indian peasant's cry. Are there out of our twenty crores at least twenty here to explain our grievances?'"

An unreported incident in the Poona Congress.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Jan. 20th, 1896.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 27th, 1896.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th January, speaking of the Indian National Congress at Poona, says:—A commission was appointed by the last Parliament to consider the pecuniary affairs of India, but it is forbidden to enter into any details of policy. This is a grand mistake, for it is the policy of the Government that determines the expenditure. It is to be feared that the commission will not do much good, more especially as the press is excluded from its proceedings. There ought to be nothing for the members to be ashamed of. The Government of England makes this country pay more than its proper share of expenditure, and the burden falls heaviest as regards military charges. The people of this country have also a duty to perform. They must not allow foreign capital to be invested in India on railways and other public work, but should come forward with their own capital. This would, to some extent, diminish the annual drain on India.

The Royal Commission on Indian finance.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Jan. 30th, 1896.

53. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 30th January, approves of the action of the Madras Government in increasing the pay of the clerks and other servants in the offices of the Tahsildars in the presidency and says that a similar change is urgently called for in the Mysore Province also where the claims of these poorly-paid and hard-worked Government servants have been too long overlooked while the salaries of the higher officers have received enormous additions within the past few years.

Improvement in the pay of the taluk office clerks.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 18th, 1896.

54. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th January, refers to the lotteries that are being carried on in large numbers in Walavanad and Ernad taluks of Malabar and says that as these lotteries give rise to several evils, the Government should put a stop to them.

Lotteries in Malabar to be put a stop to.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Jan. 25th, 1896.

55. A correspondent in the Malayala Manorama, of the 25th January, while referring with great pleasure to the title of C.S.I. conferred upon Kerala Varma Valiya Koil Tampuran, of Travancore, suggests that a similar honour should be conferred upon Kilimanur Ravi Varma Raja, the celebrated artist, who has opened an oleograph painting firm in Bombay.

Artist Ravi Varma Raja recommended for honours.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th February, states that the dignity and prestige of England have suffered greatly on account of the short-sighted policy of Lord Salisbury, and her power, which was considered paramount, is now looked down upon everywhere. England has been disgraced in the eyes of the world by the unsuccessful issue of the Armenian question, the failure in the affair of Venezuela and the defeat sustained at Johannesburg and the want of success in the Mekong question. The present ministry has not proved useful to India in any way. It charged the cost of maintaining a permanent garrison at Chitral, which amounts to 12 crores of rupees annually, to the people of India. This country has also been burdened with an enhanced cotton duty. It is a matter of great regret that the present ministry has cast a slur on the good name of the British Government and caused it to be considered weak and contemptible in the sight of the world.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Feb. 5th, 1896.

Passing remarks against Lord Salisbury's policy.

2. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 31st January, remarks that the village of Vayalpad has been the haunt of thieves who visit it at regular intervals of three or six months. He states that there have been five or six instances of robbery during the last six months, some property and Government records having been stolen and a rich woman murdered. He regrets that the police have been unable to detect these criminals as yet and notes that misunderstandings having arisen between the village officials and the police, each shifting the responsibility on to the other, the people are left at the mercy of the thieves. The correspondent complains that the police are afraid of the thieves, that they do not keep proper watch at nights, that they trouble people for petty bribes, that they are altogether a set of idlers, drunkards and mischief-makers, and that the police inspector is incompetent to do his duty. He observes that when the people of Madanapalle had complained to the Inspector-General of Police, the latter promised to make some changes amongst the police of the division, but that the promise still stands unfulfilled. He suggests that the Cuddapah District Association will do well to bring the matter to the notice of the said Inspector-General again.

The police in Vayalpad.

3. The Hindujanasamskarini, for January, remarks that the hollowness of the police system in the Madras Presidency is evidenced by the recent notorious criminal conduct of the police at Calicut. It complains that all the money spent on the Police department is a mere waste and that the European superintendents and assistant superintendents are doing little or no work. It believes that natives are quite fit and these ought to be appointed in their stead on smaller salaries, saving thereby a large sum of money.

Hindujanasamskarini, Madras, Jan. 1896.

The Madras police system.

4. The Andhraprakasika, of the 8th February, states that, while the late F.A. examination was being held at the Bangalore Central college premises, two clever and promising candidates were arrested and detained by the police for nuisance during the hour of recess on one of the examination days, and asks whether it was not unjust of the police not to have allowed them to attend the examination, immediately after that hour, upon their earnest entreaties to be allowed to go to the examination hall, giving their names.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Feb. 8th, 1896.

F.A. candidates and the police.

5. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 13th February, says that in Vizagapatam thieves seem to take delight in entering into the houses of big officials and stealing therefrom. Lately the house of the district engineer was broken into and property worth Rs. 700 was stolen. The other day again they entered the house of the police inspector himself. The police seem to have no terror for the thieves here.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Feb. 13th, 1896.

Incompetency of the police in Vizagapatam.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1896.

A remark on the appointment of Mr. R. S. Benson as one of the Judges of the Madras High Court.

6. The Lokopakari, of the 30th January, announces that Mr. R. S. Benson has been appointed as one of the Puisne Judges of the Madras High Court vice Mr. Justice Parker retired, and regrets to remark that the claims of some of his seniors in service, such as Mr. Weir, who once acted as a Judge of the Madras High Court, have been overlooked. Referring to the rumour that the slowness with which Mr. Weir used to discharge his duty was deemed a disqualification for the said post, the paper observes that a disposition to dispose of things slowly and deliberately is one of the indispensable qualifications in a judge and is therefore anxious to know the reasons that made Government ignore his claim.

A suggestion to Government regarding Sessions Judges and the jury.

7. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, speaking of the extensive powers vested in a judge administering criminal justice, such as passing sentences of death, transportation for life, &c., says that it is the bounden duty of a Sessions Judge to exercise these powers with due deliberation and caution and not to rely implicitly on the statements of the police which will be often found to be concocted. The paper doubts whether Sessions Judges discharge their duty in the manner herein recommended. It is the duty of the jury to help the judges so that they may not go wrong. In the present administration of justice in the presidency, Government should endeavour to strengthen the jury and to see that the Sessions Judges bestow utmost care in the disposal of cases tried by them.

MANORAMA, Cochin, Feb. 3rd, 1896.

Mr. Kunhi Kannan's case.

8. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 3rd February, says that, acting on the decision of the High Court, Mr. Kunhi Kannan, late a Deputy Collector, who was convicted of bribery, and who is now the Diwan of Ali Raja of Cannanore, applied to the Government of Madras for sanction to prosecute one Ashtamurti Nambudripad, a witness in the bribery case, for forgery, but the Government refused to grant the sanction. Mr. Kunhi Kannan has now appealed to the Government of India against this order and has also submitted together with his appeal copy of a letter from Mr. Moberly, a former Collector of Malabar, to the Government of Madras stating that, on a careful consideration of the evidence produced by Mr. Kunhi Kannan, it would be found that the punishment awarded to him was unjust, and that he was not guilty of the charges made against him. The article remarks that it is quite unjust on the part of Government not to inquire into the matter thoroughly and mete out justice to him.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 31st, 1896.

Advice to the people of Tanjore regarding the contemplated abolition of the Kumbakónam College.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st January, referring to the contemplation of Government to hand over the management of the Kumbakónam college to local bodies, advises the people in the district of Tanjore to strain every nerve to take the management of the college in their own hands. It assures them that they can afford to maintain half-a-dozen first-grade colleges like the one in question if they only have a mind to do so. It further says that, if the missionaries, who are also trying to take the management in their own hands, which is desirable only in case the people of the district fail to take it, should succeed in their attempt, they may be said to create for themselves a locus standi for the first time in Kumbakónam. The paper is sanguine that the college will thrive well if it is managed either by the people or by the missionaries.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, at the instance of His Excellency Lord Sandhurst, the Governor of Bombay, advises the authorities of the various native girls' schools in Madras to give the girls instruction in music on such instruments as piano and veena. He regrets the neglect of this art, which is most useful to the fair sex, in these institutions, while music is taught in the corresponding institutions intended for European girls.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 4th, 1896.

A suggestion to teach piano and veena to Hindu girls in girls' schools.

11. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd February, says:—The Upper Secondary examination is a huge failure. In the examination held in December 1895 only seven candidates have passed the compulsory portion and only four who, having previously passed in certain of the compulsory subjects, came up and passed in the remaining compulsory subjects Why should the Government maintain an examination for eleven candidates? Is it not time to abolish this farce?

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 3rd, 1896.

The advisability of abolishing the Upper Secondary examination.

(e) Local and Municipal.

12. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th January, complaining that accidents by fire in the bazaar street in Kumbakónam are very frequent, requests the authorities to provide the town with a fire-engine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 24th, 1896.

Necessity for a fire-engine at Kumbakónam.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, says that the rivers Kávéri and Arasilár, which surround the town of Kumbakónam, supply the people with water only for a few months in the year, and thinks that, if the Ayee tank, which was forbidden to be used as being the cause of the outbreak of cholera in 1895, is purified and rendered fit for use, it will supply the people with water throughout the year, and requests the municipal authorities to pay heed to the suggestion.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 4th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Kumbakónam municipality regarding the Ayee tank.

14. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 5th February, says that the people of the village of Kadampakkam in the taluk of Villupuram are in sad need of fresh water as the well water in that place is not fit for drinking purposes, and that the tank in the said village will serve as a good reservoir of fresh water if the authorities are pleased to construct steps at the bank of the tank, which is at present very high and slippery. He requests the taluk board authorities to do the needful.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Feb. 5th, 1896.

Advisability of erecting steps on the bank of Kadampakkam in the taluk of Villupuram.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th February, says that, as the Government has favourably reviewed the administration report of the Calicut municipality for the past year, it is clear that, in the opinion of Government, the administration has become more satisfactory than it was six years ago. It is now six years since the municipality was deprived of the privilege of election, and when His Excellency the Governor visited Calicut the rate-payers presented him a memorial on the subject. The reply of His Excellency was that the privilege will be restored to the municipality when municipal matters have improved, and the editor therefore exhorts the people to submit now a memorial to Government setting forth their grievances.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Feb. 5th, 1896.

Elective system to be granted to the Calicut municipality.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 8th February, says that, under the depressed state of the Calicut municipal finances, the proposal of the council to borrow Rs. 50,000 at 4¼ per cent. interest from Government is very unwise, and asks the councillors to give up their present laudable

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 8th, 1896.

Remarks on the proposal of the Calicut municipal council to borrow money for the construction of a new market.

proposal till their finances improve and in the meantime to repair the present market as far as they can and put it in a decent condition.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Jan. 1896.

17. The Hindujanasamskarini, for January, states that assessments are rising in the Delta taluks of the Kistna district and that heavy rains have destroyed the crops in the Thamarasa division (near Kollair) of the Gudivada taluk. It regrets that the tahsildar has notified that no remissions would be granted and that he has suggested that a three-months' crop might be raised, though the ryots had complained that the lands would yield no second crop. It further regrets that the tahsildar has directed the village officials to distrain the ryots' cattle, utensils and provisions. When floods cover dry lands "prohibitory" rates are imposed, it adds, on the ryots for no fault of theirs. It declares that it is unjust of the Collector of Kistna, Mr. Atkinson, to thus annoy the poor cultivators who are unable to launch into litigation. When they completely place themselves under the paternal care of the Government, it is unjust of the Government not to redress their grievances when they are brought to its notice by the press.

Heavy assessment in the Kistna district.

MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Feb. 3rd, 1896.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 3rd February, says that, as the land registration in Malabar is an important matter affecting the welfare of the land-holders in that district, it is the duty of the authorities to see that the unscrupulous village officials and revenue inspectors are not given free scope in the matter. The signatures of most of the landlords are in the form of one or the other of the two particular alphabets in the Malayalam language, viz., "Sri" and "Shtra," which could be easily forged, and the majority of the tenants are also illiterate. Under the circumstances village officials could easily forge such signatures and get the lands registered in the name of others without the knowledge of either the landlords or the tenants. Village officials are said to have been authorized to receive and certify applications for the registration of lands. This will undoubtedly lead to the commission of various frauds and will moreover cause great hardship to the landlords and tenants. Notices to the opposite parties are also served through the village officials, and what difficulty could there be for some of these officials in countersigning such notices also on behalf of the parties? It appears that Government has ordered that a fixed number of applications should be disposed of daily by the Deputy Collectors engaged in the registration business, and it is therefore to be very much doubted whether these officers can discharge their duties conscientiously. To get through the work of registration in this fashion is indeed very dangerous.

Registration of lands in Malabar.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 24th, 1896.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th January, advises the people to praise the Madras Government for having passed an order condemning the Collector of Kistna that his procedure in afforesting waste lands in a certain village in Masulipatam, though it tends to increase the revenue of Government, was unjust and would cause hardship to the ryots. The paper believes that, in virtue of this order, the District Collectors will not, in future, freely indulge in afforesting waste lands.

An advice to the people regarding a certain order passed by the Madras Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 24th, 1896.

20. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th January, dwelling on the inconvenience suffered by the people by the absence of railway communication between Dindigul and Pódanúr, requests the railway authorities to construct a railway line between the said places as early as possible. He points out that there is plenty of trade in the country between those stations and that a railway connecting them will pay well.

Desirability of constructing a railway line between Dindigul and Pódanúr.

21. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 25th January, reporting that Captain Shelley, Agent of the South Indian Railway, in connection with his arrangements in the Locomotive and Engineering departments, is contemplating the appointment of six first-class stationmasters on a salary ranging from Rs. 150 to Rs. 300, doubts whether he would confer such appointments on natives. The paper requests Captain Shelley to pay particular attention to the hardships experienced by passengers and adopt remedial measures.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 25th, 1896.

A request to Captain Shelley, of the South Indian Railway.

(i) Public Works.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th January, complains that the bund of the tank in the village of Kolathur, in the taluk of Chingleput, is overgrown with prickly-pear, that the sluices are in a wretched condition, and that feeder channel, coming from Engel tank, is silted up with earth. He says that the authorities take no pains to repair the tank even though the necessity for such repairs has been urged upon them for the last thirty-five years.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 28th, 1896.

Negligence of the authorities to repair a certain tank in the village of Kolathur in Chingleput taluk.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st February, bitterly complains of the bad condition of roads in South Malabar, especially in Walavanad and Palghat taluks, and ascribes this in large measure to the (A) system of repairs. If the contractors inspected the roads even once a year, they would not be in such a deplorable state. Before the roads were handed over to the local boards, Government used to have even the village foot-paths repaired by the amsam officials. Now not only is this not attended to by the board, but it also neglects the repair of even the important roads. The article hopes that the board will at least hereafter give special attention to the matter which has been a subject of incessant complaint.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 1st, 1896.

Deplorable condition of roads in Malabar.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

24. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 6th February, complains of the iniquities of the Salt and Abkári peons in Malabar. It appears that when peons go out for tree-marking they demand eight annas per tree from the person for whom the trees are to be marked, and, in case they refuse to pay this, the peons do not mark the trees which have been applied for, but mark any tree they like and make up the number.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 6th, 1896.

Iniquities of the abkári peons in Malabar.

(k) General.

25. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 22nd January, observes, as the result of his personal experience during his recent tour, as follows:—"If the office of Avalurpet in Cuddalore division be made to receive the mails daily and a postman be attached to it, he being given the charge of delivery to villages around the station, then alone, and not till then, the institution of that office will be justified. In that case the postmen of some other offices will be relieved going twenty and twenty-five miles for delivery, and then they may be made to go to their villages several times. This will be little more convenient to the public. Till what I advocate is effected, the sum spent on behalf of the Avalurpet office is a mere waste—an amount wasted on the whims and fancies of postal officials."

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Jan. 22nd, 1896.

A remark on certain branch post offices in the Cuddalore division.

The same correspondent remarking that the branch post offices in Minambur and Sattiyamangalam in the same division are also useless, concludes as follows:—

"This short experience of mine makes me seriously think of the ways in which our public money is spent on the institution and maintenance of these experimental post offices as they are termed and that with no usefulness to the public! Will not the postal authorities look to the rectification of these matters? If such state of things continues for a time, we will soon hear of the postal system being a curse rather than a boon as it should be on the poverty-stricken masses of India."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 24th, 1896.

Severity of the income-tax authorities at Kumbakónam.

26. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th January, complains that the income-tax imposed on the merchants in Kumbakónam is very oppressive, not to speak of the insults they are subject to at the hands of the petty officers concerned. Taxes are wrung from poor traders with merciless severity, and one's heart melts at the sight.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 28th, 1896.

An advice to Government not to attempt to establish its religion by force as it seems to have done in Ceylon.

27. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th January, regrets to remark that the Government of Ceylon dismissed a European public servant by the name of Le Mesureur, because he embraced Muhammadanism in that place, and that it has even attempted to pass a Bill in the Legislative Council to prevent such a conversion. The paper reminds Government of the fact that it was religion that caused the outbreak of the great Indian mutiny in the year 1857 and that it was this mutiny that obtained from the sovereign the pledge of religious neutrality. The paper concludes with the remark that it is not desirable that Government should attempt to establish its religion by force, as such a state of things would wound the feelings of the people and ultimately end in trouble.

A request to the military authorities regarding the maltreatment of natives by soldiers.

28. The same paper, reporting that a few soldiers assaulted a native and upset his carriage while he was passing near Fort St. George on the beach road on Wednesday the 22nd January, observes that natives returning from the beach, late in the evenings, often meet with bad treatment at the hands of soldiers, and that it is highly necessary that the military authorities should adopt prompt measures to check such conduct.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 4th, 1896.

A suggestion to Government to pass certain orders for prohibiting bull chase in the districts of Tanjore and Trichinopoly.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, praises the Government of Pudukkóttai for having passed an order prohibiting the old custom of bull chase on the second Pongal day, which consists in driving a fat and strong bullock in an enclosure surrounded by the spectators and chasing the enraged bullock so as to make it escape through the crowd of people, on the ground that it is attended with serious risk and even loss of life. He advises the Madras Government to pass similar orders in regard to the districts of Tanjore and Trichinopoly where the custom of bull chase is enthusiastically observed.

A complaint regarding the medical aid in Kumbakónam.

30. A correspondent to the same paper complains that the medical aid in the town of Kumbakónam is far from satisfactory and doubts whether it is due to want of sufficient supervision on the part of the higher medical authorities of the district. He asks the municipality whether Rs. 700 per annum would be sufficient to meet the expenses of an hospital which has to attend to nearly 127 cases a day.

A suggestion to the postal authorities.

31. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 5th February, regarding the post offices in the Cuddalore division, writes in English as follows:—"May I take the liberty of requesting our Superintendent of Post Offices to be kind enough to let the public know through your columns what law directed his carrying out of the recent scheme of promotions? As far as it is evident, it was neither the claims of merit nor of seniority on which his principle in this action was based."

* * * * *

"One of the Madras papers complained some time ago about the inconvenience the public are put to by the postmen of our head office being sent to the treasury office for money, stamps, &c. Do our officials fail to understand this inconvenience? Or do they not care for it? The postmen are sent to the treasury at 2 P.M. and return to the post office at about 4-30 or 5 P.M. It takes them half an hour more to give the accounts to their master in the office. They assume their legitimate duties at 5 or 5-30 P.M. When are they to deliver letters? When are the public to receive and answer them?"

* * * * *

"The mail postman or other such person may well be required to do this duty now falling to the lot of the unhappy postmen."

Soldiers' violence.

32. The Sasilekha, of the 31st January, hears that, while a person was going in a bullock-cart towards the Fort at 8 P.M. on the 22nd January, some soldiers stopped the carriage and beat the occupant and that Mr. C. Srinivasa Rao employed in the Engineer's (?) office and Srinivasa Pillai, the bill-collector of the Madras Cricket Club, were eye-witnesses. The paper complains that Government scarcely punishes these soldiers and remarks that, as these foolish and brutal soldiers fear only such as can return blow for blow boldly, the natives must banish their cowardliness and resist their attacks. It is then, the paper observes, that the soldiers' mischief will abate.

Tirupati temple.

33. The Hindujanasamskarini, for January, complains that all the income of the Tirupati temple is entrusted to byragis and is being squandered by them. It observes that the byragis and even the petty officials of the devastanam are amassing large sums of money, and suggests that all the expenses necessary for the sanitation of Tirupati and for the prevention of contagious diseases there should be recovered from the income of the temple.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Jan. 1896.

Payment of teachers' salaries.

34. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 7th February, regrets that the taluk (Tanuku, Gódávari) gumastas retain the pay-bills passed by the board with them for a long time and thus cause great inconvenience and trouble to the teachers. The salaries of the teachers for November and December 1895, it is stated, have not been paid even after the end of January 1896.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 7th, 1896.

Mr. N. Subramanyam.

35. The same paper asserts that Government has done great injustice to Mr. N. Subramanyam. It believes that, if he had only been a white-skinned gentleman, he would have certainly obtained high appointments. It sarcastically remarks that none but his dark skin is to blame and that his case is an instance of the fair justice (ironical) the Government administers.

Irregularities of village post peons.

36. A Mannárakkát correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 6th February, complains of the irregularities of the village post peons. These peons, who are said to be natives of the place, go to the post office only once a week to receive letters, and, after their return from the office, they go either to their own house or to that of their wives and throw all the letters in some corner of the house and then look after their domestic concerns. Just a day or two before their next turn to go to the post office approaches they put all the letters in their bag and go to the villages which generally lie at a distance of five or six miles from each other. The addressees, whom the peons happen to meet on their way, probably get their letters, but the others do not. The peons then present themselves at the office and receive the letters and return to their house and do the same thing. The correspondent adds that he writes this from his own experience and he suggests, as a remedial measure, that persons other than natives of the place should be appointed as peons, so that their attention may not be diverted to such a scandalous extent by their domestic concerns.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 6th, 1896.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Feb. 10th, 1896.

Appointment of qualified Muhammadans as Deputy Collectors.

37. Referring to the news that some of the Deputy Collectors are to retire at the end of the current official year, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 10th February, suggests to His Excellency Lord Wenlock to issue an order directing that half of the appointments that will thus become vacant may be given to qualified Muhammadans and thus leave behind him an imperishable monument of his special favour to the Moslem community of this presidency.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Feb. 10th, 1896.

Colonel Sawyer accidentally wounding a native lad.

38. Regarding an accident to the person of a native lad, of which Colonel Sawyer was the cause, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 10th February, states, on the authority of the Madras Standard, that the wall which forms the enclosure of Wellington house, Rayapetta, having been broken down in several places, the people of the neighbourhood were in the habit of getting into the compound for the purpose of easing themselves. Colonel Sawyer, the Controller of Military Accounts, who now occupies the building, prevented people from doing so and reported the matter to the police. Lately a native lad inadvertently got into the compound for some purpose or other, but, seeing the colonel strolling about, he took to his heels. The colonel, it is alleged, in order to frighten the lad took up his rifle and fired it in the air, but unfortunately the ball struck the leg of the lad and wounded him. A report of this incident was made to the police, whereupon the inspector of the division sent the lad to the Rayapetta hospital and took away the rifle from the gentleman, against whom legal steps will be taken shortly. In narrating the above, the Akbar remarks that Colonel Sawyer, being a military officer, must, as a matter of course, be a good shot and hence it is absurd and ridiculous to say that he shot in the air to frighten the lad and the ball struck his leg accidentally and notes that the proverb, which says "aim was taken towards the sky but the ball hit the ground," exactly applies to the case. The author of the accident could have easily caught the poor lad and handed him over to the police, but, instead of doing so, he made use of his loaded rifle. This action of his proves that Europeans, who think themselves heaven-born creatures, have no regard for the life of the natives and treat them in this respect like dogs.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 28th, 1896.

A remark on the Bill of Mr. Westland passed in the Imperial Legislative Council.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th January, reports that Sir James Westland has succeeded in passing a Bill in the Imperial Legislative Council to the effect that duties should be imposed on all cotton goods, whether imported or locally manufactured. It adds that this Bill is more favourable to the Lancashire merchants than to the natives of India, and asks whether Government is justified in doing evil to this country in this manner.

VRITTANTAMANJARI, Madras, Feb. 1st, 1896.

Cotton Duties Amendment Bill.

40. The Vrittantamanjari, of the 1st February, observes that the incidence of the proposed duty on coarse cotton falls on the poor of India, and that the reduction in the duty on cotton of a finer sort increases the demand and enriches enormously the Lancashire merchants. The paper complains that every possible effort is being made to cripple the Indian manufacturing enterprise, which is just in its infancy, and that the sole desire of the Lancashire merchants is to grow richer at the expense of the Indian people. It regrets that, while the interests of Lancashire are represented by no less than 70 members in Parliament, those of India are looked after only by a few. It notes also with regret that, when the Government is determined to pass the Bill, the services of the Honourable Mr. Mehta, the Maharaja of Darbhanga, and the Allahabad representative are not available.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 3rd, 1896.

The Cotton Duties Bill.

41. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd February, says:—The people of India, and more especially those connected with commerce, are extremely angry with the Government with regard to the cotton duties. The change proposed in the Bill has been brought about in the interests of Manchester. The object of the agitation at home is to cripple, if not to destroy, the cotton industry of this land, and for political purposes the Government of India has been compelled to submit. The Government by the change will give up half a crore of rupees, and the worst of the matter will be that, while taxing the cloth of the poorer inhabitants of the country, the hitherto thriving cotton industry will be crippled. The duty will fall with greater force upon the coarser kinds—those worn by the lower classes. If this is not wrong, we should like to know what is. It seems very hard that the poor ryot and the poor labourer should be made to pay more for the cloth they wear because the trade of Lancashire is depressed. It would be far more honest, we think, to call for subscriptions to aid the distressed than lay an unjust impost upon the people. The Manchester interest is powerful; the Government has to grant its behests. India is weak and being weak she must suffer. The duty will fall with great force upon that class that now pays the land-tax, the salt duties, the forest fees, cesses of sorts, and many other imposts. This is not a condition of things that ought to be encouraged, and a strong protest should be made against it.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th February, makes remarks similar to those contained in its issue of the 3rd instant reported above and further says:—

The Cotton Duties Act.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Feb. 10th, 1896.

The people of England may talk about justice and wrong, they may hold forth about the officials that have authority in India and say that they ought to be more impartial, that they ought to sympathise more with the inhabitants of the land, but when it comes to money they are exceedingly unjust. The Government of India should be so strengthened that it could resist the unjust demands of the Home Government. What is wanted is that India should be governed in India and by India. The people must try to get the councils still more enlarged and make them represent the voice of the country. They must do away with the rule by mandate.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 8th February, strongly condemns the Cotton Duties Bill as an unjust measure which will in effect be very oppressive to the poor people of India. The article says that, in spite of the increase of import duties on English cotton goods, the Indian cotton manufacturers are unable to compete with their brethren in England. Under the circumstances the present reduction of import duties and the imposition of an excise duty on Indian-made cotton goods will eventually cause the Indian mill industry to collapse. It is the Home Government and not the Government of India that is chiefly to be blamed in the matter. That the India Government abides by the mandates of the Secretary of State is an admitted fact. They cannot act in anything independently. It is useless and inexpedient to criticise the action of a man who has not the liberty to question the instructions given by another but has simply to carry them out. How disgraceful will this action of the Home Government look in the eyes of Foreign Governments it is difficult to say. India cannot hope to receive any favourable concessions at the hands of the Government whose sole intention is to help only the Lancashire manufacturers. As regards the Secretary of State, he has joined the party that endeavours to enrich one man by robbing another. It is plain from the speech of Sir James Westland that the other countries under the British Government are intended to be feeders of England, and so it is idle to suppose that any good will be done to India before the interests of England are secured.

Remarks on the Cotton Duties Bill.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Feb. 8th, 1896.

44. Another leader in the same issue of the paper comments upon the Malabar Marriage Bill. It does not approve of sub-section 2 in section 16 and section 22 of the Bill. Sub-section 2 gives power to any member of the tarwad, who has not been served with a notice, to institute a suit within three months from the date of the registration of sanbadham for cancellation of such registration. This is disapproved of by the article on the ground that it will give power to such of the members of the tarwad as have not the welfare of the family at heart to unnecessarily interfere and annoy the parties contracting marriage. As regards section 22 the remark is made that, as the provisions contained therein are very elastic, the union between husband and wife cannot be expected to last long and capricious divorce will be carried on unchecked.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Feb. 3rd, 1896.

Reduction of cotton duties on Lancashire goods.

45. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 3rd February, states that at last the hope of the Lancashire weavers has been realized, inasmuch as the Government of India has, at the instance of the Home Government, passed the Bill to amend the Tariff Act. Under this Bill the cotton duties on the Lancashire goods will be reduced from 5 to 3½ per cent. and a tax will be imposed on the Indian coarse cloth. The arrangement will on the one hand result in the development of European trade and on the other hand cause a deficit of half a crore of rupees in the Indian exchequer and subject the poorer classes of the people of India, who have hitherto purchased coarse cloth cheap, to great inconvenience as they will be obliged to buy it at an enhanced rate in future. The Akbar remarks that this has been done at the representation of one or two deputations of the Lancashire weavers to the prejudice of the Indian industries and asks if this procedure is just and fair.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1896.

Opinion on the rumour that the British Resident of Mysore is to be appointed as the Lieutenant-Governor of Panjab.

46. The Lokopakari, of the 30th January, referring to the rumour that Mr. Macworth Young, the British Resident of Mysore, is to be appointed as the Lieutenant-Governor of Panjab, says that, if the rumour be true, such a course is not desirable. It adds that for three years more there should not be any disturbance in the official staff of Mysore for the reason that frequent changes of officers tends to mar the happiness of the people.

An advice to H.H. the Maharaja of Cochin.

47. The same paper, reporting that the British Resident of Cochin has recommended a European for the post of Superintendent of Police in Cochin, now vacant in that place, advises the Maharaja not to be led astray by the counsels of the Resident, but to exercise his own discretion in the matter and appoint a native for the post.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 10th, 1896.

Native States and Political Agents.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th February, has a leading article on the suicide of the Raja of Patna and quotes a letter purporting to have been written by the Raja to the Political Agent of the place from Bulugir on the 3rd of January last. The letter is to the following effect: "You seem to be always dissatisfied with me and interfere both in my private affairs and in my administration. Your attitude towards me is like that of a master to his negro slave. I am quite aware that your representations will command more belief than mine, and it is in your power to ruin me; but if I were in your position, I should have acted more in fear of God and of public opinion. You cannot have forgotten that you wrote to Government that I neglected to pay you a visit, but you omitted to state in your despatch that the day was a religious holiday when I could not go out. Which of us two was it that began this quarrel between us? You not only interfered in my religious observances, but also made me stand in the hot sun. You have not only usurped all my powers, but have not a spark of sympathy for me. Your cruelty to me is daily increasing, and I am at a loss to know how to pacify you. I wish you would let me know how I can do so. I think I am trying more than ever to please you, but you are inexorable. You have transferred your powers to the Diwan. How can you expect my Diwan to obey me when you set him up against me? It is not at all proper on the part of a Political Agent like you to oppress and trouble one who is entirely in his power."

49. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st February, condemns the proposal of the Cochin Sirkar to appoint a European to the post of Superintendent of Police which has fallen vacant in consequence of the retirement of Mr. Gunther. It remarks that, as the British Government has kept out the Indians from all the responsible offices under its administration, it is only in the service of Native States that they can hope to display their talents and ability, and the bestowal upon Europeans of what are called the "plums" of such services also is undoubtedly due to want of patriotism in the rulers of those States.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 1st, 1896.

Condemning the proposal of the Cochin Sirkar to appoint a European to the post of Superintendent of Police.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th January, referring to the same subject, says that although it fully sympathizes with the aspirations of the Indians that they should be more largely employed in the higher offices of the country, yet it cannot for a moment support their contention that no foreigners should be introduced in the State service even when competent hands are not locally available. The opinion is expressed that the appointment of a European as the head of the Police department is more beneficial to the State than that of a native.

50. Referring to the so-called Simla bribery case in which Maulavi Saiyid Yusuf-ud-din, an officer of the Nizam's Government is concerned, the Jaridah, of the 1st February, states that the above officer was arrested illegally, and that the Government of India, without regard to the position and prestige of its old and faithful ally, the Nizam, acted in an arbitrary manner, and that the people of Hyderabad have taken great interest in this case. The case was to come on for hearing on the 23rd of January last, but it was not taken up on that date. In the meanwhile the counsel for the accused filed an affidavit against the illegal issue of the warrant for the arrest of the alleged accused in the Chief Court of Panjab. The Jaridah, in inserting a translation of the affidavit and the order passed thereon, observes that it has already criticised the illegal procedure of the court and requested the Nizam's Government to take necessary steps in the case, but nothing has as yet been done officially by it. After passing sarcastic remarks on the boasted civilization, justice and impartiality of the English nation, it notes that the warrant was issued during the time of Colonel Mackenzie, who was considered to be an honest, upright, amiable and polite gentleman as well as a well-wisher of the Nizam's Government, but it now appears that he is the author of all the mischief which Mr. Plowden has abetted.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Feb. 1st, 1896.

Illegal arrest of Maulavi Saiyid Yusuf-ud-din.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st January, thinks it desirable that the Parliament should bestow attention on the order passed by the Secretary of State for India in the year 1885, which repealed the order of Lord Ripon passed in the year 1883. The paper adds that under revisions of settlement numerous and heavy taxes are imposed upon the people and that the article in the Hindu as "The resettlement in the Gódávari district" proves how promises made liberally to the people are violated by Government.

A request to Parliament.

52. A correspondent to the Vettikkodiyon, of the 25th January, says that the institution of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals works a great hardship on mofussil cart-drivers who come to the town for selling vegetables, &c., and serves to enrich police constables and the agents of the institution. He adds that, if constables and agents are not bribed, they bring on the cart-drivers some charge or other and prevent the carts from proceeding further till their case is finally disposed of, and that in the meanwhile the vegtables stored in the carts get rotten, causing serious loss to the owners thereof. The correspondent thinks it advisable that mofussil cart-drivers should be exempted from the operation of the rules of the said society.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Feb. 1st, 1896.

Comment on the new rule passed regarding the cotton duti s.

53. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st February, asserts that the reduction of import duties on cotton goods from 5 to 3¼ per cent. and the imposition of the same on all cotton goods will greatly affect the poor classes only and proves it as follows:—Under the old rule, duties were imposed on cotton goods produced by yarn numbering about twenty and the goods produced by yarn numbering below twenty were exempted from duties. The latter class of cotton goods being rough in their texture, were never imported from Manchester, but were locally manufactured and used by the poorer classes only, and as, under the present rule, even these goods are subjected to a duty at 3½ per cent., a poor man is obliged to pay Rs. 103½ for what he had purchased last year for Rs. 100 only. Thus the poor man sustains a loss of 3¼ per cent. On the other hand the cotton goods imported from Manchester are generally used by the richer classes, and inasmuch as there is a reduction on them of duty from 5 to 3¼ per cent., the rich man gains 1¼ per cent. Thus the present rate of taxation is more favourable to the rich than to the poor.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 4th, 1896.

Remark on the duty of the Government of India to bring to light the cause which led to the Maharaja of Patna to commit suicide.

54. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, announcing that the Maharaja of Patna, after murdering his wife, committed suicide, remarks that there is a strong suspicion that the Maharaja was led to the commission of suicide by the bad treatment he received at the hands of the Political Agent. The matter needs clearing up.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 6th, 1896.

Wanted a stamp-vendor at Ponmeri, Kurumbranát taluk, Malabar.

55. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 6th February, invites the attention of the authorities to the necessity of appointing a licensed stamp-vendor at Ponmeri in Kurumbranát taluk, as there is a great demand for stamp papers there and the station, where the stamps are now sold, is far away from the place in question.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd February, regrets that the Hindus in Natal are being very much ill-treated and put to every conceivable form of inconvenience and hardship by their jealous European rivals in trade and that they are even denied the right of travelling by tram cars.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Feb. 22nd, 1896.

Hindus in Natal.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th February, says that the Amir threatens to break the treaty with the English if he is not allowed to keep an ambassador at the Court of England.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Feb. 24th, 1896.

The threat held out by the Amir.

3. The same paper says that a respectable educated Indian, who has just returned to Bombay from Natal, draws a sad picture of the lot of Indians in South Africa. He asserts that the competition of Indian traders has roused bad feeling in the European colonists, who treat the Indians in a spirit of persecution and vexatious tyranny. All Indians without distinction are called "coolies," and are indiscriminately classed with Kafirs and other uncivilized native tribes. In fact, the Indian is bitterly hated and is treated more like a Pariah dog than a human being. The tram cars are not for him and the doors of the hotels are closed against him.

Treatment of Indians in Natal.

4. Speaking of the presents sent by the Amir to Her Majesty the Queen, the Alhami, of the 16th February, states that the presents will tend to strengthen the bonds of alliance and friendship between the Amir and the British Government and hopes that the subsidy paid to the Amir will be increased from 18 to 24 lakhs per annum.

Alhami, Madras, Feb. 16th, 1896.

5. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 24th February, has an extract from the Aum, of Lahore, of which the following is an excerpt:—It appears that the Amir is, as usual, attempting to discourage trade between Herat, Ghazni and India, and that notice has been frequently given to the Government of India which has yet done nothing. The Akbar, after remarking on the inactivity of the Government in this case, says that the Amir seems to be ignorant of the fact that England's glory and supremacy depend chiefly upon commerce and advises that monarch to encourage commerce to the utmost of his power.

6. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th February, after alluding to the recent Calicut torture case, says that the police of Calicut has begun again to indulge in its old mischief and is eagerly watching for an opportunity to do evil to the people. The paper reports that the constables have brought three unjust cases for inquiry before the magistrate simply with the object of annoying the public.

Mischief of the police at Calicut.

7. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 15th February, reports that house-breaking and theft are of frequent occurrence in Kilpak and Egmore and cautions the police to be on the alert to detect the culprits.

Vettikkodiyon, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1896.

A caution to the Madras Police.

8. The Alhami, of the 16th February, states that dacoity and robbery are the order of the day everywhere and attributes the cause to the connivance and underhand dealings of the police generally and remarks that the police in the mofussil are notorious for their malpractices.

Alhami, Madras, Feb. 16th, 1896.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Feb. 22nd, 1896.

"Agency law and justice."

9. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd February, states that one Damodara Patro, a respectable inhabitant of Jeypore (Agency tracts) and proprietor of a large village, was arrested on a charge of alleged theft of a very small quantity of gingelly and mustard and that the Sub-Magistrate, Mr. Poolla Venkanna Pantulu, refused to release him on bail or adjourn the hearing so as to enable the accused to be ready with his defence, and remarks that the magistrate's refusal is contrary to the provisions of section 526 of the Criminal Procedure Code. It hears that the Maharaja of Jeypore is jealous of the Patro's estate and that as the Maharaja intends asking the Government to allow him to appoint the sub-magistrate as his Diwan, the Pantulu has availed himself of the opportunity to enable the Maharaja to test his (sub-magistrate's) fidelity to him.

"Swearing on Ramayana."

10. The same paper, referring to the practice of the plaintiffs in suits consenting to give up their claims upon defendants swearing to non-liability on the Ramayana, observes that it is not fair on the part of the courts to decide upon such consent and enforce such decision, and asks why litigants should go at all to court if justice could be so easily assured and why they should not settle their differences outside the court on the same simple basis. The paper considers that the administration of justice which admits of decisions based on such swearing must be of the weakest description, and refers to the injustice and hardship caused to the plaintiff who, being enraged at the unscrupulous oath of his opponent in a recent case before the Madras Small Court, flung his account books at him and was for that reason directed by the Judge to beg the defendant's pardon with the intimation that he would otherwise be charged for contempt of court.

Pleaders to be appointed as sub-magistrates.

11. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 17th February, condemns the appointment of sub-magistrates from among the clerks of the Revenue department and adds that such appointment gives occasion for dissatisfaction to the people and for miscarriage of justice.

The correspondent suggests as a remedial measure that able and experienced pleaders who have by their profession acquired sufficient competency for discharging the duties of these functions should be appointed.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 21st, 1896.

Decision on Malabar Kuries.

12. The Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st February, observes as follows:—The late decision of the High Court of Madras in the matter of Kuri has caused very great excitement in Malabar. Some of the men who have started Kuries have refused to continue the same, while some subscribers have ceased to pay their shares and those whose names have been drawn have been told to execute a document before the amount is given to them.

(c) Jails.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 11th, 1896.

An unjust procedure of the jail authorities.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 7th, 1896.

An advice to the educational authorities to open schools in hamlets, &c., where they are needed.

15. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th February, is glad to learn that some of the native gentlemen of Madras are attempting to raise a fund in the name of Lord Wenlock for maintaining an additional chair in Pachaiyappa's College. The paper says that as Government contemplates the abolition of the Kumbakónam as well as of the Rajahmundry Colleges, it is very desirable that this national institution should be strengthened as much as possible. The paper advises those gentlemen who are preparing to give a farewell entertainment to His Excellency Lord Wenlock to utilise as capital for the said institution the large sum that may be raised to meet the cost of the contemplated entertainment.

An advice to the people to strengthen Pachaiyappa's College as far as possible.

16. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 15th February, is glad to learn that a school for the instruction of the blind has been opened by the authorities in Tinnevelly, and requests the Director of Public Instruction to be good enough to open a similar institution in Madras for the education of the blind and the deaf.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1896.

Desirability of opening a school in Madras for the education of the blind and the deaf.

17. The Dravida Bhanu, of the 25th January, says that while in Tasmania, New South Wales and New Zealand, the authorities spend 6, 12 and 13 shillings per head of population respectively for the education of the masses, the British Government feels reluctant to spend one anna and seven pies per head for the education of its Indian subjects. The paper advises Government to encourage higher education in India as much as possible.

DRAVIDA BHANU, Tuticorin, Jan. 25th, 1896.

An advice to the educational authorities.

18. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th February, says:—We cannot approve of such a policy which is too premature and which is calculated to strengthen the popular impression that Government is determined to stop higher education by reducing the number of colleges maintained by itself. A State college has a prestige which a college controlled by a local body has not, and if the Kumbakónam Colleges is transferred to a local body, it will be doomed to deterioration and decay. We trust our brethren down south will strongly protest against a policy which cannot fail to injuriously affect the cause of high education.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 17th, 1896.

The contemplated abolition of the Kumbakónam College.

19. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 26th February, condemns the retention of the two masters on the staff of the Moyan girls' training school, Calicut, on the ground that it is not in keeping with decency and propriety to employ male teachers in a girls' school in which the number of girls between fifteen and twenty-two years of age, who are either being trained or studying, is not small. Considering the circumstances of the school and the facilities afforded therein for study, a larger number of girls ought to have joined it than is at present the case; but the only thing that deters guardians from sending their girls to this school is the retention of the two male teachers on the staff. The article therefore appeals to the authorities to relieve these masters at once and to employ educated and competent mistresses instead. If mistresses knowing Malayalam are not available, it is suggested that at least Tamilian mistresses could be appointed and this anomaly removed.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 7th, 1896.

A request to the chairman of the Srivilliputtur Municipality.

20. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th February, says that the town of Srivilliputtur is in great need of a high caste girls' school and an hospital for the use of the public, and wishes the chairman to adopt measures to meet the wants.

Expediency of utilising the surplus balance of the village cess in a profitable manner.

21. The same paper reports that Government, in consideration of the fact that there still remains a surplus balance of fourteen lakhs and forty thousand rupees of the village service fund, collected duriug the years past, at the rate of nine pies per rupee, has ordered that the village service fund should be collected during the ensuing fasli year 1306 at the rate of eight pies per rupee, even though the Board was not for such a reduction. The paper assures that even this reduced rate will leave a large balance and requests Government to use it properly.

Advisability of purifying the Pottamarai tank in Kumbakónam.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th February, dwelling on the insanitary condition of the Pottamarai tank in Kumbakónam, requests the temple as well as the municipal authorities to adopt measures to purify the tank so as to make it serviceable to the public.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1896.

A request to the Trichinopoly Municipality regarding a certain road.

23. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 15th February, complains that the road leading from the house now occupied by the chairman of the Trichinopoly Municipality to Puthur, Woriyur, Pandamangalam, &c., is in a wretched condition and requests the municipal authorities to have it repaired at once.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Feb. 19th, 1896.

Elective franchise to be restored to the Calicut Municipality.

24. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 19th February, notices that a public meeting was held at Calicut under the presidency of Ettan Tampuram of the Zamorin's family to memorialize Government to restore the elective franchise to the local municipality and hopes that as this is the second time the Calicut public are appealing to Government on the same subject they will at least give careful consideration to the matter and restore that privilege.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 21st, 1896.

Condemning the proposal of the Calicut municipality to start a caste girls' school.

25. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st February, protests vehemently against the municipal school established at Bilaththikulam (Calicut) exclusively for the Nair girls on the ground that the municipal money is received from all persons without distinction of caste; that the Nair population in the neighbourhood are rich enough to have an institution of the kind maintained at their own expense, and that it is the poor low caste girls that really stand in need of such help. In this age of improvement and civilization, an institution of the kind just referred to reflects much discredit on the municipal management and jeopardises the fair fame of the British even-handed justice.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 22nd, 1896.

Calicut municipal franchise to be restored.

26. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 22nd February, has a leader strongly supporting the memorial adopted by the Calicut citizens at a large and representative meeting recently held on the maidan praying Government to restore the elective franchise to the local municipality. It remarks that as the present councillors are the nominees of Government, they do not pay sufficient attention to municipal matters. The opinion is expressed that the present system has not only deprived the people of their independence but has also created indifference in them to local self-government and has shaken their confidence in the advantage of municipal administration.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Feb. 13th, 1896.

Bangalore water scheme.

27. Referring to the approval by the Government of India of the Hissarghatta water scheme for supplying the Civil and Military station with water, which was announced by His Excellency the Viceroy at Bangalore in November last, the Qasim, of the 13th February, states that it was expected that as soon as pipes had been laid in Bangalore City work would commence in the station also, but nothing has yet been done, and, in inviting the attention of the Resident to the subject, requests that the work may be commenced at an early date as the health of the inhabitants of that locality is suffering much for want of pure water.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Feb. 15th, 1896.

Meetings at Calicut to consider the tenancy question.

28. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th February, says that Mr. Benson, who is now on special duty in connection with the Malabar tenancy, arrived at Calicut recently and convened two meetings which were attended by sub-judges, munsifs, pleaders and some of the landlords and tenants. Some of the points in the tenancy Bill drafted by Mr. Benson were considered in the meeting, of which the most important one was regarding the amount that ought to be paid as compensation for tenants' improvements. It was suggested by some of the members present at the meeting that for the improvements effected by the tenants they should be given half the market value of the improvements after deducting their cost and the revenue. The editor thinks that the scale of compensation prepared by Mr. Benson for different kinds of improvements will not be so much objected to by the landlords and tenants. As the improvements are effected by the exertions of the tenants themselves and without any aid from the landlords, a larger share should go to the tenants. It is true that the land belongs to the janmi and he is therefore entitled to get a share, but not half as proposed, and so it is suggested that it should be provided that three-fourths of the net value of the improvements should be paid to the tenants as compensation and one-fourth to the landlords.

The Manorama and the Kerala Sanchari of the 17th and 19th February, respectively, referring to the same subject, say that if Mr. Benson had really desired to ascertain exactly the cost of planting trees and of making other improvements, he ought to have invited the tenants and asked for their opinion instead of that of the officials and pleaders.

(g) Forests.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 18th, 1896.

A request to Government to moderate the severity of the forest authorities.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th February, remarks that the severity of the Forest authorities subjects the cattle of the poor ryots to all manner of hardships and reduces them almost to a condition of starvation; while the rigour of the income-tax authorities on the other hand makes the people discontented with Government—a state of things which is not desirable. He concludes with the observation that it behoves Government to adopt measures to moderate the severity of forest rules and ameliorate the condition of the poor villagers.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1896.

Salt department and washermen.

30. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 15th February, states that the washermen of his village in the Cuddapah district have been, from time immemorial, using Fuller's earth from a tank in the adjacent village of Tippasamudram, and that the salt authorities have now issued strict orders prohibiting the same without license. He doubts whether the motive of the salt officials is not to benefit themselves by showing increased income to Government, and observes that the salt and forest officials contrive to get frequently new regulations passed so as to make every violation of the same by the ignorant people serve as a source of illegal gratification to themselves. The correspondent remarks that the prohibition of the use of Fuller's earth without license is a real hardship to the village washermen, who are much worse off than their brethren in towns, and notes that, in consequence, they have struck work and that similar strikes are being hatched in Madnapalle, Kadiri, Rayachoti, &c. He observes that as the washermen cannot be legally compelled to resume their work, the result of the strikes would be dirty clothes, spread of disease, and suffering to the people, though the Salt department might succeed in showing some additional revenue to Government. He shows that the Europeans are the greater sufferers as they cannot do without washermen, and advises the natives to encourage the washermen in their attitude. He notes the intention of the washermen to send memorials to the authorities and appeal to the patriotic men of India, especially the Cuddapah District Association, to take up their cause and he hopes they will by the grace of God be induced to help the washermen.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 11th, 1896.

A request to the Superintendent of Post Offices, Trichinopoly division.

31. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th February, complains that the three pillar boxes located in the town of Pudukkottai are not cleared in time, that the letters which ought to have reached the addressees by the second delivery are being delivered the next morning, and that these irregularities cause much inconvenience to the people. He requests the Superintendent of Post Offices, Trichinopoly division, to attend to the complaint.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 14th, 1896.

A remark on Mr. H. A. Stuart, the would-be Private Secretary to Sir Arthur Havelock, the Governor elect.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th February, announces that Sir Arthur Havelock, the Governor elect, is expected to arrive at Madras on the 17th March, and that he has nominated Mr. H. A. Stuart to be his Private Secretary. It says that Mr. H. A. Stuart is a man of parts and of a courteous disposition, that he possesses all the qualifications required for the post for which he has been chosen, and that his nomination is most fitting. The paper is glad to learn that Sir Arthur Havelock has asked the Madras Government not to make arrangements for the annual removal of Government to the hills.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 18th, 1896.

A request to the postal authorities regarding the branch post office in Nariyampettai.

33. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th February, complains that the postal peons in Nariyampettai do not deliver letters in time and to the proper addresses and requests the Superintendent of Post Offices, Madras division, to pay attention to the matter.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 21st, 1896.

Necessity for a fire-engine at Kulittalai in the district of Trichinopoly.

34. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 21st February, reports that on the 13th of February a fire broke out in the town of Kulittalai in the Trichinopoly district, causing great devastation, and that the police took no pains to extinguish it. He thinks it desirable that Government should furnish the town with a fire-engine as such accidents by fire are of frequent occurrence in that place.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 14th, 1896.

The new Governor.

35. The Sasilekha, of the 14th February, referring to Sir Arthur Havelock's intimation of his intention to forego the usual exodus to the hills and to remain in Madras during the ensuing summer, as noted in the Madras Standard, expresses a hope that he would carry out his intention as it would remove a great hardship to petty officials of Government and peons and win him the hearts of the people. It notes that the Honourable Mr. Bliss is trying his best to move the Government to the hills as usual, and it awaits to see whether he or the new Governor will have the upper hand in the matter.

36. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 17th February, has an elaborate and lengthy article regarding the number of Muhammadans in the public service in which it bitterly complains that very few Muhammadans are employed in the service of either the British Government or of native chiefs and princes and that even these few do not get promotion in their turn for years together, and observes that this is due to the apathy and neglect of the heads of departments and managers. Under these circumstances the Akbar suggests to the administrative officers to appoint in some cases qualified Muhammadans as managers and head clerks in order that they may look after the advancement and promotion of Muhammadans who are, as a rule, kept down in the public service.

Muhammadans and the public service.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Feb. 17th, 1896.

37. On the authority of a Madras contemporary the same paper states that Sir Arthur Havelock, the Governor-elect of Madras, will not go to the Nilgiris during the summer as has hitherto been the practice. It is alleged that a reference was recently made to His Excellency by the Madras Government upon this subject, whereupon His Excellency is said to have requested that no arrangements should be made for the residence of Government on the hills. The Akbar observes that His Excellency's reply will not be agreeable to the local authorities, and that they will try their best to persuade His Excellency to alter his intentions; but as Sir Arthur is said to be a ruler of firm mind and determination, it is not probable that he will yield. If so, he will save a large sum of public money which is now wasted annually and relieve the staff of the different Secretariats from inconvenience and unnecessary expenditure.

Government's exodus to the Hills.

38. Referring to the recent notification of the Government of India conferring police, magisterial, judicial and civil powers upon the officers of the Civil and Military station, the Qasim, of the 20th February, states that under the above arrangement Mr. Wilkinson has been appointed Superintendent and that the management of the police of the different branches of the Mysore Railway has been placed under his control. The District Magistrate of the Civil and Military station has been appointed Railway Magistrate also, the powers of the High Court have been bestowed upon the British Resident and the Assistant Resident has been given the powers of District Judge of the Civil and Military station. Although the above arrangement so far as it concerns the management of the police of the different railway lines being placed under one officer is judicious, yet the District Magistrate will be greatly inconvenienced, inasmuch as he will have to discharge the functions of a railway magistrate in addition to the functions of a Collector and Municipal President which have already proved burdensome to him. Under these circumstances the Akbar remarks that as the functions of the Municipal President are most important, the District Magistrate should be relieved of them and another officer be appointed President of the station municipality in his room.

Distribution of police, magisterial, judicial and civil functions between the officers of the Civil and Military station, Bangalore.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Feb. 20th, 1896.

39. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 24th February, quotes an item from the Paisa Akbar as follows:—"Although several hundreds of Hindustani sepoys shed their blood on the battle field of Chitral, displayed great bravery, yet they have not been fitly rewarded. If Europeans had acted in the same manner they would have earned the "Victoria Cross," whereas the unfortunate sepoys have had to be satisfied with a reward of six or ten rupees only while the European officers of the force have been favoured with titles of honour and distinction.

Chitral rewards.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Feb. 24th, 1896.

III.—Legislation.

40. Referring to the Malabar Marriage Bill as amended by the select committee, a leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th February, says that some of the new provisions made by the committee are very objectionable and are opposed to the usages obtaining in the country and fraught with dangerous consequence to the prosperity of the Malayali community. Our marriages should be legalised, but it should be done in such a manner as not to impede the country's advancement. The provision in the Bill "that if either of the parties has a personal law of marriage which forbids marriages between them, the marriage, even if registered, shall be null and void" is injurious to the prosperity of the country. Owing to this provision the marital relation that exists between the Nambudri Brahmins and Nayars from time immemorial will cease. Whatever the caste differences may be these marital ties have been fruitful of many benefits to the country in the past and they will continue to be so in the future. If these relationships are prohibited, agrarian disputes between the Nambudri landlords and the Nayar tenant will be rife, which will wreck the material prosperity of Malabar. If the legislature desires to prohibit such alliance between the Nambudris and Nayars, the tenants in that district should in the first place be given fixity of tenure. If the effect of the Bill is to alienate the landlord from the tenant without the alternative of a permanent tenure, we would rather have no Bill at all. The provision excluding Nambudri Brahmins may be thus amended so as not to conflict with their personal law; (1) anyone having a personal law of marriage shall be at liberty to marry a woman following the Marumakkattayam or Aliyasantana law provided he has not at the same time another wife married according to his personal law; (2) if any one married under the Act wishes to marry again according to his personal law he should do so only after obtaining a divorce from his first wife. This will not in any way conflict with the personal law of Nambudris because it is not compulsory with Nambudris that all of them should marry in their own caste and because such a rule is not generally followed by them. The taking of a wife by a Brahmin from an inferior caste is not also prohibited by the Sastras. If the Bill is amended as above the existing relationship between the Nambudris and Nayars could be maintained inviolate and the prosperity of the Malayalis continued unimpaired. Again the provision that any member of the family of the bride or bridegroom may object to the registration of the proposed marriage and that such objections are to be decided on in a court of law is an absurd one. It is impossible to point out even a single family in Malabar the affairs of which are managed with the approval and concurrence of all its members. In such circumstances it is quite probable that persons may be found inside the family who will object from no other motives than that of envy and ill-feeling to a respectable man marrying in a Távazhi not their own. Therefore the power of protest now given to persons having an expectancy of succession to the tarwad property should be specially limited to parents, maternal uncles and brothers. Secondly, persons entitled to receive notice and who have not been served with such notice are allowed to take steps within three months to cancel the registration. We consider the period of limitation provided here to be very unreasonable, because there are certain conditions in section 3 of the Bill under which marriages may be registered, and could the marriages contracted contrary to those provisions become legal and valid if objection is not taken within the three months allowed by law? If prohibited unions can acquire validity if not questioned for three months, does not this provision legalise any kind of prohibited union which is successfully kept concealed from public notice? And therefore such provisions in the Bill are quite unnecessary and absurd. It would be better to provide that sambandams once registered, if found to be against the provisions in section 3 of the Bill, should have no effect and be invalid, otherwise the Bill would be taken advantage of by many in forming marriage connections prohibited by the usage or custom of the country. The provision which gives partibility to property inherited from father or husband is irreconcilable with the Marumakkattayam notions of impartibility in respect of tarwad property. The reason given by the select committee for introducing such a provision is that Távazhi in the restricted sense consists of a mother and all her issue in the female line. If the widow and children take the property of the deceased intestate as an ordinary Távazhi without partition, then, in case such widow has other children not born to the deceased husband, these children with their mother will also form another Távazhi in respect of this other husband's property quite distinct from the first. It would be sufficient to provide that only the children of the father have the right to the property given by him and not the children born to other husbands. We should not be understood to be opposed to the introduction of a general law of partition when we object to the partial introduction of a right to the partition of the property inherited from father and husband. No one is more fully aware than ourselves of the immense mischief the law of impartibility is doing in Malabar. We unhesitatingly affirm however that the partial provision in the Bill is repugnant to the spirit of Marumakkattayam law. For the above reasons the present Bill is a hopeless mass of confusion; and if it is passed into law without setting these defects right, we doubt very much whether any appreciable reform will be effected. We earnestly hope that the Government will consider the above objections fully before passing the Bill into law.

The Malabar Marriage Bill.

A leader in the same paper, of the 22nd February, strongly protests against the provision in the above Bill that parties who are separated by only five generations can contract marriages. It says that, as there is no partition in Marumakkattayam tarwads, persons separated even by eight generations very often live together in the same house. There are many instances of this in Malabar. Under the Act there is no objection to the members of such families, who are brothers and sisters but who do not fall within the prohibited degrees, contracting marriages and living in the same house, which has not only a demoralising tendency but is repugnant to the feelings and usages of the people. This provision should therefore be expunged from the Bill.

IV.—Native States.

41. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th February, complains that the watchmen employed at the Sivaganga tank to supply water for the Muhammadans, who are prohibited from drawing water from that tank directly, go to sleep at night and that the Muhammadan ladies, who generally leave their house at night only for the purpose of drawing water from the tank, very frequently fail to get water notwithstanding their trouble. He requests the conservancy officer to pay attention to the matter here complained of.

42. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 16th February, says that the members of the Council of Regency in Mysore have now begun to see that they ought not to be subservient to the Diwan in everything. The editior is glad that they have prevented the Diwan from bringing Mr. Rangasami Aiyangar to Bangalore and from keeping Mr. Rickets in service for some time more, and hopes that the council will earn the gratitude of the people by showing their independence as against the Diwan.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th February, says:—There has been a good deal heard about the treatment the princes and chiefs of India meet with at the hands of political agents. Two cases have lately occurred in which the princes of Patna and Jhallawar have been driven to desperation and suicide by the treatment, as is alleged, of the political agents. The darkness which now envelopes the mystery casts reflections upon the Government of the country and upon those who carry it on, and these reflections cause a vast amount of harm. If wrong has been committted let the person who committed it be punished; but something more is required. The relations between the Supreme Government and the Feudatory States are not clearly defined. Much is left to the political agents, and it is not surprising that they are now and then guilty of irregularities. There have been many complaints from time to time against the officials who have to watch British interests in Native States, and it is high time that something was done to put an end to these. This can only be accomplished by rules being framed for the guidance of political agents. It is to be hoped that the late events will cause this to be done.

The enhanced subsidy from Mysore.

44. The same paper says that the amount of the subsidy that Mysore has to pay is more than its legitimate share; that there are many States that pay nothing at all towards the upkeep of the empire; why then, it is asked, should that province be asked to pay the large sum of 35 lakhs; that it is too much and beyond the means of the people and that a revision should be made.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Feb. 8th, 1896.

Europeans to be appointed as the next Diwans of Travancore and Cochin.

45. The Malayala Manorama, of the 8th February, has a leader in English on the appointment of the next Diwans of Travancore and Cochin. The article, after giving an account of the various responsible functions of the Diwans of these States, remarks thus:—

"It is this patriarchal character of the Diwan's powers that invests the question of selecting the person with special importance. As the public have no constitutional channel for influencing the actions of the Diwan, it is very desirable that the Diwan should be one who reflects in himself the feelings of the subjects of the State. If the variety of interests and conditions of the several communities in the State precludes the possibility of any single person, however pure and able, satisfying the fair aspirations of all, the selection of consecutive Diwans must be so made as to serve the purpose served by the alternation of conservative and liberal ministries in constitutional Governments. A conservative, however sincere and public-spirited, is unable to cast his reforms except in the conservative mould; and if the country is to have the benefit of a 'liberal' progress, a 'liberal' Diwan must be selected when a conservative one retires even if the claims of a conservative senior are to be clouded by such a step. If such a person is not available in the local service, those who desire to make local men competent for progressive administration by placing high ideals and superior models before them should not grudge even the exceptional enlistment of a foreigner to serve this purpose. The Travancore State has long ago shown its single-minded desire for improvement by inviting eminent men from the British service for the Diwan's office, and when occasion required by taking even a European into the confidence necessary for entrusting him with the Diwan's work. The sister State of Cochin has surmounted the prejudice of blind conservatism and appointed a European as her chief judicial officer. Such introduction of foreigners has been generally treated as acts of exceptional policy, as the ideal must always be to train local men for local work. But it is equally established that whenever occasion requires such a step there is no insuperable objection to an experienced Collector or Judge from the British service being lent to or drafted on the establishment of Travancore or Cochin as Diwan or Chief Justice; and that the field of selection need not thus be considered confined to men who cannot rise above local cliques and prejudices.

"The Cochin State has fortunately risen above the system of making the Diwan's office descending to a hereditary character. But it has not yet allowed the Diwan's chair to be occupied by a competent European or any other vigorous member of the British service to fashion its administration and develope its resources. There is no doubt that its backward position is due to this disadvantage. From the Resident's outspoken advice to His Highness the Raja on the occasion of his investiture Durbar and from subsequent incidents connected with the public service of the State, it cannot be denied that the appointment of a competent European as Diwan would now be highly beneficial to the interests of the State. The bane of bribery can hardly be removed unless the general service is controlled by one entirely foreign to the various blandishments of local parasites and sycophants. The spirit of enterprising boldness and the command of public confidence that is essential for designing and executing extensive reforms can hardly be expected from local men. Railways and other expensive means of communication are sure to secure the vigorous and continued support they require if a European be at the head of the administration. The strong caste and clan prejudice that is so rampant in Native Cochin cannot be expected to be perceptibly shaken for the public weal unless a strong and liberal Diwan holds the reins of administration for a few years. Above all, a freshness, vigour and regularity now unknown are sure to be imparted to the administration by the introduction of such new blood into the service and it may be possible, when order and purity are once established, to find local men able to take up the reins for their future maintenance.

"We are not unaware of the objections that are likely to be raised against this suggestion by interested members of the service. It may be said that the raja must feel at home with the Diwan and that such freedom and confidence are not possible with a European. Another objection may be that the European will be so ignorant of local customs and habits and so new to the country that he will have to be guided by the local members of the service for a long time before he can make himself useful. A third objection may be that the foremost appointment in a Hindu state should be conferred on a Hindu alone. The disappointment of present local expectants of the position and emoluments of the important trust may also be mentioned as a ground for opposing our suggestion.

"It will be seen that these objections, even if valid, cannot counterbalance the public advantages above alluded to. But, as to the first objection, we are of opinion that the festering tumour in Native State administration is the undue familiarity which the native servants of the State court from the ruling prince. This familiarity first prevents self-respect being on its guard and then starves and finally murders it. Noble thought and suggestions, on the other hand, would only be nourished by the presence of a European whom the prince believes to be ignorant of his private weaknesses (for who on earth is without frailties) and to be aware of only his public virtues. Further, the fact that a European is accepted as Diwan will, of itself, convince the suzerain Government that the prince has nothing to conceal; and it may be possible to secure for the Diwan's office greater powers than are now allowed. As regards the second objection the European officer deemed competent for the place would be one acquainted with the general conditions of Malabar. Even otherwise an officer of intelligence and experience in the Madras Presidency need not take more than a month or two to acquaint himself personally with the important centres of population as well as the general features of the country. The ability and tact of an officer fit for a Diwan's trust would make the best use of the knowledge of details that might be possessed by his subordinates. But, if it be considered desirable, there is no objection to a faithful local officer being appointed as his deputy with defined powers for dealing with routine matters and for generally assisting him with his local knowledge and experience. The finances of the State are in a prosperous condition; and the advantage of efficient administration is worth paying for, the more so, as the development of the resources of the State by such administration would much more than compensate for the extra expenditure. The third and fourth objections surmised above would also be met by such an arrangement as the deputy can, in the fulness of time, expect to become the chief. His position in the Huzur would also enable him to take the Diwan's place in any religious gathering which, by custom, may have to be graced by the Diwan's presence. It will thus be seen that the appointment of a proper European officer of the British service as the next Diwan of Cochin is likely to raise the public esteem for the noble intentions of His Highness the Raja and to result in unprecedented prosperity to the population of the State by the development of its resources, by the introduction of liberal reforms and by the improvement of the tone and character of the public service, and by giving a proper training to the local officials in such a manner as to fit them for future administrative work.

"There is every reason to believe that the fixing of a term for the tenure of the Diwan's office would also be a salutary reform in the interests both of the Diwan and the State. The pride of power is so blind that many a retiring Diwan takes the relief from office as an act of royal cruelty. The hope of dying in harness makes many a Diwan supercilious to the representations of subjects and subordinates, in apparent forgetfulness of the immutable principle that the protection of the rights of the poor is the only reliable provision that the rich can make for their own future. On the other hand the knowledge of the length of time that the Diwan will, humanly speaking, be sure of guiding the administration will enable him to regulate his programme of reforms with confidence, and will also stifle the undermining activity of interested colleagues. When the expiry of the term of one in office is felt to require no expedition by the tactics of the successor, it may be that we can also hope for better continuity of policy and heartier co-operation between those in power and those who desire to succeed.

"The conditions of Travancore, we are glad to find, disclose a somewhat fairer field for local choice. But we must recommend for the 'Model State' as well an eclectic perusal of the considerations above set forth as specially applicable to the conditions of the sister State. There appears to be little provision made in the constitution of the Huzur for the natural alternation of Diwans holding varying political tenets or for preventing any Diwan from being led away by his own one-sided tendencies. During the last fifteen or twenty years, Diwan's powers appear to have been regularly, but imperceptibly, freed of certain mild restraints which in practice, though not in theory, had evidently been encouraged of old to continue. The Diwan Peishkars in former days appear to have worked under the same roof with the Diwan, having as much access to the palace as the Diwan himself. Their presence near the Diwan made them serve as councillors on all occasions of importance, before the Diwan's views were committed to paper. When they were sent out into the districts they began naturally to retreat from their previous approach towards equality with the Diwan. The Huzur Sheristadars then rose in importance as assistants; but their goal of ambition was the Diwan Peishkarship; and their nomination to the coveted place depending on the Diwan's predilection, it was more from courtesy rather than from necessity that their opinions modified the Diwan's opinions. The subsequent decadence of the position of Sheristadars may be measured from the fact that among the present Peishkars it is only the senior Peishkar that has, if at all, risen to that position from Sheristadarship. The Accountant-General's office had in former days special privileges attached to it. All royal commissions were to be taken as proceeding through him, and it was considered that while the Diwan could be removed any day from his office, the Accountant-General was safe in his position as long as he lived. This officer therefore continued for a long time to exercise some independent influence on the Diwan's views. But the mysterious spectacle of his suspension in spite of the palace appreciation of his services and the ridiculous compromise of issuing commissions in the name of the officer under suspension, resulted in the degradation of the office in public esteem. The Secretary to the Diwan used to be a European privileged to take part in the table-talk of the Residency. The mantle of the office then fell on an Eurasian who, though able and experienced, evinced little useful individuality as the constitution did not allow him the privilege of asserting his own views. The office is now filled up as the appendage of another office by a non-christian officer of great prominence and capacity. But his influence cannot be considered as commensurate to the names of his office as the distribution of independent work expected at his appointment has not yet been made. He is simply one of three or four subordinates of the Diwan, all of whom are authorized to sign some by-order communications for protracting correspondence. We have reason to believe that the Diwan himself considers the present upper subordinate establishment of the Huzur as the creature more of circumstances than of necessity. We are unable to see why the energies of these officers could not be better used for the benefit of the State and of the Diwan by judicious distribution of powers and responsibilities. If the obstruction be the delicacy of giving up powers once held by the Diwan, the retirement of the present incumbent would be a good occasion for thoroughly re-organizing the work and constitution of the Huzur. As the christians have lost their only representative in the inner counsels of the Huzur, and as there is now no European officer in the Huzur who has a voice in general administrative questions, the suggestion of the Madras Government about the services of a Madras officer for improving the account system of the State may be taken up for appointing a European Accountant-General of a high status. Such Accountant-General and the Huzur Diwan Peishkar can be allowed independent powers of patronage and disposal to a fixed limit, relieving the Diwan of much routine labour. Some funds for the purpose may be found by relieving some of the high paid by-order signatories for useful work in the districts. The principle of an informal council can then be introduced in the Huzur in deference to the experience and status of the executive Diwan Peishkars by ruling that when these officers' references on specified important classes of subjects do not secure the approval of the Diwan's Deputies, the Deputies and the Diwan should discuss the matter for final disposal. It is needless to go further into details. Enough we believe has been said to invite attention to the abstract side of the question.

"We are aware that there is a wide gulf between theory and practice and that those in whom providence has vested the power of selection and re-organization are the best judges as to how much of the ideal can be realised from time to time without inconvenience. We have dwelt as much as we have done on the subject not in any censorial spirit, but simply because we believe that if these thoughts are allowed to pass before the eyes of those in authority, their influence, however limited, will be for the lasting good of both the rulers and ruled."

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 19th February, referring to the rumour that Mr. Subramaniyan Pillai, the Diwan of Cochin, is shortly to retire, says that his administration has been a huge failure, and, after dealing at some length with this topic, remarks that it fully endorses the opinion of the Manorama above referred to.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 22nd, 1896.

Europeans not to be appointed as the Diwans of Travancore and Cochin.

46. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 22nd February, criticises the article published in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 8th February, regarding the appointment of future Diwans of Travancore and Cochin and has among other matters the following:—It is better to annex these States to the British territory than to appoint Europeans as Diwans. There are strong reasons why the Manorama should feel quite dissatisfied with the administration of native Diwans, for the order recently issued by the Diwan Sankara Subbaiyar in connection with the building of churches, &c., is not relished by that paper. Moreover, but few Native Christians have been employed in the services of these States. We do admit that it is a pity that the Christians have not been given a fair share of appointments, but to say that the administration of these States should on that score be entrusted to a European is, in our opinion, inexpedient and absurd.

47. Referring to the resignation of Colonel Ludlow, Inspector-General of Police, the Jaridah, of the 15th February, remarks that a month ago an order was passed by the Nizam's Government to fill the vacancy by Nawab Akbar Jung, the present Commissioner of the City Police, but that it has not yet been acted upon in consequence of the alleged interference of Mr. Plowden, who suggests that the appointment should be given to an European. The editor observes that if the rumour be correct, and if the appointment be given to an European, it is apprehended that the mismanagement hitherto prevalent will continue and therefore advises the Prime Minister not to fill the vacancy by an European, but to appoint Nawab Akbar Jung under whom the administration of the police will greatly improve.

Passing remarks against the appointment of an European as Inspector-General of Police in the Nizam's Government.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

48. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th February, asks "who is the virtual ruler of India?" and answers it by saying that the virtual rulers of India are the Lancashire merchants and not Her Majesty the Queen, Empress of India, or the Secretary of State for India. It further says that it was the Lancashire merchants who were instrumental in making the conservative party gain ascendancy in Parliament and in appointing Lord Hamilton as the Secretary of State for India. With regarding to the passing of the Indian Cotton Duties Bill, the paper says that it was a measure intended to please the Lancashire merchants without any regard to the interests of the Indian Public.

A query as to who is the virtual ruler of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 11th, 1896.

49. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th February, reports that the Secretary of State for India has ordered the abolition of cotton duties, and remarks that this measure, while causing loss to Government to the extent of fifty lakhs of rupees, will greatly tend to discourage the Indian manufacture of cotton goods.

A remark on the abolition of cotton duties.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Feb. 15th, 1896.

50. The Ariya Jana Priyan, of the 16th February, on the subject of the imposition of cotton duties, repeats the same sentiments as have already been reported on, and adds that as the imposition of cotton duties on all cotton goods at 3½ per cent. is really unjust and will prove highly prejudicial to the interests of the people of India, it behoves them—and in particular the people of Madras—to send memorials on the subject to the parliament for redress.

An advice to the people of India regarding cotton duties.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Feb. 16th, 1896.

51. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th February, speaking of the transfer of police jurisdiction over railways in Mysore to the British Government, says that one effect of such a transfer is that the same magistrate will be both prosecutor and judge with respect to offences committed on the railways and the evils of such a combination of powers in the same person require no description.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 24th, 1896.

52. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 27th February, takes the following from the Swadesamitran:—It is a well known fact that the Government of India have already annexed Burma, Manipur and Chitral, and have imposed upon the people of these places a burden of taxation which they can hardly bear. Now a thirst for extension of dominion has seized the English soldiers, doctors, clergymen and merchants, and these interfere in the administration of various countries and quarrel with the natives of those countries. The English have the largest portion of their dominion in Asia, because large additions have recently been made in that continent with the money wrung from India, and the princes of those States have been reduced to poverty. But the English seem to have lost their power in Europe, Africa and America. In Europe they tried to conquer Turkey, but without success. In America they entered Venezuala, but were prevented by President Cleveland. Last week they made an unprovoked attack on one of the Native States in Africa, but the head of the Moorish tribes defeated the English with the help of the Germans.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 21st, 1896.

Low-caste men prevented from approaching the Trichur Post office.

53. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st February, regrets to state that the low-caste men are strictly prevented by the postal overseer and the telegraph peon in the British service from approaching within eight yards of the post office at Trichur on the ground that any nearer approach is deemed to pollute them. The authorities concerned are hopefully looked to to exert themselves to lighten the hardship of the low caste.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 9th March, says:—The British empire is now going through a crisis. It now stands without an ally. Germany, Austria and France have all shown themselves hostile and Russia did not stand on the side of England. The causes that have led to this isolation are (1) the dispute with the United States about Venezuela and (2) Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal; but this isolation has roused England to a sense of their insecurity and tended to draw together in a manner never before expected all the colonies of England, and has shown to the world that the English nation is capable of taking care of itself. We are glad to see that the Indians in England, with the veteran Dadabhai Naoroji at their head, have testified to the loyalty of the people of this land. We feel certain that, should the British empire be in danger, the inhabitants of this land would not be the last to render assistance.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 9th, 1896.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd March, thus remarks on the conquest of the Kafirs by the Amir of Afghanistan. By the Chitral settlement these unhappy beings—long surrounded by an ever-encroaching tide of Muhammadan population—are handed over to the Amir of Afghanistan and they are being swept away. His troops are raiding them with the usual oriental accompaniments, and their boys and girls—always coveted possessions in Afghanistan—are being carried off, we need not say for what purpose. The Kafirs are an interesting race, but we prefer to rest their claims on simple humanity. We hope the matter will secure the attention of the philanthropic and religious world.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 2nd, 1896.

3. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 5th March, has an extract from the Aum, of Lahore, of which the following is an excerpt: Attempts are persistently made in England to persuade Government to prevent the Amir from taking possession of Kafiristan, and one eminent authority has suggested to Government to induce the Kafirs to emigrate to India and settle in some hilly localities on the frontier which would be guarded by them perfectly. It has also been declared maliciously by some correspondents that the Amir is bent upon the annihilation of the Kafirs which is quite wrong. The Amir only intends to subdue them and if possible to convert them to Islamism. If they refuse to give up their religion, they will not be oppressed as has been stated by Sir Salter Pyne. It is true that the Amir metes out severe punishment to rebels, but, as the Kafirs are not reckoned as rebels, they will be first warned against refractoriness, but, if they persist in disloyalty and disobedience, they will meet their deserts.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 5th, 1896.

4. The Alhami, of the 1st March, has an extract from the Aum, of Lahore, as follows:—"That although it has been repeatedly urged by us that the Sultan is a sincere friend of the British Government and that it is therefore impolitic for the latter to assume a hostile attitude towards him on the strength of the friendship of Russia and France who are the traditional enemies of England, the Government has paid no attention to our representations and treated Turkey in a manner unbecoming her position and dignity. However we are gratified to find that at last our predictions have come to pass and the Armenian question has been settled." The paper, after commenting upon the subject at length, advises England to adopt a conciliatory policy towards the Sultan in future and treat him in a friendly manner in order to remove the bad impression already made upon his mind.

Attitude of the British Government towards the Sultan.

Alhami, Madras, Mar. 1st, 1896.

II.—Home Administration.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1896.

A complaint against jutka-wallahs.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th March, complains that jutka-wallahs in Kumbakónam use indecent language to the pople, take into the carriage too many passengers, and at the place of destination worry them by demanding a higher rate of fare than what was originally agreed to, and that the police connive at such foul play.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 25th, 1896.

Desirability of opening a village court at Srívillipputtúr.

6. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th February, requests the authorities to open, as suggested by the District Collector, a village court at Srívilliputtúr, having jurisdiction over thirteen villages adjoining it, and to appoint for the said post Mr. Narahari Rao, the managing member of the Pennington market committee, a pleader in the District Munsif's court and a person who evinces great interest in public matters.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Mar. 7th, 1896.

A request to the Collector and Sessions Judge of Tanjore regarding the preparation of the list of jurors and assessors.

7. The Jananukulan, of the 7th March, complains that the list of jurors and assessors that was prepared in the district of Tanjore for the year 1896 contains the names of many persons who have neither respectable social position nor intellectual attainments and who are ignorant of the English language, and seriously doubts whether such persons are likely to render any help to the Sessions Judge in administering criminal justice. It adds that many village officers, such as village magistrates and pattamani-amdars, who are likely to appear as witnesses before the Sessions Court, are also included in the list. The paper requests the Collector and the Sessions Judge to pass such orders on the subject as will ensure a careful and judicious preparation of the list of assessors and jurors.

Swearing on the "Ramayana."

8. The Sasilekha, of the 28th February, referring to a suit in the Madras Small Causes Court, remarks that swearing on the Ramayana is now a very simple and ordinary affair though it had its full significance in days gone by, and that dishonest persons do not scruple to swear any number of times if they can thereby easily secure others' property.

Rajayogi, Coconada, Mar. 1st, 1896.

Criminal courts and private vakils.

9. The Rajayogi, of the 1st March, writes thus (in English):—"The courts of sub-magistrates are situated in such places where second-grade pleaders are not even procurable on two grounds. On the one hand that their practice in the civil courts will be disturbed and on the other the tendency of the magistrates postponing the cases to months and months together. The profession of law has become so dear that it is restricted to graduates and under-graduates only and that the number of success in the higher examinations has become very poor. There are some defects in the profession of private vakils too, as it has become the means of many who have no other go for earning a livelihood with a view of bargaining in the field. The poor and innocent people, without knowing the stock of such vakils, invest them with their cases with the confidence of being represented for a less sum. It behoves that Government should at least restrict the criminal court bar either by prescribing a course of study in such subjects as are applicable to magisterial courts or by a selection from among those that have a long experience or educational qualifications. Matriculates, as they are now disqualified to go up for the second-grade pleadership examination, may try for the new test and be useful both to themselves and the people."

10. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 9th March, writes that there is a strong rumour that the Sub-Magistrate's cutcherry at Cherpalcheri is to be removed to Ottappálam and that Government has sanctioned funds for the construction of a building at the latter place. He adds that it is not very expedient to remove the cutcherry in question from Cherpalcheri in consideration of the constant outbreaks in the taluks of Walavanad and Manjeri and hopes that the Government will reconsider their decision.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 9th, 1896.

Disapproving of the removal of the Sub-Magistrate's cutcherry from Cherpalcheri to Ottappálam.

(d) Education.

11. The Lokopakari, of the 29th February, referring to the Government order permitting Government clerks to appear for the departmental examinations, thinks it desirable that Government should pass a rule to enable them to appear for the University examinations also, as otherwise their prospects of promotion in the service would be affected.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Feb. 29th, 1896.

A suggestion to Government to permit Government clerks to appear for the University examinations.

12. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th February, while reviewing the educational report of the Madras Presidency for 1894–95, remarks as follows in reference to the passage of the report regarding the education of Pariyas:—It will be seen from the report of Dr. Duncan, the Director of Public Instruction, that out of 39,628 Pariya boys of school-going age in Malabar only 12 per cent. attend schools. Considering the degraded condition and disabilities of the Pariya community and the oppression of the high-caste Hindus, this is really a very large number; but, in consideration of the long period of British administration and of the rapid advancement made by the country during that period, this result cannot be regarded as a favourable one. The Pariyas in Malabar number about 258,000, of which 99¾ per cent. of the males and nearly the whole of the females are illiterate. As the condition of Cherumars and Pariyas of that district is not even to this day far removed from grinding and debasing servitude and they have no independent means of livelihood, the British Government ought to take special care in the matter of the amelioration of these poor classes. As, on account of their being low castes, these communities are not given any opportunity to move with the educated high-caste Hindus, they have not yet had any occasion to know the advantages resulting from education. There are a few missionaries here and there who take a moderate interest in the education of this down-trodden class, but their object in doing this is not a purely philanthropic and disinterested one, for it is all due to their anxiety to propagate their religion. The Pariyas, who have a strong belief in their own religious principles, though they lack understanding, are very reluctant to accept the advice of the missionaries, whose efforts to improve the condition of the Pariyas have not therefore borne fruit. The first thing to be done in this connection is to make the Pariyas understand the advantages of education, and for this the Government itself should make an earnest move. Education should, in the opinion of the editor, be made compulsory at least among the Pariyas. A taste for education should be created in the Pariyas before that work is handed over to the missionaries or other private bodies. The entrusting of such work to private agencies at the outset, giving them a nominal aid to carry it out, will never bring about the desired result. Moreover, the report says that, of the total number of Pariya schools, 274 are maintained by the department and the several district boards, while the remaining 1,672 schools are managed by the missionaries and other private bodies. Again of the 274 schools only one is under the direct management of the department. It is no doubt proper that the people should themselves establish schools for their education, but, as the time for such private undertaking has not yet arrived, the Government should take upon itself the responsibility of educating the masses.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 29th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the Pariya education.

13. Another leader in the same issue of the paper regrets to hear that the Native Middle school, Ponnáni, established by the local inhabitants some time ago, which has now developed into a useful and successful institution, has not yet been recognised by Government. The Inspector and the Assistant Inspector, who visited this school, were very much satisfied with the institution, but the authorities have not yet recognised it. Although it is the declared policy of Government that schools should be established and maintained by private persons, yet the fact that it discourages those already launched in that direction, instead of rendering all possible assistance to induce others to do the same, is very much to be deplored. The fact that the Government has not yet recognised the school confirms the rumour that there are certain interested parties who work behind the scenes to wreck the prosperity of this institution. It is therefore hoped that the Director of Public Instruction will act impartially in the matter.

Native Middle school, Ponnáni.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 3rd, 1896.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 3rd March, remarks that the sanitation of the town of Tirupati, a sacred shrine visited by a large number of devotees, is unsatisfactory, and calls the attention of the municipal authorities to it. He thinks that a number of public latrines is needed and that streets should have sign-boards.

Suggestion to the chairman of the Tirupati municipality.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1896.

15. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th March, writes as follows:—The object of the constitution of the district and municipal boards was to enable Government to learn the wants and needs of the people of the district through their representatives who constitute the board. This object is frustrated by the reason that these boards are kept under the control of the District Collector. The members, who constitute the board, have not the boldness to say what may be displeasing to the Collector and therefore they are obliged to sacrifice their individual opinion and to neglect their duty. Hence it is that the reform of these boards is urged by the congress. Before Government adopts any measure to reform those bodies, if the non-official members only make up their minds to discharge their duty conscientiously, without being moved by considerations of respect to the official members, great improvement will be effected. It therefore behoves the members of the boards to spare no pains to learn and to bring to light through the press, if necessary, all local wants and convince the electors that they fully deserve the confidence reposed in them.

An advice to the members of district boards.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 7th, 1896.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 7th March, disapproves of the memorial which has been submitted to Government by the rate-payers of Calicut, praying for the restoration of the elective franchise to the local municipality, on the ground that when the elective system was in vogue various irregularities prevailed in the municipality and that under the circumstances Government was perfectly justified in disenfranchising the municipality. The editor is strongly opposed to the granting of the privilege of election to the municipality and expresses the opinion that, even though the privilege of election be granted, the municipal administration will be no better than it is under the nominating system.

Opposing the granting of privilege of election to the Calicut municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Feb. 29th, 1896.

17. The Lokopakari, of the 29th February, reports that the Collector of the district of Madura, accompanied by a few revenue officials, is inspecting the places irrigated by the water of the Periyár with a view to enhance the land assessment. The paper remarks that during this year there was no necessity for utilising the water of the Periyár for agricultural purposes, as there was a sufficient downpour of rain, and that the contemplated enhancement of the land-tax this year would therefore appear to be unreasonable.

A suggestion against enhancement of the land-tax this year in certain parts of the district of Madura.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1896.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th March, on the subject of agriculture in Southern India, writes as follows:—The enhanced rates of land-tax, water-cess, &c., and other expenses incidental to agriculture swallow up nearly the whole of the sale-proceeds of the harvest and leave to the ryot nothing for his labour. Therefore in these days the interest of the ryot in agriculture is gradually waning; he is even forced to think that laying out capital on lands is a bad investment. A scientific process of agriculture will make the land yield greater produce than it could otherwise do so as to benefit the ryot to some extent, but this could be done only by educated men who have capital. In villages, each and every village officer, irrespective of his rank and position, is worshipped like a demi-god for the reason that, in the absence of such veneration, he will bring upon the villagers trouble of some kind or other, while educated men feel it derogatory to their dignity to worship the ministerial officers of the village by such obsequious homage and consequently abandon all thoughts of living in a village for the purpose of agriculture. In these circumstances, it is highly desirable that Government should encourage agriculture by rendering the ryots all possible help; otherwise agriculture will not thrive in Southern India.

A suggestion to Government to encourage agriculture in Southern India.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Mar. 15th, 1896.

19. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 15th March, says that on the S.M. Railway third-class passengers are treated worse than prisoners in a jail. They are huddled together 12 or 15 in a single compartment and are sometimes made to travel in covered goods vans. Smoking is freely allowed. The trouble which the porters, stationmasters, and other railway employés give to the poor passengers is indescribable.

The hardships of third-class passengers on the S.M. Railway.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Feb. 29th, 1896.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 29th February, draws the attention of the authorities to the bad condition of the bridge which lies on the road leading from Pettavaitalai to Kulitalai in the taluk of Trichinopoly and to the inconvenience suffered by the people in consequence, and suggests that prompt measures may be adopted for restoring the bridge to usefulness as early as possible.

Bad condition of a certain bridge in the taluk of Trichinopoly.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 28th, 1896.

21. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th February, complains that newspapers despatched to villages by post reach the addressees after an interval of four or five days and the wrappers often bear marks of the papers having been used by the village postal officials in the course of the transmission. The paper requests the authorities to check this irregularity.

A complaint against the village postal officials.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Feb. 29th, 1896.

22. The Jananukulan, of the 29th February, doubts whether it is necessary that the Collector of Tanjore should be helped with the services of a permanent personal assistant. It says that former Collectors of Tanjore, like Messrs. Gibson and Thomas, discharged multifarious duties, as President of the Municipal Board, Manager of the Palace Estate, Political Agent, and so forth, without the help of a personal assistant. The paper reports that it is said that the personal assistant of the Collector of Tanjore was during the last six months able to dispose of only one criminal case and requests Government to inquire into the matter.

Comment on the appointment of a personal assistant to the Collector of Tanjore.

MANOHARAN, Madras, Feb. 10th, 1896.

23. The Manoharan, of the 10th February, says that the order of the board that the application forms for transfer of pattas should be given gratis only after the registration of documents works a hardship on the parties wishing to transfer pattas. The paper requests the authorities to sell such application forms at three pies per form as before.

A suggestion to the authorities regarding application forms for the transfer of pattas.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1896.

24. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th March, remarks that, if the village officer be an educated person qualified in hygiene and be one who spares no pains to do good to the public, the administration of the village will become economical and Government will make a saving thereby. He adds that the duty of the police can be discharged by the talayaries, that of the civil courts by a panchayat, that of the municipality by the residents of the streets, and so forth, and advises Government either to pass an Act, called the Village Administration Act, and instruct the village officers therein every year, even as the karnams are instructed in surveying, or to appoint educated persons as village officers. He is of opinion that, if either of these suggestions is carried out, the condition of the villages will be much improved.

A suggestion to Government regarding village officers.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 28th, 1896.

25. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 28th February, notes that the Postmaster-General sanctioned the establishment of a post office in the village of Alamuru (Tanuku taluk, Gódávari), that he offered a sum of Rs. 6 for its management on contract, and that, when an additional sum of 8 annas was bargained for, he replied he would consider the question. The correspondent hopes that, as great inconvenience is felt daily owing to long delay in the delivery of mails and that as it would well benefit Government, orders will be issued for the establishment of the post office very soon.

Post office for Alamuru.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 13th, 1896.

26. The Sasilekha, of the 13th March, states that the Agricultural Committee has recommended the appointment of qualified men for teaching agriculture in primary and secondary schools and of experts to teach tilling in model farms. The paper observes that the Government would confer a great benefit upon the ryots if they should adopt measures suggested by the committee.

Agricultural committee.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 7th, 1896.

27. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 7th March, complains of the serious irregularities prevailing in the delivery of letters, &c., received at the post office at Pattambi and invites the attention of the postmaster to the matter.

Irregularities in the delivery of letters at Pattambi.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Feb. 25th, 1896.

28. In praising the postal arrangement, the Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 25th February, concurs with the opinion expressed by the Anis-i-Hind, of Meerut, which says that, as pies are remitted by means of money orders on account of Government dues, there is apparently no reason why they should be disallowed in private money orders, and remarks that the order against the practice causes much inconvenience and loss both to the remitters and payees; hence asks the Director-General of Post Offices to cancel the prohibition or to extend it to revenue remittances also and further suggests the reduction of the commission on Rs. 5 from 2 annas to 1 anna and the introduction of postal notes ranging in value from As. 8 to Rs. 5.

Money order system.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Mar. 5th, 1896.

29. After giving a brief account of the alleged causes of the recent Mappila riot, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 5th March, says these rude, unfortunate and illiterate fanatics occasionally gird up their loins to avenge the wrongs done to them by their Hindu neighbours who are their bitter enemies; hence Government is requested to mend matters by redressing their grievances and treating them kindly instead of using deadly weapons against them.

Mappila riot.

30. Regarding the resolution of the Government of Bombay passed on the recent Dhulia riot the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 2nd March, says that from the resolution it appears that the Government has as usual carefully passed over the improper course adopted by Mr. Cumine, the District Magistrate, who allowed the Hindus to march past the mosque with music and tom-tom in the face of strong objections raised by the Muhammadans, and encouraged the former to advance with their procession with the help of the police who fired on the innocent Muhammadans who happened to be present in the mosque at the time. After commenting upon the subject at length and pointing out the oppression done to the Muhammadans, the paper remarks that the Bombay Government, instead of taking serious notice of the conduct of the magistrate and warning him to be careful on such occasions in future, has recorded his action with approval.

Passing remarks against the resolution of the Government of Bombay about Dhulia riot.

31. In complaining that several of the expenses which should properly and justly be borne by England are unduly charged to India, the Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th March, states that the expenses of the construction of the India office in London were charged to India and five lakhs of pounds were drawn from the Indian revenues to meet them. The whole establishment of the India office and the embassies at China and Persia, &c., and the consulates at Bagdad and elsewhere are unfairly maintained at the cost of the Indian exchequer although India derives no benefit therefrom.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1896.

Undue burden upon the Indian revenues.

III.—Legislation.

32. The Desabhimani, of the 19th February, speaking of the Devastanam Committee of Cuddalore, says that "at present the devastanam committees seem to be accountable to nobody on earth and everything connected with the devastanam is shrouded in mystery." The paper advises the authorities to amend the Act XX of 1863 in such a manner as to make it operate as an effective check over the vagaries of the managers.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Feb. 19th, 1896.

A suggestion to amend Act XX of 1863.

33. The Sasilekha, of the 28th February, complains that all the funds of the temples in this country are finding their way into the pockets of the managers and that Government is totally indifferent to the earnest appeals of the people for stopping the evil. It observes that some good will result if Government will accept the Bill introduced by the Honourable Mr. Kalyanasundram Aiyar.

Sasilekha, Madras, Feb. 28th, 1896.

Management of temples.

34. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th February, referring to the Malabar Testamentary Bill, which is to be introduced into the Legislative Council, says that it is glad to observe that the Government has at last thought of giving testamentary power to the Malayalis who have been longing for it for a long time. The editor doubts whether there will be any use of the Malabar Marriage Bill in case the Testamentary Bill becomes law.

The Malalayam Manorama, of the 9th March, says that this Bill, which is very much needed by the people following the Marumakkatayam and Aliyasantana laws of inheritance, will be soon passed into law.

The Kerala Chandrika, of the 7th March, refers to the same subject and expresses a similar opinion.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Feb. 29th, 1896.

Malabar Testamentary Bill.

35. Another leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th February protests against the passing of the Malabar Marriage Bill as amended by the select committee. It takes exception in strong terms to the provision that parties having a personal law of marriage of their own cannot validly contract a marriage under the Malabar Marriage Act. The opinion is expressed that this restriction should be removed so that the Nambudri Brahmans, who now marry Nayar women, may (if they like) register such marriages, which would otherwise be regarded as concubinage.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Feb. 29th, 1896.

Malabar Marriage Bill.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th March, also refers to the above subject. Although it does not condemn the whole Bill, yet it fully supports the view taken by the paper above alluded to.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 4th, 1896.

Religious Endowments Bill.

36. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th March, approves of the Religious Endowments Bill drafted by the Honourable Mr. Kalyanasundram Aiyar. The remark is made that the editor is glad to think that the Honourable gentleman is endeavouring to adopt measures to check the scandalous irregularities which have been disclosed in the draft Bill.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 29th, 1896.

Indian Registration Act to be amended.

37. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th February, writes that, under the provision in the Indian Registration Act regarding the registration of certain documents especially patlachits (simple leases), only one party, the executant, is required to present himself at the registry office; that this rule leads to the commission of various frauds and that steps should therefore be taken by the authorities concerned to amend the Act in such a manner as to check such frauds.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1896.

The deposition of the Maharaja of Jálwár.

38. The Sasilekha, of the 6th March, deeply regretting the deposition of the Maharaja of Jálwár, remarks that by this act of the British Government the native princes will undoubtedly lose their confidence in it. It asserts that it is totally unbecoming to the reputed justice of British administration to act on the mere suggestion of the Political Agent without holding any formal investigation. The paper is at a loss to know what all the grandeur of titles and the salute of guns mean if the destinies of Maharajas be locked up in the hands of a British Agent. It regrets very much that the position of the Maharaja is made worse than even that of a petty Government peon who cannot be thus summarily dismissed. "What is the offence," the paper asks, "committed by the Maharaja? Who has reported it to the Governor-General? What is the Maharaja's defence? Is it not satisfactory? What is the reason for accepting the Political Agent's words as gospel truth? Why should the Government act so secretly? Why did it not publish the Maharaja's offence, the Agent's report and its inquiry into it?" It observes that such a serious step can only be justified upon the report of a commission appointed for the purpose as in the case of the Maharaja of Baroda. The paper is, however, glad that there are higher authorities in England to veto the orders of the Indian Government and expresses a confident hope that justice may be meted out by Parliament.

The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 9th March, says that the deposition of the Maharaja of Jálwár, on the one-sided representation of the Political Agent and without hearing the Maharaja in defence, is an act of injustice which nobody would approve of.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Mar. 7th, 1896.

Sandúru Samstanam.

39. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 7th March, regrets that Bálé Saheb ("Manager" of Sandúru State, Bellary, and uncle to the minor Raja) having given himself up to luxury and run into debts, his administration is intolerable and totally devoid of justice. He fills up vacancies at his disposal with convicted criminals and dismissed servants. The correspondent notes that the trouble and inconvenience to which Rani Rukmabai Saheb (mother of the minor Raja) has been subjected has given rise to misunderstandings between her and the Manager and that the Rani is in fear of danger to her son's life. With a view to avoid danger, she has a mind to leave the place, but the Collector does not permit her to do so. The correspondent remarks that the present pitiable condition of the independent Raja and his mother is due to the Manager's ingratitude and the Diwan's indifference. He hears that a petition will be presented to the Governor regarding Bálé Saheb's wickedness, the Rani's troubles, and the injustice done to the people, and observes that, in the course of the investigation, many ryots will come up to relate their grievances.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd March, says that a Diwan was appointed by the Nawab of Radhapur in Kattiawar to manage the affairs of his State during his illness. On the death of the Nawab, the Political Agent dismissed the Diwan and not only took into his own hands the government of the State, but also attached the clothes and jewels belonging to the Rani. The paper therefore asks, "Is there none to look into these matters"?

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 2nd, 1896.

The usurpation of powers by the Political Agent at Kattiawar.

41. The Malayala Manorama, of the 7th March, writes thus in English:—

"We are not guilty of the smallest exaggeration when we say that corruption is eating into the vitals of the Cochin State. There is scarcely a single department of the administration which is not more or less affected by this pernicious evil. The fact that the British Resident should have deemed it necessary to draw the attention of His Highness the Raja to this subject on the installation day in a public speech clearly indicates that the evil has of late assumed very alarming proportions. Instances of innocent persons convicted and sentenced to various terms of fine and imprisonment, of persons guilty of offences of the darkest dye honourably acquitted, of Sirkar funds embezzled with perfect impunity, of innocent men and women subjected to the most inhuman tortures by the police, in short, all that the imagination can conjure up of the worst forms of injustice, intrigue and oppression are of very frequent occurrence. That the poor and the helpless meet with no justice at the hands of the constituted guardians of the public weal has now become a bye-word in Cochin. Various are the causes that have been at work to bring about this deplorable state of affairs. First and foremost among them deserves to be ranked a reluctance on the part of these who are at the head of the administration to take any repressive measures against their erring subordinates, even though it be a matter of public notoriety that honesty and integrity have no place whatever in their dealings. To dismiss or prosecute an officer, especially one in the higher grades of the public service for malpractices, is the very last thing which the Raja or his Diwan would like to do. A warning or a reprimand to the delinquent officer is all that can be generally expected as the outcome of cases of corruption brought to their notice. We need hardly say that such a policy on the part of the Raja and his Diwan is quite inconsistent with the duties and reponsibilities of their position. It involves the subordination of the interests of the public to those of individuals, while it is just the reverse that ought to be the guiding principle underlying the policy and actions of every ruler or administrator.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, Mar. 7th, 1896.

Corruption in Cochin.

"Another important cause which has in no small degree contributed to the present state of affairs is the policy of non-interference with the internal administration of Native States pursued by the paramount power. Though there is a Political Agent attached to every Native State in India, it is very seldom in these days that he actively interferes with the internal administration of the State. Complaints submitted to him by aggrieved parties are unceremoniously returned with the stereotyped endorsement: 'The Resident declines to interfere.' Time was when the presence of the representative of the British Government at the court of a Native State was rightly considered to be the surest guarantee against injustice and oppression, but such a state of affairs has long since disappeared, and the British representative of the present day thinks he has fully discharged the duties he owes to the people when he has reviewed the administration report and forwarded a copy thereof to the British Government. We are familiar with the contents of these precious documents carefully prepared by the Diwan at the end of every year, and we know what is the meaning of their review by the British Resident. He merely compares the report with that of the previous year and characterises the administration of the State during the year under review as highly satisfactory if he happens to find a slight improvement in the quantity of the work turned out by each department. The British Government fully endorses the views of their representative and recommends the Diwan for a C.I.E; but neither the British Government nor their representative ever cares to know whether there are any depths of injustice and oppression to be found beneath the glittering pages of the administration report. This policy of the British Government, we are sorry to observe, has had a baneful effect not only on the Diwan, but on all heads of departments in the State. Their care and anxiety now appears to be solely confined to that part of their work which would necessarily find a place in the pages of the administration report. We have come across certain appellate tribunals who, with a view to secure a greater number of cases decided by them at the end of the year, would dispose of almost all the appeals that come up before them by confirming the decisions of the lower court which they could very conveniently do in half a dozen words without even going through the records. It will thus be seen that the policy of non-interference in the internal administration of Native States pursued by the British Government and their representatives is fraught with no small amount of evil to the people. The late Mr. H. B. Grigg, of revered memory, seems to have been alive to this fact, for he always kept a watchful eye on the doings of every public servant in the State and plainly showed by his actions that he would stand no nonsense from them.

"We hope Mr. Thomson does not think he has given a deathblow to corruption in Cochin by his remarkable speech on the installation day, and that he will follow in the footsteps of his predecessor by actively interfering in the internal administration of the State as far as such interference is warranted under the present circumstances."

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1896.

42. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th March, states that a certain English paper has recently through envy and ill-feeling suggested to the Resident at Kashmir to interfere with the private expenses of the Maharaja, and inquires what right Residents have to interfere with the private expenses of native princes or rulers while the Viceroy has no such right or power, and observes that it is a great pity that as a rule several of the English papers give bad counsels to Residents and the rulers and persuade them to practise mischief and tyranny towards native rulers and do them harm. It is, however, hoped that the present Resident of Kashmir, who is said to be a wise and just officer, will not be misguided by such evil counsels and stain his good reputation by unduly interfering with the private expenses of the Maharaja which are limited.

Private expenses of the Maharaja of Kashmir.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

MANOHARAN, Madras, Feb. 10th, 1896.

43. The Manoharan, of the 10th February, reports that a European by the name of Colonel Sawyer, living in Rayapet, seriously wounded a native lad by shooting at him for his having trespassed into his compound, and thinks that the non-infliction of adequate punishment on such characters emboldens Europeans to make a free use of powder and shot against natives.

A remark on Europeans shooting at natives.

MANOHARAN, Madras, Feb. 21st 1896.

44. The Manoharan, of the 21st February, remarks that a certain European killed the husband of a woman with whom he committed adultery, and that another European, planter by profession, assaulted a native and struck him dead, and that both of them were punished with imprisonment for one and six months respectively. The paper adds that, if a native had committed the same offence, he would have been sentenced to an imprisonment for ten or fifteen years.

Inadequacy of punishment inflicted on Europeans murdering natives.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1896.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th March, reports that the Maharaja Rana of Jálwár in Rajputana was all on a sudden dethroned by the British Government for reasons not known, and observes that such abrupt action on the part of Government, while infusing fear and uneasiness in the minds of native Rajas, makes the people lose their confidence in Government. The paper regrets that His Excellency Lord Elgin is directly concerned in the matter, as in the Chitral expedition, and adds that if His Excellency Lord Elgin had taken this step after making a public inquiry into the matter—a privilege granted even to a peon in the public service before his dismissal—His Excellency's action would have been commendable.

46. The Sasilekha, of the 13th March, observes that it has often written about the brutality of soldiers and their mischief doing and regrets that the Europeans discredit the utterances of the native press and throw the whole blame on the victims. As another illustration of the misdeed in point, the paper cites a recent case in which a Parsi merchant was beaten and robbed of his money by some soldiers on board the Dilwara in the Bombay harbour.

Soldiers' mischief.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 13th, 1896.

47. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 5th March, referring to the present riot of the Mappilas in Malabar, says that for the last fifty years the Mappilas have been now and then breaking the peace of the country and giving trouble to the Government and hopes that Government would lose no time in taking steps to prevent such riots in future.

The Mappila ryot in Malabar.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Mar. 5th, 1896.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd March, criticising the remarks made by Sir George White, while presiding at a meeting at Bhavanipur, says:—We hold that a portion of the military expenditure in India ought to be borne by the British Government, inasmuch as India does not require such a costly force on her own account, but is compelled to maintain it simply on account of the rivalries of the European powers with England. Then again England sends young soldiers to India and they remain here till they are seasoned and then they are sent home. It costs this country a very large sum to bring the men out and take them back. The short service system is a gain to England while it is nothing but a source of loss to India. We therefore think it unjust that the Indian tax-payer should be made to bear the whole cost. Since the benefit is divided, the cost should be divided also.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 2nd, 1896.

49. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 15th March, asks why native shoes should not be allowed to be worn in courts while English boots are freely allowed, and says that, as they are both made of the same material, there is no reason why any distinction should be made between them.

The use of native shoes in courts.

Mysore Desabhimani, Bangalore, Mar. 15th, 1896.

50. The same paper gives an account of a case in which one Mr. Adams committed an assault on Shankar Singh, a Rajput, in which the latter lost two of his teeth. Mr. Adams was prosecuted before the City Magistrate (Bangalore) and was punished with rigorous imprisonment for three months. He then appealed to the Chief Court claiming to be tried by a European magistrate as he was himself a European. Upon this Mr. Rickets was appointed to try the case and he reduced the term of imprisonment to one of three hours.

How Europeans are punished when they commit offences against the Indians.

51. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 2nd March, refers at great length to the Mappila outbreak in Malabar. It remarks that fanaticism and poverty are the chief causes of these frequent outbreaks and not the agrarian discontent as is alleged by Government. It says that neither the repeal of the Rent Recovery Act nor the framing of a tenancy law will check these outbreaks, and, if the Government wants to check them, they should adopt measures calculated to reduce the poverty of the Mappilas and allay their fanaticism.

The cause and cure of Mappila outbreaks in Malabar.

Manorama, Calicut Mar. 2nd, 1896.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th March, referring to the same subject, says that the main causes of these outbreaks are (1) fanaticism, (2) oppression of the landlords and their agents and (3) illiteracy and poverty. The paper suggests that, as Pandikkad and the neighbouring places are the seats of outbreaks, a detachment of troops should be permanently stationed there, and a telegraph office should also be opened so that immediate steps may be taken to put down when any outbreak occurs.

The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 7th March, alluding to the same subject, says that the direct cause of the present outbreak is the indiscriminate levy of fines from the Mappilas on account of the outbreak which occurred two years ago. The article, after dilating at some length on the subject, suggests the appointment of a commission to inquire into the causes of these outbreaks. The editor is of opinion that levying a fine and presenting a gun or sword and giving appointments to Mappilas will not in any way put an end to the outbreaks.

The Manorama, of the 9th March, also suggests the appointment of a commission to inquire into the Mappila outbreak.

The Malayalam Manorama, of the 7th March, has a leader on the Mappila outbreak. It is of opinion that the cause of the outbreak is not fanaticism but it is poverty, for, if fanaticism is the cause of the outbreaks, the Mappilas of the Native States of Travancore and Cochin would have also broken out, if not constantly, at least now and then during a period of ten or fifteen years. So it is evident that the prime cause of the outbreak is poverty, and measures ought to be employed to relieve the Mappilas from it.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Lokopakari, of the 10th March, regrets to learn that the Amir of Afghanistan, with the help of the English, subjugated Kafiristan. The paper says that the English are not justified in helping the Amir against the Kafirs, as the latter have done no injury to the English.

Lokopakari, Madras, Mar. 10th, 1896.

Subjugation of Kafiristan by the Amir.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd March, says that a war is about to take place between Nipal and Tibet. The Tibetans, it is said, are amassing forces at Kanchanganga. The minister of Nipal seems to be not strong enough to keep down the factions in the country and it is feared that, should the Nipalese carry war into Tibet, there will be a rebellion in Nipal itself. Already some of the Nipalese have gone over to the Tibetan side.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 23rd, 1896.

Prospect of a war between Tibet and Nipal.

3. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th March, says that the Sultan of Turkey is very much displeased with the Khedive and England for carrying an expedition into Dongola without first consulting him, and that he has therefore requested the Governments of France, Russia and Germany to arbitrate on his behalf. The paper thinks that the Sultan has taken up this attitude at the instigation of France and Russia.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 30th, 1896.

The Sultan of Turkey displeased with England.

4. The Alhami, of the 15th March, has a long article on the Kafiristan question, in which it says that those who try to persuade the English Government to interfere in favour of the Kafirs are entirely at fault and the opinion of the English press on the subject is dangerous. The English Government has avowedly no right to interfere with the action of the Amir in Kafiristan, and, moreover, the Afghans have not as yet in any way maltreated the people of Kafiristan so as to justify the interference of any neighbouring power in their behalf. Should Government attempt in the face of this fact to interfere there will be ill-feeling between the English and the Amir, who is at present England's staunch friend and faithful ally. After discussing the subject at length and pointing out the various evils that are likely to emanate therefrom, the Alhami strongly advises Government to pay no attention to the bad advice and persuasions of the English press inasmuch as such injudicious and short-sighted policy will be productive of serious results and involve England in endless difficulties.

Advising England not to interfere in the matter of Kafiristan.

5. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 12th March, states with approval that the Amir is trying to afghanise Kafiristan after the fashion of Russia in Central Asia. It is said that the sixteen thousand Kafir captives have been distributed over the different villages of Katool and Jallababad and ten captives placed under the charge of each headman with instructions that they should be taught the art of ploughing and carefully instructed in the Koran and treated kindly.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 12th, 1896.

The Amir and the Kafirs.

6. The same paper has an extract from the Aum, of Lahore, of which the following is an excerpt:—The reason why England attempted to put pressure upon the Turkish Government in connection with the Armenian question in spite of the Berlin and Cyprus treaties was that she was under the impression that the Turkish Government, which generally remains inactive in such matters, would easily yield in this case. Past events have clearly proved that the Sultan and his Government are not ignorant of the true state of affairs as they are generally misrepresented to be. Had Lord Salisbury kept aloof from the question, he would not have faced shame and disgrace himself and subjected England to the taunts and sarcasm of other nations.

Turkey and England.

7. In commenting upon the Egyptian question, the Alhami, of the 22nd March, says that at the time when the Armenian question was being eagerly discussed, it was the opinion of French politicians that, in order to silence the Turkish Government in the Egyptian question, England took an active part in the Armenian question. As the Armenian affair has been settled, the English press has latterly commenced to resuscitate the question of the evacuation of Egypt under the belief that it must shortly be re-opened. The Times recently announced, on the authority of its correspondent at Constantinople, that the Sultan has instructed his minister at London to negotiate with England regarding the evacuation of Egypt on the understanding that the safety of the route between England and India will be guaranteed, but the Turkish minister, when recently asked, totally denied this. In short, from what is now transpiring on the subject, it is inferred that the English press is conscious that the Egyptian question will certainly be opened before long. In conclusion the Alhami states that it would be a good thing for England to take the initiative, and advises her to voluntarily evacuate Egypt on conditions favourable to herself before she is compelled to do so by Turkey, Russia and France.

Alhami, Madras, Mar. 22nd, 1896.

Regarding the evacuation of Egypt.

Janopakari, Madras, Mar. 14th, 1896.

A remark on the order passed by the Collector of Tanjore.

8. The Janopakari, of the 14th March, says that the order passed by the Collector of Tanjore that Sub-Magistrates should meet the Superintendent of Police when he halts at any station during circuit and consult him regarding the merits of the case before their inquiry will work a hardship on the people. The paper adds that under this order the accused in criminal cases preferred by the police will anyhow be punished and the mischief of the police will thus increase.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 13th, 1896.

A complaint against the authorities of the Trichinopoly District Court.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 13th March, complains that the District Court of Trichinopoly has not as yet delivered a copy of judgment passed on a case of appeal disposed of by the said court in the year 1892 although it was nearly four years since it was applied for. The paper requests the High Court to pay heed to this complaint.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 17th, 1896.

Advisability of not asking the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvarur to go on circuit on revenue matters.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th March, thinks it desirable that Government should not ask Mr. Sabesa Aiyar, the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvarur, in the district of Tanjore, to go on circuit on revenue matters on the ground that it puts the the parties to great inconvenience. The correspondent sympathises with the Sub-Magistrate on the score that he is much engrossed in judicial work and considers the revenue functions imposed on him as an infliction.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Mar. 24th, 1896.

Desirability of separating the judicial from the revenue functions of district officers.

11. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th March, reports that Mr. Hill, the Magistrate and Treasury Superintendent of Rawalpindi, punished a municipal peon for having coughed in his presence with a fine of Rs. 15, or, in default, to undergo imprisonment for a week. The paper says that this is one of the reasons why the people of India desire the separation of the judicial from the executive functions of district officers.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1896.

Black Town Presidency Magistrates' Court.

12. The Sasilekha, of the 27th March, notes that Justice Davies, sitting on the Original Side of the High Court, remarked on the very unsatisfactory condition of the records of the Black Town Presidency Magistrates' Court. The paper observes that the proceedings in such courts obviously affect people's lives, property and reputation and that, therefore, the records ought to be carefully written and preserved. It adds that, as the magistrates are paid high salaries, their work should be properly watched. It is very glad, however, that the High Court has taken such serious notice of the Presidency Magistrates' Court in question.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 23rd, 1896.

13. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 23rd March, says that the decision of the High Court in the matter of the Malabar kuris has not only paralysed that enterprise, but has also given ample scope for the contributors to whom the lots have fallen to withhold payments of the instalments due by them to the kuri-holder, on whose sole responsibility the whole kuri rests, and who is, under the kuri rules, bound to collect the share from each contributor every time the lottery is drawn and to pay the total amount to the contributor who gains the prize. The article cites two suits filed in the District Court of Calicut and in the Sub-Court of Cochin in which certain kuri-holders had sought to recover the instalments which had been refused to be paid by the contributors, but which both the District and Sub-Judges have dismissed on the strength of the High Court's decision stating that the kuris were illegal, inasmuch as they were not registered under the Indian Companies Act. Owing to this decision there is great consternation among the people in Malabar and various assaults and disturbances are caused by those connected with the kuris. One or two instances are mentioned in which riots have actually taken place owing to the kuri-holders refusing to pay the prize-money. It appears that as the earnings of the people, both rich and poor, are invested in the kuris which are very numerous in the district, the High Court's decision has keenly affected the welfare of the people, some of whose fortunes depend upon these kuris, and has also caused great unrest and widespread discontent among all classes of people in that district. The editor says that, if the legislature does not legalise the kuris in Malabar or the High Court does not alter its decision so far as the Malabar kuris are concerned, serious riots are apprehended.

The decision of the Madras High Court on Malabar kuris has resulted in serious disturbances in that district.

QUASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Mar. 22nd, 1896.

14. Regarding the appointment of three Muhammadan gentlemen as Fellows of the Madras University, the Qasim, of the 22nd March, observes, with heartfelt gratitude, that His Excellency Lord Wenlock has, on the eve of his departure to England, conferred a great boon on the Muhammadan community, which will enable those gentlemen to concert suitable measures for promoting the education of the youths of their community, and requests them to fulfil the objects of the boon with unceasing efforts and make themselves worthy of the above distinction.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 13th, 1896.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 13th March, after showing the importance of the well lying in the centre of the road leading from No. II road of the 3rd municipal division to Vanathurai in Kumbakónam as the main source of water-supply to nearly half of the residents of that division, says that the said well is in a wretched condition and that the municipal authorities should take steps to make the well really useful to the people.

Wretched condition of a certain well in Kumbakónam.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 17th, 1896.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th March, requests the authorities concerned to construct a road from Kiliyanur to Mylam, a distance of 8½ miles, in the taluk of Tindivanam, and thus remove a long-felt want. He says that this subject was brought to the notice of the authorities in the year 1892 and that during the year 1893 the authorities merely surveyed the road and nothing has been done thereafter.

Necessity for a road from Kiliyanur to Mylam in Tindivanam taluk.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 16th, 1896.

The scavengering cess in the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.

17. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 16th March, says:—The people of the Civil and Military Station are groaning over a tax lately imposed upon them. This is the scavengering cess, which the rate-payers look upon as illegal. We think with the rate-payers that it is illegal. We remember that a similar tax was imposed about twelve years ago when Mr. Sandford was the Resident. The people then sent a memorial to the Government of India which was successful. They were told that the impost was illegal and that the municipality must refund the money that had been paid. If the cess was illegal twelve years ago, we hold that it is illegal now and that the municipality has no right to call upon the people of the place to pay it.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 14th, 1896.

High-handedness of the Chairman of the Calicut Municipality.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 14th March, says that it is reported that for the three councillors—Messrs. P. Krishna Menon, of the Panniankara ward, Zachariah, Headmaster of the Basel Mission High school, and N. Subramaniya Aiyar, pleader—whose term of office is to expire shortly, Mr. Varada Rao, the Chairman of the Calicut Municipality, has recommended to substitute Messrs. Muir, a European officer of the Cotton Mill, P. Kanaran, proprietor of the Empress Hotel, and Rajagopalachari, Treasury Deputy Collector. The remark is made that it is quite improper to nominate a European who has never stepped out of the mill and who has no knowledge of the condition of the municipality to represent the ward in question which was up to this time represented by Mr. P. Krishna Menon. Again Mr. P. Kanaran is to supersede Mr. Zachariah. Considering the position and status of Mr. Zachariah, the nomination of Mr. P. Kanaran is quite unjustifiable. Then again Mr. Rajagopalachari, who is a stranger, and who has no experience of the country, is to be substituted for Mr. Subramaniya Aiyar, a non-official councillor. The maximum number of official councillors for Calicut allowed by the Act is six, and there are already six official councillors on the council. The nomination of one more official member is therefore against the Act and will be objected to by Government. These three councillors who are to be replaced by others had signed the memorial recently submitted to Government against the chairman and it was owing to their having done so that they have not been recommended for nomination. Although the councillors are not the representatives of the people, yet the idea of appointing as councillors men who know nothing of the people and of their requirements is really unreasonable and absurd. As the action of the chairman is very unjust it is hoped that the Collector will do the needful to rectify it.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 18th March, referring to the same subject, disapproves of the procedure of the chairman in the matter and is of opinion that such high-handedness on the part of the chairman should not be tolerated.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 14th, 1896.

The Calicut Municipal Chairman in Civil Court.

19. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 14th March, says that a correspondent writes that one Chutmal Lala, a sowcar living in Mint street, Madras, has filed a suit, No. 3400 of 1896, in the Presidency Small Causes Court, against Mr. Varada Rao, Chairman of the Municipal Council, Calicut, to recover Rs. 2,000 from the defendant and the case has been posted for final hearing on the 20th March.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 28rd, 1896.

Complaint against the Calicut municipal chairman.

20. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 23rd March, bitterly complains of the conduct of the chairman of the Calicut municipality in having recommended certain candidates to be nominated in place of the three councillors whose term of office is about to expire and who in every respect are superior to the candidates proposed. The paper says that the motive which actuated the chairman not to recommend the present councillors for renomination is their having signed a memorial to Government against the chairman and voted against him in certain matters. It is doubtful whether the object contemplated by the Local Boards Act could ever be realised at all if councillors are appointed only to nod assent to whatever is said and done by the chairman. The attention of Government is therefore invited to the matter.

Bad state of the Mooriat-Kallai road.

21. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th March, invites the attention of the Calicut municipality to the deplorable and dangerous condition of the Mooriat-Kallai road which is very much used for wheel traffic in timber, a trade extensively carried on at Kallai.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 28th, 1896.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

Severity of assessment in Milatur.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th March, says that the water-supply in Milatur is scanty owing to the fact that the river Vettar lies on a lower level and that the lands therefore prove unfit even for the cultivation of punjai products. He remarks that it is really undesirable that Government should have assessed such lands at Rs. 7, 8 and 9 as such a course subjects the poor mirasidars to great suffering and hardship.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 17th, 1896.

Registration of kudima janmam lands in North Malabar.

23. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 14th March, invites the attention of the authorities to the necessity of conducting settlement with the tenants instead of with the landlords in the matter of lands held by the former on kudima janmam right in some of the taluks of North Malabar. The correspondent adds that these lands are leased out by the landlords on kudima janmam (perpetual enjoyment) and the tenants are the proprietors in virtue of this right. The landlord's share paid by the tenants in respect of such land is only a nominal sum of five or six annas, while the assessment of the land is generally Rs. 4 or 5. Under the circumstances it would be a great hardship for the landlords if the lands are registered in their name and they are required to pay the assessment thereon. The correspondent therefore suggests that the procedure of conducting settlement directly with the janmis adopted in the case of janmam lands in other parts of the district should not be made applicable to these lands.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 14th, 1896.

(h) Railways.

Advisability of providing the platform of the Vijyapuram railway station with a zinc shed.

24. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th March, requests the South Indian Railway authorities to provide the platform of the Vijyapuram railway station with a zinc shed for the convenience of passengers who generally crowd there in large numbers as it is a junction station.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 17th, 1896.

Certain defects connected with the South Indian Railway.

25. The Janavinodini, of the 14th February, says that the overcrowding of railway compartments and the absence of lights in the railway carriages are some of the defects connected with the South Indian Railway and requests Captain Shelley to adopt remedial measures. The paper also draws his attention to the fact that some passengers get the doors of carriages locked on both sides with the keys which they secretly possess and refuse admission to passengers under the pretext that they are railway servants.

JANAVINODINI, Tiruvadi, Feb. 14th, 1896.

Bad state of the line between Wazirabad and Loyalpur.

26. On the authority of a correspondent the Alhami, of the 22nd March, complains that the condition of the station-masters on the line between Wazirabad and Loyalpur is deplorable as they are obliged to work from early in the morning till 12 P.M. with an inadequate staff. As regards the sufferings of the travellers, the correspondent states that not a drop of drinking water is to be had on the line to quench their thirst and hence the paper invites the attention of the proper authorities to the danger and requests them to have regard for the sufferings of the stationmasters as well as the comfort and convenience of travellers and to make suitable arrangements on the line for the provision of drinking water and the employment of bahishtees.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

MANOPALAN, Madras, Mar. 12th, 1896.

27. The Manopalan, of the 12th March, writes thus :—The salt produced in the Presidency of Bombay is light and is sold by weight and persons purchasing it gain more advantage than those buying the salt produced in the Presidency of Madras which is heavy and sold by measure; hence the depreciation of the market value of the Madras salt. It is desirable that the method of selling salt should be common in both presidencies.

A certain suggestion to the Salt and Abkári authorities.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 10th, 1896.

28. The Lokopakari, of the 10th March, complains that the authorities of the Salt and Abkári department appoint head constables as fifth-class sub-inspectors in preference to matriculates, on the ground that the latter have no practical knowledge of the business of the department. It adds that matriculates if appointed as volunteers will, in course of six months, be able to learn the nature of the work of the department and that it is not at all desirable that Government should disregard them altogether and encourage illiterate men.

A request to encourage educated men in the Salt and Abkári department.

(k) General.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Mar. 7th, 1896.

29. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 7th March, referring to the Mappila riot at Manjeri, is of opinion that the police will not be strong enough to keep the Mappilas in order; that an army should be permanently stationed at that place; and that the cost incurred for its maintenance should be recovered from the Mappilas in the shape of a tax.

A suggestion to Government regarding the Mappila riot at Manjeri.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 10th, 1896.

30. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th March, regarding the outbreak of a Mapplia riot at Manjeri, remarks that the opinion entertained by Government that these riots are due to the enhancement of land-tax is erroneous and that the account given by Mr. Logan in his manual will show that these riots have nothing whatever to do with the assessment. It adds that the hasty repeal of Act VIII of 1865 and the presentation of a sword to a "tangal" (Mappila leader) in his residence induced the Mappilas to infer that Government is really afraid of them and that Government would confer on them more privileges if they simply resort to the same device of rioting. The paper remarks in conclusion that the true cause of the outbreak of these riots remains yet to be traced out by Government and that it is therefore advisable that Government, before it adopts any reasonable measure on the subject, should appoint a commission and base its decision on the report of the commission.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Tinnevelly, Mar. 10th, 1896.

31. A correspondent to the Vijayathvajam, of the 10th March, complains that the postal delivery peons, instead of delivering letters, &c., to the addressees in person, give them over to any passer-by requesting him to deliver them to the addressees, and that this proves a source of hardship to the people. He requests the postal authorities to put a stop to this irregularity on the part of the delivery peons.

A complaint against the postal delivery peons.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1896.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th March, from the various offices held by His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock during the years past, presumes that he is a very able administrative officer and expects prosperity for India during his regime. The paper advises His Excellency not to reduce himself to the position of a puppet in the hands of his councillors, but to be always anxious to learn public opinion through the native gentry as well as through the officers before he adopts any measure.

33. The Sasilekha, of the 20th March, remarks that although all those that come as Governors of this presidency are naturally good men, they cease to be so as soon as they allow themselves to be guided by their councillors. It observes that a bold and firm ruler should no doubt welcome the advice tendered by his councillors, but he should act upon it only when he deems it right after due consideration, and that if it do not prove acceptable he should rely on his own judgment. The paper contrasts the fame and popularity of the Duke of Buckingham, who never altogether relied upon the councillors, with the unpopularity of Lord Wenlock, who allowed himself to be entangled by his councillors. It requests Sir Arthur Havelock, the new Governor, to bear this fact in mind.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1896.

34. The Sasilekha, of the 27th March, states that at present there are thousands of villages in the presidency without any satisfactory system for the conveyance to them of letters, &c., and that there is often but one post peon for 20 or 30 villages, visiting them once a week. The paper asks why the karnams and munsifs of villages should not be paid an extra remuneration, say two rupees per month, and directed to look after the delivery, &c., of postal letters, and why the village cess (a very large amount) which has no purpose to serve should not be utilised for the good of the people.

Sasilekha, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1896.

35. The Mysore Vrittanta Bhodini, of the 21st March, says there is one Indian reform that both Englishmen and Natives are agreed should be carried out. It is the separation of executive from judicial functions. The evils attendant on the present Indian system of combining administrative and judicial functions in the same official are manifold and well recognised. The system has no advocates and is tolerated rather as a necessary evil on the score of economy.

The separation of executive and judicial functions.

Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Mar. 21st, 1896.

The beginning made in the Madras Presidency in the case of the lower officials has proved an undoubted blessing. It would be well if the Madras Government would now go a step further and sunder the revenue and magisterial functions of Deputy Collectors.

36. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 9th March, says that on a former occasion it briefly expressed its opinion on the subject of the occasional riots of the unfortunate Mappilas and requested Government to devise proper measures for their prevention. It has been recently reported that about a hundred Mappilas have been brutally killed like beasts. The Qasim expresses surprise to hear of such heartrending occurrences in a country which is under the administration of an enlightened and civilised Government and requests the adoption of speedy and sound measures for the prevention of such wholesale slaughter and the effectual extinction of the causes that generally give rise to such riots.

Mappila riots.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 9th, 1896.

IV.—Native States.

37. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 21st March, deeply regrets that the administration of justice in Sandúru State is in a most lamentable condition. He observes that petitions from ryots are not considered for years together. When a party to a suit expresses his intention to get a vakil from Bellary, Mr. Firth either asks the party what a vakil can do when he (Mr. Firth) has to decide the case, or tells him that the employment of vakils is prohibited by the authorities in the State. The correspondent notes that Mr. Firth never works for more than 60 or 70 hours in the whole month and that his conduct in court is most unbecoming. He regrets that the ryots of Sandúru are too backward and too much afraid to represent their grievances to the British Government and remarks that, whenever the British ryots give expression to the maladministration of the "diwan" or the "administrator," they are prohibited from entering Sandúru. He further states that the "administrator" exulted that the Political Agent (Mr. Tremenheere, the Collector of Bellary), while leaving for Madras on two months' leave, had declared that he would bring to book such of the Sandúru people as went to Madras and published important State secrets in the Andhraprakasika.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 16th, 1896.

The deposition of the Prince of Jhallawar.

38. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 16th March, says:—Poor Zhalim Singh has paid the penalty of his independence. He had apparently meant to be the ruler of his State, not merely in name, but in reality, and consequently friction between him and the Political officer has become inevitable. If he had accepted the rôle of a puppet, he would have been lauded in official reports as a "model ruler," an "enlightened prince," and so on; but he showed by his conduct that he regarded himself and not the Political officer as the real ruler and it is this attitude of independence which has been the sole cause of his ruin.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Mar. 29th, 1896.

The compulsory use of a certain kind of paper by the clients in Mysore.

39. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 29th March, complains that the Mysore Government compels all people who want to present any application or any other paper in Government offices to use a special kind of paper which Government sells at the rate of three pies per half sheet. This order of the Government was at first intended to apply only to parties going to the civil courts, but now every magistrate insists upon the parties using the same paper. This, the editor thinks, is an unnecessary encroachment on the liberties of the people, and that by it the Government enters into competition with the local stationers who can sell the same or even a better kind of paper at much less cost. The editor therefore calls upon the people to protest against the order and to represent the matter to the Imperial Government.

NASRANI DIPIKA, Calicut, Mar. 10th, 1896.

Remarks on the selection of Diwans of Travancore and Cochin.

40. A leader in the Malayalam Nasrani Dipika, of the 10th March, does not concur in the opinions of its contemporaries, the Malayala Manorama and the Kerala Sanchari, that Europeans should be appointed as the future Diwans of Travancore and Cochin. It remarks that when the administrations of Travancore and Cochin have so far improved under the native Diwans so as to earn for these states the appellation of "model states," it sees no reason why Europeans should now be appointed as Diwans. If the present incumbents are not men of proved merit and ability and are unpopular there are several others in those states or in the Madras Presidency who are abler and better known than these and who possess the necessary qualifications for the post of diwan. Under the circumstances the opinions expressed by certain persons that Europeans only should be appointed as Diwans is due to interested motives.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, Mar. 14th, 1896.

Why prisoners like to go to jails in Cochin State.

41. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 14th March, invites the attention of the Superintendent of Jails in Native Cochin to the desirability of making certain changes in the diet of prisoners. The food now given to the prisoners is rice and curry—a food to which they are accustomed from their childhood—which consequently acts as an incentive to such of the prisoners as are poor and have nothing to live upon to commit offences as soon as they are released from jail in order that they may get into it again. It appears that not only do the prisoners receive rice and curry, but they join together occasionally according to their castes and prepare cakes and eat them. The article further says that it is also rumoured that when the prisoners are taken to different places for work they, either through the negligence of the warders or through their connivance, get liquors for drink.

42. Referring to the news that the Maharaja of Kashmir lately issued an order that, excepting English coins, no other coins should be received in his treasury, the Alhami, of the 22nd March, says that such a change was necessary for the reason that the post office recently refused to accept any except English coins and moreover a heavy rate of exchange has always been charged upon Raja Shahee rupees, the possession of which has caused loss to their owners. However, in order to allow some time for the disposal of the Raja Shahee coins, it was necessary for the State to declare that after a certain date the circulation of Raja Shahee rupee would be illegal.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

43. A correspondent to the Pariyan, of the 7th March, requests Government to pass a measure to check the unscientific treatment of quacks on the ground that it invariably proves injurious to life.

PARIYAN, Madras, Mar. 7th, 1896.

A request to Government for the suppression of quackery.

44. The Lokopakari, of the 10th March, with regard to the Mappila riot at Manjeri, says that the very name of Mappila infuses terror into the minds of the people of the district of Malabar and that the district will never enjoy peace and happiness so long as Mappilas remain in the district.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 10th, 1896.

A hint to Government regarding the Mappila riot.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Mar. 8th, 1896.

Management of Hindu temples.

46. The Sasilekha, of the 24th March, invites the attention of Government to mischief so frequently caused by soldiers and refers to a recent case in which a soldier rode and broke a tricycle in the Fort St. George and was ordered by the Small Cause Court to pay Rs. 45 as damages. It complains that, while the soldiery are employed for maintaining the safety and comfort of the people, they themselves are guilty of much mischief to the latter.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1896.

Soldiers' mischief.

47. The same paper states that the budget of this year contains an item of expenditure for strengthening the position of Aden. Noting that steamers sailing between England on one side and India, China and Australia on the other touch at this port, it questions the justice of making India alone bear the whole expenditure, while the advantages are shared equally by all the British dominions in the East.

The budget.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd March, says:—The bill for the Shahzada's English visit is heavy enough. The amount which has been submitted to India from the India Office is under £21,000 which falls upon the Indian exchequer. The hire of the house and the pay of the English staff is included in the special items of expenditure, the details of which are kept in the dark by the India Office, as no doubt there were certain things paid for which would be revolting for refined English society to read about.

The bill for the Shahzada's English visit.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 26th, 1896.

49. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 26th March, thinks the budget statement of the Government of India for the year 1896–97 highly satisfactory and says that it is a sure proof that India is prospering.

The Imperial budget statement.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 30th, 1896.

50. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th March, says that the annual visit of Government to the hills costs the country a large sum of money which cannot well be spared. That it gives rise to other evils besides. The small officials follow the example of those higher up and run away to the hills whenever they can. That work too is not so well done as it ought to be. The men in power being away from the seat of Government do pretty much as they like. There are so many temptations to pleasure that it takes the place of work. Moreover the work has to be carried on in two places. There is a constant reference going on between the two places and this must retard work. But the officials seem determined to continue it whatever injury it may cause. The paper therefore calls upon the people to make a strong protest against the movement, and, if necessary, to bring the matter before the English public.

The annual exodus of Government to the hills.

51. The same paper approves of the suggestion made by Mr. Surendranath Banerjea that the Indian National Congress should take up the case of Native States and wishes that at the next congress the question of the relation between the Imperial Government and the Native States would be discussed and a resolution arrived at.

The Congress and the Native States.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 14th, 1896.

52. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 14th March, in commenting upon the remarks made on the Mappila outbreak by Lord Wenlock in his speech on the occasion of the farewell entertainment given by the members of the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian Association, Madras, says that it cannot fully endorse the opinion expressed by his Lordship that the outbreak is chiefly due to agrarian discontent. The agrarian discontent alone is not the cause of the outbreak. The indiscriminate levy of fines is also an equally important cause. Fines are imposed and collected from the poor, innocent and law-abiding Mappilas for outrages committed by certain ignorant brethren of theirs. This is really very hard. This indiscriminate levy of fines not only reduces the Mappilas to poverty, but makes them desperate. Hence poverty is the cause of the outbreak, which cannot therefore be put a stop to by levying fines. Levying of fines by Government without adopting any measures for the relief of the poverty-stricken Mappilas is even more regrettable than the giving of melcharths (over-leases) by the landlords. The oppression of tenants by the landlords is no doubt intolerable, but the hardships resulting from the imposition of fines and the action of the officials collecting them is ten times more than the other. It is therefore suggested that an inquiry should be made into the hardships caused by the levy of fines along with the one now made in connection with the tenancy question.

The Mappila outbreak.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th March, in referring to the outbreak, acknowledges with warm gratitude the indefatigable exertions of, and the prompt measures taken by, the district officials and the military in bringing to a speedy termination the outbreak which had caused great alarm and unrest in the whole district. The editor says that he now sees the benefit of people having been disarmed in the district, for he observes that if they had been allowed to carry arms many good guns would have fallen into the hands of the fanatics and terrible bloodshed would have been caused thereby. The extreme measures employed by the authorities in putting down the outbreak are fully approved of and the conduct of the officers who ordered the fanatics to be shot dead is said to be quite justifiable under the circumstances. The cause of one outbreak following another after so short an interval is attributed to the fact that the inquiry into the previous riot was a partial one and was conducted by interested officials. In conclusion, the article advocates the appointment of a commission composed of a few respectable Nayars and Mappilas with a president of ability and experience, such as Mr. Winterbotham, to inquire into the cause of the outbreaks and to suggest remedial measures thereof

A Ponnáni correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 18th March, alluding to the factious disturbance ending in a serious riot between two parties concerning an important mosque commends the adoption of timely and effective measures by the Head Assistant Collector.

The appointment of Mr. Winterbotham as a commissioner to inquire large into the cause of the recent Mappila riot is highly gratifying to the people at.

A long account of the Mappila riot concludes with the remark that the untiring energy evinced on the occasion from beginning to end by Mr. Fawcett, the Superintendent of Police, is highly commendable in the opinion of the general public; the aspersion on his character in connection with the Tiruvanur torture case is thoroughly dispelled by his conduct on this occasion.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th March, publishes a letter from a Mussalman tangal in which the tangal says that these outbreaks are due to misconception of the true doctrines of Islam. He suggests, as a remedial measure, that at least one theological school should be opened in each taluk for the purpose of giving lectures on the true principles of Muhammadanism and that religious tracts printed in Malayalam should be distributed among the Mappilas, which, he says, could be easily accomplished if Government were prepared to back him up.

A correspondent in the same issue of the paper, referring to the rising, says that, in order to put a stop to these fanatical outbreaks, the following suggestion should be adopted:—

(1) Education should be made compulsory among the Mappilas.

(2) Special schools should not be established for Mappila education, but education should be imparted to them in the ordinary course along with Hindu boys, the fines levied under the Mappila Act should be utilised for that purpose.

(3) The expenses of Mappila education should be partly met by Government and partly by an income-tax collected from the Mappilas.

(4) In places where these outbreaks generally occur a detachment of troops should be permanently stationed besides connecting those places by railway and telegraph.

(5) And, lastly, the number of police stations in such places should also be increased.

The Manorama, of the 16th March, also publishes several letters regarding the Mappila outbreak. They all attribute the outbreak to the poverty of the Mappilas rather than to the oppression of the landlords.

53. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 21st March, attributes the frequent Mappila outbreaks to the poverty caused by the intolerable oppression of the landlords and the indiscriminate levy of fines under the Mappila Act. It says that the Mappilas who caused the recent outbreak are very poor and the ringleaders are said to be men who are the tenants of Trikkiteeri Nayar and residents of Tuvoor amsam. It appears that the main object of the rioters was to murder the above Nayar and the adhikari of the said amsam because the Nayar had evicted them from some of their holdings. Tenants of all classes and communities are oppressed by the landlords; but the Nayar tenants, who are more respectable and civilised than the Mappilas, do not resort to the extreme course adopted by the latter. Even among Nayars some have, it appears, murdered and assaulted their Nambudiri landlords and their agents simply because they could not brook the oppression of the latter and the editor quotes two or three instances in point. The Mappilas being less sensible than the Nayars are easily infuriated and break out into riot, and, in a spirit of fanaticism, it was arranged that they should do so during their Ramzan festival. It is true that the oppression of the landlords has in a large measure contributed to increase their poverty which is the direct cause of these fanatical outbreaks, but the actions of Government and the tyranny of the officers appointed to collect fines under the Mappila Act, have aggravated the situation. When it is found that a head constable who had been engaged in the collection of fines in the last outbreak had earned some ten or twelve thousand rupees is it impossible to believe unfavourable reports heard in connection with certain high officials? A sum not less than the amount of fines collected from the taluks of Walavanad and Ernad has, it appears, found its way into the pockets of the (officials). There cannot be smoke without fire, and so the matter should be investigated along with the present inquiry. Several persons are in a distressed condition owing to the survey and settlement carried on in Malabar. These and other hardships have caused great discontent among the Nayars and if measures are not immediately adopted to afford them relief, fanaticism will in course of time be rife among them also. To put a stop to these outbreaks the article suggests that (1) the levy of fines under the Mappila Act should be done away with, (2) sufficient protection should be given to the tenants against the oppression of the landlords, (3) loans should be granted to them to cultivate waste lands so as to relieve them from poverty and (4) adequate measures should be adopted to impart education to their children.

Malabar landlords and the Mappila outbreak.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 21st, 1896.

The Manorama, of the 23rd March, is of opinion that the cause of the outbreak is fanaticism and poverty. It is said that the fanaticism is fired by the incorrect teaching by mullas of the true principles of Islam and they break out during their holy festival with the hope of getting salvation by martyrdom.

Alluding to the outbreak the Nasrani Dipika, of the 20th March, concurs in the opinion of the last paper and remarks that outbreaks have been frequent ever since the authorities began to court the friendship of the Mappilas by conciliatory measures and by undue laxity in working the Mappila Act. To check the outbreak it is suggested that the Mappila Act should be more vigorously enforced than hitherto, that education should be made compulsory among the Mappilas and that printed religious tracts should be freely distributed among them so as to enable them to understand the true principles of their religion.

Referring to the same subject the Kerala Chandrika, of the 20th March, says that the principal causes which led to the outbreak are the unbearable oppression of the landlords, the illiteracy of the Mappilas, their consequent fanaticism and the present system of collecting fines indiscriminately under the Mappila Act.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Malabar, Mar. 20th, 1896.

Oppression of landlords in Malabar.

54. The Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 20th March, describes the different ways in which tenants are oppressed by the landlords in Malabar. The landlords make illegal exactions from tenants in various forms and the tenants have consequently become paupers. The privilege enjoyed by the landlords of putting their lands on melcharth (over-lease) is said to be an engine of oppression which can be used at their sweet will and pleasure in tyrannising over the tenants. The capricious eviction of tenants by the landlords and the consequent estrangement between them are also said to be matters to be regretted.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 28th, 1896.

Mr. Winterbotham to be appointed as Commissioner to inquire into the Mappila outbreak in preference to Mr. Crole.

55. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th March, entirely disapproves of the opinion expressed by the Hindu that Mr. Crole should be appointed as Commissioner to inquire into the Mappila outbreak instead of Mr. Winterbotham, as the latter has already formed an opinion of the matter. Mr. Crole is unquestionably an able officer, but, as far as Malabar is concerned, it is doubtful whether there is any European gentleman in the whole presidency who knows its affairs so thoroughly as Mr. Winterbotham. The report of the commission will be based on the evidence of witnesses examined by it, and, in case Mr. Winterbotham's opinion differs from that of the witnesses, the Government is not bound to adopt his views. The editor therefore says that if Government intends appointing anybody at all for the purpose of the inquiry it should be Mr. Winterbotham.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Lokabanthu, of the 25th March, reports that the English for the last few years have been seriously trying to make Egypt, which is under the government of the Sultan of Turkey, a British possession, and that the French and the Russians are determined to drive the English off the shores of Egypt.

Lokabanthu, Madras, Mar. 25th, 1896.

Attempt of the English to make Egypt a British possession.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 6th April, has a leading article on European affairs in which it remarks as follows:—The Armenians have been abandoned to their fate because none of the other European powers would back up England in coercing the Sultan. England is in great difficulties. She is undertaking a campaign in Soudan, and this is opposed by France, backed up, it is believed, by Russia. The former wants England to vacate Egypt, and the idea of the country being enlarged while under the British protection is hateful to the French. Germany is at the present time inimical to England. It is believed she is supporting the Boers in their opposition to the Suzerain power. Then again the Armenian Republic has not settled matters with England. Thus the political atmosphere of Europe is not so transparent as it ought to be.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Apl. 6th, 1896.

European affairs.

3. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 26th March, has an extract from the Aum, of Lahore, on the question of the evacuation of Egypt, of which the following is an excerpt:—It is an interesting and noteworthy incident that whenever the question of the evacuation of Egypt is re-opened the Mahdists begin to show signs of restlessness which compels England to give up the idea of evacuating that country. During the time of the rebellion of Arabi Pasha, it was England and not Turkey or France that came forward without regard to life or money and saved Egypt from falling into the hands of the rebels. While such is the case, England has every right to prolong the occupation of that country. In conclusion the Aum advises England not to evacuate the country until she is fully confident that Egypt can hold her own.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 26th, 1896.

The Egyptian question and the Mahdists.

4. The same paper has the following extract from the Aum, of Lahore, on the subject of Kafiristan:—Englishmen who have been hitherto criticising the annexation of Chitral have now commenced to urge Government to interfere in the affairs of Kafiristan and prevent the Amir from taking possession of that country for the reason that the Kafirs, as descendants of the Aryan race, are closely related to them, and because, if the short route to Kabul from Badakshan through Kafiristan falls into the hands of the Amir, it will facilitate the Russian advance towards India. In refuting this argument the Aum says that if the Russians venture to advance towards India they will do so from the direction of Afghan Turkistan and not by the route which passes through Kafiristan which is very narrow and impracticable. Moreover, it is vain to imagine that the Kafirs, who are no match for the Afghans, would be able to check the advance of any European power. It is better that the Kafirs should be under the Amir than remain independent. After commenting upon the subject at length, the Aum advises Government to ameliorate the condition of the inhabitants of India instead of paying attention to frontier affairs in which it has no concern.

Invasion of Kafiristan by the Amir.

5. In inserting a translation of a telegram announcing that the Indian troops are being held in readiness to sail for Suakim if necessary, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 13th April, remarks that it is not likely that the expedition will be despatched, and, in the event of its being despatched, it is hoped that its expenses will be charged to the Egyptian Reserve Fund, and not to the people of India, who are already overburdened with taxes.

II.—Home Administration.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Mar. 2nd, 1896.

A case of death caused by rash driving in Negapatam.

6. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 2nd March, complains that a jatka-wallah has caused by rash driving the death of a passer-by near Nilayathatchee Ammankoil in Negapatam, and that as the owner of the jatka is a police constable, some of the police constables are trying to hush up the case by fabricating false evidence. The paper requests the magistrate to take pains to bring the offenders to justice.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Apl. 1st, 1896.

A suggestion to reform the Police department.

7. A correspondent to the Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st April, commenting on the mischief done by the Police department and on the sufferings undergone by the people in consequence, suggests the advisability of reforming the department so as to make it prove really useful to the people. He thinks that the recruitment of graduates of respectable families into the Police department and the conferring of greater powers on the divisional officers, who should be transferred from place to place and from time to time, will tend to improve the efficiency of this department.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Apl. 5th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the improvement of the Police department.

8. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 5th April, refers to the general incapacity of the police and attributes it to the system of enlistment now in vogue and also to the low pay of the men. The essential thing now required in a candidate for employment in the Police department is good physique, no matter whether he is uneducated and incompetent. The article approves of such selection for recruitment in the Reserve police who are intended to watch the treasury, &c., but it says that for executive work men of education and capacity ought to be appointed as in other departments.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Apl. 3rd, 1896.

A complaint against Mr. O'Farrell, District and Sessions Judge of Calicut.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd April, complains that Mr. O'Farrell, the District and Sessions Judge of Calicut, is very particular that no Sub-Judge, vakil, witness, nay, even a bird, should make any noise either in the court premises or in the compound while he is in the court, and that he therefore proves a source of great annoyance and worry to judicial officers and parties. The paper regrets to remark that such despotic rule did not exist even under the rule of Moghul emperors.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Apl. 1st, 1896.

Incompetency of the bench magistrates of Calicut.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st April, says that the people of Calicut are very much dissatisfied with the local bench magistrates. Although the magistrates are selected from respectable families, yet they are incompetent, and 90 per cent. of the cases are generally dismissed without a proper trial, and so the people have begun to lose confidence in these functionaries. In assault cases parties refrain from resorting to the bench magistrate's court, for they have no hope of getting justice done in the matter. Such a state of affairs is attributed to the presiding magistrate being very incompetent, and a suggestion is therefore made that if able native officials could not be secured for presiding over such benches, that office ought then to be held by a European.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Mar. 2nd 1896.

Desirability of encouraging Tamil literature.

11. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 2nd March, reports that Government has given monetary help to Mr. Pratapachandra Roy, of Northern India, for having published Bharatam in Sanskrit and wishes that Government should extend similar patronage to Mr. Swaminatha Aiyar, Pandit of the Kumbakónam College, who has worked very hard in publishing some of the standard works of Tamil literature, which would have been buried in oblivion but for his untiring exertions.

12. The Lokopakari, of the 20th March, requests Government to encourage the diffusion of primary education by opening girls' schools in all villages and by offering liberal grants to the teachers thereof. The paper says that during the regiem of Lord Wenlock grants were not liberally given to the teachers of primary schools.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1896.

A request to Government to encourage primary education.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd April, regrets that the Director of Public Instruction refused to recognise the Ponnani middle school, an institution which owes its existence to local support, owing to the representation of the missionaries who aim at the ruin of the school in question for the reason that its existence proves an impediment to the success of their own institution. The paper requests the Director of Public Instruction to take the case of the school into his favourable consideration and have it recognised.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 3rd, 1896.

A request to the Director of Public Instruction regarding Ponnani middle school.

(e) Local and Municipal.

14. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 25th March, complains that the sanitation and lighting of the town of Villuppuram are far from satisfactory, and that people commit nuisance all round tanks, which serve as reservoirs of water-supply. He requests the authorities to pay heed to the matter here complained of.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Mar. 25th, 1896.

A few defects in the municipal administration of Villuppuram.

15. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 20th March, speaking of the wretched condition of the road leading to Thathaiyangarpett in Námakkal taluk and of the dangers sustained by carts and travellers in consequence, requests the authorities to get it repaired as early as possible.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1896.

Wretched condition of a certain road in Námakkal taluk.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 31st March, reports that the absence of municipal lights in Veppamara Salai (the margosa lane) in Wooppara street, in Coimbatore, while facilitating the commission of nuisance, proves a source of danger to the people. He requests the municipal chairman to do the needful.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 31st, 1896.

Necessity for municipal lights in a certain lane in Coimbatore.

17. The Sasilekha, of the 3rd April, remarks that the district boards are, as at present constituted, altogether useless, and that unless the people were allowed to freely elect at least one-half of the members of such boards while the Government appointed the other half, it would be better to amalgamate them with the Collector's departments than allow them a separate existence.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Apl. 3rd, 1896.

District boards.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 4th April, referring to the discussion that took place at a recent meeting of the Calicut Municipal Council on the Government Order regarding the revision of house-taxes and the repair of the Mankavu bridge, says that, in accordance with the instructions contained in the order, the council resolved to revise the assessments and for this purpose to entertain a temporary establishment. The article says that when the councillors thoroughly know that the assessments will shortly have to be increased by 10 per cent. under the new Municipal Act, it is quite unjust on their part to carry on a revision of assessments at present. The houses of the poor in Calicut are very heavily taxed, and a revision and adjustment of their taxes is therefore a matter of absolute necessity. The postponement of the repair of the Mankavu bridge is said to be very unreasonable, for the people are, it appears, greatly inconvenienced by the want of a bridge.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apl. 4th, 1896.

Remarks on the proposed revision of house-taxes in Calicut municipality.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, Mar. 30th, 1896.

Disapproving of the aboliton of certain hospitals in Malabar.

19. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 30th March, says that in passing the budget estimate of the Malabar District Board, Government ordered the abolition of the hospitals at Taliparamba, Quilandi, Angadipuram, Vaniyankulam and Alattur and directed the funds thus saved to be utilised for the public works under the board. The article, while condemning the above order of Government, dwells at great length on the usefulness of those institutions. The opinion is expressed that these hospitals are more beneficial to the people than the public works executed under the unsatisfactory A system. The editor strongly advocates the retention of these hospitals or of at least the one at Angadipuram as it is the only one for the whole taluk of Walavanad.

The Kerala Chandrika, of the 5th April, referring to the same subject, expresses a similar opinion.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Apl. 13th, 1896.

Want of drains in Madras.

20. In drawing the attention of Colonel Moore to the want of proper drains in the streets of Madras, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 13th April, states that, excepting certain public roads that are frequented by European gentlemen, other roads and streets of Madras are lying in a wretched state and suggests to Colonel Moore to have a plan of the different streets and lanes, &c., always before him and visit them constantly in order to find out the defects that exist in the drainage and sanitation of the city.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Mar. 25th, 1896.

Benefits of permanent settlement.

21. The Vibudharanjani, of the 25th March, enumerates the following as the advantages to be derived from a permanent settlement of land revenue:—

(1) It secures popular sympathy.

(2) The value of land will rise and Government revenue will be paid regularly. Merchants will be induced to invest their capital in land.

(3) Capital will be laid out in land for the following purposes:—

(a) To manure fields.
(b) To extend cultivation.
(c) To build and maintain farm-houses and good cattle-sheds.
(d) To construct, unlike the Department of Public Works, irrigation canals for every 200 acres of land.
(e) To cultivate sugarcane in the deltas.
(f) To cultivate limes, "Batavia" oranges, areca-nuts, betels, &c., in regar lands.
(g) To grow trees for firewood in sandy tracts.
(h) To plant palmyras along the edges of the fields.
(i) To construct masonry sluices for Government irrigation canals and also repair small irrigation canals.

The paper states that the permanent revenue settlement has proved most advantageous in Bengal and that the landlords and tenants are prosperous there. It adds that as in the petty zamindaris the leases have to be renewed every year, the ryots take no interest and their lands consequently drift into a bad condition. It observes that frequent classifications without any excuse have a tendency to produce famines.

(h) Railways.

LOKABANTHU, Madras, Mar. 25th, 1896.

Extortion committed by military officers near the railway station of Burdwan.

22. The Lokabanthu, of the 25th March, complains that four military officers who were travelling in a second-class railway carriage along with a certain zamindar of Setla in the Bengal Presidency extorted from the zamindar a gold watch and chain near the railway station of Burdwan, and that the stationmaster, who was also an European, took no notice of the complaint preferred by the zamindar. The paper hopes that Government will institute inquiry into this case as it has done in the Guntakal case and bring the offenders to justice.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th March, in consideration of the intense heat of the weather, requests the South Indian Railway authorities to put a shed over the staircase near the platform of the Tiruvarur railway station, and also to adopt measures for keeping water within the easy reach of the passengers who crowd in large numbers as it is a junction station. The correspondent also complains that the booking clerk refuses to give the passengers the ticket applied for, and tells them to take a ticket for some nearer station and get the desired ticket at that station, and hopes that the railway authorities will put down this gross piece of irregularity.

A few suggestions to the South Indian Railway authorities.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1896.

24. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 11th April, complains that the public are put to much inconvenience by the railway officers in the Southern Mahratta Railway stations in Mysore. It says that those who want to send parcels or get their luggage weighed have to wait for a very long time and are treated like those coming to receive some favour at the hands of the clerks, and that the railway gatekeepers at the level crossing gates levy black-mail from ignorant villagers who carry loads across the gates.

The oppression of the poor people by the railway officers on the S.M. Railway in Mysore.

VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Apl. 11th, 1896.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

25. The Dravida Pandiyan, of the 21st March, hearing of the rumour that the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss is intending to appoint a European in the place of Rai Bahadur Dharma Rao Nayudu, Deputy Commissioner in the Abkári Department, who has been permitted to retire from the 1st April, says that, in accordance with the rule authorising Government to appoint three natives for posts carrying higher salary in the department, it is desirable that the post in question should be conferred on a native only, as there are only two natives in the department at present.

Desirability of appointing a native in the room of Rai Bahadur Dharma Rao Nayudu, Deputy Commissioner in the Abkári Department, who has been permitted to retire.

DRAVIDA PANDIYAN, Madras, Mar. 21st, 1896.

26. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 6th April, reports that Mr. Curns, Inspector of Salt, Védáranniyam Circle, has been, notwithstanding the claims of many of his seniors, appointed as an Assistant Commissioner. The paper says that this person has always shown special proclivities for dectective work thereby causing much annoyance and suffering both to the people and to his subordinates, and presumes that this may have been the qualification which recommended him to the favourable opinion of Government. The paper says that the claims of some of the aggrieved officials also deserve the consideration of Government.

A remark on the appointment of Mr. Curns, Assistant Commissioner of Salt.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Apl. 6th, 1896.

(k) General.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th March, requests the postal authorities to make quarter anna post-card half broader than it is at present, to fix five tolas instead of three as the maximum amount of weight of newspapers, &c., for a postage of quarter anna and to have the postage paid then and there in shape of money or label instead of being given in advance, and to receive a commission of one anna on all money orders for less than three rupees. He guarantees that the carrying out of these suggestions will materially increase the income of the Postal department.

Certain suggestions to the Postal department.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 24th, 1896.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 28th March, likes very much that His Excellency Lord Havelock should spend the summer on the hills, but is very much against the long stay of Government in that place on the ground that it is very expensive. The paper says that a stay on the hills for four months would be sufficient, as the heat of the weather abates by the end of August and expects that His Excellency will save the Indian revenue by cutting short the period of his sojourn on the hills.

A remark on the exodus to the hills.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Mar. 28th, 1896.

29. The same paper, speaking of the Translators to Government and the usefulness of the work they do, says that they should not confine their translation to portions that relate to Government only, and that they and the police would do well to take to the notice of Government the objectionable language which persons use towards each other in the columns of the vernacular newspapers, as the use of vituperative and obscene language is prohibited by law under the British Government.

The desirability of bringing to the notice of Government the use of abusive language in the vernacular newspapers examined by the Translators to Government.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 31st, 1896.

30. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st March, asserts that the grant of the privilege of elective system will continue to be a farce so long as the majority of the members of the district and taluk boards consist of Government officials, who do not feel at liberty to ventilate their opinion freely on matters relating to public interest and the voice of the minority, consisting of non-official members, is in consequence as nothing before such an overwhelming majority. The paper says that the district and taluk boards will serve the purpose for which they are intended only when nearly half of the members constituting the board are non-officials elected by the people, and advises Government to modify the rules relating to the elective system accordingly.

A remark on the grant of the privilege of elective system.

31. The same paper, in reporting that Mr. Srinivasaraghava Aiyengar, the Inspector-General of Registration, is shortly to proceed to Baroda as Diwan of that place, thinks it desirable that his post should be conferred on a native irrespective of creed and caste. He suggests the names of the following persons as most competent for the place, namely, M.R.Ry. R. V. Srinivasa Aiyar and P. Rajaratna Mudaliyar and Messrs. Chester and N. Subramaniyam.

Advisability of appointing a native to succeed Mr. Srinivasaraghava Aiyengar, the Inspector-General of Registration.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Mar. 25th, 1896.

32. Speaking of gambling in towns and villages, the Vibudharanjani, of the 25th March, asks how it can ever be possible for the village officials and police not to detect gambling and not to bring gamblers to book. It regrets to find that, instead of taking measures to suppress, they encourage gambling and that, in consequence, theft and other crimes are on the increase. It opines that the crime cannot be rooted out unless Government direct its attention to it, issuing strict orders to the village officials and instructing higher officers to take particular notice of it in their tours.

Gambling.

VRITTANTAMANJARI, Madras, Mar. 28th, 1896.

33. The Vrittantamanjari, of the 28th March, remarks that a large sum of money may be saved if the Governor alone remains on the hills for two or three months, instead of taking the whole establishment there, and hopes that though Sir Arthur Havelock may not break the usual custom, he will reside on the hills for two or three months only.

Exodus to the hills.

LOKABANTHU, Madras, Mar. 31st, 1896.

34. The Lokabanthu, of the 31st March (received 14th April), regrets that murders are of frequent occurrence in the Bellary district, and remarks that the prevailing custom of offering animal sacrifices to village goddesses is one of the two causes which harden the hearts of people and make them callous to the horror of murders. The other is, it says, the presence in the district of a large number of Mlecchas, who are accustomed to killing of cattle. It observes that the crime of murder cannot be rooted out unless the Government interferes to prohibit the said customs.

Murder in Bellary.

35. The Hindujanasamskarini, for March, states that the Budaméru, in the Kistna district, having been allowed to flow into the Collair lake, instead of being turned into the Kistna, many villages have been ruined during floods. Observing that there is, at a distance of 8 miles from Bezwada, an opening by which the Budaméru might be made to empty itself into the Kistna, it questions why it has not been repaired and asks if the engineers are unable to prevent the Budaméru and Thammaleru inundating the villages. It would not be a waste, it remarks, if the Government should spend some money for this purpose.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Mar. 1896.

Villages inundated by a streamlet.

36. Referring to the Mappila riot, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 13th April, states the shooting down of the three Mappilas by the police under orders of Mr. Fawcett is, in the opinion of Mr. Winterbotham, unjustifiable and the Shams-ul-Akbar hopes that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will direct a searching inquiry to be made into the matter and adopt effectual measures to remove the causes which lead to constant riots and bloodshed in the country. In conclusion the Shams-ul-Akbar suggests the exemption of the poor Mappilas from taxation which they can ill-afford to pay.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Apl. 13th, 1896.

Mappila riot.

37. The same paper states it is understood that it has been ruled by His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock that all despatches of the Madras Government, excepting those that relate to ordinary business, shall be sent to him for approval before transmission to the Government of India, and remarks that, in consequence of this ruling, no officer will be able to act independently and indifferently but will be compelled to go through each matter carefully before submitting it for the approval of His Excellency the Governor.

Ruling of Sir Arthur Havelock as regards Government of India's despatches.

III.—LEGISLATION.

38. The Dravida Bhanu, of the 28th March, thinks it desirable that Dr. Miller should resign his membership in the Legislative Council, as he is frequently absent from India. It says that during the last few years Dr. Miller, as a member of the Legislative Council, has done little or nothing in the interest of the public.

DRAVIDA BHANU, Tuticorin, Mar. 28th, 1896.

A wish that Dr. Miller should resign his membership in the Legislative Council.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

39. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 5th April, says that various conjectures have been put forward as to why the Auditor-General has come down from the Government of India to inspect the accounts of the Mysore State, some saying that the Diwan having represented that the State is unable to pay the increased subsidy, the Government of India wanted to see for itself how the finances stood, while others think that Mr. Lee Warner saw when he was Resident that the accounts of the State were not kept properly and so it was at his desire that the inspection has been ordered. Whatever might be the reason, the editor thinks that there has been great waste of money in the Public Works Department and under the head miscellaneous, which is so indefinite that it is made to include any item which the Diwan might find it awkward to specify.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Apl. 5th, 1896.

Investigation into the Accounts Controlling department of Mysore.

40. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 12th April, says that, in order to win over the auditor who has been sent to audit the accounts of the Mysore Government and to prevent him from exposing any defects in the accounts, the Diwan has created a rumour that the Mysore Financial Commissioner's place will be offered to him. The editor hopes that the auditor will not fall into the snare but make a thorough investigation and bring to light all discrepancies and suspicious items of expenditure for which no justification can be found.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, Mar. 30th, 1896.

The Travancore Penal Code Bill.

41. The Malayala Manorama, of the 30th March, referring to the Travancore Penal Code Bill as amended by the select committee, says that it contains several new provisions that are not in the Indian Penal Code. The paper disapproves of sections 85, 182 and 288. The power conferred upon parents and guardians by section 85 in the matter of chastising their children is said to be too elastic and may be abused by them.

The Nazrani Dipika, of the 30th March, also takes the same view as far as this section is concerned, but it sees no objection to the other provisions of the Bill except those contained in section 111.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Mar. 28th, 1896.

Ill-treatment of native chiefs and princes of India by Government.

42. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 28th March, reproduces an article from the Qaisar-i-Hind, of Bombay, to the following effect:—We do not know why Government does not treat the native chiefs and princes of India kindly and respect their rights and privileges as it hitherto did. History tells us that one of the main causes of the Indian mutiny was the detestable policy of annexation which produced dissatisfaction throughout India, but the famous proclamation of Her Majesty the Queen restored confidence to the people and chiefs of India who, on the faith of the promises held out therein, believed that their rights and privileges would be respected. Since that period till now native chiefs and princes have not been found wanting in loyalty and fidelity towards the Imperial Government. Notwithstanding all this they are ill-treated by the Political Agents upon whose whim and pleasure hangs their fate. The undue and malicious interference of political officers in the affairs of native states has disgusted the people of India and disturbed the minds of the native chiefs and princes who constantly run the risk of losing their dignity as well as their states.

Regarding the events which recently occurred in Jhallawar, the Qaisar states that the Maharaja was deposed without a formal inquiry on the mere suggestion of the Political Agent and the reason why the Maharaja was so treated is yet a mystery to the world. His state affairs were managed by the Diwan under the supervision of the Political Agent. The action taken in this case, while infusing awe into the minds of native chiefs and princes, has caused serious apprehension to the people of India.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1896.

Drought in the taluk of Sholavanthan in the district of Madura.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th March, complains that drought is severe in the taluk of Sholavanthan in the district of Madura, and that it is apprehended that cultivation will completely fail over a large area. The paper requests the Collector to make a personal inspection of the said taluk and grant remission during jamabandi to the ryots who lost their harvests, lest they should be reduced to the condition of paupers.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 24th, 1896.

A suggestion to Government regarding the Mappila riot.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th March, attributes the Mappila riot to the want of union and agreement between the officials and the people of the district, and suggests to Government the advisability of transferring the whole official staff of the district elsewhere and of appointing in its place persons who are well acquainted with the nature of the people of the district.

Opinion regarding Sir Antony MacDonnell, Lieutenant-Governor of North-Western Provinces.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1896.

46. The Vibudharanjani, of the 25th March, states that when the income-tax was first introduced in 1886, it was understood that it was required to cover the deficit in the land revenue consequent on the famine and to defray the cost of preventing Russian invasions and to meet military expenditure in Burma. The paper remarks that it was thought it would be discontinued when the necessitating causes had ceased; but alas it was not so. It is unjust of Government to levy it still for the sake of its military expenditure. It is a matter for complaint that the tax is imposed on persons on the merest surmise that their income is Rs. 500 without any inquiry being made.

Income-tax.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Mar. 25th, 1896.

47. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd April, assigns, on the authority of a correspondent, the following as the causes of the recent outbreak of the Mappilas:—(1) Their poverty, (2) religious fanaticism, (3) ignorance, (4) their exclusiveness preventing them from moving in civilised society, (5) their debased life and (6) want of proper roads for troops to march expeditiously to scenes of outbreaks. It is suggested that an extension of railway from Walavanad to Ernad and spread of primary education are the best means of preventing any repetition of the riots.

The causes of the outbreak of the Mappilas in Malabar.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Apl. 2nd, 1896.

48. The Mysore Deshabhimani, of the 12th April, says that the work in the newly opened post office in the Bangalore City is more than one man can cope with and calls upon the postal authorities to make arrangements to give some help to the postmaster.

The over-worked postmaster of the Bangalore City Post office.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Apl. 12th, 1896.

49. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 1st April, invites the attention of the authorities to the necessity of supplying the hospital at Chowghat with drugs as the quantity already supplied is exhausted. The correspondent adds that a number of patients coming from distant places have now to return home disappointed as the necessary medicines are not in store in the hospital.

Authorities to supply the Chowghat hospital with drugs.

KERALA MITRAM, Calicut, Apl. 1st, 1896.

50. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 4th April, referring to the question put in Parliament by Mr. Tanner and the Secretary of State's reply thereto, says that the statement of the Secretary of State that only 86 Mappilas were killed in the outbreak is quite inaccurate, and believes that this inaccuracy is due to the misrepresentation made by the district officials to Government who supplies information to the Secretary of State. The article, after commenting at some length upon the matter, goes on to say that had the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police cared to get the Mappilas, who were only nominally armed, to give themselves up the extreme measure that was employed by them would have been avoided. The remark is made that the above officials ought to be chiefly held responsible for unnecessarily causing the loss of so many lives, which could have been averted if they had acted in the matter with prudence and discretion. It hopes that Government will take serious notice of the conduct of these officers; that they will arrive at a satisfactory decision in the matter of these outbreaks; and that they will also take the necessary steps for the submission by the district officials of true and accurate reports on all occasions.

Reflections on the recent Mappila outbreak.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apl. 4th, 1896.

The Manorama, of the 30th March, does not consider that the outbreaks are due to any agrarian dispute. The paper urges Government to make a searching inquiry into the matter by means of a commission consisting of a European president and four or five native gentlemen representing both the landlords and tenants. In this connection are suggested the names of Mr. Manavedan Raja, the Acting Collector of Nellore, who is now on leave, and Mr. Karunakara Menon, Deputy Collector.

A correspondent in the same issue of the paper, alluding to the outbreak, writes that it is not very advisable to withdraw the magisterial powers from the Tahsildars of Malabar in a view of the grave crimes that are frequently committed in large numbers in that district, and suggests that at least the Tahsildars of Ernad and Walavanad taluks, where outbreaks and dacoities frequently occur, should, as a special case, be invested with magisterial functions.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st April, says that although the Mappila outbreak is over, yet as dacoities are committed now and then in the two affected taluks, there is considerable alarm among the Hindu population. Owing to fear of the Mappilas, people refrain from making any complaint to the police, and even if complaints are made, the police try to avoid interfering in the matter, they themselves being afraid of the Mappilas. To check the dacoities and other grave crimes in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad, which are now in a disturbed state, the paper suggests the quartering of a special police at different places therein under the Police Act recently extended to this presidency.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apl. 6th, 1896.

Remarks on the Ponnani treasury theft case.

51. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 6th April, refers to the Ponnani treasury theft case. It says that it takes this opportunity of impressing upon the authorities the necessity of taking stricter precautionary measures in future for ensuring the safe carriage of the money sent from the treasuries. The present boxes used in carrying treasure are said to be not of a strong make and they could be easily opened. The seal used is generally so simple that one can easily get a similar one made and make use of it. The attention of the authorities is therefore invited to the desirability of making the necessary changes in these as well as in the matter of passing the boxes from one police escort to another during the transit.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Apl. 5th, 1896.

Deplorable condition of Tiyans in Malabar.

52. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 5th April, deplores the condition of the Tiyya community in British Malabar in consequence of the high officials of that class being all pensioned and suggests that Mr. Kelappan, the Sheristadar of Civil Court, Tellicherry, who was more than once acting as a munsif, be given the place of a munsif on the retirement of Mr. E. K. Krishnan, the Sub-Judge of Palghat, and the Tahsildar of Chirakkal who is in every way deserving of promotion, will not be lost sight of by the Collector when Mr. Kunhambu retires on pension.

Remarks on the removal of the branch post office at Ponneri.

53. A correspondent to the same issue bitterly complains of the rumoured receipt of an order to locate the branch post office, Ponneri, at Tiruvallur, a place in every way inconveniently situated and prays the Inspector-General of Post Offices will favourably dispose of the petition presented by the merchants, &c.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Apl. 11th, 1896.

Irregularities in the delivery of letters.

54. A paragraph in the Kerala Mitram, of the 11th April, complains of the great irregularity in the delivery of letters, &c., in the Cochin State.

55. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st April, in connection with the culpable homicide by a Pulaya of his wife at Eramam, refers to the lawless and high-handed proceedings of the police in outlandish places. Occasional visits to these places by some high officials would restrict this high-handedness of the subordinates by instilling into them fear of disclosure.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Apl. 11th, 1896.

High-handedness of the police.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Apl. 8th, 1896.

Justifying the action of the authorities who shot down the Mappila rebels at Manjeri, &c.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th April, says that England is now at war in different parts of Africa with the native inhabitants of the respective parts, viz., Eastern Africa, South of Egypt and Rohosia, a newly acquired territory.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Apl. 20th, 1896.

Wars in Africa.

2. The same paper learns that the Russian Government has sent an army of 90,000 men from Odessa towards the East for the purpose of waging war with Japan on behalf of Corea, and says that if this is true, we may shortly expect a terrible war in the east of Asia.

Russia's preparations for making war with Japan.

3. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 20th April, remarks that the charges of oppression and tyranny brought against the Turks by the Armenians have after all been proved to be groundless, and states that the firm and persevering attitude of the Sultan has settled for good the Armenian question which will not be re-opened unless restless and intriguing persons of Mr. Gladstone's stamp and character rake it up again. Turning to the Dongola expedition, the Shams-ul-Akbar observes that England has every right to aid Italy against the dervishes, but asks if she thereby intends to prolong her occupation of Egypt as has been alleged by the French press.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Apl. 20th, 1896.

Passing remarks on the Armenian question and the Dangola expedition.

4. The same paper states:—It is understood from the London telegram of the 16th instant that Russia and France have succeeded in inciting the dervishes to rebel against Italy and England. Under these circumstances the Shams-ul-Akbar remarks England has its enemy not only in dervishes, but also in Russia and France with whom she has to cope in case of necessity. Moreover the British people and ministry are much against the Dangola expedition.

The Dangola expedition.

5. Referring to the London telegram which announced the impossibility of Indian troops being despatched to Soudan, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 27th April, states that the officers of the native army, disappointed at the news, have intimated to the War Office their readiness to proceed to that country, and observes that they need not trouble themselves to volunteer, since it is understood that huts are being built on the shores of the Suez Canal for the use of the Indian troops, and there is no likelihood of the present ministry, which is in favour of despatching troops to Soudan, leaving office. Moreover the officers who are so keen to go to the Soudan must not think that they are going to face women, cultivators or cooks, but spirited and desperate dervishes, such as have defeated Hicks Pasha and Gordon Pasha and made them lick the ground. It is also alleged that these dervishes are officered by well-trained and experienced Russian and French Generals and Colonels and armed with Martini-Henri, if not with Lee Metford, rifles. Besides, did not their brethren the Negroes of Abyssinia recently utterly route an army of twenty thousand Italians?

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Apl. 27th, 1896.

Despatch of Indian troops to Soudan.

6. The same paper states that the Califa of Soudan has proclaimed a religious war and has called upon the Egyptians and the dervishes who are able to carry arms to gather under the Mussalman standard.

Proclamation of a religious war.

7. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 23rd April, has from Mirza Hairat, of Delhi, a long letter regarding affairs in the Soudon which points out the difficulty of annihilating the dervishes and annexing Soudan to Egypt and suggests that instead of shedding blood for the purpose of establishing peace and tranquility in that coutry it would be much better to acknowledge the Mahdi and to enter into a treaty of commerce with him. If this is not practicable it advises England to commit Egypt to the charge of the Sultan as such an act on her part would tend to remove the ill-feeling which at present exists between the Sultan and the English Government on account of the Armenian question. If she fails to do so and prolongs her hold upon Egypt it is apprehended that she will find herself surrounded with difficulties on all sides ere long.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Apl. 23rd, 1896.

Soudan affairs.

II.—Home Administration.

Janavinodhini, Tiruvadi, Apl. 10th, 1896.

A complaint against the police at Kallakkudi near Tiruvarur.

8. The Janavinodhini, of the 10th April, reports that a few robbers were surprised by a passerby while committing burglary in the village of Kalakkudi near Tiruvarur, and that the robbers, to effect their escape, beat the passenger with a big stick, who, in the exercise of the right of private defence, cut one of the robbers with a sword and made him fall dead. The paper regrets to learn that the authorities sent to the jail the passenger for having killed the robber, and remarks that such a course, while encouraging robbers, would not embolden brave characters to attack the robbers as permitted by law and thus rescue the people. The paper in this connection reports that the vigilance of the police in that place could not be commended, and that burglary and theft are being committed almost every day with impunity in consequence.

Sasilekha, Madras, Apl. 24th, 1896.

Theft in Anantapur.

9. The Sasilekha, of the 24th April, states that it hears of thefts frequently committed in Anantapur, that a month ago robbers committed house-breaking and removed a sum of Rs. 600 from an iron safe in the house of one Mangu Vasudeva Rao, employed in the office of the Collector, and that a week ago the Salt Sub-Inspector lost jewels worth Rs. 1,000. The paper does not know how to account for such cases of theft in a large town like Anantapur and requests the Police Superintendent to take particular care in the matter.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Apl. 25th, 1896.

A case for notice by Government.

10. The Andhraprakasika, of 25th April, states that in a fight among the Pallars of Sattur, Tinnevelly district, one of them was mortally wounded and was consequently kept in the local fund hospital. It regrets that he died a few days later as anticipated by the apothecary, and that the police, instead of trying their best to detect the offenders, endeavoured, on the other hand, to arrest the hospital compounder, charging him with having mixed poison in administering medicine to the deceased; but the Chemical Examiner having certified that there was no trace of poison in the contents of the bowels of the deceased, the compounder got off from the clutches of the police. The paper hears that neither the police nor the magistrate has as yet made any attempt to detect the criminals, and that owing to ill-feeling between the compounder and the police station-house officer, the case took the aforesaid turn. It thinks that Government should ask the following questions:—Who is it that wounded the deceased? What has become of him? Can he ever be traced or not?

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Apl. 10th, 1896.

A complaint that the town of Kumbakónam is without a magistrate.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th April, draws the attention of Government to the fact that the town of Kumbakónam has been without a stationary sub-magistrate for nearly a month, and he is at a loss to know how order and peace can be maintained in such a big town without a magistrate.

12. The Janopakari, of the 11th April, prctests against the present system of keeping the criminal administration of a district under the control of the district magistrate on the ground that it gives room for miscarriage of justice. The paper is of opinion that if sub-magistrates in a district be kept under the control of the High Court, the criminal administration will be more satisfactory and prove beneficial to the people, even as the civil administration has become satisfactory after the High Court has begun to exercise control over the district munsifs.

JANOPAKARI, Madras, Apl. 11th, 1896.

Expediency of keeping sub-magistrates under the control of the High Court.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th April, reports that Mr. Bradley, the District Magistrate of Coimbatore, issued an order that the accused in a criminal case pending inquiry shall not get a copy of the charge sheet and the occurrence report until the final disposal of his case. The paper says that this order is arbitrary and will prove a source of hardship to the parties concerned. The paper concludes with the remark that this is one of the many evils arising from the circumstance that both the judicial and executive functions are vested in one and the same person and that it behoves Government to take the subject into its consideration.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 14th, 1896.

An order passed by the District Magistrate of Coimbatore.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th April, writes as follows.—The plea of want of money set forth by Government for not effecting a total separation of the revenue from the judicial functions of magistrates is useless. Government can save money if it will observe economy in administration. For instance, the scale of pay now given to tahsildars was originally fixed in consideration of their revenue and magisterial work; but now the appointment of stationary magistrates has greatly lightened, and, in fact, almost relieved tahsildars of their magisterial function; it is therefore desirable that their pay should be reduced in proportion. Again, the present method of administration does not require the services of deputy tahsildars and huzur sheristadars and these offices, which are mere incumbrance, may also be abolished. Speaking of the district of Coimbatore in particular there are in that district about ten tahsildars (one on Rs. 250, one on Rs. 225, three on Rs. 200, three on Rs. 175 and two on Rs. 150); fourteen deputy tahsildars (one on Rs. 120 and thirteen on Rs. 100); a huzur sheristadar on Rs. 225 with an office establishmeut costing Rs. 182, at an aggregate cost of Rs. 3,727 per month. It is suggested that if the district possesses ten tahsildars (two on Rs. 200, three on Rs. 175 and five on Rs. 150) and eleven magistrates (two on Rs. 200, three on Rs. 175 and six on Rs. 150) at an aggregate cost of Rs. 3,500 per month, Government will not only make a saving of Rs. 227 per month, but the administration of the district also will prove more satisfactory. It is highly desirable that Government should increase the salary of magistrates to the extent of the pay given to district munsifs to keep them above all temptations, and the adoption of the suggestion herein made will not only facilitate the despatch of administrative work of each district but will also prove beneficial to the people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 17th, 1896.

A suggestion to separate in toto the judicial from the revenue functions of magistrates.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th April, says that the present system of selecting jurors is very unsatisfactory and regrettable. Jurors are now appointed through the recommendations of adikāris and tahsildars and their ability is not taken into consideration at all. They have not the courage of their conviction and are, moreover, incapable of understanding the responsibility of their position. They do not generally give out their conscientious opinion, and, in the matter of returning the verdict, they are more or less guided by the opinion expressed by the judge in summing up the case. Some of the clerks in the huzur office have been included in the new list of jurors. This is quite inadvisable, for the majority of them will not have the courage to differ from the opinion of a district judge. Jurors are in some cases obliged to leave their avocations and come from a distance of 15 or 20 miles, and they have to bear all the expenses incidental thereto. Sometimes the jurors are, owing to the court work, obliged to remain in town for days together at great sacrifice and expense. To avoid these inconveniences, respectable and competent men gain the good-will of the adikaris and tahsildars and get themselves exempted. It is therefore suggested that a juror should be paid travelling allowances as an inducement just as local board members and Government servants are and steps should also be taken to have better men selected as jurors in future.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apl. 18th, 1896.

Condemning the present system of selecting jurors.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Apl. 20th, 1896.

Suggesting the appointment of a Muhammadan to the vacant judgeship in the Madras Court of Small Causes.

16. Referring to the vacancy in the Madras Court of Small Causes, caused by the resignation of Mr. Subramaniyan, who has been appointed Government Pleader, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 20th April, hopes that as no Muhammadan has ever been appointed judge either in the High Court or in the Court of Small Causes, His Excellency the Governor will be pleased to fill up the present vacancy by appointing a duly qualified member of the community.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 7th, 1896.

A suggestion to the educational authorities regarding the diffusion of primary education.

(e) Local and Municipal.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apl. 20th, 1896.

Reflections on the review of the Calicut municipal budget.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 20th April, strongly animadverts on the Government Order passed in reviewing the Calicut municipal budget. It says that Government was led into passing such a severe order by the misleading statements contained in the endorsement of the divisional officer on the budget which was supported by the Collector. In all municipalities taxes on buildings, &c., are revised and adjusted once in five years, and it was only in 1892–93 that assessments were revised in the Calicut municipality. Under the circumstances, the editor says that the Government Order calling upon the councillors to revise the taxes before the lapse of five years and even before the close of the survey now being carried on in the municipality seems very strange. It appears that the budget estimate which was prepared by Mr. Varada Rao in the capacity of chairman was endorsed by himself as divisional officer, and the remark is made that this procedure on the part of Mr. Varada Rao has even exceeded that of Mr. LeFanu. The article, after criticising at great length the order in question, remarks that as Government has throughout acted upon the misleading reports of the divisional officer and the Collector, disregarding the true statements of the councillors, the latter ought to take steps to get the order amended. If Government turns a deaf ear to their reasonable representations they ought to resign their seats forthwith instead of holding office on such derogatory terms.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apl. 25th, 1896.

Construction of the Mankavu bridge.

19. A leader in the Mayalayam Kerala Patrika, of the 25th April, bitterly complains of the indifference of the authorities in regard to the Mankavu bridge which was pulled down by the municipality some years ago. A sum of Rs. 1,500 was provided in the last budget for the re-construction of the above bridge, but the refusal of Government on a report from the chairman to sanction the sum is a matter for regret. The remark is made that since Mr. Varada Rao assumed charge of the office of chairman he has not done anything conducive to the welfare of the municipality. The article exhorts the people to hold a public meeting to concert measures for the construction of the bridge.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

20. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 8th April, suggests that Government should transfer revenue inspectors every now and then, at least once a year, on the ground that their long stay in a place tempts them to corruption and makes them prove a source of worry and trouble to the people.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Apl. 8th, 1896.

Advisability of transferring revenue inspectors at least once a year.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 21st April, complains as follows:—I owned about 12 valis of land in the village of Varathampattu, Mayavaram taluk, which I made over three or four years ago to some persons. Nevertheless the revenue authorities continued to levy the kist from me on the ground that the mirasi right of the lands belonged to me. To relieve myself of this trouble I submitted a razinama in respect of all the lands the patta of which stood in my name to Mr. Kolandaswami Pillai, the tahsildar, who forwarded it to the revenue inspector for disposal. I am not aware of the result. The purchasers continued paying the kist up to January of the current fasli in view to enjoy the produce and failed to pay the kists due in February and March which were recovered from me by the tahsildar by attaching my moveable property in Konerirajapuram. On my questioning the tahsildar as to the propriety of the said procedure he replied that I would be liable for the payment of kist until my case is finally disposed of by some one else obtaining the mirasi right of the lands. To whom shall I represent this cruelty—that of the kist being levied from me in spite of my submitting in due time my razinama relinquishing my mirasi right? Cannot kist be recovered from the occupants of lands? Cannot the lands themselves be attached and sold at auction and the kist recovered thereby? It naturally follows that a mirasidar will be relieved of the kist only when he becomes a pauper destitute of all property. I do not know how many more persons smart under such a piece of cruelty as this? Alas! Cruelty! Cruelty!

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 21st, 1896.

A complaint against the demand of kist.

22. The Vibudharanjani, of the 1st April, speaking of the benefits of a permanent settlement of land revenue, remarks that the statement of Mr. Winterbotham as to the good condition of the crops in the delta lands is wholly unwarranted, inasmuch as he was able to see only those fields that lay by the side of the canal while he was travelling in his steam boat and not those in the interior. It contends that the Commissioner of Revenue Settlement would do well not to be content with the present condition of the crops, but to see how the fields in the delta could be improved by permanently settling the revenue and thereby inducing capitalists to invest capital. The paper confidently affirms that if Government would not violate its promises for the sake of selfishly augmenting its revenue but would fix the land-tax at Rs. 4 per acre and bring about a permanent settlement, enlisting thereby popular sympathy on its side, the present rice fields would soon become attractive, producing sugarcane, cocoanut, areca nut, betel, plantain, "Batavia" orange, lime, &c., and possessing substantial buildings. It further believes that Government would thereby confer a great boon on the people, while its administration of the country would be more firmly established for ever.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Apl. 1st, 1896.

Godavari resettlement.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Manaroma, of the 27th April, referring to the notification published in the District Gazette by the Collector of Malabar requiring the proprietors of lands in Walavanad, Palghat, Ponnani and Kurumbranat taluks to submit applications for the registration of their titles within the 30th June next, says that although this period may be sufficient for the proprietors who own small estates, yet in the case of proprietors owning extensive lands in various taluks and who do not in fact possess the required information in respect of such lands a longer period should be allowed for the submission of their applications. The kanamdars in whose names the pattas have been registered are not bound to submit applications for the registration of lands held by them, and as the proprietors who are bound to make the applications do not generally hold the pattas they are unable to know the situation and other particulars of the lands leased out by them to the kanamdars. The editor therefore suggests that to facilitate the work the kanamdars should also be made responsible for making these applications.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apl. 27th, 1896.

Remarks on the registration of lands in Malabar.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 7th, 1896.

Desirability of increasing the pay of railway servants in the South Indian Railway.

24. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th April, says that the prevalence of corruption among the railway servants of the South Indian Railway is due to the small pay given to them, and thinks that an adequate increase of their pay will remove many malpractices.

Protest raised against a European being appointed as a stationmaster in the South Indian Railway.

25. A correspondent to the same paper is very much against a European being appointed as stationmaster in the South Indian Railway on the ground that the majority of passengers are ignorant of the English language and therefore are not able to represent their grievances as freely and intelligibly as they would were the stationmaster a native.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Apl. 11th, 1896.

A suggestion to the South Indian Railway authorities.

26. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 11th April, remarks that the present system of supplying the passengers with water in the South Indian Railway is highly unsatisfactory, and advises the railway authorities to keep water pipe on all platforms even as is done in the Villupuram railway station. The paper thinks that the adoption of this suggestion will tend to keep water within the easy reach of every passenger in all stations.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 24th, 1896.

A remark on the appointment of Mr. Parker as District Local Fund Engineer.

27. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th April, reports that the District Collector of Tinnevelly has appointed Mr. Parker as Local Fund Engineer, ignoring the superior merits of the other applicants, such as Mr. Subraya Charry, B.C.E., a retired Executive Engineer. The paper says that the criterion of selection in this appointment was race and not merit.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 7th, 1896.

A suggestion to the postal authorities.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 7th April, complains that the post office in Bangalapputhur near Gopichettipalaiyam seldom delivers letters, &c., in time and requests the postal authorities either to help the post office with the services of another runner or to amalgamate it with the post office in Gopichettipalaiyam.

PARIYAN, Madras, Apl. 18th, 1896.

A suggestion to the authorities of the Government Maternity Hospital.

29. The Pariyan, of the 18th April, complains that the unclaimed dead bodies of women dying in the Government Maternity Hospital are conveyed to the burial ground in an inhuman and ghastly manner so as to wound the feelings of the people. The paper thinks it desirable that such dead bodies should be conveyed either in a covered litter or a carriage so as to avoid exposure to the sight of the people.

30. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 21st April, remarks that the English system of medicine suits Europeans only and not the natives of India, and wishes the authorities to introduce the native system of medicine into Government Medical Colleges and encourage candidates qualifying themselves in that system by conferring suitable posts on them.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 21st, 1896.

Desirability of encouraging native system of medicine.

31. The Vibudharanjani, of the 8th April, dwelling on the administration of Income-tax in the Gódávari district, states:—

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Apl. 8th, 1896.

Income-tax.

(1) That a certain merchant having been assessed at an enormous sum, viz., Rs. 8,000, the Sub-Collector, on appeal, confirmed the tax in spite of the evidence given by four respectable persons and in spite of the accounts produced having been kept correctly, and that on the Collector directing that the case should be properly inquired into again, he (the Sub-Collector) reduced the amount to Rs. 3,335. The paper asks why it was at first said that the tax should not be reduced, why it was declared that the accounts were not correct, and why it was that the amount was at last reduced by more than Rs. 4,000. Considering the circumstances of the present case, it further questions whether Government officers assess the tax capriciously, or whether they are encouraged by Government so to do.

(2) That in the case of one Grandhi Nagaraju, of Rajahmundry, the original tax of Rs. 10 having been first raised to Rs. 28 and then reduced to Rs. 15, he paid the last mentioned sum, but he was ordered to pay Rs. 13 more. The paper remarks with surprise that Government officials place themselves in ridiculous positions consumed by a desire to win the favour of the Government.

(3) That a certain gentlemen, keeping correct accounts, was assessed at Rs. 105 which was doubled on appeal and then confimed by the Collector on a second appeal. The paper remarks that the assessment of the tax seems to have no rhyme or reason.

(4) That income-tax was imposed on a poor man by a Deputy Tahsildar, whose successor, unable to get it cancelled, ordered, with a threat of distraint, that the tax should be paid by the owner of the house in which the poor man resided, and that the owner, finding it difficult to prove that his property was his own property and not that of the poor man, was obliged to pay the said tax himself. The paper asks whether the laws of Government are of any use if the officers impose the tax at their pleasure without attempting to inquire whether it is just or otherwise.

(5) That a karnam having been ordered to collect income-tax from a poor man, and having refused to pay it himself (perhaps he was unable to collect it?) his father-in-law begged the tahsildar to pardon his son-in-law for his disobedience, he himself agreeing to pay the said tax. When it was ordered on appeal to be refunded, the amount was paid to the poor man and not to the karnam's father-in-law, the then tahsildar being a new man. The paper, wondering at the unexpected fortune of the poor fellow, invites the public to notice what strange things happen in the administration of the income-tax, and asks whether such circumstances can possibly exist under the beneficient administration of the enlightened British Government.

(6) That income-tax having been imposed on a poor man in a village near Cocanada, who was too poor to pay it and who had no property that might be distrained, the tahsildar, to support his own conduct, asked the village munsif and karnam to pay the tax and they did so accordingly. It remarks who knows many such cases are not occurring.

(7) That a tahsildar, in the course of a conversation on the subject of income-tax with M.R.Ry. Devarakonda Subramaniyam Garu, a pleader, is said to have stated as follows:—"We are tahsildars. What can we do? The orders we receive are such! We are obliged to impose the tax despite the dictates of our conscience."

The paper remarks that though the tax may be necessary for purposes of public good, the Government would be justified only if it levied the tax, after due inquiry, as to who are able to pay and who are not in accordance with its own laws without bringing pressure to bear on its subordinates. It further deprecates the arbitrary assessment of the tax according to the whim and pleasure of the authorities.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Apl. 1st, 1896.

The Vibudharanjani, of the 1st April, dwelling on the same subject in the Gódávari district asks whether it is proper of Government not to lend its ear to the grievances of the people, which were duly represented to it by the Gódávari District Conference held last year. It observes that, out of the 4,774 persons on whom the tax was imposed in the Godavari district during the year 1893–94, more than one-half of them, i.e., 2,477, appealed against the impost itself and argues that it means that so many are unable to pay the tax. It further states that 34 persons presented petitions for revision, that in 228 cases the tax was cancelled and that in 166 cases it was partly reduced. The paper regrets very much that only a few cases were thus fairly dealt with, while all the remaining cases were dismissed.

Jamabandi.

32. A correspondent to the same paper expresses the deepest regret for the wretched condition of the karnams who, while collecting revenue for Government and keeping accounts correctly, are ill-treated even by the peons. He observes that while Government officers with salaries of hundreds of rupees obtain batta at the rate of Rs. 1, 2, or 3 a day whenever they stir out of their homes, the karnams, who have to do every piece of important work, though on receipt of a trifling salary, are not only not paid any batta when they are sent for and made to remain at the taluk headquarters, but are also punished with fines.

The correspondent regrets to see the karnams, who thus enjoy no pecuniary or other advantages, slighted even by the dalayats waiting on the jamabandi officer, reprimanded by taluk gumastahs, insulted by tahsildars and actually punished by the jamabandi officer, and observes that the troubles caused by the jamabandi to the revenne officials which bring on them even disease for want of regular meals can only be brought to an end by directing the abolition of the jamabandi, which is unnecessary. He recommends also the granting of batta to the karnams whenever they are summoned to attend at the taluk office.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Apl. 25th, 1896.

A grand procession.

33. The Andhraprakasika, of the 25th April, remarks that the parading of the State carriage of His Highness the Nabob of Arcot in a procession of prostitutes escorted by police is wholly repugnant to everybody's sense of propriety, and asks how the authorities have not raised any objection to the use by prostitutes of the State carriage (with all the trappings and with postilions mounted on its horses), which is reserved for the exclusive use of such great personages as His Excellency the Governor, His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief and His Highness the Nawab.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Apl. 24th, 1896.

Vaccination in Nandiyal.

34. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 24th April, states that in Nandiyal children are not being vaccinated in their infancy, and that when any one applies that his child be vaccinated the hospital authorities plead want of lymph. He thinks that such being the state of a large town like Nandiyal with a population of 11,000 inhabitants, the condition of petty villages must be much worse, and it does not appear to him justifiable that the "doctor" should ever plead want of lymph. He requests the Sanitary Commissioner, Dr. King, to inquire into the matter.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Apl. 19th, 1896.

Increase in the railway police force in Mysore.

35. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 19th April, says:—Now that the railway police in Mysore has been transferred to the British Government, additional sergeants and jemadars are being appointed. The pay of the force, however, is to be met from the Mysore revenues. This is something like one man riding the horse while another is holding the reins.

36. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 20th April, writes as follows:—Whatever may be the rental value, the leases for garden lands in Malabar have now to be executed on 8-anna stamp paper and registered. Even if the amount of rent is 4 annas the lease has to be executed on 8-anna stamp paper. Some registrars are found to register such leases on 8-anna stamp paper and some on 2-anna paper. We know not which of these courses is the correct one. If in executing such leases the value of the stamp paper is to depend upon the amount of the rent, then 2-anna stamp-paper ought to be sufficient for leases for garden lands and parambas, and a reduction in this respect will be a boon to the people. It is therefore hoped that Government will give attention to the matter. The adikaris have of late been made to keep a register for vakkalats (power of attorney) registered by them in order to prevent false ones being filed in courts. Although the corrupt practice has not been put an end to even by this measure, yet it has given ample scope for them to increase the fee which they used to receive for the registration of vakkalats. It is the custom of a village munsif to collect a rupee and a quarter from parties for every suit tried by him of which the value is Rs. 10 and to divide it between himself and his subordinates. It will be a great good to the country if passed candidates are appointed village munsifs, any additional cost incurred thereby being met by a collection of a small fee for every suit tried by such courts.

Stamp value for leases executed in respect of garden lands in Malabar to be reduced, &c.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apl. 20th, 1896.

37. A correspondent to the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 25th April, complains of the irregularities in clearing the pillar post near Pudiyara in Calicut. The correspondent adds that as there is no fixed time for clearing the box, the postman clears it whenever he likes. Sometimes it is cleared once a week, and at other times twice, and urgent letters posted by the people in the box under the impression that it is being cleared daily are consequently delayed. The correspondent, while inviting the attention of the authorities to the matter, suggests the removal of the box to somewhere near the jail where its absence is much felt by the people.

Postal irregularities.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apl. 25th, 1896.

38. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 27th April, referring to the iniquities committed by the adikaris in registering vakkalats (powers of attorney) says that it is ridiculous that the vakkalats given by Sub-Judges, Munsifs, Deputy Collectors and Tahsildars should also be attested by the adikaris drawing the low pay of Rs. 5-4-0 per mensem. It is the custom of some of the adikaris to leave their amsams very frequently and to wait in the munsif's courts for the purpose of registering vakkalats given by parties to vakils and they even register vakkalats for an extra fee in the absence of the persons executing them. The article says that this objectionable practice should be put a stop to and vakils should be allowed the discretion of receiving vakkalats signed by parties and two witnesses in their presence.

Suggestions regarding the registration of vakkalats.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apl. 27th, 1896.

39. In noticing with pleasure and pride the approval by Her Majesty the Queen Empress of the appointment of Muhammad Mahmud Khan Bahadur, of the Carnatic family, as Persian Consul in Madras, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 23rd April, states that the above gentleman, who is the President of the Central Muhammadan Association, is a highly respected and leading member of the community.

Appointment of a Persian Consul at Madras.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Apl. 23rd, 1896.

40. In inserting a letter from a correspondent regarding the recent destructive fires in Bimlipatam, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 27th April, states that these fires do not seem to be accidental, but the acts of some incendiaries, and that the inhabitants of the locality are much distressed and alarmed on this account. The local authorities have not adopted the necessary measures to find out the authors of the mischief.

Fire at Bimlipatam.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Apl. 27th, 1896.

III.—Legislation.

Janopakari, Madras, Apl. 18th, 1896.

An advice to the people to get the Whipping Act repealed.

41. The Janopakari, of the 18th April, observes that the criminal jurisprudence of many of the civilized nations omits whipping from the list of punishments for the reason that punishment by whipping is more brutal than human. The paper advises the people to move for the repeal of the Whipping Act, as it is arbitrarily enforced by the authorities.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Apl. 23rd, 1896.

Necessity for legislation to prevent the destruction of birds.

42. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 23rd April, remarks that every one knows how some hunters bring small birds and other animals from the woods and sell them to people and how these birds die very soon after they have been bought. The Government has now no power to prevent the catching of such birds. It is therefore the desire of many people that a law should be passed which will enable the Government to deal with such cases.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Apl. 18th, 1896.

Remarks on the last meeting of the Legislative Council.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th April, refers to the last meeting of the Legislative Council. It says that the replies to questions put in the last council were more clear and satisfactory than hitherto, though in the matter of some of the important questions they were not very clear and decisive. The replies to questions relating to the Wynaad settlement, the transfer of the headquarters of Wynaad taluk from Manantoddy to Vayitri and the non-recognition of the native middle school, Ponnani, were very evasive and unsatisfactory. While Mr. Stuart was the settlement officer there was a rumour to the effect that some of the documents which had been filed by the janmis (land-lords) were destroyed by his subordinates, but the matter was not then brought to the notice of the proper authorities by the parties as they were not sure of it. Although Government is now ready to return the documents to the owners, yet from the replies it may be understood that the allegations made in the petition presented by the janmis were not absolutely without any foundation. As regards the Ponnani school, Dr. Duncan, the Director of Public Instruction, said that the school in question was not recognised on the ground that the Madras Educational rules had not been complied with. The reason is not far to seek. There is a missionary school in the place, and the Director does not therefore wish to have another school there. Referring to Mr. Sankaran Nayar's speech on the budget, the editor remarks that his statement that any further increase in the existing assessment as the result of the settlement will disturb the peace of the country is not entirely devoid of truth. The poverty of the people increases in proportion to the enhancement of the assessment, and when the poverty becomes unbearable people are likely to cause disturbance, crimes, &c.

Alhami, Madras, Apl. 19th, 1896.

Want of proper legislation to prevent deceitful pecuniary dealings, &c.

44. Referring to the alleged murder of a sowcar at Majhit in Amritsar, the Alhami, of the 19th April, says that for want of proper legislation regulating monetary dealings of sowcars, who rob the public and extract from them exorbitant interest, and owing to the lack of proper and effectual measures to improve the condition of indebted landlords as well as the famine-stricken people, murders of sowcars, robberies and dacoities have become the order of the day. If such a state of affairs continues unchecked and no remedial measures are adopted by Government it is apprehended that serious results will follow.

IV.—Native States.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Apl. 22nd, 1896.

The case of the Maharaja of Jhallawar.

45. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 22nd April, says:—The way in which the Government of India has dealt with the Maharaja of Jhallawar shows what respect is paid to the native chiefs by the Imperial Government. Even the meanest officer of Government cannot be dismissed without a fair trial, but a native raja can be deposed on the one-sided representation of a political agent. Thus the making and unmaking of native chiefs is entirely the work of the political officers. The political officers are generally such as have risen from the lowest rungs of the official ladder, and such men are allowed to lord it over men in whose veins runs royal blood and who can claim descent from the ancient sovereigns of India. In the case of the Maharaja of Jhallawar there is nothing to show that he misgoverned his State. All that he did was that he reduced the expenditure of the State, but on a requisition from the political agent he restored the former establishment. He was subjected to the humiliation of employing men whom he did not like. Thus the Maharaja could not be accused of misgovernment or of disloyalty and yet he has been deposed on the bare report of the political agent. After this what native chief can feel secure in his position?

The arbitrary conduct of a councillor of the Mysore Council of Regency.

46. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 26th April, regrets that Mr. Krishna Murti, the councillor in charge of the revenue portfolio in Mysore, has passed an order that no vakil should appear before him on behalf of any party, and says that such arbitrary proceedings are not calculated to make popular one who aspires to be the future Diwan of the State.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI,, Bangalore, Apr. 26th, 1896.

The hardships of the clerical establishment of taluk offices.

47. The same paper says that while the Mysore Government is very liberal in increasing the pay of the higher officials in almost all departments the hardships of the clerks in the taluk offices are never taken notice of. These clerks have to work all their life on Rs. 15, 20 and 12 without any prospect of promotion, and they are the hardest worked of all Government servants. The editor therefore wishes that something may soon be done to ameliorate their condition.

Oppression of preventive officers in Travancore.

48. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st April, complains of the oppression and extortion of the officers of the preventive force stationed at Mundioth, Edamulla and other depôts in Travancore. The duty of these officers is to see that articles on which duties are levied are not smuggled into that State; but on this pretence they stop all the boats passing through the backwater and detain them and worry the passengers therein until they (the officers) are given bribes in the shape of money or provisions carried for the use of passengers. The article therefore invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the necessity of putting a stop to the malpractices of these officers.

KERALA MITRAN, Calicut, Apl. 21st, 1896,

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Suggestions regarding the treatment of the Mappilas deported for an outbreak.

49. A Nayar correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th April, writes from Parlakimedi that at the time of the recent Mappila outbreak in Malabar he was living at Vizagapatam, where four Mappilas, who had been deported from Malabar in connection with the Trikkalur outbreak were also living. Since he heard of the Mappila outbreak he occasionally used to visit these Mappilas and speak to them about it. The correspondent adds that he was getting information regarding the outbreak from the Kerala Patrika, for which he is a subscriber, but these Mappilas, it appears, used to give such information to him long before he got the Patrika. As the correspondent is a Malayali, most of the letters addressed in Malayalam used to be brought to him, of which he found three letters addressed to one of the Mappilas, one bearing the postmark Vandur and the other two Manjeri. The correspondent seems to think that these Mappilas are not altogether unaware of these outbreaks, and suggests that the rights and liberties enjoyed by those who have been deported by reason of an outbreak should be restricted to and that all their communications should pass through some authorized Government official.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apl. 27th, 1896.

Disapproving of the appointment of Mr. Winterbotham as Special Commissioner to inquire into the Mappila outbreak.

50. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 27th April, says that it is glad to see that the Hindu has emphatically disapproved of the appointment of Mr. Winterbotham as a Special Commissioner to inquire into the cause of the Mappila outbreak. It says that Mr. Winterbotham has requested the District Munsifs of Ernad and Walavanad taluks to furnish him with a list of melcharth suits filed in their courts within the last three years and has further asked the sub-registrars of these taluks to send him a list of melcharths registered in their offices. If it is the intention of Mr. Winterbotham to connect evictions and melcharths with Mappila outbreak, it is impossible to realise its object by getting a list of melcharts from these two taluks alone. The article says that, considering the nature of Mr. Winterbotham's inquiry, one is inclined to suppose that his commission will not only be partial but will also terminate in a farce like that of Mr. Logan's.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th May, says that the king of Corea has not only taken a loan from the Russian Government, but has also asked the aid of Russian troops for the protection of his palace; but the Japanese and Chinese Governments object to this arrangement. There is therefore, thinks the paper, every likelihood of a war in Corea.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 4th, 1896.

The king of Corea asking the aid of the Russians.

2. In an article regarding the assassination of the Shah of Persia, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 4th May, states that there is a marked change in the aspect of political affairs. At present it is possible that, should Russia wish, it would not be difficult for her to stir up trouble between the sons of the murdered Shah and to create a civil war that would result in the invasion of Persia by Russia in the guise of a peace-maker and in the permanent occupation by that power of the northern part of the country. However the future fate of Persia and a peaceful succession to the throne depend much on the attitude of the French and British ministers at Teheran. If they act with concord and sincerety the heir-apparent of the murdered Shah, who is said to be on his way to Russia to be present at the coronation of the Czar, will inherit the throne unopposed, but it is not likely that Russia will let the present opportunity slip without profiting thereby. England might possibly acquiesce in the partition of Persia on the understanding that the southern provinces are handed over to her, but she would surely resist by force of arms any attempt on the part of Russia to occupy the whole country.

3. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 29th April, complains that theft and robbery are committed with impunity in the village of Sirupakkam in Vriddhachalam taluk, and that there is no police to help the people. The correspondent requests the authorities to post in the said village an armed constable on beat at night.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Apl. 29th, 1896.

Necessity for police aid in the village of Sirupakkam in Vriddhachalam taluk.

4. The Lokopakari, of the 10th May, reports that the District Collector of Tinnevelly has issued a circular to all the magistrates of the district directing them to refer all cases preferred against the police executives to the Superintendent of Police before they inquire into the matter. The paper strongly protests against such a circular on the score that the Collector is not empowered to issue it to the magistrates, and requests Government to have the circular cancelled on the ground that, while increasing the mischief of the police, it will greatly contribute to the hardship of the people. The paper also makes allusion to the question put on that subject at the last meeting of the Legislative Council and the ignorance pleaded by Government in respect of the same and its promise to do the needful on due inquiry.

Lokopakari, Madras, May 10th, 1896.

Advisability of cancelling the circular passed by the District Collector of Tinnevelly.

5. The Hindujanasamskarini, for April, remarks that the officers in the Police department of the Madras Presidency are incompetent. It observes that as the majority of them are not resourceful, intelligent, or honest, the safety of the subjects is endangered in many cases, and it requests the Government to redress the grievance.

Hindu-janasamskarini, Madras, Apl. 1896.

The Madras Police.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 2nd, 1896.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 2nd May, complains of the inefficiency and iniquities of the Malabar police. It appears that the Malabar police, instead of keeping the K.Ds. aloof and under strict surveillance and watching their movements, move closely with them and keep them under their control and make them commit various depredations. The police are also alleged to receive stolen properties. As the superior officers of the department, knowingly or otherwise, support their subordinates in their misdoings, the latter are not given an occasion to understand the good or evil that might result from their actions. The head constables have very responsible functions to perform, and as the present incumbents are generally men who are unable to realise the responsibility and who have risen from the post of constables, better men on higher salaries should be appointed whenever opportunity occurs. The department cannot until then be expected to improve.

The inefficiency of the Malabar Police.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May. 6th, 1896.

7. A correspondent in the Malyalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th May, writes that the Shoranur police have now begun to concoct abkári cases like the local abkári officers. It appears that a cartman in the Cochin State was arrested by a constable who bore a grudge against him when the former had gone for the Chinakkaltur temple festival. The constable, who was on duty that day, took him to the police station and wrote in the police register book that the accused was arrested on the frontier while carrying arrack and let him go on bail. Subsequently he was charged before the magistrate in whose court the case is now pending. The correspondent adds that the constables of Shoranur had been working in that station for the last eight or nine years and sarcastically remarks that the discretion of the authorities who think that it is beneficial to keep police officers long in one place is really admirable.

Complaint against the Shoranur Police.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Apl. 22nd, 1896.

8. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 22nd April, complains with reference to the order passed by the High Court authorities, intended to give pensioners, officials thrown out of appointment, vakils, &c., the benefit of the commission prescribed for inspecting, surveying, preparing plans, taking deposition of witnesses, &c., regarding lands under litigation in a District Munsif's Court, that the district munsifs send their own servants or some school boys for such kinds of work, who not only prove themselves to be unequal to the task, but often behave in a way unbecoming the dignity of the office for which they are nominated. The correspondent thinks it advisable that such duties should be entrusted to respectable men, such as the officials of the court rather than school boys who may happen to be the favourites of the district munsifs.

A suggestion to the High Court authorities.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apl. 30th, 1896.

9. The Lokopakari, of the 30th April, referring to the remark of the Chief Justice Mr. Russel—"The opinion of ten judges is not superior to that of ten jurors, and justice is administered only in consequence of the jury system," which was seconded by Mr. Rosebury, thinks it desirable that the trial by jury should be brought into force in many other places in India, as in a country like India, where the judges are foreigners, justice would suffer much if administered without the help of a jury.

Necessity for the jury system.

10. The same paper complains that Mr. Todhunter, the Deputy Registrar of the High Court, has fined a Mussalman peon one rupee without taking into consideration the fact that he is a servant on a salary of Rs. 7 only, and that it is unjust to impose so heavy a fine on him for the sin of his having put on dirty clothes.

The Deputy Registrar of the High Court.

11. The Manoharan, of the 1st May, alluding to a certain case disposed by the Bombay Sessions Court, wherein a European, who was charged with the offence of murder, was acquitted, remarks that in the case of European offenders the judges take a lenient view of the case, and the jury which, somehow or other, is made to consist of Europeans, pass a verdict of "not guilty," and the offender is thus discharged; but if a Hindu be accused of a similar offence, he is severely dealt with, although the law is same to all Her Majesty's subjects. The paper asks how under such a glaring miscarriage of justice people can believe the statement of Government that it is just and impartial towards its subjects.

MANOHARAN, Madras, May 1st, 1896.

Miscarriage of justice in case of European offenders.

12. The Hindujanasamskarini, for April, remarks that the subordination of the Stationary Magistrates to the District Magistrates is productive of much evil. It observes that in many districts the District Collectors and the Police Superintendents are related to each other, and that if the persons charged by the police are not convicted, the Police Superintendent influences the District Magistrate and gets the Stationary Magistrate transferred from place to place. The paper believes that justice would be better administered if the Sub-Magistrates be placed under the control of the Madras High Court.

HINDU-JANASAMSKARINI, Madras, Apl. 1896.

Stationary Magistrates.

(d) Education.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th April, commenting on the evils caused by the frequent transfer of teachers of village schools, regrets to report that the Sub-Assistant Inspector of Schools has transferred the whole staff of teachers of the Tiruppullanisaragam village school in the district of Madura and advises the authorities against such transfer.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apl. 28th, 1896.

An advice to the Educational authorities.

(e) Local and Municipal.

14. The Lokopakari, of the 20th April, after describing the circumstances under which the road-cess was imposed on the people, says that Government utilises this fund for purposes of its own and not in improving the condition of the roads and in other purposes conducive to the benefit of the villagers. The paper further says that the members of district boards sometimes utilise this fund in constructing roads, opening hospitals, sinking wells, &c., in towns and do not think of villages. The paper concludes with the remark that it should be the bounden duty of every member of the district board to see, in future, that the road-cess is used for the purpose for which it was intended as most villages stand in need of improvement.

A complaint that the road cess is not utilised for the purpose for which it was intended.

15. The Vettikkodiyan, of the 25th April, complains that the Madras Municipality remetals only such public roads as the Mount Road, Beach Road and so forth, and not the ordinary roads, except once in the way. The paper says that many of the roads in the town of Madras are in so wretched a condition that it is a cruelty to drive beasts over them, and advises the municipality to avail itself of the present summer season for improving the bad condition of roads.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Apl. 25th, 1896.

An advice to the Madras Municipality.

16. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 29th April, complains that that portion of the Salem frontier road proceeding from Cuddalore, which extends from the 51st to the 63rd mile, is in a wretched condition hardly fit for traffic and consequently people and carts sustain injuries. The correspondent requests the authorities concerned to have the road metalled as early as possible.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Apl. 29th, 1896.

Advisability of repairing a certain portion of the Salem frontier road.

17. A correspondent to the same paper remarks that the present nature of scavenging in the village of Sirupakkam in Vriddhachalam taluk is unsatisfactory, and that the sanction of a conservancy cart will tend to improve the sanitation of the place.

Necessity for a conservancy cart in the village of Sirupakkam in Vriddhachalam taluk.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 1st, 1896.

18. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 1st May, in consideration of the extremely busy nature of the 4th and 5th wards of the town of Coimbatore on account of the bazaars and markets located therein, advises the municipal authorities to construct a latrine in that place, as its absence makes people commit nuisance indiscriminately in public places.

Expediency of constructing a latrine in the 4th and 5th wards of the town of Coimbatore.

HINDU-JANASAMSKARINI, Madras, Apl. 1896.

19. The Hindujanasamskarini, for April, remarks that no great works are undertaken by the Local Fund Boards to warrant their employing engineers, and that a large amount of useless expenditure might be saved by appointing B.C.E. degree men from the Madras Civil Engineering College. It observes that in each district the engineer has no other work to do than to look after the roads, and that those roads are simply wretched. It adds that if the salaries of the engineers were reduced, the condition of the roads might be improved with the saving thereby effected, the surplus being utilised for other purposes.

Local Fund Engineers.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 6th, 1896.

20. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th May, enters a strong protest against the contemplated abolition of the municipal branch hospital at Chalil of the Tellicherry municipality which is resorted to by many poor patients and which is now maintained at a very little cost. The correspondent adds that the sanitation of the place, which is naturally very dirty and unhealthy, is now properly attended to by the authorities owing to the existence of this hospital; but in case it is abolished the correspondent fears that matters will go from bad to worse.

Protesting against the abolition of the branch hospital at Chalil, Tellicherry municipality.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 6th, 1896.

21. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 6th May, condemns the recent decision of Government to abolish five local fund hospitals in Malabar. The article disapproves of the proposal of Government to make use of the savings thus effected for road-works in that district. The roads in Malabar are said to be repaired under the A-system of contract which has been repeatedly condemned by the public and even by some of the members of the district board, and any proposal to raise the annual allotment, which is now recklessly expended under this system by means of funds saved by the abolition of useful and popular institutions, is really a matter to be deplored. If the Government is determined to provide funds for other matters even at the expense of these hospitals, it will be advisable on its part to compare the number of patients that attend the several hospitals and then to abolish those that are less resorted to by the people.

Condemning the decision of Government to abolish certain Local Fund hospitals in Malabar.

In referring to the same subject a leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 9th May, says that it is a great pity that the Government has decided to abolish these hospitals which are annually resorted to by 6,000 to 8,000 poor patients. It is rumoured that as there are no funds for the construction of roads in Pandicad, Chembrasseri and other places where Mappila outbreaks frequently occur, the savings effected by the abolition of these hospitals are to be expended for that purpose. It is true that good roads are very badly required in these places, and that the outbreaks can be greatly checked by the construction of the roads; but as this is a matter of Imperial interest it is not fair to meet the expenses for that connection from local funds, and that by abolishing hospitals without meeting the same from the imperial funds. The abolition of these hospitals is a public grievance, and it is therefore hoped that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will reconsider the matter.

22. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 9th May, while reviewing the budget estimates of the municipalities of Palghat, Tellicherry and Cannanore, gives the purports of the budgets and the orders of the Government thereon. The article says that although it agrees with the opinion of Government on most of the matters stated in the budgets, yet it cannot support the view taken by Government in respect of the educational side of the budget relating to Tellicherry municipality. The municipal council of Tellicherry recommended that the Hindu and Mappila schools on salary result system should be converted into results grant schools and the Government approved of the proposal as far as the Hindu schools were concerned. It was very unwise on the part of the council to have acted thus in the matter of education, for as it will reduce the income of the teachers of these schools, they will be disinclined to start schools and consequently the primary education will suffer. The council also recommended an increase to the salary of the Malayalam munshi of the Brennen college and the teachers of the Tiruvangad Lower Secondary school, but the Government disallowed it. It will be seen from the chairman's report that the income of the Tiruvangad school is not wholly required for its support. Under the circumstances the refusal of the Government to increase the salaries of the teachers of that school is not proper.

Education in Tellicherry Municipality.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 9th, 1896.

23. Referring to the application of Messrs. Arbuthnot and Company to the Resident in Mysore requesting permission to construct a tramway line from the Bangalore Railway Station to the City, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 11th May, says the Resident has promised to grant the request subject to the approval of the Civil and Military station municipality. Considering the heavy rate of hire charged by jutkawallas and other inconveniences it would be an act of grace on the part of the Civil and Military station municipality to grant the permission sought for by the firm.

Proposed tramway line in Bangalore.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, May 11th, 1896.

24. In inserting a long article regarding the scavengers' tax which has been imposed on the inhabitants of Bangalore from 1st April 1896 for the purpose of covering the sanitary expenses of the Civil and Military station, the same paper, after strongly criticising the action of the municipal authorities in this respect, states that the tax bears hardly upon the inhabitants in general and upon the poorer classes in particular who are groaning under the pressure of the heavy taxes already imposed.

Scavengers' tax in Bangalore.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

25. The Lokopakari, of the 30th April, writes as follows on the Madras land revenue settlement:—Mr. Rogers, late of the Bombay Civil Service, had for some time past been writing in India, a journal published in England, severely criticising the measures connected with the Madras land revenue settlement. The matter seems to have drawn the attention of the Secretary of State, who called on the Madras Government for a reply to the remarks of Mr. Rogers. The Madras Government in its turn delegated the work to the Board of Revenue whose members, after long delay, have submitted reply. That reply, the paper is sorry to observe, is extremely unsatisfactory. The members of the Board of Revenue call in question the competency of Mr. Rogers to pronounce an opinion on the operations of the Madras land settlement. The absurdity of such an observation is patent. The members of the Board apparently forget that outsiders are often better judges of their doings than themselves. One argument brought forward by Mr. Rogers against the Madras settlement is that distraint and sale of the moveable and immoveable property of the cultivators for arrears of land revenue have been exceedingly heavy. The Board of Revenue questioned the correctness of the figures adduced by Mr. Rogers who had drawn them from the statements supplied by the Board. So, for incorrectness of the figures adduced, if there be any, the Board of Revenue is responsible. Mr. Rogers accuses the Madras Settlement Department of irregular and arbitrary assessment. There is nothing in the reply of the Board to disprove this. The charge brought forward by Mr. Rogers that in this Presidency even the ryots' agricultural cattle are sold for land revenue is not wholly denied by the Board. All that the Board says is that such sales are not common.

Reflections on the remarks of Mr. Alexander Rogers on the Madras land revenue settlement.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apl. 30th, 1896.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 2nd, 1896.

A curious revenue circular issued by the Tahsildar of Wynaad.

26. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 2nd May, says that, in pursuance of the Board's Proceedings, No. 33, dated 3rd March 1896, the Tahsildar of Wynaad has published a revenue circular No. 10 of 1896 to the effect that applications made by the pattadars for the remission of assessments imposed on cultivable lands in consequence of such lands not being cultivated will not in future be complied with unless the pattadars express their willingness in writing to assign their janmam rights to Government so as to enable Government to cause such lands to be cultivated at its discretion. It is unlikely that any landlord will ever think of leaving his arable lands uncultivated. In Wynaad it is generally very difficult to get men to cultivate lands, and consequently the landlord very seldom gets a rent which is double the quantity of the seed sown. When, in cases in which the owners are unable to cultivate the lands in time, applications are made for remissions, it is not fair on the part of the authorities to say that the owners should transfer the lands to Government if they cannot pay the assessment. The editor says that, as it is for the purpose of cultivating such lands that Government also takes them, it should buy them by paying adequate compensation instead of taking possession of them in an unfair manner.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, May 4th, 1896.

Malabar settlement.

27. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 4th May, says that the replies given to questions put in the last meeting of the Legislative Council in connection with Malabar affairs will clearly show that the Government is ignorant of the actual condition of that country and it is owing to this that the people are put to various hardships. As the inquiries regarding the Mappila outbreak had not been completed at the time when the questions were put, the people could not possibly take exception to the replies given thereto. If the Government is at present convinced that there is no objection in removing the head-quarters of the Wynaad taluk from Manantoddy to Vayitri no permanent injury will be done to the people thereby, for the Government can remove the head-quarters again to that place if it appear to them at another time that they committed a mistake. It is to the replies given by the Honourable Mr. Bliss in connection with the Malabar settlement question that the people have to take exception. Mr. Bliss stated that the present land revenue of 19 lakhs of rupees levied in Malabar was very light, that the district was capable of paying 90 lakhs and that the Government would certainly take its legitimate share. People are greatly alarmed at this statement. What Mr. Bliss gave expression to was perhaps the opinion formed from the misrepresentations of his subordinates. It is not from any experience of that district that he expressed this opinion, nor has he taken the necessary steps to ascertain the true condition of the country.

Adverting to the same subject, a leader in the Manorama, of the 11th May, refers to the question put by the Honourable Mr. Sankaran Nair regarding the petition which was submitted to the Secretary of State by the landlords of Wynaad taluk, making certain serious allegations against the settlement officers and also to the replies given thereto. The Government evaded the question by saying that the allegations contained in the petition were completely unfounded. If that be so, the Government ought to have called upon the petitioners to prove their statements, and, in the event of their failing to do so, to have prosecuted them so as to vindicate the character of the officials concerned. The article, after criticising at great length the Board's Proceedings, No. 33, dated 3rd March 1896, regarding the assignment to Government of lands for which remission of assessment had been applied, begs His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock not to decide the Malabar settlement matters with reference exclusively to the records and the words of His Excellency's Councillors and subordinates.

(h) Railways.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 25th April, fails to see the reason why the Madras Railway Company charges for Kathivakkam, a distance of ten miles from Madras, at the rate of 13, 7 and 1¾ annas for the first, second and third classes respectively, while it charges for Ambatur, also a distance of ten miles, at the rate of 10, 5 and 1¾ annas for the first, second and third classes respectively. The paper says that the scale of fare prescribed by the Madras Railway Company seems to be exorbitant when compared with that of the South Indian Railway Company as the latter charges for St. Thomas' Mount, also a distance of ten miles, at the rate of 8, 2¾ and 1½ annas for the first, second and third classes respectively.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Apl. 25th, 1896.

A remark that the rate of fare in the Madras Railway Company is exorbitant.

29. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 9th May, expresses satisfaction that the Agents of the Madras and South Indian Railways are introducing measures of reform on their lines for the amelioration of the condition of third-class passengers; but what they now propose to do does not meet all the requirements. Anybody who has travelled on Indian railways must have often seen the third-class passengers being literally shoved into compartments and huddled together over and above the maximum number permitted in a carriage. Something also might be done to afford third-class passengers latrine accommodation in their carriages.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, May 9th, 1896.

The grievances of third-class railway passengers.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

30. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 6th May, refers to the oppression of abkári officers in Malabar. The article says that the majority of the cases charged by the abkári officers are concocted and the magistrates, whose desire is to get promotion by gaining the good-will of their superiors, are ready to convict the offenders in such cases even on the slightest evidence. The abkári officers are tempted to concoct cases in such large numbers and secure conviction by the present system of giving rewards and it is therefore suggested that it should be abolished.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May. 6th, 1896.

Oppression of the abkári officers.

(k) General.

31. The Lokopakari, of the 30th April, complains that the service of a single postal peon does not meet the requirements of Chinna (Little) Conjeeveram, inasmuch as it contains about 500 houses and urgent letters reach the parties late in the evening, and hopes that an additional peon will be entertained as prayed for in the mahjar prepared by the inhabitants of that place.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apl. 30th, 1896.

A suggestion to the postal authorities.

32. The same paper regrets to observe that the operations of this society helped by the police are limited only to the dumb creatures that enter the precincts of the town of Madras and are not extended to those oppressed in the mofussil. Asses go in for the most merciless treatment at the hands of certain classes of people. Single bullocks yoked to carriages likewise suffer much. It would be mercy to relieve the sufferings of these poor creatures.

A suggestion to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

33. Regarding an accident which occurred on the 4th instant on the Triplicane tramway line by reason of a jutka coming in contact with the tramway car and hurting conductor Alfred Thompson, who fell down from the foot-board of the car, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 11th May, remarks that as jutkas and other carriages are generally in the habit of passing over the line freely, it is necessary that Government should issue an order regulating the traffic in this behalf.

III.—Legislation.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 5th, 1896.

A suggestion to amend Act II of 1864.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th May, complains that a certain revenue inspector in the district of Tanjore distrained for arrears of kist due by a certain temple such articles of property as an idol of the temple, bell, and brass utensils used in performing the pujai. The paper says that the distraining officials justify their act by putting a wrong interpretation on Act II of 1864, and thus cause much inconvenience. The paper suggests the advisability of so amending the Act as to make it specify what kinds of moveable property may be distrained and what not even as Government has excluded the agricultural implements of the cultivators from the operation of the said Act.

Alhami, Madras, May 3rd, 1896.

Suggesting to amend the Qazis Act.

35. In inviting the attention of Government to the following subject, the Alhami, of the 3rd May, states that it is well known that Qazi Moulvi Muhammad Abd-ullah Sahib always abides by the law and does not abuse his power in cases of divorce, whereas other ignorant and illiterate persons who have been permitted to act as qazis as a rule are in the habit of abusing this indulgence and of acting against the law. Qazi Muhammad Mahmud Sahib, of Black Town, who belongs to the Shafi school, is well known as unjustly interfering in divorce cases without regard to the school to which the party concerned belongs, and without making due inquiry he passes illegal decisions. In short, he has by his illegal procedure ruined many a family. Under these circumstances the Alhami solicits Government to regulate the procedure of qazis in such cases and to amend the Qazis Act in such a way as to check abuses in future.

IV.—Native States.

Mysore Desabhimani, Bangalore, May 3rd, 1896.

The intended alliance between the Mysore royal family and that of the Thakur Sahib of Mourvi.

36. The Mysore Deshabhimani, of the 3rd May, thinks that the present visit of the Thakur Sahib of Mourvi to Mysore is not without significance. It thinks that the Thakur Sahib has been invited by the diwan to negotiate an alliance between the First Princess of Mysore and a son of the Thakur Sahib. This alliance, says the editor, is not at all desirable, inasmuch as the prince is not a very strong and healthy man, and there is no guarantee that his children will succeed to the throne, or that he will not marry other wives. Moreover the state of Mourvi is too small and cannot be considered as in any way equal to that of Mysore. Under these circumstances the paper thinks that the diwan will not be true to his salt if he should persuade the princess to sacrifice herself to this alliance.

Malayala Manorama, Kottayam, May. 2nd, 1896.

Cochin Sirkar not taking notice of the irregularities prevailing in the Trichur Zillah Court.

37. A correspondent in the Malayala Manorama, of the 2nd May, writes to the effect that when Mr. Krishna Menon, one of the judges of the Appellate Court, Cochin, inspected the Zillah Court, Trichur, he found that Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar, the judge of that court, had pronounced decisions in several cases without writing judgment, and that in some cases a clerk had been made to write the judgment. When the clerk was examined he said that some of the judgments found in his handwriting were dictated by the judge and written by him while the others were written by him at the direction of the judge that the decision should be in favour of such and such a party. Now there is a talk that as Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar is a favourite of the raja, the diwan and the judges of the Appellate Court have not the courage to do anything in the matter, and so keep quiet. It is impossible to say how far this is true. If it is true it is a pity that the authorities sleep over the matter. It is to be supposed that these matters have not reached the ears of Mr. Thomson, the British Resident. If it has, he would not have kept quiet like the above officials.

38. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 1st May, says that in making some of the important appointments in the Cochin State very recently the Sirkar has overlooked the claims of certain competent officials of long service. The article hopes that as great injustice has been done to these officials Mr. Thomson will ask the sirkar for an explanation.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, May 1st, 1896.

Cochin Sirkar overlooking the claims of experienced and competent officials in making appointments.

39. A correspondent in the same paper invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the insanitary condition of Kunnankulam.

Insanitary condition of Kunnankulam.

40. Another correspondent in the same paper invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the necessity of appointing a stamp vendor at Pathinettarayalam as the people of that place have now to go to Iringacoda or Thiruvanjakulam to buy stamps; each of the places is situated at a distance of 8 miles from the above-said place.

Wanted a stamp vendor at Pathinettarayalam in Cochin State.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

41. The Lokopakari, of the 30th April, writes as follows:—English papers rejoice at the savings found in the exchequer of England. Of what use is saving in England's treasury to India? The poor Hindus have to pay tax for their salt. Our cattle cannot be allowed to graze on poramboke lands without paying for it. We cannot expect justice without paying a heavy stampy duty. Duty has been imposed on cotton goods to the hardship of Indian dealers in cotton. People in villages are left uneducated because of the annual reduction of money allotted for grants-in-aid to rural teachers. The number of boys now without education exceeds that of those who now receive the benefit of education. Local fund hospitals are closed owing to financial pressure. Even the promises of Government remain unfulfilled in certain cases. The sufferings of the agricultural classes are the heaviest indeed. Industrial schools exist only in mere works. The low-paid police constable barks at men like a hunting dog. One and the same officer is required to discharge a number of functions owing to want of funds. The Indian sepoy fights in country after country for the honour of England. The British Government thriftlessly spends the money secured in India's treasury for the purpose of waging war in different parts of the world with a view to extend the scope of England's commerce. When there is a saving in England's treasury it is but just and proper that England should refund what she has taken from the Indian treasury. Englishmen never pay heed to the representations made by the people of India in respect of money. It is believed that some good may result from the Royal Commission recently formed, and that Mr. Dadhabai Naoroji will spare no pains in this direction. It is only when the exertions of this gentleman are crowned with success that India may enjoy prosperity and England honour. Are not those Englishmen selfish who delight at the large savings in England's treasury caused by money taken from India, by money recovered in the shape of penalty from the people of India and by money amassed by the English merchants?

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apl. 30th, 1896.

Remarks on the savings found in the treasury of the Government of England.

42. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th May, says:—Her Majesty the Queen-Empress entertained Prince Nasrulla Khan at a cost of £21,000 paid out of the Indian treasury. In return she is to receive from the Amir presents to the value of £130,000. Will Her Majesty, with her usual interest in her Indian subjects—of which we witnessed a rehearsal only the other day at the Anjuman—pay back to the Indian treasury the aforesaid £21,000 now that she is in a position to do so with the Amir's £130,000 in jewels and things?

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, May 11th, 1896.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th May, says:—It is very significant that such a paper as the Times and such a writer as Dr. W. W. Hunter should plainly admit that the burden of taxation on the Indian people has greatly increased. The following might have found utterance in the speech of a congress orator:—"Sir James Westland has achieved solvency for Indian finance, yet, in spite of the good gifts of fortune, which he is first to acknowledge, that solvency has been achieved by continuous and heavy additions to the burdens of the people." If Mr. Wacha or Surendranath Banerjia had said this, it would be stigmatised as rank disloyalty.

The financial condition of India.

44. The same paper says:—The Amrita Bazaar Patrika understands that Rs. 25,000 have been sanctioned this year for punkah-pulling for British soldiers stationed at Allahabad, Benares and Dinapur. Proportionate amounts must have been sanctioned for the same purpose for soldiers stationed at other stations. This reminds us of the treatment that is being accorded to the people suffering from water-famine. So here we are confronted with the question of "money" and "no money." Government has no money to supply the people with water (when the whole province is suffering from water-famine) though they have been paying a special tax for it; but it has ample funds to meet the comforts of a few thousand soldiers.

Government spending on luxuries what it grudges to spend on necessaries.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 6th, 1896.

45. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 6th May, says that it cannot be said that the Mappila outbreak has wholly subsided. It is rumoured that a party of Mappilas has retired to Nellialam near Gudalur.

Rumoured retirement of a party of Mappila rebels.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 6th, 1896.

46. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 6th May, referring to the hardships caused to the vaccinators by the Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination in Malabar, says that if the vaccinators do not attend to the private wants of the Deputy Inspectors when the latter go on circuit to the amsams, they are very heavily fined, the fines sometimes exceeding their pay. The affairs in Tellicherry circle are said to be intolerable.

The hardships of vaccinators.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Lokabandu, of the 21st May, speaking of Transvaal, says that many of the European powers do not cherish good feelings towards the British nation, because they are jealous of the British conquests, and that they would lose even the little friendly feeling they have at present if the English fail to punish Dr. Jameson, whose procedure with regard to Transvaal was very unjust. The paper says that Mr. Kruger, the president of that place, being sensible of the conduct of the English, has wisely declined their invitation asking him to pay a visit to England.

Desirability of punishing Dr. Jameson.

Lokabandu, Madras, May 21st, 1896.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th May, contains an extract, taken from some other vernacular paper, on the subject of the annexation of Kafiristan. The following is a brief abstract of it:—The Amir of Afghanistan has at last annexed Kafiristan to his dominions and thus fulfilled his long-cherished desire. It is no wonder, because the Kafirs are a semi-barbarous race, quite ignorant of the use of arms. On the other hand the Amir's army is naturally a strong one and has been trained in the Western arts; besides, the Amir, by strange coincidence of circumstances, secured the help of the British Government, who have begun to annihilate those people through him. The Amir would have conquered those tribes long ago, but as they were under the protection of the British Government he could not do so.

The conquest and annexation of Kafiristan.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 25th, 1896.

By Sir Mortimer Durand's mission to Kabul this question was finally settled, the result being the British obtained possession of Chitral and the unhappy Kafirs were made over to their bitter enemies, the Mussalmans. Now the conquered people are oppressed and ill-treated by the troops of the Amir, and several of their boys and women have been brought down to the capital, and it is said, in course of time, a slave trade will commence there. This state of things is really painful.

The Amir, having learnt that different accounts of his actions have reached England, has, it seems, contributed, through Miss Hamilton, a letter to the London Times contradicting the above facts.

The British Government had declared that they would not allow the Amir to take possession of Kafiristan, but they forgot their promise when they wanted to take up Chitral. It should be seen how the British Government would get out of this charge of the breach of promise and what would it do to rescue those unhappy beings.

3. Referring to the despatch of an Indian expedition to Egypt, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 18th May, states that, with the exception of a company of Sappers and Miners, no regiment of the Madras Army has been selected for the expedition in order to admit of its gaining practical experience of active service, for want of which several of the Madras regiments have been disbanded from time to time. The Qasim-ul-Akbar requests the Commander-in-Chief to select one of the Madras Native infantry regiments for the expedition.

II.—Home Administration.

4. A correspondent to the Dravida Pandiyan, of the 9th May, complains that a certain Brahmin in Rajamannarkudi (Tanjore district) surprised two constables while they were removing cocoanuts from the trees in his garden, and that, as the Brahmin made an alarm, the constables in question took hold of him on a charge of having committed theft in regard to the said cocoanuts, and, with the help of a few other constables, conducted him to the police station and kept him in their custody till he was bailed by a vakil. The correspondent requests the authorities to adopt adequate measures to bring the constables to punishment for incriminating innocent persons with a view to screen their own crime.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1896.

Gambling in a certain village in the taluk of Tiruppattur in the district of Madura.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, complains that theft, burglary and gambling, are prevalent in the village of Kunrakkudi in Tiruppattur taluk, Madura district, and that the police abet such offences—specially gambling. He says that Superintendents of Police during their inspection of station-house offices simply see whether the constables keep their clothes and ammunition clean and never question the conduct of the constables however corrupt they may be.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 15th, 1896.

A hint to the Commissioner of Police, Madras, regarding opium-eating houses found in Madras.

6. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th May, after making a brief reference to the article contained in the Eastern Star regarding certain opium-eaters' dens in the City of Madras and the action taken by Government in response thereto for arresting the inmates of the houses in question, remarks that such opium-eating houses are found in large numbers in the City of Madras, and is unable to say whether their unmolested existence is due to the connivance or ignorance of the police. The paper asserts that it behoves the Commissioner to be on the alert to bring such cases to the notice of the authorities.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, May 16th, 1896.

Complaints against jutka-wallahs in the mofussil.

7. The Jananukulan, of the 16th May, complains that jutka-wallahs in the mofussil take in more than four passengers, use obscene and unbecoming language towards the people, indulge in rash driving, and, at the place of destination, demand a higher rate of fare than what was originally contracted for and thus worry the people. The paper further complains that constables take bribes and overlook such grave irregularities. The paper requests the authorities to pay heed to the matter here complained of and do the needful.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 15th, 1896

Police constables attacking magistrates.

8. The Sasilekha, of the 15th May, expresses surprise at hearing of the attempt by police constables to attack the Sub-Magistrate of Yadiki, Anantapur district. It hears that the police have conceived a dislike for the magistrate because he investigates their cases very carefully without merely relying on their statements. It further hears that the said parts of the Anantapur district are infested with thieves and badmashes, and that a former magistrate had also had a similiar encounter. It argues from the fact of a head constable attempting to attack a magistrate that the British rule is no better than a nawab's, and considers it necessary that the Collector of the district should carefully investigate into this matter and duly punish the impudent constables.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1896.

Remarks on the Malabar police.

9. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd May, says that although the object of Government in establishing the Police department is to ensure security of person and property yet, as in enlisting persons in the department the authorities consider only the physical and not their educational qualifications and respectability, the department has greatly deteriorated and the object contemplated by Government is not fully achieved. The article dwells at some length upon the vagaries of the police and refers to the Calicut torture case, the Ferok currency note case and the Ponnáni treasury theft case as matters reflecting great discredit upon the Malabar police. The opinion is expressed that, if the appointments in the Police department, except the Calicut reserve and the Máláppuram punitive police, are made from among men possessing university qualifications, the stigma now attached to the Police department will be removed to a great extent and the fear and annoyance to which the people are put by the police will be a thing of the past.

(b) Courts.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, speaking of heavy files of suits in munsifs' and sub-courts remarks that judges have hardly time to give the cases before them a patient hearing, and suggests that, as in small cause cases there is no remedy of appeal, all cases involving more than 300 rupees of property be tried as original.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1896.

A suggestion to open courts of appeal in districts in respect of suits of small causes.

11. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th May, announcing that Mr. M. O. Parthasarathy Aiyangar, M.A. and M.L., has been appointed to act as Chief Judge in the Court of Small Causes, and that the third bench of the said court is now vacant, says that it is desirable that Mr. C. G. Kuppusami Aiyar should be nominated for the vacant post.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, May 16th, 1896.

Desirability of appointing Mr. C. G. Kuppusami Aiyar as Third Judge of the Court of Small Causes, Madras.

12. The Lokopakari, of the 20th May, remarks that persons feel reluctant to serve as jurors for the reason that during the Sessions the High Court authorities simply require them to present themselves before the court on certain days and keep them waiting all the day long without making any use of their presence and thus worry them.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 20th, 1896.

A remark on the High Court authorities regarding jurors.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 13th, 1896.

Remarks on the circuit of sub-magistrates.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 25th, 1896.

Head accountants in taluk offices to be empowered with magisterial functions.

15. Referring to the vacancy in the Madras Court of Small Causes, the Alhami, of the 17th May, observes that as no Muhammadan has up to this time been appointed as a judge of that court, it is advisable that the vacancy should be filled by the appointment of a duly-qualified Muhammadan, as such an act of grace and encouragement on the part of Government will fill the hearts of the Muhammadan community with gratitude and induce Muhammadan youths to seek after higher education with more eagerness than they now do.

ALHAMI, Madras, May 17th, 1896.

Vacancy in the Madras Court of Small Causes.

16. Referring to the sentence of three months' imprisonment recently passed on Baday Khan, a jutka-driver, on charge of carelessly leaving his jutka and pony and thereby causing grievous hurt to a ticket collector of a tram car, the same paper considers the sentence too severe and Sentence of imprisonment passed on a jutka-driver.

remarks that the accident is due to the negligence of the police, who should, as a rule, prevent jutkas from approaching or standing close to tramway lines, to the tram car driver who did not stop his car when he saw the jutka standing too close to the line, and also to the ticket collector who stood on the foot-board carelessly when the car was in motion.

DRAVIDA PANDIYAN, Madras, May 16th, 1896.

Expediency of encouraging primary education in Southern India.

17. The Dravida Pandiyan, of the 16th May, urges on the educational authorities, to encourage primary education which is declining, as is shown by the decrease in the total amount of grants given year after year, by offering liberal grants and by not being strict in the observance of the rules relating to school furniture, the normal training of teachers, &c., of the primary schools.

ALHAMI, Madras, May 17th, 1896.

Female education.

18. Referring to certain scholarships recently created by Government for the benefit of Hindu and Muhammadan girls, the Alhami, of the 17th May, remarks that although several useful measures have been adopted by Government to encourage female education amongst Muhammadans in general, yet it is matter for great regret that female education has not as yet satisfactorily advanced in Muhammadan circles.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, May 9th, 1896.

A complaint against the Madras Municipality that it never puts up red light when it deposits road materials in quarters occupied by the natives.

19. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 9th May, complains that the Madras municipal authorities when they deposit road materials in streets put up red light to caution the public of the danger only in those parts that are frequented by Europeans, while they never put up such warnings in those parts passed by the natives. The paper cites the street known as "new street" near Muthialpet as an instance in point, and remarks that failure to warn the public of the danger caused by the deposit of road materials on either side of the road exposes both carts and the people to serious injury.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 15th, 1896.

Certain suggestions to the Kumbakónam Muncipality.

20. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 15th May, advises the Kumbakónam Municipality to put up a tower clock in the town, to secure water pump for purifying the several tanks in the town, to get the wretched condition of a certain well in Sri Kumbeswarar temple repaired, to adopt measures for rendering sufficient medical aid to aliens left destitute in the town, and to request the postal authorities to open a branch post office in the building now occupied by the office of the registrar of births and deaths.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, May 18th, 1896.

A complaint against the Negapatam Municipality regarding a certain road.

21. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 18th May, reports that the municipality of Negapatam while remetalling the east road near Sadayappar koil in Negapatam raised its level in the centre and sloped it on its sides to such an extent that easy access to the houses on either side of the road is being greatly obstructed. He adds that both people and carts sustain injury by reason of the said alteration, and requests the municipality to attend to it.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 19th, 1896.

An advice to the Palamcottah Municipality to use covered conservancy carts.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th May, advises the Palamcottah Municipality to use covered conservancy carts for carrying night soil rather than open carts which render atmosphere noxious and insanitary.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 20th, 1896.

Mr. Varada Rao's administration of the Calicut Municipality.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th May, referring to the transfer of Mr. Varada Rao as Assistant to the Collector of South Arcot, says that, as the chairman of the Calicut Municipality, he was a failure, and has not done anything to deserve recognition at the hands of the citizens. He was very unpopular both among the councillors and the people, and the efforts he made in preventing the renomination of the councillors who had the courage of their conviction to act reasonably and justly lowered him in the estimation of the public. The article, after dwelling at some length on the matter, disapproves of the idea of appointing a paid chairman on the ground of the financial embarrassment of the municipality, and recommends that, as there are men among the councillors competent and willing to discharge the functions of the chairman, one from among them should be appointed to the post rendered vacant by the transfer of Mr. Varada Rao.

A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 18th May, referring to the same subject, says that, although Mr. Varada Rao has to a certain extent improved the administration of the municipality, yet, as he did several things against the wishes and welfare of the people, his administration was disliked by them. In order to carry out the views of Mr. Varada Rao, whether right or wrong, he made representations to Government which were quite contrary to the actual state of affairs, and his administration reports for the past and present years will, it is remarked, corroborate this statement. The people were alarmed at the report that he was again recommended by the Collector to be appointed as chairman, but as the government of Sir Arthur Havelock has, unlike that of Lord Wenlock in such matters, cared for public opinion and transferred Mr. Varado Rao, the people of Calicut eulogise His Excellency very much.

Sanitary Commissioner to put a stop to the burying of dead bodies in Tellicherry Municipality.

24. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 16th May, invites the attention of the Sanitary Commissioner to the necessity of putting a stop to the practice of burying dead bodies in the compounds of houses situated at Chalil in the Tellicherry Municipality. The correspondent adds that the majority of the inhabitants of Chalil are suffering from various kinds of diseases, and he attributes these diseases to the use of the water drawn from wells near which dead bodies are buried. It appears that in some of the compounds twenty and twenty-five dead bodies have been buried.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 16th, 1896.

The administration of the Calicut Municipality under Mr. Varada Rao.

25. Referring to the transfer of Mr. Varada Rao, Assistant to the Collector of Malabar and Chairman of the Calicut Municipality, a paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd May, says that he is a very able and upright official and that it was through his indefatigable energy and exertions that the Calicut Municipality, which was in a deplorable condition when he took charge of the office of chairman, was improved and brought to the present satisfactory state.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1896.

Remarks on the abolition of the Local Fund hospitals in Malabar.

26. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th May, says that at the last meeting of the Malabar District Board it was resolved that, out of the five hospitals proposed to be abolished, the hospitals at Angadipuram and Quilandi should be retained. The article strongly recommends the retention of the Angadipuram hospital in consideration of the large number of patients resorting to it and of the long distance which the patients would have to travel to be at the hospitals in the neighbouring taluks, but remarks that it cannot support the resolution of the board to maintain a hospital at Quilandi even by abolishing the one at Nadapuram. If funds are not sufficient to meet the increased expenditure under Public Works, the Government and the board ought to find some other means. The editor, therefore, hopes that at any rate the authorities will not ignore the wants of the people of Alattur, Vaniyankulam and Kuthaparamba.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 25th, 1896.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

ARIYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, May 8th, 1896.

Settlement in the taluk of Wynaad.

27. The Ariya Jana Priyan, of the 8th May, says that the report prepared in response to the question put by the Hon'ble C. Sankaran Nair as to the extent of lands put up at public auction in the taluk of Wynaad during the six years prior to settlement and during the six years subsequent to settlement, shows that the number of persons whose lands were sold in auction was 180 during the six years prior to settlement and 2,291 during the six years subsequent to settlement, Government having purchased lands belonging to 18 persons during the first period and those of 1,533 persons during the second period, making a total of 9,912 acres at an aggregate cost of Rs. 2,142 at 4 or 5 annas per acre. The paper asserts that the people would not have allowed the lands to be sold to Government at such a low rate if agriculture in Wynaad had been a source of profit to them, and doubts the propriety of the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss that the revenue in Wynaad should be enhanced from 19 to 90 lakhs. The paper says in conclusion that in the districts of Godavari, Tanjore and Malabar the rates of settlement and water-cess are excessive (and consequently agriculture is abhorred by the people as a source of livelihood to them) and hopes that, sooner or later, Sir W. Wedderburn, M.P., will bring this subject of settlement in Southern India before Parliament.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 8th, 1896.

Desirability of reducing the land-tax in the Presidency of Madras.

28. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th May, writes as follows:—Mr. Rogers, M.P., complained to the Secretary of State that in the presidency of Madras large portions of land are sold in auction for arrears of kist due to its enhanced rate, and that the authorities deny the fact that the rate of assessment has been increased, and so forth. The Secretary of State has addressed the Government of India on the subject desiring it to propose some method for mitigating the severity of the revenue authorities. On the subject being referred to the local Government the Board of Revenue replied that Mr. Rogers in his remarks had displayed his ignorance of the subject he was speaking about; that the arrears of kist which induced the authorities to put up lands to auction were due to the mismanagement on the part of the revenue collectors rather than to the enhanced rate of assessment; that there was only a difference by three-quarters between the rate of assessment in the presidency of Bombay and that of Madras; and that the rate of assessment though heavy was not unbearable, and so forth. Bombay should not be compared with Madras, for in Bombay the land is not classified into nanja, punja, and so forth. Moreover, the rate of land-tax being very low, there remains in that presidency a very small tract of darisu land. In the presidency of Madras also the land-tax may be reduced so as to lessen the large area of darisu land; but Government apprehends that by such a course it would not only incur loss of revenue by lakhs, but it will also be obliged, in in cases of auction, to bid for the land itself, hence the high rate of settlement. It is to be regretted that the lengthy report of the Board of Revenue on the subject contained no answer as to the requisition of the Secretary of State regarding the measure to be adopted for mitigating the present severity of the revenue authorities. However the reduction of the land-tax is desirable as it will induce the people to till darisu lands which now remain in large areas and the conversion of darisu lands into arable fields while increasing the revenue of Government will make the chances of bringing the lands to public sale less probable.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 15th, 1896.

Revenue settlement.

29. The Sasilekha, of the 15th May, notes the statement of Mr. Rogers, a retired Collector in Bombay, to the effect that the land assessment in the Madras Presidency is heavier than in Bombay, and that as none are found to buy the lands of the ryots put up to auction for default of payment of revenue, the Government itself becomes the purchaser. The Government (of Madras) having been called upon to answer the question, referred it to the Board of Revenue, who returned a sort of answer, but could not refute Mr. Roger's statement. The paper remarks that settlements are being made at the pleasure of the Government, though there is a rule for their being made once in thirty years. It ironically adds that how satisfactorily the settlement affairs are being conducted in Godavari and Kistna is too well known to the people of those districts. It states that in the Wynaad taluk the lands sold during the six years following the last settlement for default of payment of revenue went up to 13,102 acres belonging to 2,291 ryots, whereas those sold previously to it aggregated only 3,700 acres belonging to 180 ryots, and argues upon these facts that the excess of land sold after the settlement over that sold previously being nearly 10,000 acres, it is obvious that the settlement operations proceeded without proper inquiries into the condition of the ryots or the nature of the soil. Observing that though the said 13,102 acres were sold for Rs. 23,809, the sum realised was only Rs. 10,582 and that out of the 13,102 acres sold, so many as 9,912 acres were bought by Government itself for Rs. 2,142, that is, at the rate of about 4 annas per acre. The paper remarks that one might from this fact conceive how poor the condition of the people must be in a taluk where purchasers could not be found for land even at the rate of 4 annas per acre. It opines that if Government resort to such unmerciful acts, even konji-water must be hard to get for the poor cultivator of the soil.

30. The same paper informs that the revenue settlement officers in Bombay based their assessment of land-cess on the Mahratta and Moghul systems, but those of Madras came some how to entertain the idea that the ryot should contribute to Government one-half of the produce. The land assessment has therefore been low in Bombay and high in Madras. The paper argues that as the Muhammadans had scriptural authority to treat all the infidels as savages and to deprive them of all their property and even of their lives without fear of committing sin thereby, it is strange that the British Government should assert they have followed their (the Muhammadan's) example. It remarks that the oppressive taxes of the Mnhammadans led to the overthrow of their government and that India, as a whole, never owned their supremacy. Observing that the Hindu rajas took only a sixth part of the produce from land, it asks why the Government should not follow this practice instead of that of the Muhammadans, and remarks that it would help the poor ryot a great deal if it would consider the question and reduce the assessment.

Land revenue.

31. The Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd May, expresses the opinion that, as the revenue will certainly be increased twofold after the present Malabar settlement, several lands will have to be sold at a very low price for arrears of revenue as in the Wynaad taluk. The cultivators in Malabar are very poor. They have no knowledge of the agricultural science nor have they the necessary agricultural implements. The fruit of their labour is appropriated by their landlords and money-lenders. The landlord is responsible for the Government revenue, but the tenants are made to pay not only the revenue payable by the landlord but also to meet the various legal and illegal exactions of the latter. If the assessment is increased after the settlement, the landlords will shift that burden upon the tenants. If the tenants, who are already the victims of the usurious money-lenders, are made to meet this additional demand, some of them are likely to be driven to the necessity of earning their livelihood by committing thefts and dacoities.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1896.

The result of the Malabar settlement.

32. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th May, says that it is a matter for surprise that the Government has, in conformity with the opinion of the Board, rejected the petition of the Ali Raja of Cannanore protesting against levying a cess of half an anna per rupee of the assessment under the Village Cess Act in the taluks of Chirakkal, Kottayam and some parts of the Kurumbranat taluk in addition to a similar cess now collected in the shape of (1) kangani, (2) pathonnu, (3) talivaram, (4) kuzhapattam, (5) vithupadu, (6) azhippanam, (7) kayattunellu, (8) velippanam and (9) vettilakettu. The editor thinks that this order was passed by His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock at the commencement of his administration without making himself fully acquainted with the matter, and exhorts the people of North Malabar to send a memorial to Government protesting against this small but unjust tax.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 8th, 1896.

Protest against appointing East Indians as ticket collectors in South Indian Railway.

33. Tha Swadesamitran, of the 8th May, is very much against the South Indian Railway authorities appointing East Indians as ticket collectors on the ground that they prove a source of mischief and danger to passengers, and cites the case of Mr. Augur, a railway guard, who tried to outrage a female passenger at night in North-Western Provinces as an instance in point.

(i) Salt and Abkári.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 22nd, 1896.

Liquor traffic and Government.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 20th, 1896.

Oppression of the abkári officers of the Kasaragod taluk.

35. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th May, publishes the substance of the petition submitted to the Collector of South Canara and to the Assistant Commissioner of the Salt and Abkári department, Calicut division, by the people of Kasaragod taluk setting forth the iniquities and oppression of the salt officers of that range. Petitioners say that in conducting searches the salt officers act beyond their powers and do not conform to the conditions laid down by law in respect thereof. When making searches the salt officers are even alleged to outrage the modesty of females in the house. Petitioners have, as an instance, cited a case now pending in the Niliswaram Magistrate's court in which V. Krishna Menon, Sub-Inspector of the above range, and V. V. Kanan Nair, Sub-Inspector of the Pudiakotta range, are charged with committing rape upon a young woman, an accused in a salt case. The paper, in supporting the petition, hopes that the Collector and the Assistant Commissioner will take the necessary steps to have the petitioners' grievances redressed.

A correspondent in the Kerala Patrika, of the 16th May, complaining of the oppression of the salt officers of the Kasaragod taluk, remarks that the ignorance of the people, the situation of the taluk and the absence of any newspapers, afford ample scope for these officers to carry on their high handedness with impunity.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 23rd, 1896.

Salt and abkári officers of the Kasaragod taluk.

36. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd May, publishes the petition submitted by the inhabitants of Tirikkitipur in Kasaragod taluk, South Canara, to the Collector of that district and the Assistant Commissioner of the division regarding the oppression of the abkári officers and remarks that as the petitioners are owing to their ignorance incapable of bringing such serious allegations maliciously, the petition will receive the careful consideration of the authorities. It is an open secret that the abkári officers commonly concoct cases and take bribes, but this is the first instance we hear of their having committed rape. If this atrocious crime has really been committed by them the authorities ought to make a thorough inquiry into the matter and award exemplary punishment to them.

(k) General.

37. The Lokabandu, of the 11th May, reports that the Sub-Collector of South Arcot has issued a circular forbidding the disbursement of salaries due for April to the tahsildar, deputy tahsildar, village munsif and revenue inspector till Rs. 99 shall have been collected from out of Rs. 100, the amount of kist in arrears. The paper remarks that such arbitrary order does not become the British rule, and that it also gives room for corruption and bribery among the officials.

LOKABANDU, Madras, May 11th, 1896.

An arbitrary order passed by the Sub-Collector of South Arcot.

38. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, requests the Surgeon-General to keep the medical subordinates in the mofussil on transfer once in three years and also to pass a rule that they should not hold the office of vice-president or chairman of any municipal board on the ground that by long stay and by holding the office of a chairman they think too much of themselves and treat the patients with contempt and indifference.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Surgeon-General.

39. The Desabhimani, of the 13th May, describing at great length the hard and responsible task of karnams, says that the opening of a survey class for the karnams in the district of South Arcot has greatly increased their hardship and inconvenience. The paper sympathises with the karnams in the following words:—"To collect these (karnams) again together at headquarters in the height of this severe hot season and to put them through a course of field work in the mornings and office work in the afternoons seems therefore to be a most extraordinary proceeding."

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, May 13th, 1896.

Hardship of karnams increased by the opening of a survey class at Cuddalore.

40. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 15th May, complains that mail bags that come to Pudukkottai by transit from Trichinopoly arrive late in the day owing to the fact that transit owners waste their time in taking and dismounting passengers in different places on the way. He wishes the postal authorities to attend to this piece of irregularity.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 15th, 1896.

A complaint against the transit owners that convey mail bags to Pudukkottai from Trichinopoly.

41. The Lokabandu, of the 21st May, says that Government should put an end to the custom now prevailing in villages of keeping a mattu (cow) talaiyari at the cost of the villagers. The paper adds that the villagers who have failed to pay their annuity to the mattu talaiyari very often miss their cows the next morning and are obliged to pay a sum which is nearly equal to the price of the cow to the talaiyari for its recovery, and that such irregularities are not reported to Government is a matter much to be regretted.

LOKABANDU, Madras, May 21st, 1896.

Advisability of putting an end to a custom prevailing in villages regarding mattu (cow) talaiyaris.

42. The Andhraprakasika, of the 23rd May, alluding to the dacoity committed a few days ago on the Palakol-Narsapur road, Gódávari, remarks that such occurrences can be prevented if notorious thieves, instead of being let free on the expiration of the period of their imprisonment, be required to pass every night at the nearest police station until they find themselves able to subsist by lawful occupations.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 23rd, 1896.

"Daring dacoities."

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 18th, 1896.

District officers to be acquainted with the language and customs of the district.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 18th May, says that as the Collectors and District Judges posted to districts do not generally know the language and customs prevailing there, the welfare of the people sometimes suffers. As Collectors posted to Malabar of late have not been conversant with the language, customs and usages of that district, disturbances have occurred. The article, concurring in the opinion of Mr. Winterbotham that it is dangerous to appoint as Collector of Malabar persons ignorant of Malayalam and wanting in experience, invites the attention of Government to the matter.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, May 17th, 1896.

Proposal to convert Burma into a Lieutenant-Governorship.

44. In approving of the proposal of the Government of India regarding the conversion of Burma into a Lieutenant-Governorship, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 18th May, remarks that, in consideration of the importance, extent, fertility and other advantages possessed by the country it seems just and reasonable that the Home Government should adopt the proposal.

ALHAMI, Madras, May 24th, 1896.

Want of gosha in the Triplicane Lunghurkhana.

45. In inviting the attention of Government and of the Commissioner of Police to the management of Triplicane Lunghurkhana, the Alhami, of the 24th May, complains that no regard is now paid to the gosha system in the above institution, and the gosha females, who are in receipt of rice, dole, &c., are compelled to appear before the Deputy Commissioner for identification against their will. The Alhami requests the Commissioner to utilise the services of Government hammamnis or female attendants for the purpose as has been hitherto done.

Transfer of hospital assistants.

46. In disapproving of the order of the President of the Gódávari District Board, directing that every hospital assistant, whose period of service exceeds five years in any one place, should be transferred to some other station, the same paper states that so far as medical officials are concerned the order does not appear to be a reasonable one, as the longer such officials remain in one place the more popular they become and be better acquainted with the inhabitants.

IV—NATIVE STATES.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 12th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the residentship of Travancore.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th May, learning that Mr. James Thomson intends giving up his residentship of Travancore and that Mr. G. Stokes is anxious to become the Resident of that Native State, remarks that Mr. Stokes is wanting in efficiency necessary for the discharge of such an onerous post as that. The paper recommends in strong terms Mr. J. D. Rees as the person most fitted for the post in question and that his appointment would be viewed with universal satisfaction.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, May 25th, 1896.

Riot at Malvalli in Mysore.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th May, gives the following account of the recent riot at Malvalli:—For some time past there have been disputes between the Bestars (fishermen) and Vakkaligars of Malvalli. The matter was referred to the authorities, and was finally decided by Government in favour of the Bestars. Without giving wide publicity, the Bestars conducted their procession last year with the aid of the police and magistracy. This roused the indignation of the Vakkaligars, who were determined to oppose the procession on any subsequent occasion. This year the Bestars had again to carry their procession, and, anticipating tremendous opposition from the other side, sought the aid of the police. Accordingly the Police Superintendent went to the spot on the 14th instant with a small force of reserve police. It appears that on the morning of that day the amildar of the place went on horse back to the Vakkaligar's street with the reserve police inspector to post constables. When the amildar was passing he was dragged down from his horse and seriously beaten. The police inspector, who tried to relieve the amildar from his difficulties, was also similarly hurt. Then the Police Superintendent went to their rescue and was similarly dealt with. By that time the mob had collected in large numbers and by their determined attitude the lives of the three officers, especially that of the amildar, were in imminent danger. Then the police inspector made use of the firearm under the orders of the Superintendent and dispersed the crowd. Meanwhile the Deputy Commissioner and the Sub-Division officer also arrived at the spot and order was restored. Three of the mob died on the spot and some received injuries, one of the the wounded men has, it seems, since expired. The Vakkaligars were preparing to take the dead bodies to Mysore in order to lay their complaint before the Maharani Regent, but they were not allowed to do so by the police. The editor reserves his comments, but says that this disaster occurred as the taluk and district authorities granted the license without ascertaining the fact that it would violate the mamul.

The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 21st May, gives similar account of the occurrence but it says that the Vakkaligars had put up a pendal on the way through which the Bestar's procession had to pass. The amildar and the police went to the spot and asked the Goudas that were seated in the pendal to remove the pendal. They declined to do so, the amildar with the aid of the police began to remove it and the result was as narrated above.

49. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 21st May, in a leading article says :— (Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, May 21st, 1896.)

Patronage to nautch girls in Mysore.

There are prostitutes in every country, but the people take care not to patronize them. In Mysore, however, that is not the case. Lately during the celebration of a marriage in the royal family of Mysore, dancing girls were employed at a cost of Rs. 16,000 and respect which was not due to their position was accorded to them. While the married couple went in procession around the town these dancing girls were accommodated on a platform or howdah on the backs of two elephants. Who is responsible for all this? The Maharani Regent would never allow to have such immodest women in attendance and treat them with respect. If the Mysore Government be the cause, then it cannot be too severely censured for having demoralized the subjects by encouraging such acts and for having set a bad example to the young Maharaja. The late Diwan Ranga Charlu never allowed similar entertainments during the minority of the late Maharaja. The measures that were adopted during that time have all been forgotten by the present authorities.

50. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 24th May, says :—Several instances may be cited to show that the present Deputy Commissioner of Mysore is incompetent to discharge the onerous duties of his office. When he was Deputy Commissioner of Tumkur, there was a riot at Tumkur, and, soon after he was transferred to Mysore, another riot broke out at Seringapatam. Now two more riots have occurred—one at Malvalli and the other at Hullalli. This Deputy Commissioner leaves much to the amildars of whom he seems to be afraid. It seems strange that Government officers should take such an active part in a street squabble and shoot down the people, and we are afraid the British Government will take serious notice of these riots. (Mysore Desabhimani, Mysore, May 24th, 1896.)

The riots at Malvalli and Hullalli, Mysore.

51. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 28th May, learns that five more Probationary Assistant Commissioners are to be entertained by the Mysore Government, and remarks that this addition is quite unnecessary. The total number of Assistant Commissioners in all departments already exceeds the number of amildars, and if additions are made to their number at the present rate they would soon out-number even shambhogues. (Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, May 28th, 1896.)

The appointment of five more Probationary Assistant Commissioners in Mysore.

52. The same paper remarks that the recent riot at Malvalli was not of such a nature as to justify the use of fire-arms by the police.

The use of fire-arms in the riot at Malvalli.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, May 16th, 1896.

53. A correspondent in the Malayala Manorama, of the 16th May, complains of the inadequate attention paid by Mr. Thomson, the British Resident, to the administrative affairs of the Cochin State. The correspondent states certain specific instances in which Sirkar money has been misappropriated by public servants, documents and public records have been forged and altered, judgments have been written by a clerk under the directions of the judge, &c., but which have not been inquired into by the Sirkar simply because the persons implicated in the matter are either related to some of the high officials in the State or the favourites of the raja. The correspondent therefore considers that the Resident ought to pay a little more attention to State affairs and adopt measures that all important matters are done with his knowledge or assent.

Inviting the Resident's attention to some of the irregularities in the Cochin administration.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, May 21st, 1896.

54. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st May, complains of the unusual delay generally made by the Cochin Sirkar in appointing persons to act for the officers having independent charge going on leave. As an instance, the article says, when the late Mr. Narayana Menon, munsif of Cochin, took leave owing to ill-health, nobody was appointed to act for him and consequently the vakils and the parties were put to serious inconvenience and expense.

Complaining of the delay made by the Cochin Sirkar in making acting appointments.

55. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper says:—As some of the merchants having come to understand that there is gold in tuttu (a coin of the Cochin Sirkar) are in the habit of buying it even at a high price and melting it to take out the gold, it has now become very difficult to get such coins. If the tax-payers pay their taxes in rupees, the Sirkar officials refuse to take them but insist upon their paying taxes in tuttus and consequently the tax-payers are put to great hardship. The correspondent therefore requests the Cochin Sirkar to issue a large quantity of tuttus or order the officials to accept rupees towards the payment of taxes.

Cochin officials refusing to receive the revenue if not paid in a particular coin.

VI—MISCELLANEOUS.

HINDU METHABHIMANI, Madras, May, 14th, 1896.

56. The Hindu Methabhimani, of the 14th May, is glad to learn that the Hon'ble P. Anantha Charlu raised a question at the last meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council regarding the Famine-relief Fund, and remarks that the explanation furnished by Mr. Westland in reply thereto was not in point and far from satisfactory. The paper requests the honorable member to harp upon the same subject till he gets a satisfactory explanation.

Question raised by the Honorable P. Anantha Charlu regarding the Famine-relief Fund.

DRAVIDA PANDIYAN, Madras, May 16th, 1896.

57. The Dravida Pandiyan, of the 16th May, says that the congress, which represents the grievances of the people caused by the salt and abkári and forest rules, &c., does not work well for the reason that there is a want of unanimity among the people of India due to differences of race and religion. The paper advises the people to ignore such distinctions and band themselves together for a common cause.

An advice to the people of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 19th, 1896.

58. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th May, is glad to learn that the people of Bombay have wired to the Government of India and to the Secretary of State to represent that England alone should bear the expenses of the army sent to Egypt and that any attempt to make India liable would be a painful infliction, and so forth. The paper exhorts the people of this presidency to hold public meetings and to ventilate their opinion on the subject.

An advice to the people of this Presidency regarding the expenses of the army sent to Egypt.

KERALA PATRIKA Calicut, May 23rd, 1896.

59. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd May, referring to the rapid progress made by the Mappila regiment recently formed in Malabar in shooting and drill, says that the Mappilas will, if properly trained, make good soldiers and will distinguish themselves. Great difficulties may at present be experienced in getting Mappilas to join the regiment, but in course of time large number of men will undoubtedly be available; but care should be taken that the fair name of the Mappila regiment is not spoilt by the hasty enlistment of unfit and worthless men.

The Mappila regiment,

Editors of vernacular newspapers to be supplied with fortnightly reports.

60. Another leader in the same issue of the paper requests Government to supply the editors of vernacular newspapers with a copy of the fortnightly reports submitted by the translators so as to enable the editors to see if the articles appearing in their papers have been fully translated and brought to the notice of Government.

Mappila outbreak not subsided.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. Referring to Lord Salisbury's speech delivered in London on the 19th May, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 30th May, states that the Aum, of Lahore, has a long article on the speech, in which it is remarked that British interference in the Armenian question was impolitic and that the Armenians, who had rebelled against their ruler, did not deserve the sympathy of any nation. Although the British Government was more than once urged not to rely on the time-serving friendship of France and Russia, yet it has disregarded the advice. It is therefore inferred that the British Government does not like the presence of a Muhammadan ruler in Europe and also wishes to bring Egypt under her own suzerainty.

Armenian question.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, May 30th, 1896.

2. Referring to the notification of Mr. Quilliam, of Liverpool, pronouncing every Mussalman who may gird up his loins against the Soudanese an infidel, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 1st June, says that the Muhammadans of India disapproved the notification for the reason that the war declared against the Soudanese is not religious, but is undertaken for political reasons only. It advises Mr. Quilliam to withdraw the notification and give no cause to England to suspect the fidelity of her Muhammadan subjects who are happy and contented under her rule in every part of the world.

The Soudanese and Mr. Quilliam's notification.

II.—Home Administration.

3. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd May, reports that in the town of Milattur some wicked characters continued throwing stones at night consecutively on four nights, and that the police, whose aid was sought, took no notice of such grave misconduct. The correspondent attributes these irregularities to the constables not going on beat at nights and requests the authorities to adopt measures to teach the police their duty.

A complaint against the police at Milattur.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 22nd, 1896.

4. The Jananukulan, of the 30th May, speaking of Mr. C. Murugesam Pillai, Inspector of Police at Tiruvádi (B-II division), in the district of Tanjore, says that he is a painstaking and conscientious public servant, that he is much liked by the people and by his superior officers, and that it is therefore desirable that Government should encourage him by offering sufficient inducement by way of promotion.

Desirability of promoting Mr. C. Murugesam Pillai, Inspector of Police, Tiruvádi division, as First-grade Inspector.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, May 30th, 1896.

5. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th May, invites the attention of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, to the evils arising from a long retention of police officers in the same station. He says that all the constables, with the exception of two or three in the Shoranur station, are natives of the place and have been doing duty there for the last nine or ten years. Their oppression of the poor and the innocent and the encouragement they give to the notorious K.Ds. of the place have become simply intolerable. The safety and well-being of the people of Shoranur demand a thorough re-arrangement of police constables in that station.

Iniquities of the Shoranur police.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, May 27th, 1896.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 30th, 1896.

Remarks on the village watch.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 30th May, says that, although the Mappila outbreak is over in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad, yet dacoity and robbery are greatly on the increase in these two taluks. The police are said to be taking the necessary measures for putting down these evils, but without any effect. In former times a system of rontha (watch) was in vogue for checking dacoity, &c. According to this system ten men were selected in each village to patrol it every night and they were held responsible for any dacoity or robbery committed within its limit. This rontha system was better than the present system of police beat. It is doubtful whether the rontha system can be so easily maintained now as in former days. The headman of a village was then responsible for the security of the people of his village and had to employ watchmen to patrol at nights; but, under the present circumstances, it would be unfair to compel him to do this duty, so paid men should be appointed in these two taluks at least for a short time, their pay being met from a small tax levied from the people of the places.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 1st, 1896.

Grave crimes in Malabar.

7. A leader in the Manorama, of the 1st June, says that the inefficiency of the Malabar police which allows thieves and murderers to go scotfree has become simply deplorable. The editor says that he has received information of several cases of undetected robbery and murder committed in the Palghat, Walavanad, Ernad and Calicut taluks in May last. In the taluk of Walavanad the evil wrought by the Paraiyas who practise (oti) sorcery has become intolerable. As Englishmen do not understand the nature of the mischief they do or have any faith in sorcery they pay no attention to the complaints of the people suffering thereby. The editor states on information duly received that during the last month about six or seven persons were killed by these sorcerers in the Mundokott kurissi and the neighbouring amsams in the Cherpalcheri division of the Walavanad taluk and says that the Government ought to adopt stringent measures to put a stop to these grievances of the people. The corrupt police officers for the purpose of shielding the offenders try to weaken the evidence against them so as to secure them the benefit of the doubt in judicial trials. The editor suggests that, by holding out hope of rewards to the police, they may be induced to detect cases of robbery and murder.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 10th, 1896.

Irregularities in the detection of a murder in the Wynaad taluk.

8. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th June, invites the attention of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, to the incompetency and indifference of the station-house officer of the Panapuram police station near Sultan Battery in the Wynaad taluk in the matter of detecting the murderer of the two sons of Pujakkattil Mandagowndan, of Anjukunnu amsam, for the sake of the jewels worn by them. It appears that the two boys were tied up to a tree and their heads chopped off in broad daylight. The father of the children said that he suspected none other than one Kaniyarapanikkan, of the Cochin State, and his statement was supported by the evidence of a boy. This horrible deed was perpetrated within two miles of the above police station and it is a pity that the murder has not yet been detected though two months have now elapsed. The correspondent adds that a special officer should be deputed to investigate the case and says that, if such great crimes are not detected, it would be hard for the people to get on in the district.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, May 25th, 1896.

Expediency of transferring the Sub-Judge of Kumbakónam elsewhere.

9. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 25th May, hears that there are frequent petitions for transfer of cases from the file of the Sub-Court at Kumbakónam because the Sub-Judge, by reason of his long stay there, has many friends and relations. The paper hopes that the High Court will inquire into the matter and do the needful.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd June, hearing of the rumour that the authorities contemplate the removal of the ordinary Sub-Magistrate's Court of Kumbakónam to Valangaman, remarks that the place in question has two disadvantages, namely, first it has not the benefit of railway communication and secondly it does not lie in the centre of the district so as to lessen the hardship of parties living in the corners of the district. The correspondent suggests to the authorities the expediency of removing the court in question to Papavinasam for the reason that it lies midway between Tanjore and Kumbakónam and it has also the benefit of railway communication.

Expediency of removing the ordinary Sub-Magistrate's Court of Kumbakónam to Papavinasam.

11. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 3rd June, hearing of the rumour that the authorities are intending to order that all civil suits in the taluk of Tiruvannámalai should be filed in the Munsif's Court of Tirukkóyilúr instead of in the Court of Tindivanam, says that the passing of the contemplated order is desirable as it would save the parties great expense and trouble. The correspondent also advises the people of Tiruvannámalai to memorialise Government on the subject.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, June 3rd, 1896.

Advisability of vesting the Munsif's Court of Tirukkóyilúr with jurisdiction over the civil suits of Tiruvannámalai.

12. Referring to the phūka * operation that is generally practised in Calcutta by cowherds in spite of their being severely punished from time to time, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 1st June, states that everywhere magistrates should be empowered to imprison the cowherds who practise the operation and deceive the public as proposed by the Chief Presidency Magistrate of Calcutta.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, June 1st, 1896.

The practice of phūka operation in Calcutta.

* The practice of fumigating cows with the smoke of the marking nut, which distends their bodies and makes them appear plump and in good condition.

(c) Jails.

13. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th May and 1st June, speaking of the jail administration, writes in English as follows:—"So far from our jails being honestly and conscientiously worked in every detail of their management in strict accordance with the provisions of the laws and rules framed for their guidance, it is notorious that every sort of irregularity and illegality is to be met with within their walls. Corruption reigns unchecked and every kind of demoralisation prevails with impunity. It is, therefore, to be hoped that the leading inhabitants in each town will be allowed or better still invited to visit jails freely at a fixed hour daily and that they will be permitted and requested to enter in the visitors' book every irregularity that may come to their notice.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, May 15th and June 1st, 1896.

A suggestion regarding jail administration.

(d) Education.

14. The Hindu Mathabhimani, of the 21st May, asserts that the present "Third Standard Book" is not a proper text for infant pupils of the primary schools on the ground that its style is too difficult and subject-matter unsuited for boys of the standard.

HINDU MATHABHIMANI, Madras, May 21st, 1896.

A remark on the "Third Standard Book" prescribed by Government for the pupils of primary classes.

15. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 1st June, dwells at great length on the importance of the study of Sanskrit. A classical language of the importance of Sanskrit, in which most of the learned and valuable books of the Aryans are written, ought to receive more attention at the hands of the public than it now does. In the Calcutta University Sanskrit has been prescribed as a compulsory subject for the higher examinations, and it would be advisable for the Madras University to imitate her sister university in this respect. If the Government simply lends a helping hand, there will be many private gentlemen to come forward to encourage the study of Sanskrit. At present there is a Sanskrit school established at Perumudi amsam near Pattambi by Punnasseri Nambi Nilakandha Sarma, editor of a Sanskrit journal, called Vijnanachindamani. It is placed under the management of qualified and efficient hands and is patronised by the Valia Thampuran of Patinnara Kovilakam and His Highness the Maharaja of Travancore. It now appears that the founder of the school has applied to the Director of Public Instruction and to the President of the Local Fund Board for aid. The correspondent earnestly hopes that both these functionaries will comply with the request.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 22nd, 1896.

A complaint against Srívilliputtúr municipality regarding cattle cess.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd May, remarks that the Srívilliputtúr municipality imposes tax on cattle used in ploughing, while other municipalities exempt them from taxation. He says that the draught animals should not be burthened with a separate tax in addition to the tax on cart which they draw.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 26th, 1896.

Desirability of constructing a road from Kalathur to Tirukkazhikkunram.

17. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th May, dwelling on the importance of Tirukkazikkunram (in Chingleput district), a sacred shrine for the Hindus, and on the sufferings undergone by devotees flocking in large numbers on the occasion of festivals, &c., owing to the absence of road, requests Government to construct a road between Tirukkazhikkunram and Kalathur which alone pays Rs. 750 per annum in the shape of road cess. The same correspondent complains that the Vallipuram road, which leads from Chingleput, is a non-metalled road and consequently in the rainy season it becomes so miry that it seriously obstructs traffic for a considerable length of time. He requests the authorities to have the road in question metalled and make it safe even in times of heavy rain.

JANOPAKARI, Madras, May 26th, 1896.

Insufficiency of lights in the town of Bhávani.

18. The Janopakari, of the 26th May, draws the attention of the chairman of the Bhávani municipality to the insufficiency of lights in the town and along the river Bhávani and to the injury sustained by people in consequence, and requests him to do the needful.

A request to secure water-supply for the town of Erode.

19. The same paper complains that water famine is severe in Erode and prays the authorities to spare no pains to secure a good water-supply for the town as early as possible.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 30th, 1896.

Remarks on the Malabar District Board budget.

20. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 30th May, while commenting upon the budget estimate of the Malabar District Board for 1896–97 as revised by Government, says that the budget is not on the whole satisfactory. The reduction in the allotments under the heads of education and hospitals is noticed with great regret and the opinions are expressed that, as these two heads are the most important of all the branches of administration that are conducive to the prosperity of the country, Government ought to give power to the board to devote to these purposes the whole of the balance left after meeting all other expenditure.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 6th, 1896.

Vaccination in Malabar.

21. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th June, referring to the report of Dr. Malins, Deputy Sanitary Commissioner and Inspector of Vaccination, says that Dr. Malins has stated in his report that the diaries of vaccinators and deputy inspectors of vaccination in Malabar were false and that the figures shown in them were unreliable. The article, after dwelling at some length on the matter, remarks that the backward state of vaccination in that district is due to the neglect of vaccinators and deputy inspectors. If these officers were educated men and realised their responsibility, the case would have been quite different. The present low pay of the employés of the department is not sufficiently attractive to men of good educational qualifications. If educated men on higher salaries and allowance be appointed as vaccinators and deputy inspectors, results will be more satisfactory. As, however, it is seen from the Inspector's report that the present employés are a set of untrustworthy men, it is hoped that the District Board would take special notice of their conduct.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

22. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 5th June, states that thirty years ago a settlement believed to be permanent was made in the case of some of the Government lankas in the Gódávari, while the rest were leased out by auction once in five years as at present, the revenue being paid annually. He observes that, though these last-mentioned lands receive deposits of mud in times of flood, it frequently happens that they are either entirely submerged or are rendered unfit for cultivation by large quantities of sand accumulating on them or by the "fertilising earth" being washed away. He remarks that, supposing eight acres of land fail to yield a crop, a ryot does not lose more than Rs. 32, at which the best lands are ordinarily assessed; whereas a lanka ryot sustains a loss of from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 2,500, as the assessment payable on a single acre of the best lanka lands is from Rs. 250 to Rs. 300. He further remarks that, though the cultivation of the lanka lands entails the heaviest loss in bad times, even the richest crop affords no compensation, as it does not leave a profit equal to even a quarter of the assessment. He notes that because the condition of these lands is such, the Government has not attempted even a temporary settlement in their case, but farms them out once in five years by public auction. The correspondent complains that these lankas are put up to auction, not actually on the land, but at the distant taluk head-quarters, and even that in the months of June and July when they are submerged under flood water. The gazette notification too of the auction sale is not published sufficiently early to give the ignorant ryots time enough. The ryots therefore bid for the land with no knowledge of its extent or condition. He observes that the assessment on the lanka lands being very high, the grains cultivated elsewhere do not pay to be cultivated on them, and that the only crops to be raised are tobacco and indigo. They impoverish the soil so much that the land has to be left untilled for some time, or cheaply-selling products, such as maize, &c., have to be raised. This disables the ryot from earning even the amount of the assessment.

Condition of the people in the Gódávari lankas.

Sasilekha, Madras, June 5th, 1896.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th June, invites the attention of the Board of Revenue to the desirability of altering its proceedings that the particulars required for the registration of lands in Malabar should be submitted by the landlord before the 30th June, as some of the landlords, who own extensive landed properties and who have not up to this time been furnished with the adangal account, register and plan necessary for the preparation of such particulars, are not in a position to do so within the time prescribed. The editor says that, unless the time is extended, the landlords will be put to great hardship and the Deputy Collectors appointed to register lands will be obliged to do the work in a perfunctory manner.

Reflections on the registration of lands in Malabar.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, June 6th, 1896.

(g) Forests.

24. The Sasilekha, of the 5th June, complains that the difficulties of the people arising from the conservation of forests in India are too many to be described and deeply regrets that the forest officials frequently invent new methods of oppression to the people. It remarks that the contract system of leasing out forests in small portions introduced at the beginning of the year 1896–97, though it is incapable of checking the dishonesty of forest officers, results in loss of revenue to Government, exercise of more power by its officials and Forests in the Cuddapah district.

Sasilekha, Madras, June 5th, 1896.

greater hardship to the people. It states that the forest ranger of Madanapalle, Cuddapah district, having been asked to secure a contractor for 200 acres of forest land near Nayanapalle, fetching a revenue of Rs, 1,000 under the old license system, disposed of it for a trifling sum without giving due notice to contractors by beat of tom-tom. It regrets that the matter escaped the notice of the District Forest officer and that no authority seems to question the illegality of immensely benefiting a contractor at the expense of both the Government and the public. It complains that the British administration is being gradually fashioned after the government of the country under the nawabs. It observes that the said irregularity would never have seen the light but for the great hardship that had resulted from it. The paper observes that about 10,000 dacoits in the whole of the Cuddapah district and 500 in the Madanapalle taluk alone have given up their profession and have been earning their livelihood by selling fire-wood, cutting it under license system in the forest reserves, and it therefore asks whether these poor people have any alternative left but to return to their former occupation (dacoity) inasmuch as licenses are not now granted. It calls upon the Government, the Board of Revenue, the Cuddapah District Collector and the Honourable Mr. Jambulinga Mudaliyar to consider the question deeply. It believes that good revenue would be secured to Government if the District Forest officer set aside the said lease and farm out to the highet bidder at a real public auction. It further believes that, unless the Collector and the Police Superintendent create some means of subsistence for the said poor wood-cutters, the lives and property of the Cuddapah people will unquestionably be endangered. If licenses be not granted for at least dry wood, all the wood would be stealthily misappropriated and it would be reported to Government that white ants had destroyed it. By licenses being granted the poor wood-cutters would earn a living and the Government would derive profit.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 26th, 1896.

Certain defects connected with the South Indian Railway.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th May, protests against the rule made by the South Indian Railway Company forbidding passengers to carry rice and such other articles of food with them as luggage, and remarks that the order is nothing but a piece of cruelty. He also takes objection to the present system of locking the doors of the third-class carriages in the through mail that leaves Chingleput at 6 A.M. on the ground that in times of danger and accidents, such as the one that occurred of late at Karamadai, passengers will have no means of escape and the loss of lives will in consequence be very great. With regard to water-supply at the railway station of Chingleput, where a large number of passengers come in from all directions as it is a junction station, the correspondent says that the water-supply is scanty and unsatisfactory and remarks that passengers would not grudge paying for water if the railway authorities are only pleased to allow it to be sold on the platform like fruit and such other articles of food. The correspondent requests the railway authorities to pay heed to the matter here complained of and adopt remedial measures.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 31st, 1896.

Suggestions to the Madras and South Indian Railway Companies

26. The Lokopakari, of the 31st May, complains that the evening mail of the Madras Railway that leaves Madras at 6-45 P.M. was on a certain day last week, owing to a certain obstacle on the line, obliged to halt at the Sankagiri station for a period of two full hours and that the railway authorities during these two hours kept the passengers in close confinement in the carriages without letting them out even to answer calls of nature. The paper, while appealing to the reader to imagine the extent of annoyance and trouble suffered by the passengers, adds that the passengers were at the Erode station obliged to starve as they missed the South Indian Railway owing to the late arrival of the train in question. The paper suggests to the railway authorities that, in future, under such circumstances as the one herein described, they should announce to the passengers the cause of the stoppage of the train and to unlock the doors of railway carriages to make them feel at ease and comfortable. Speaking of the South Indian Railway, the paper says that the overcrowding of compartments is a perceptible defect in its administration and that it behoves the authorities to attend to its remedy.

27. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 30th May, states that there are only two trains arriving at the Ellore station, one in each direction, and no more, as in the case of the Madras Railway stations, and that yet tickets are issued only ten minutes before the arrival of the train. Consequently a great crowd collects at the door and women and children are overpowered and trampled in the rush. He observes that those who bribe railway servants are thrust into carriages though overfilled. As passengers suffer a good deal from the severe heat of the sun, even while the number in a carriage is small, the correspondent believes that their condition must be almost "deathlike" when thirteen or fourteen persons are huddled together in one compartment intended to hold but ten, and questions the propriety of overcrowding carriages instead of attaching more carriages to the train when there is an increase in the traffic. He regrets that when railway servants wish to make room for some bribe-giving passengers, they expel the female passengers from the carriages, where they have taken their seats with their male relatives, to find room in the already overcrowded women's carriage, and thus deprive them of their relatives' help in case of need. He further complains that the weighment of even the smallest parcels of luggage is insisted upon just when the train is ready to start, and that the owners are prevented from bringing them to, or taking them from, the weighing machine in order that porters might do the same and obtain hire. These railway servants further collect fares from passengers on their luggage, falsely representing that the same has been charged after making the allowance due to their travelling tickets, whilst the luggage receipt shows the fact to be otherwise. When any passenger protests on the discovery of the fraud, he is handed over to the police as disturbing the peace of the station. As all this takes place when the train is about to depart, the passengers are unwilling to take due measures for fear of missing the train. He asks why tickets should not be issued half an hour before the arrival of the train, why the station-master should not see that no compartment is made to contain more than the prescribed number of passengers, and why he should not interfere to check deceptions practised by ticket collectors and railway servants.

Irregularities at the Ellore railway station.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, May 30th, 1896.

28. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 7th June, says:—The Traffic Superintendent, Bangalore, being a new man entirely depends on his head clerk, who, being fully aware of this, tyrannises over the petty subordinates. The superintendent, whenever a complaint is made to him against the head clerk, instead of investigating the matter, plainly says that he will not entertain any complaint against his head clerk. Even when the matter goes to the Traffic Manager, the superintendent thinking that, if the true state of affairs be represented, he will not be commended, is obliged to have recourse to misrepresentations. Had he, instead of doing all this, only acted independently, what an immense benefit the public would have derived.

The Traffic Superintendent of Bangalore.

Mysore Desabhimani, Bangalore, June 7th, 1896.

train from Tirur to Calicut and we found that most of them were leaky. It is therefore unnecessary for us to particularise which of the carriages were leaky. The carriages attached to the mail train are generally found to be in good order, but we regret to say that there were no compartments that were not leaky in the carriage No. D. 242 attached to the mail train that left Calicut on that day. No excuse on the ground of the windows being without shutters can be made in this case. The rules and regulations of the company for securing the convenience of passengers are rendered of no use whatever by the subordinates not heeding them. We, therefore, request the railway authorities either to repair the carriages or not to attach them to the train in future and thus to redress the grievances of the helpless passengers.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 31st, 1896.

A request to the abkári authorities to grant licenses for opening taverns in streets after consulting the opinion of the residents thereof.

30. The Lokopakari, of the 31st May, commenting on the evils of allowing liquor shops to be opened in public streets, requests the abkári authorities not to grant licenses for opening liquor shops in streets without consulting the opinion of the residents thereof. It adds that issuing licenses in privacy (without such a consultation) renders the residents of the street, in which the shop is opened, unable to adopt measures for effecting its removal afterwards.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 10th, 1896.

Female offenders in abkári cases to be exempted from measurement.

31. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th June, says that the rule requiring offenders in salt and abkári cases to be measured before the circle inspector for the purpose of subsequent identification should so far as it relates to women be cancelled. In the Police department, where a similar rule is in force, an exemption is made in the case of females even though they be notorious K.Ds. It is further suggested that, if it is ruled that the detected articles should be entered in a counterfoil search list by the offender himself, or, if he is illiterate, by some respectable man of the locality, the irregularities committed by the Salt and Abkári officers will to some extent be checked and there would be no room for the offenders to put forth false pleas.

(k) General.

HINDU MATHABHIMANI, Madras, May 21st, 1896.

A suggestion to the authorities regarding the execution of the punishment of whipping.

32. The Hindu Mathabhimani, of the 21st May, complains that European officers being influenced by racial prejudice award sentence of whipping very arbitrarily on natives and is at a loss to know why Europeans are excluded from the operation of the said act. The paper thinks it desirable that the authorities should pass a rule directing the postponement of the execution of the sentence of whipping awarded by magistrates till the appeal, if any, is finally disposed of.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 26th, 1896.

Necessity for another postman in the branch post office of Kalathur in Chingleput district.

33. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th May, says that the branch post office in the village of Kalathur in Chingleput district is not provided with sufficient hands and consequently it distributes letters only in the evenings although mails arrive there both in the mornings and in the evenings, and that this single delivery subjects people to inconvenience. The correspondent requests the authorities to help the post office with the services of another postman and direct it to disburse letters both in the mornings and in the evenings.

JANOPAKARI, Madras, May 26th, 1896.

A suggestion regarding the supply of provisions to public officials on circuit.

34. The Janopakari, of the 26th May, protests against the system now in vogue that the village munsif should supply provisions to the Revenue, Forest, Judicial, Survey, Settlement, Medical officers, &c., when they halt at his station, while on circuit, and should recover from them the cost thereof by tendering a bill, on the ground that this subjects the village munsifs to great trouble and hardship. The paper thinks it desirable that the authorities should require the village munsif to supply provisions on payment of cash only to such Europeans as the District Collector and Divisional officers, who may not be acquainted with the country, when they halt at stations where there are no markets or fares, and not otherwise.

35. The Swadesamitran, of the 29th May, reports that Mr. Forbes, District Collector of Chingleput, never attends the office and does his office work in his own residence contrary to the order of the Board of Revenue and that such a system, while promoting laziness in his subordinates, greatly affects the disposal of the office work of the collectorate.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 29th, 1896.

A complaint against Mr. Forbes, District Collector of Chingleput.

36. The same paper commenting on the observation of the Madras Mail that Mr. Dance, I.C.S., will be transferred to Malabar as District Collector and that, young as he is, he may probably be retained in the district for a good length of time and the district may likely avoid the painful ordeal of meeting different persons within short intervals as its Collector, remarks that the administration of the district of Chingleput has suffered much by the frequent transfers of its Collector, no less than nine officers acting as Collectors in a year. The paper says that, as the disadvantages of such frequent transfers both to Government and to subjects can be better imagined than described, it behoves His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to see that such transfers are not effected too often.

A remark on the constant change of District Collectors specially in the district of Chingleput.

37. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 3rd June, describing the importance of the village of Palayankottai in the taluk of Srímushnam in South Arcot, says that letters are delivered only once a week and that this subjects the villagers to inconvenience. He requests the postal authorities to open a branch post office in this village and also to provide the Srímushnam post office with a few more delivery peons.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, June 3rd, 1896.

Necessity for a post office in the village of Palayankottai in Srímushnam taluk.

38. A correspondent to the same paper regrets to bring to the notice of the postal authorities that the delivery of letters in the town of Tirukkóyilúr is irregular owing to the fact that the post office is provided with only one delivery peon and that the present delivery peon, being of a religious turn of mind, while disbursing letters, wastes his time in religious discussion. With regard to village postmen, the correspondent remarks that they deceive the poor and ignorant villagers by tendering an empty cover with the representation that it comes from the district officer and that a postage of one anna is due thereon and so forth, and requests the postal authorities to take steps to check such wholesale cheating.

Complaint regarding the irregular delivery of letters in the town of Tirukkóyilúr.

39. The Sasilekha, of the 29th May, hears that intrigues are being planned to secure for Mr. Ellis the acting appointment during Colonel Moore's absence. It remarks that Diwan Bahadur P. Ramasami Chetti having already acted as President before this there is no reason why he should not now be appointed to the post. As the appointment of a junior officer would imply a serious reflection on the senior member, Mr. P. Ramasami Chetti, the paper requests that His Excellency the Governor will take it into his careful consideration.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 29th, 1896.

Colonel Moore on leave.

40. The Sasilekha, of the 12th June, referring to the recommendation of the Revenue Board to Government to appoint as taluk gumastas such persons only as are educated and certified as having passed examinations, increasing the salaries attached to their posts, remarks that the present gumastas may be compared to a set of robbers and dacoits. Like leeches, they deprive the poor ryots of all they have. These ryots, when they go on business to the taluk office, are detained by them for days together until they are bribed to attend to the business, however trifling it may be. The paper therefore asks the Government to increase the salaries attached to the said gumastaships and appoint duly qualified persons to fill them.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 12th, 1896.

Taluk gumastas.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, June 10th, 1896.

The hardships of the taluk staff.

41. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 10th June, draws attention to the heavy work which the clerks and others employed in a taluk cutcherry have to do, and says that these clerks and others are ill-paid, but are obliged to work not only during the whole day but also during a part of the night and yet no one ever thinks of giving them some relief. The work in some of the taluks is much heavier than in others and yet the same number of hands is employed in all. The editor therefore hopes that Government, which thinks it its duty to protect the lower animals from cruelty, will not overlook the cruelty to which these human beings are subjected.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, June 3rd, 1896.

Mr. Dance to be appointed as Collector of Malabar.

42. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 3rd June, says that the rumour that Mr. Dance is to be appointed Collector of Malabar has been a source of great satisfaction to the people of that district. The article says that this should on no account be understood as meaning that they are dissatisfied with the present Collector, Mr. Hewetson. Mr. Hewetson is a very able civilian, free from all partiality and prejudice, and he has, by his respect for public opinion and popular rights, endeared himself to the people; but his want of local knowledge has made him overlook the claims of efficient men in the appointment of certain tahsildars and magistrates. Mr. Dance on the other hand has a thorough knowledge of the place, having been in Malabar for a long time, so that in every way he may be expected to make a most successful Collector of that district.

Referring to the same subject, the Manorama, of the 8th June, mentions a number of civilians who may be considered to have a pretty good knowledge of Malabar, but is of opinion that, of all these, Mr. Dance is the proper man for the place.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, June 10th, 1896.

Cow-killing riot.

43. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 10th June, has a long article from the Dar-us-Saltanat, of Calcutta, on the subject of cow-killing and the riots which occurred in Sitaghur and Sirampur during the late Bakrid festival. It is alleged that at Sitaghur, which is situated close to Barakpur cantonment, a Mussalman contractor purchased a cow for slaughter which was deceitfully taken away from him by the Hindus, and, on their refusal to return the animal, a riot ensued. It has been gleaned from the official report that the Hindus were the aggressors in this case.

As regards the riot at Sirampur it is stated that, on the representation of a pandit, the divisional officer prevented the Muhammadans from assembling at the mosque for prayers and arrested the imam (priest) on a suspicion that he intended to sacrifice cows contrary to orders. This high-handed procedure on the part of the divisional officer is due either to cowardice or to fear of the Bengali press. The Muhammadans are preparing to bring the case to the notice of Government shortly. If the prevention of such riots is really desirable by the authorities, they should permit Muhammadans to slaughter cows, but not within view of the Hindus.

IV.—Native States.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 8th, 1896.

A hard case.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th June, commenting upon the relations that exist between the Political Agents and the feudatory princes, says thus:—"Of course some of the feudatories are well treated, and the different kind of treatment dealt out to them very much depends upon the kind of Political Agents sent to look after them. If these are sympathetic, everything goes well. If they are not, there is disagreement and recriminations. The politicals complain against the princes; the latter return the compliment. Thus things go on till something serious occurs. A case of this kind has lately been before the public of this land as well as of England. We refer to the Maharaja of Jhalawar, and we cannot conceive of anything more high-handed than the manner in which this prince has been treated. This chief, after being educated at the Mayo college, was vested with the power of administering the government of his State in 1884. In consequence of his youth and inexperience, the Marquis of Ripon, then Viceroy, thought it expedient that he should be assisted and guided for a time by the Political officer sent to his capital, and certain conditions were agreed to by him. These were very severe, but, as the Maharaja was young, it was thought necessary that he should not at once have full power. One of these conditions was that all important matters were to be referred to the Political Agent. As he was only a school-boy when he assumed the direction of the State, he naturally consulted the official in question on almost every occasion; but, as he gained more experience, he believed himself capable of acting independently in small matters, while he referred great ones to the Resident. The result was that in the year 1887 the Governor-General in Council directed that he should be deprived of all power and replaced in the position of a minor chief until such time as the Political Agent was able to give a satisfactory report of his behaviour and attitude towards the British Government. All sorts of charges, the most frivolous one can imagine, were brought against him. The Maharaja held, and truly held, that there had been no infringement whatever of the conditions laid down. He wrote this to the Viceroy, but the Political Agent's account of the way he conducted himself was believed, and so he had to suffer. In his defence he took up the charges one by one, refuted them, and he ought to have been pronounced innocent, but it appears as if the Government was determined to bring him in guilty. In fact, throughout the whole case there seems to be a desire to show that the Maharaja is in the wrong. He was not allowed to do anything without the permission of the Resident. He could not engage or send away a servant without this official being consulted. In short, the Maharaja was treated as a nonentity. He was not allowed any liberty, and could only act through the Political Agent. This state of things went on for years, and the result was that the Maharaja felt annoyed and complained of the treatment he received. This was resented by the Political Agent, this gentleman pronounced the prince to be mad, and recommended that he should be dethroned. This was done without any special inquiry being made; but fortunately the case has attracted the attention of the Indian and English press, so it is to be hoped that justice will be done to the prince and that he will not be allowed to be treated with contumely as he has been of late. The case seems to be that he was driven to desperation and then punished for being desperate. As for the charge of insanity it is all nonsense. It is to be hoped that the prince's many friends in India and England will be able to save him from the terrible punishment that has been inflicted upon him, and which we thoroughly believe to be undeserved."

Sarvatramitram, Alleppey, May 27th, 1896.

Prejudice of the Cochin Sirkar against Native Christians.

45. A leader in the Malayalam Sarvatramitram, of the 27th May, refers to the injustice done by the Cochin Sirkar to the Native Christians of that State and adduces as instances the high-handed way in which Mr. C. Punnan, Judge of the Anjikamal Zillah Court, was compelled to retire from service and the way in which the Sirkar puts up with the irregularities of Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar, Judge of the Trichur Zillah Court. Mr. Punnan was an able and conscientious judge. On his return from Madras whither he had gone for medical treatment he was asked by the Sirkar to accept the place of the Superintendent of Police, which he declined, and was consequently retired from service on one-third pension. Mr. Punnan, as an official, has been infinitely superior to Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar. The latter has been accused of pronouncing judgments in various cases without committing them to writing and also of several other irregularities and yet the Sirkar wishes to elevate him to the place of Diwan. It is difficult to account for this partiality except by attributing it to the raja's hatred for the Native Christians.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, June 5th, 1896.

The grant of permission to Europeans to acquire landed property in Hyderabad.

46. Referring to the sanction accorded by the Government of India to the proposal of Mr. Plowden, the present Resident at Hyderabad, concerning the grant of permission to Europeans for acquiring landed property in the State of Hyderabad, the Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th June, remarks that the proposal was contrary to treaty engagements. Such being the case it is matter for regret that the Government of India approved it without the consent of His Highness the Nizam who ought to have been consulted in the matter. The Tilism observes that though the proposal is not commendable yet it is believed that, in course of time, it will prove beneficial to the State and tend to the promotion of arts and sciences and to the establishment of banks and factories.

The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 6th June, states that the Mushir-i-Deccan, of Hyderabad, in noticing with disapproval the sanction recently accorded by the Government of India to the proposal of Mr. Plowden about the grant of permission to Europeans for acquiring lands in the Native State of Hyderabad, remarks that the hopes and expectations which Native States had in Lord Elgin have been frustrated. His Excellency is following the footsteps of Lord Dalhousie who was the cause of the Indian mutiny of 1857. Turning to Mr. Plowden, the Mushir observes that he is bent upon the ruin of Native States, and it finally requests the Government of India to reconsider this sanction. The Jaridah concurs with the above remarks.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 2nd, 1896.

A request to the authorities to be more indulgent towards the ryots in the district of Nilgiris.

47. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd June, speaking of the district of Nilgiris, points out the various natural causes which contribute to the failure of harvest in the Nilgiris and says that the authorities relentlessly demand the assessment from the ryots even when they gather no harvest at all. He further says that many thousands of acres of land, which can be conveniently used for the cultivation of coffee, are enclosed under forest reserves, leaving no space for the cattle to graze upon, and that, if any cattle should trespass the forest reserves, it is at once impounded and the owner thereof is compelled to pay a heavy fine for obtaining its release. The correspondent requests the authorities to be more indulgent towards the ryots in these matters and also to darkhast to the poor ryots on moderate terms darisu lands which now remain in large areas.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

JANOPAKARI, Madras, May 26th, 1896.

Military expenses of Soudan expedition.

48. The Janopakari, of the 26th May, says that from the way in which the natives of India are treated in South Africa it may be surmised that the Soudan expedition would, if successful, be beneficial to the English only and that it is therefore desirable that the English should bear the expenses of this war. The paper remarks that the resolution of the Secretary of State that India alone should bear the expenses of the Soudan expedition is unjust. The paper adds that during the Governor-Generalship of His Excellency Lord Ripon, he advocated in strong terms that Indian troops should not be sent on war expeditions not beneficial to India, and that, if sent, the Indians should not be made to meet the expenses of such expeditions; whereas His Excellency Lord Elgin is silent with reference to the question of cost of the Soudan expedition.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, June 1st, 1896.

Observations regarding the congress.

49. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st June, says that the Bengalis are collecting subscriptions from street to street, nay, from door to door, and observes that the maintenance of the British Congress committee and the journal, named India, which annually cost sixty or seventy thousand rupees, is absolutely necessary for the amelioration of the people of India, and that, as the people of India are already groaning under heavy taxation, it is desirable that the congress should be more economical by limiting the number of delegates, say, one for each district, and should try its best to secure a reserve fund to meet the said expenses. The paper also suggests to the congress the advisability of starting a journal in India to be an accessory to the congress. The paper says that last year the Chitral expedition gave the congress a subject for deliberation and that during this year the Egypt expedition will give a similar subject for deliberation, and remarks that as long as Government administers the country in the manner in which it does now there will always be subjects for discussion among the members of the congress and that the existence of the congress is therefore essential.

50. The Sasilekha, of the 29th May, notes with pleasure the imperial order lately issued on the occasion of the Czar's coronation ceremony, reducing the land-tax by one-half for ten years, and remarks that the British Government has never shown such generosity, but has actually been raising land assessment in India frequently under the plea of "settlements." It adds that "the British people are like women whose words are sweet indeed, but whose hearts are as merciless as the deadliest poison."

Sasilekha, Madras, May 29th, 1896.

Reduction of land-tax in Russia.

51. The same paper remarks that the occupation of India by the British is as profitable to them as it is a source of security to the natives and that, though their severance (if it should ever happen in the dispensation of Providence) would no doubt cause suffering to the natives of India, it would equally affect the prestige of Her Majesty's power. It observes that India affords a living to many an Anglo-Indian, and that the British merchants greatly profit by their Indian trade. It regrets that, though justice and impartiality emphatically dictated that half the expenses of the wars against Afghanistan, Chitral and Burma and other neighbouring countries should have necessarily been borne by the British, India was saddled with the whole amount. While the injustice done to India is so great, the paper does not know what to say, seeing that, as a matter of fact, India is now required to bear the war expenses in Africa with which it has no sort of concern. It notes that the whole press regrets the injustice done to India and it is sadly concerned whether it is ever possible for India to enjoy prosperity while its inhabitants are poor and physically weak and its rulers are regardless of justice.

The meanness of our white rulers.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th June, speaking of the wedding present sent by the people of Calcutta and Bengal to their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of York, says:—Thirty square feet of silver casket is worth having even by a prince and princess. This week the Indian present to the Duke and Duchess of York has arrived in London. It is a huge casket held up by elephants, all of solid silver, and comes from the European and native communities of Bengal. These vast elaborate presents to royalty are foolish and quite unnecessary.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 8th, 1896.

A costly wedding present to the Duke and Duchess of York.

53. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 30th May, complains of the oppression of the Nalil-leth Arayas by the Mappilas of Bekkollam and and Kottikkollam in South Canara. He adds that these Mappilas have now commenced to insult even the Araya females who go to the bazaars to buy things. The tyranny of the Mappilas has become intolerable to the Arayas who are illiterate and do not know where to seek remedy for this evil. The correspondent requests the Collector to bring the Mappilas to book.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, May 30th, 1896.

Oppression of the Mappilas.

54. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th May, makes very serious complaints against the janmis (landlords) of Walavanad taluk. They are for the most part Nambudri Brahmans and inclined to oppress their poor tenants. Any opposition on the part of the tenant is punished with heavy fines or ejection from the property leased out to him. If a Nambudri landlord takes a fancy for a girl in the family of any of his unhappy tenants and is not allowed to have her as his concubine, the consequences to the tenant are disastrous. He will be either ejected from his holdings or his lands put on melcharth (over-lease). It is a great pity that the British Government, whose rule has conferred innumerable benefits on the people, should be so indifferent to the oppression of these Nambudris. If the present state of things in the Walavanad taluk is allowed to continue long, the correspondent is afraid that the Nayars of that place will be driven to the same unpleasant extremity as the Mappilas of Ernad.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, May 27th, 1896.

Intolerable oppression and demoralising conduct of the Nambudri landlords of Malabar.

MANORAMA, Calicut. June 1st, 1896.

The Zamorin of Calicut not to be forgotten in the Honours' List.

55. A correspondent in the Manorama, of the 1st June, suggests that it is but meet and proper that the many good deeds of the present Zamorin of Calicut should be recognised by the British Government and confer upon him some fitting honour. As instances of his charity and philanthropy, the correspondent points to the following facts. It is to the present Zamorin that the Kerala Vidya Sala, a second-grade college, owes its stability and its present prosperous condition. He subscribed Rs. 1,000 towards the Dufferin fund and contributed an equal sum towards the Ranganadham and Victoria Students' hostels. Besides, the Zamorin gives annual treats and makes liberal presents of clothes to the patients of the Municipal and Leper hospitals and the Lunatic asylum in Calicut and does many other acts of charity.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 10th, 1896.

Christian churches not to be maintained out of public revenue.

56. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th June, says:—The maintenance of the Christian churches entails upon the Government an annual expense of 16 lakhs of rupees. It is a pity that this expense should be met from the revenue paid by Hindus and Muhammadans.

Oppression of the landlords in Malabar.

57. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes that the oppression of the landlords has begun even before the termination of the settlement. Certain new methods are employed by them to extort money from the poor tenants. They have pantomimes and dramas performed, the expenses of which have to be borne by the tenants whether they are present to witness the plays or not. This is really a source of grievance to the tenants.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 27th, 1896.

The congressionists to devote attention to the amelioration of the low castes of Malabar.

58. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th May, has a leader on the miserable condition of the low castes in Malabar and Travancore. The Sanchari points out that, when Europeans do anything to hurt the susceptibilities of the natives, the latter make a great fuss and cry for vengence, but the treatment of the low castes by their own countrymen in high position is infinitely worse than that received by the natives at the hands of Europeans. The National Congress, which is always fighting for political privileges, refuses to open its eyes to the astounding fact that generally the low castes dare not walk on public streets or put on clean clothes or slippers for fear of being severely handled by the high castes, while educated Indians are clamouring from public platforms for simultaneous examination and admission into the volunteer corps. No one deems it worth any notice that the low castes have hardly enough to eat though it is mainly by their labour that the agriculturist and the landlord live in ease and comfort. It should not be understood from the above, says the editor, that he is against the congress or that the demands of the congress are made from interested motives; but he simply wishes that the congress should also devote a little attention to the amelioration of the low castes.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. Referring to the news that another expedition will be sent from India to Soudan during the ensuing cold weather, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 22nd June, says, on the authority of a contemporary, that before the despatch of the expedition it behoves Government to give the officers and men of the proposed expedition notice in time, so that they may be able to make necessary preparation without incurring avoidable loss or inconvenience as did the officers and men of the last expedition who did not receive timely notice. The Government looks to its own benefit and cares very little for the loss or inconvenience of others.

II.—Home Administration.

2. The Janopakari, of the 6th June, reports that a certain sub-magistrate and an inspector of police in the district of Madura, for purposes of rifle practice, with the aid of two police constables obstructed traffic in a certain portion of the Sivaganga road and that the people and carts were therefore forced to wait with great inconvenience on the said road for nearly an hour. The paper is at a loss to know under what authority the said officials adopted the procedure here complained of.

Janopakari, Madras, June 6th, 1896.

A complaint against a certain sub-magistrate and an inspector of police.

3. A correspondent to the Janopakari, of the 16th June, reports that the residents, who are mostly Janappas and Nadars of Palayam, a place domiciled by the Madura and Tinnevelly people in Narayanappa Naickan's garden, near Washermanpet, are in bad terms with one another and frequently indulge in committing brutal assault and murder, and regrets to add that the police are not doing their duty efficiently and conscientiously so as to keep down such lawlessness. He further reports that during this year, on the evening of 16th May, a few Chetties seriously injured the head of a kanakkan who is now lying in the hospital in a precarious condition of life, and there were four similar charges preferred against them prior to the one under reference, and remarks that the inadequate punishment awarded by the magistrate simply emboldens them to commit such brutal acts with impunity.

Janopakari, Madras, June 16th, 1896.

Inefficiency of the police to check the rowdyism of the residents of Palayam near Washermanpet.

4. A Tellicherry correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th June, writes among other matters as follows :—When one night a Mappila was about to close his bazaar situated near the road leading to Vairalam, two Mappilas went to his shop and asked for a knife to clean an arecanut. The shopkeeper gave one of them a knife with which he went to some distance. The shopkeeper, without locking the shop, went after him to get the knife. At the time the other Mappila, who was standing near the shop, went inside and took the money that was there and ran away. The shopkeeper at once reported the matter to the police, but he has not yet got back his money and knife nor has the police inquired into the matter.

(b) Courts.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 5th June, says to the authorities the advisability of opening a District Munsif's court in the town of Vandavasi in the premises of the late taluk office in addition to the one at Arni. The correspondent says that the taluk of Vadnavasi, with its suburbs, lies nearly forty-five miles, and the villages of Arcot taluk lie nearly eighty miles, from Arni, and that the parties living in these localities therefore experience considerable hardship and inconvenience in attending the Munsif's court at Arni. The correspondent assures that the opening of a court in Vandavasi, which lies between the taluks of Pólúr and Arcot, will greatly lessen the hardship of parties living in these parts, and advises the people to memorialise the authorities concerned on the subject.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 22nd, 1896.

Decision of the Christian judges in religious matters.

6. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd June, has the following in one of its leading articles:—Some four years back a Brahman was married to a silly girl according to Hindu rites. At the time of marriage the father of the girl was a convert to Christianity. Shortly after the marriage the mother followed the path of her husband and embraced Christianity. The girl remained behind with her relatives. The husband of the girl lately made an application to the Calcutta High Court, stating that the girl has been decoyed by her parents, who were trying against her will, to convert her to Christianity. The court granted a rule prohibiting the intended conversion; but, when the rule came on for hearing, Mr. Justice Sale, after hearing both sides, delivered judgment, in which he held that the custody of the parents was not illegal and the girl was accordingly restored to her parents who, it is thought, will soon convert her to Christianity. This inconsistent judgment has caused no little excitement among the Hindus (in Calcutta). As the Christian judges are generally to decide the cases which arise from the unscrupulous actions of the missionaries who come down to India with the avowed purpose of converting people of other religions to their own, no better results can be expected by the Hindus; but, in the present instance, as there will be an appeal the decision of the appellate court will be anxiously awaited.

The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 18th June, referring to the same subject, upholds the view held by Mr. Justice Sale and says that it will tend to discourage child-marriages in India.

SANMARGA-BODHINI, Bellary, June 13th, 1896.

Private candidates for the B.A. examination.

7. The Sanmarga Bodhini, of the 13th June, regrets that candidates desiring to appear for the B.A. examination of the University of Madras after private study are subjected to innumerable difficulties owing to frequent changes in the University regulations. Such candidates are required to send their applications for exemption before the 1st of September preceding the examination and the order thereon is communicated to them in October, that is, only three months before the examination. It remarks that the candidates are consequently unable to decide whether or not to begin their studies. It therefore prays the University authcrities to consider such cases at the beginning of each year.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 19th, 1896.

A case for notice by the Director and Government.

8. The Sasilekha, of the 19th June, referring to the suit between the schoolmasters Ramiah and Gaviah heard and dismissed by Mr. Coleridge of Bellary, remarks that, though Ramiah deserved to have his case dismissed, it is unjust to let off Gaviah and the inspecting schoolmaster, Seshiah Sastri, unpunished. It therefore considers it necessary that the Government and the Director of Public Instruction should go into the case fully.

Inspecting schoolmasters.

9. The same paper noting that there are 192 inspecting schoolmasters maintained by the Local Fund Boards and 50 by the Municipalities in his presidency, observes that their salaries are low, but their work heavy. It states that they have to inspect a number of schools in different villages and submit various kinds of registers to their superiors. It must be very inconvenient and troublesome to them to have to post their letters and carry bundles of books themselves in their tours. Declaring that it has received letters from various districts wishing that Government should sanction a peon to each of the inspecting schoolmasters, it considers it desirable that Government should accede to the said prayer.

10. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th June, writes that it is a matter for regret that the Malabar District Board has reduced the educational grant in this year's budget. It is the results grant that acts as an incentive to the managers of primary schools to continue their work, and, if the grant is reduced, primary education will suffer. The Sub-Assistant and Assistant Inspectors, who fix the grant for these primary schools, examine them in a perfunctory manner and fix the grant, and the District Board that spends money has no power to see whether the grant is properly earned. When Mr. Logan was the President of the District Board, he wrote a minute that, for the purpose of supervising the Local Fund schools, the Deputy (now Sub-Assistant) Inspectors should be made Local Fund servants and that the officers of the Educational department should merely examine these schools. This minute was embodied in the Board's resolution No. 3 (?), dated 11th January 1888, and submitted to Government, which, in its order No. 441 L., dated 22nd February 1888, said that the question raised by Mr. Logan would be taken into consideration when the Local Fund rules were reconsidered, but nothing has yet been done in this matter though eight years have since elapsed. The correspondent therefore requests Government to amend the local rules without any delay on the lines suggested by the District Board.

(e) Local and Municipal.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 5th June, complains that the road leading from the railway station of Gudiyáttam to Peranampattu is in so wretched a condition that carts and people passing over it frequently sustain injuries of a serious nature, and that the authorities keep neat and clean only those parts which are in the vicinity of where they live, and never turn their attention to the parts which are further away. He requests the authorities to attend to the matter herein complained and also to construct the road from Lalpet road to Satgiri, a distance of half a mile, where traffic seems to be heavy and the absence of a road is felt to be a hardship.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 5th, 1896.

Wretched condition of the road leading from the railway station of Gudiyáttam to Peranampattu.

12. A correspondent to the same paper, dwelling on the severity of drought in the taluk of Gudiyáttam, advises the authorities to sink some more wells and also to moderate the severity of the forest authorities in view to prevent cattle from perishing, as they do now, owing to the said drought from hunger and thirst. The correspondent exhorts the municipal authorities to sanction four, instead of two, conservancy carts for the village of Peranampattu to improve its sanitation. The correspondent also requests the said authorities to remove the prickly-pear with which the village is overgrown.

Severity of drought in the taluk of Gudiyáttam and the necessity for more conservancy carts in the village of Peranampattu in Gudiyáttam taluk.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th June, complains that the sanitation, lighting and, in fact, the whole municipal administration of the Yedappadi union is very unsatisfactory under the present chairman. He requests the municipal authorities to fix ten more lanterns, to repair certain roads and to appoint a watchman for preserving drinking water from pollution.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 12th, 1896.

Unsatisfactory administration of the Yedappadi union.

14. The Sasilekha, of the 19th June, complains that the Madras municipality, while paying the most assiduous attention to repairing the roads in the Adyar, Kilpauk, the Luz and the Mount Road, along which European ladies and gentlemen drive, leaves in the most wretched condition the streets in which Hindus and Muhammadans reside. The editor remarks that he has often visited these roads, but never found any attempt made by the municipality to improve their condition.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, May 27th and June 3rd, 1896.

15. The Vibudharanjani, of the 27th May and 3rd June, referring to the new scheme of appointing Local Fund inspectors for reporting unauthorised occupations of land, estimates the cost of their establishment in the Gódávari district at Rs. 5,076 a year, and remarks that there being nearly 300 villages in each taluk no inspector can devote more than a day for the inspection of a village which must necessarily be cursory and partial. It, therefore, believes that the scheme would end in mere waste of money and the making of false diaries, besides encouraging bribery. The paper thinks it advisable to appoint two inspectors for each taluk notwithstanding some additional expenditure and remarks that this course would not only turn out double the amount of work, but also diminish half the vagaries that are being practised. It hears that some of the applicants to these posts have already been busy calculating the amount of their illegal gains at Rs. 10 from each village on the average. It expresses its horror at this flagrant piece of injustice and calls upon the public to take note of the impending danger, inasmuch as the candidates entertain such hopes even before they are sure of securing the appointments. The paper does not know why this impracticable scheme has been sanctioned instead of continuing remunerations, when necessary, for revenue officials looking after this department of work. It remarks that no good can at all be expected from these inspectors, whereas the people would be constantly troubled with their threats and that the scheme would simply benefit the inspectors at the expense of the Local funds.

Local Fund inspectors.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 22nd, 1896.

16. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd June, has a leading article in English under this heading and the following is an extract from it:—"The rate-payers of the Civil and Military Station are in a state of agitation on account of the scavengering cess that has been imposed upon the place. They are of opinion that taxes in abundance had already been put upon them. In the next place they look upon the cess-tax as illegal. In the time of Mr. Sandford a similar tax was imposed. The rate-payers memorialised the Government of India, and it was declared that the impost was illegal, it could not be enforced, and all the money collected must be returned. This was about twelve years ago. During these twelve years nothing was said about the tax. Now it has been revived, and the people are expressing their indignation. It seems clear that, if the cess-tax was illegal twelve years ago, it must be illegal now. There is another reason why they should not pay the tax. We are given to understand that the measure has not obtained the sanction of the Government of India, that it has been enforced while in the form of a draft, and this is illegal. Should the Government disallow the tax, all the money paid will have to be refunded. Why did not the municipal authorities first obtain this sanction, then insist on the tax being paid? This would have been the right course to pursue, but municipalities rarely follow the right course, but just the opposite. Then again the municipality seems inclined to introduce certain changes with regard to the scavengering of the houses of the native community, and this is sure to cause great dissatisfaction. There ought to be a great demonstration made against the hateful tax."

The scavengering cess in Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 13th, 1896.

17. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th June, comments upon the G.O., No. 812 L. and M., dated 11th May 1896, passed upon the memorial that was submitted to Government by the Calicut municipality protesting against certain remarks made by the Government in the matter of the payment of a large sum of money to one Arumugam Chettiyar in satisfaction of a decree obtained by him in a suit for damages brought by him against the municipality. Although it is stated in the order quoted above that Government sees no reason to cancel its previous order, yet, on a close examination, it can positively be said that the previous order has virtually been cancelled and that the present order is so worded as to avoid any censure being cast on the previous Government. The above order of the Governor in Council gives satisfaction not only to the councillors, but also to the rate-payers and it is calculated to create an impression in the minds of the public that Sir Arthur Havelock's Government will not tolerate any injustice. The remark is made that, as it is very unjust to make the rate-payers suffer for the indiscretion of the chairman and as it can be inferred from the Gvernment order that the chairman is solely held responsible for the loss sustained by it, he should be called upon to recoup it.

A leader in the same paper, of the 20th June, says that the effects of Mr. Varada Rao's mismanagement of the Calicut municipality still continue. It is understood that the overseer has sent in his estimate for repairing sixty culverts in the municipality. If attention was paid to the condition of these culverts during Mr. Varada Rao's tenure of office, matters would not have reached the present crisis. Again the appointment of Chathu Nayar, who has risen from the rank of a peon, to revise the taxes on houses was one of the most indiscreet actions of Mr. Varada Rao. The assessment on houses should be levied not according to their size and appearance, but according to the rent they fetch, and, in order to exercise proper discretion in matters like this, a man of better qualifications must have been selected.

18. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th June, invites the attention of the Malabar District Board to the dangerous condition of the Pattambi-Chávakkát road, especially that portion of it from Chattukulam to Kuttangal. The correspondent adds that the people going to the Guruvayur temple by this road generally break their journey at Muthedath paramba, where a foot-path from Guruvayur joins the high road. As the way leading from the high road to the path is narrow and steep, several accidents occur to people while going down the foot-path at night. Two months ago a man had a fall and died from its effects after a few days; very recently another man had a similar accident, but it was not fatal though he lost his teeth. The correspondent therefore suggests that in order to avert such dangers, the board should erect either a parapet wall or put railings at the place.

Dangerous state of Pattambi-Kuttungal road.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

19. The Vibudharanjani, of the 27th May and 3rd June, remarks that the very unsatisfactory condition of the drainage in the Gódávari delta is too well known to the ryots as well as to the Government, and that there is no difference of opinion on the subject. It contends that, if the Madras Government really intend that the people should enjoy the benefits of the Godávari irrigation system, it cannot but see the necessity of devising some means for the complete discharge of flood water. It further believes that every right-minded person will assert that the system of drainage is in a more regrettable state than that of irrigation. It states that the canals of Enamadurru, Gonteru, Bhageswaramu, Nakkala, Kaja, Pandikodu, &c., in the western delta, which have to irrigate a wide extent of land, are in an extremely bad condition. It observes that, as the rainfall on the Coromandel coast varies a great deal, the drainage cannot be estimated with any degree of certainty. The Government under-tunnels, escapes, flood-wires, drainage culverts are works of recent introduction and have been constructed so as to drain off the flood-water, estimating its quantity roughly. They are, therefore, not large enough to afford an outlet for the whole of the rainfall in the delta. In consequence of this, the rain water from the various parts, finding its way into the canals, overflows their banks and inundates the whole of the delta land, causing enormous damage and indescribable suffering to the poor ryots. The floods of last year serve to illustrate their sufferings. There have been such floods on four or five occasions during the last fifteen years. Further, the rains falling on the hills to the north of the delta collect and flow into the canals of the eastern and western sections of the delta, inundating the villages and causing damage and destruction to the walls and houses of the villagers. These poor people are therefore obliged to contract debts for restoring them. The floods further render most of the lands unfit for cultivation, covering their surface with heaps of sand one to three feet deep, and the ryots have therefore to spend at least Rs. 20 per acre to remove the sand. In reply to the observation of Government that these floods leave alluvial deposits on the land, the paper states that it is incorrect and not possible and that the flood water, flowing as it does from the hills in the north, brings with it certain materials which affect and prevent the soil from yielding a plentiful harvest in spite of the ryots' hard labour day and night. The Red canal in the Bhímavaram taluk is one of the chief canals. The paper regrets that the attempts of the Government to diminish the damage and suffering caused by these canals have not as yet proved successful.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, May 27th and June 3rd, 1896.

Gódávari resettlement.

The paper next observes that the lands lying to the north-east of the Kollair lake being very low, they are frequently inundated by water escaping through the under-tunnels, escapes and breaches in the Ellore canal. The drainage canals there not being well kept, they are overgrown with small plants and weeds which cannot possibly be rooted out, and, as these drains are in very low lands, the flood water overflows their banks when they are out of repair as in the rainy season.

The paper remarks that, if the drainage canals are used solely for purposes of drainage, they will not be soon filled with silt. As they are now filled with silt, they have to be attended to, and, as the old under-tunnels are not working well, they have to be repaired or new tunnels have to be added. The Government officials have confessed that the drainage being so very bad the people have not been able to reap the benefits of the irrigation system. This defective drainage has not only been impoverishing the soil, but has also been destroying crops in the delta lands in times of floods. It complains that, in spite of all these disadvantages and troubles, the Government being bent upon improving its revenue, reposes absolute confidence in the statements of the settlement officers and has determined to reclassify lands notwithstanding the recent enhancement in the water-cess, and that such a procedure is wholly unbecoming on the part of the enlightened Government.

A correspondent to the same paper remarks that the resettlement in the Gódávari district was conducted when the lands were completely submerged under rain-water, and asks how the settlement officers could have examined the lands before classifying them as they were lawfully bound to do. He complains that the ryots were not informed how their lands had been classified, and that the settlement officers did not spend more than one or two days in a village, whereas the old settlement officers took two or three months to inspect the lands of a village. Mr. Master, in his report to the Board of Revenue, says that the lands were carefully classified, that their climate and natural conditions were ascertained from experienced ryots through panchayats, and that the advice of the subordinate officers acquainted with the people of the taluks was also taken on the subject. He remarks that the present settlement officers simply pretended to ascertain the real condition of the lands, and that the "settlement" does seem to be anything more than an ingenious attempt to give satisfaction to the ignorant ryots. He believes that there cannot be a grosser piece of folly than to appoint a few inexperienced officers for assessing the lands belonging to lakhs of ryots. He further observes that some of these faults came to light when the Deputy Commissioner examined the assessment of some lands in the Tanuku and Ellore taluks and expresses a doubt whether the assessment in other taluks does not involve similar defects. He remarks that the lands impoverished owing to the defective system of drainage are numerous and not a few as Mr. Grose has observed. He further believes that any improvement that may be observed in the condition of the lands between 1864 and 1894 is attributable solely to the exertions of the ryots, and observes that there is nothing more unjust than the reclassification of lands whenever Government wants money.

20. The Sanilekha, of the 19th June, in continuation of its remarks reported from its issue of the 5th June in the last fortnightly, observes that the lankas lower down the Gódávari are much inferior to those higher up the river and that the tobacco raised on the former fetches a lower price than that produced on the latter. It remarks that, as tobacco is planted in December and the crop reaped in April, the ryots find it very hard to pay kists falling due between December and March and that the severity with which the subordinate officials have been collecting the kists for the last two or three years is wholly intolerable. The people are reminded of those miserable times gone by when heavy stones were placed on the backs of the ryots for default in payment. It observes that to pay kists tobacco cannot be sold before the crop is ready as is done in the case of grains; for the price of tobacco depends upon several circumstances, such as the mode of cultivation, the nature of the soil on which it is produced, the length, colour and smell of the leaf and the skill employed in its preparation, and the variation in prices is so much that, if 500 lb. of long leaves sell for Rs. 80, the same quantity of short leaves cannot fetch more than Rs. 20. The paper remarks that, under these circumstances, the ryots cannot sell in December what will be ready only in April. It observes that, though the due dates of instalments of revenue have continued to be so inopportune for a very long time, the fact does not seem to have been known to Government until a question was put recently on the subject by the Honourable Mr. N. Subba Rao Pantulu at a meeting of the Madras Legislative Council, as is evident from the answers given by Government. The paper observes that innumerable difficulties beset the cultivation and preservation of tobacco. It further observes that the subtenants are too poor to participate in the loss when the crop fails, that the foreign demand for Gódávari lanka tobacco has greatly diminished and that the lessees are unlawfully compelled to pay kists at the times fixed even their offers to pay interest too at 6 per cent. being refused. In consequence of these difficulties the lanka ryots are suffering immensely.

SANILEKHA, Madras, June 19th, 1896.

The miserable condition of the people in the Gódávari lankas.

The same paper, of the 26th June, in continuation of its remarks in its issue of the 19th June (vide supra) observes that tobacco and indigo, the only products raised on these lankas, are not articles indispensable to human existence, that their crops are more than what the country needs, and that they cannot fetch good prices when foreign demand is slack. Further, tobacco undergoes changes in smell, colour, weight and quality with lapse of time, and cannot therefore be preserved for more than a year like grains; similarly, indigo seeds must be disposed of in the year in which they are produced. Even indigo has fallen in price for the last two or three years, causing heavy loss to the ryots and merchants. The paper considers it necessary that Government should redress the grievances of the people without being actuated by the simple desire to secure a larger revenue by these lanka leases. It prays the Government to appoint a commission to inquire into the required changes in the kist dates, to ascertain the causes of the fall in the prices of tobacco and indigo, to consider measures for the cultivation of other crops on these lankas and generally to better the condition of the people.

21. The Lokopakari, of the 10th June, dilating on the sufferings of the poor mirasidars of the Trichinopoly district, caused by the rigour of the police, forest and settlement authorities, says that a good harvest of nanjai produce entirely depends upon the quantity of dried leaves supplied as manure to the cultivated land, and complains that the forest authorities refuse to sell dried leaves to the ryots whenever they apply for them. The paper further complains that pound authorities deal with the owners of impounded cattle arbitrarily by refusing to give them the "pass" without which the cattle cannot be removed from the pound, and by demanding feeding charges at the rate of two annas per day for the number of days the cattle remain in the pound in consequence. The paper entreats Government to pay attention to the matter here complained of.

Arbitrary dealings of the forest and pound authorities in the district of Trichinopoly.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 26th, 1896.

Not allowing cattle to feed in forest reserves.

22. The Sasilekha, of the 26th June, referring to the memorial presented to Government by the people of Uttankarai taluk, Coimbatore district, remarks that it is advantageous to Government itself to allow the sheep and goats of the ryots to feed on the creepers in the forest reserves; for, if they are not so allowed and if the said creepers be let grow on tall trees, the plants below die for want of sunshine, and, if their leaves drop on the ground and dry, they are liable to catch fire and burn the valuable wood in the forests. The paper next observes that Government has sustained a loss of Rs. 22,000 owing to the death of cattle from scarcity of food, that the people are suffering from dearth of meat, that the ryots have no cattle to sell for payment of kists as before, and that the fields are becoming impoverished for want of manure. It, therefore, prays the Government to redress these grievances.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 15th, 1896.

The difficulties of native passengers.

23. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 15th June, while describing the several advantages afforded by the opening of the railways, notes the following as some of the difficulties generally experienced by the natives, and invites the attention of the authorities with a view to steps being taken to remedy the evils complained of:—Very often articles, such as piece-goods, fruits, &c., sent by railways are stolen, and it is in vain to complain to the authorities. They never take any notice of the complaints. Contrary to the railway regulations, more than ten passengers are taken in the compartments at intermediate stations and the occupants put to great inconvenience. When room is wanted for any Eurasian, the railway servants compel the natives to quit their compartment and allow the exclusive use of that compartment to the Eurasian. Their luggage is not weighed and charged. If there be any one among the Eurasians below the age of 16, the railway officials allow him to travel at half rates, while, in the case of native children of the age of 12 and below, full charge is demanded at the destination. This is mostly due to the stationmasters and ticket-collectors being Eurasians. The mail trains generally stop only for about five minutes at intermediate stations and the porters do not open the doors immediately to allow the passengers to go out to answer the calls of nature. The carriages are not provided with urinals as in North Indian Railway carriages. At the time of festivals at Kanchi, Chidambaram, Tirupati and other places a sufficient number of carriages is not kept in readiness. Passengers are huddled together in goods-trucks, wagons, &c. With regard to female passengers travelling in the carriages exclusively reserved for them, the incidents that lately occurred on the South Indian Railway are sufficient to convince anybody of the danger they are exposed to. These and similar other difficulties may be remedied if the railway authorities pay a little more attention to the comforts of native passengers.

JANOPAKARI, Madras, June 6th, 1896.

Advisability of excavating a feeder channel in the Nayar village in Ponnéri taluk.

24. A correspondent to the Janopakari, of the 6th June, draws the attention of Government to the memorial of the people of the village of Nayar in Ponnéri taluk, requesting Government to secure water-supply for the tank of the village by excavating a feeder channel from the river Kusasthalai. He says that, in response to this memorial, the engineering authorities merely surveyed the place and nothing has been heard afterwards and requests Government to adopt speedy measures for the excavation of the channel prayed for.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

25. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th June, invites the attention of the Commissioner of Salt and Abkári Revenue and the Government to the necessity of putting a stop to the practice of measuring female offenders in salt and abkári cases in the interests of public morality. The depositions given in the Neelisaran Sub-Magistrate's court by the two sub-inspectors who stood charged with rape amply testify that the above practice is very common in the department. Even in criminal cases, where the measurement of offenders is of great importance to the police, females are exempted by a special provision in the measurement book of the Police department. The editor is, therefore, at a loss to understand why the same practice should not be followed in the Salt department.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 17th, 1896.

The practice of measuring female offenders in salt cases to be discontinued.

(k) General.

26. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 5th June, complains that the authorities issue stamps to the vendors in the taluk of Gudiyáttam only once a week instead of twice as formerly, and that this subjects the people to much inconvenience. The correspondent requests the authorities to adopt the old method of issuing stamps twice a week.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 5th, 1896.

A request to issue stamps to the vendors twice a week in the taluk of Gudiyáttam.

27. The Dravida Pandiyan, of the 6th June, draws the much-needed attention of Government to the fact that in the establishment list of the Government Press English names are properly addressed by the addition of Mr. or Esq. to the name, whereas native names are addressed without the honorific prefix M.R.Ry.

DRAVIDA PANDIYAN, Madras, June 6th, 1896.

A complaint that the term M.R.Ry. is not prefixed to native names in the establishment list of the Government Press.

28. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th June, says that rumour has it that the Honourable Messrs. Bliss and Gross do not agree with the opinion of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock in certain matters relating to administration, and regrets to remark that such a state of things, if true, is not satisfactory. With regard to the subject referred by the Government of India for opinion as to whether it is advisable to grant family pension to Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents of Police, the paper says that it seems that the Honourable Messrs. Bliss and Gross recommend the grant of the pension in question, whereas His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock, in consideration of the overtaxed condition of the people and the limited nature of their resources, is against the grant of such pension. The paper thinks that it is not desirable that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock's position in the council should be weak.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 9th, 1896.

Want of agreement between His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock and the other Members of Council.

29. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 10th June, complains that the hospital assistant attached to the Tirukkóyilúr dispensary treats the patients with an air of indifference as if he was not a servant in the dispensary, and that the compounder was the only person to attend to the patients that crowd in large numbers there. The correspondent wishes the authorities concerned to inquire into the matter.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, June 10th, 1896.

A complaint against the hospital assistant attached to the Tirukkóyilúr dispensary.

30. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th June, requests the postal authorities to open a branch post office in the taluk of Vadakkancheri in Cochin State on the ground that the people of that taluk now suffer great hardship and personal inconvenience from want of a post office and are obliged to go a distance of twelve or fourteen miles for sending money orders and for registering letters, &c.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 12th, 1896.

Necessity for a post office in the taluk of Vadakkancheri in Cochin State.

He adds that, owing to the absence of a post office, letters are disbursed only once a week, and the inconvenience of such a system can be better imagined than described specially in a taluk where there are tahsildars, munsifs and police courts.

Advisability of extending the paracheri (survey No. 69) in the village of Karikkalavakkam in Tiruvallur taluk.

31. A correspondent to the same paper observes that the village-site (survey No. 69), now occupied by Paraiyas in the village of Karikkalavakkam in Tiruvallur taluk, is too small in area to hold the Paraiya population and is unfit for habitation, as is evident from the frequent outbreak of epidemics as a consequence of over-population. He says that the authorities inspected the place and promised seven months ago to extend the paracheri by purchasing the plot of land (survey No. 60) and nothing has been done yet. The correspondent requests the members of the Legislative Council to move this subject before the council and do the needful.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, June 16th, 1896.

Remarks on the suggestion of the Secretary of State regarding the advisability of reducing the number of members of the Board of Revenue from four to three.

32. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th June, reporting that the Secretary of State has referred to the Government of Madras for opinion a suggestion whether it is advisable to reduce the number of members of the Board of Revenue from four to three and to direct the members engaged in Land Revenue to do the work of the present last member, even as they managed the administration of the Forest department, heartily approves of the suggestion and remarks that its adoption would enable Government to save Rs. 36,000 per annum. The paper adds that, at the time when the affairs connected with the Land Revenue were first brought into order, the Board of Revenue had heavy work to do and its existence was then felt indispensable; but now the Board has very little to do as most of the work connected with the administration is obliged to be done by Government itself—so much so that it may be doubted whether such an institution as the Board of Revenue is necessary at all. The paper further says that civilians will always complain whenever they hear of the abolition of an office which has a large salary attached to it and much more so in this case as they apprehend the abolition of the Board of Revenue.

VRITTANTAMANJARI, Madras, June 13th, 1896.

Post offices for villages.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 13th, 1896.

Gódávari karnams' grievances.

34. The Andhraprakasika, of the 13th June, speaking of the grievances of the karnams in the Gódávari district, thinks it to be an anomaly that the village munsifs should be called heads of villages with considerable powers conferred on them, for they are generally illiterate and ignorant of law. They get the Government village servants to attend to the cultivation of their fields to the prejudice of their official duties. Thus karnams are deprived of all help from those servants in the discharge of their duty. It regrets that the karnams, who, as a matter of fact, discharge the whole of the public functions relating to villages, have no powers to exercise and receive salaries which are too low to meet even their travelling expenses. It considers that public duties would be better performed if the judicial and revenue functions of the village be separated, entrusting the former to the village munsif and the latter to the karnam, distributing the village establishment between them. It regrets that the duties now devolving on the karnam are too numerous and varied and his work entirely burdensome. He has to look after the registration of births and deaths, keep accounts of cattle disease, enter accounts relating to tree tax after making searching inquiries as regards trees extending over four or five miles in eight different forms, go about four or five miles every day during half the month to inspect fields, cultivation, demarcation stones and to ascertain the tirwajasti lands and measure them, make entries of all these items in the accounts, attend to vaccination lists and other items of business as in the village manual, write accounts and reports relating to civil and magisterial cases which ought to be done by the village munsifs, bring up accounts every day of the kist moneys collected, make out famine analysis and write extra accounts received from the Revenue Board and the huzur. The paper observes that the salary of a karnam amounts to Rs. 72 a year, out of which he has to spend Rs. 48, at As. 4 a day, as hotel charges during the six months that he is detained at the taluk cutcherry for the preparation of accounts and deeply regrets that the karnam is made to work so hard for such a paltry pay. It further remarks that the work of the karnams is apportioned at the taluk and huzur cutcherries among a number of clerks drawing Rs. 15 a month and travelling allowances in addition. It is sadly concerned to know whether the old saying of the puranas that in future the just and the industrious will thrive but little has to be realised in the case of these karnams. On their behalf it prays the Government and the new Governor in particular to alleviate their misery, granting them increased salaries and travelling allowances, as in the case of the taluk and huzur officials, entrusting to them solely the revenue work of the village.

35. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 15th June, disapproves of the appointment of Mr. Rama Rao, Tahsildar of Uppinangadi, newly made Deputy Collector in the place of Mr. Austin who was in charge of the Head Assistant's division when Mr. Murphy was made Sub-Collector. The editor says that the division comprises the two large taluks of Palghat and Ponnani and that Mr. Rama Rao being new to the work, the work will be more satisfactorily discharged by Mr. Austin.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 15th, 1896.

The appointment of Mr. Rama Rao to be in charge of the Head Assistant's division, Palghat, disapproved of.

A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th June, referring to the same subject, concurs in the above opinion.

36. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 15th June, invites the attention of postal authorities to the irregular delivery of letters, &c., in Tarur amsam in Alathur division. In spite of the rule that two deliveries should be made in that amsam every week, the postman goes there only once in two or three weeks. Many letters and newspapers are lost as the postman hands them over to any person in the amsam asking him to deliver them to the addressees.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 15th, 1896.

Postal irregularities.

The above complaint is supported by a leader in the same issue of the paper. The editor says that the complaint is well-founded as is evident from the fact that two or three consecutive issues of the paper are sometimes returned to him on the same date as refused by the subscribers which shows that they must have reached them on the same day instead of due dates. He draws the attention of the Postal Superintendent to the matter.

37. Referring to the proposal of the Madras Tramway Company concerning the construction of three additional sections, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 15th June, draws the attention of the company to the need that exists for lines from Mailapúr through Adyar to Papan's Choultry and from Mount Road to China Bazaar, and says great inconvenience is felt by the people generally and particularly by those who frequent China Bazaar and the High Court as they are obliged either to employ jatkas or to walk for want of a direct line in that direction. The Shams further observes that until those lines are constructed, the electric tramway system in Madras will remain defective. It also suggests the reduction of the present fare which is too high.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, June 15th, 1896.

The proposed construction of additional tramway lines in Madras.

A fatal accident on the tramway line in Black Town.

39. In commenting with disapproval upon the appointment by Government of Ali Dost Sahib, pensioned Inspector of Police, as manager to Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba, the same paper remarks that Government has no right to interfere in the household affairs of Her Highness, who has hitherto managed her affairs independently. Latterly, some self-interested and designing persons, in order to plunder Her Highness, have raised a hue and cry against her and have succeeded in their design. Her Highness is in receipt of an allowance of six or seven thousand rupees a month as the widow of the last Nawab of the Carnatic. She has full control over this allowance and is at liberty to dispose of it at will. Now Government has unjustly appointed a manager on a salary of Rs. 500 a month against her wish. Her Highness' establishment being a small one needs no manager. An accountant on Rs. 20 a month would suffice to disburse the pay of Her Highness' domestic and out-door servants and to keep an account of income and expenditure. The salary of the Diwan of the last Nawab of the Carnatic was only Rs. 500 a month although he had under him several large establishments and departments. There are zamindars in the Madras Presidency whose managers do not get more than one hundred or one hundred and fifty rupees a month although they are entrusted with the collection of large revenues. Moreover, Deputy Collectors of the sixth class, who have several taluks in their charge and exercise magisterial functions, get only Rs. 250 a month. It is also alleged that the manager is to be lodged and boarded at Her Highness' expense. This is an additional injustice on the part of Government. The Shams is sure that Her Highness will not accept the proposed arrangement. It is a great pity that Government should fill the pockets of others at Her Highness' expense. If the Begam wishes to pay any of her servants one thousand rupees or more a month she is at liberty to do so; but Government should not thrust by force into her small establishment a manager on a salary of Rs. 500 a month, not to speak of his lodging and boarding expenses.

Reasons against the appointment of Ali Dost Sahib as manager of Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, June 22nd, 1896.

40. Referring to the appointment by Government of Ali Dost Sahib as manager to Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 22nd June, says that the procedure, which has hitherto been adopted by Government as regards the Begam, has been high-handed. It is surprising to hear of the appointment of a manager on a salary of Rs. 500 per mensem with free quarters, &c. (to be disbursed from her allowance) for the purpose of conducting the duties of her small establishment. It observes that it is understood that Her Highness' allowance will be drawn under the hand of the said manager who is a well-known member of the non-Sunni (Shia) community, that he will have full control over her allowance and that Her Highness will be like a prisoner under him and will have to content herself with the food and clothing which he may be pleased to give her.

Appointment of Ali Dost Sahib as manager to Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba.

The Shams, in this connection, asks why does the Government not defray the boarding and lodging expenses of the managers of its offices and departments, and observes that the reason why Her Highness has been defraying the expenses of the late Mirza Firoz Husain Bahadur in addition to his salary of Rs. 500 and why he had full control over her household affairs was that Her Highness had given the daughter of her foster-sister in marriage to him and that she was treating him as her own son-in-law and this was, of course, a matter within her discretion. The Shams further remarks that Government squanders thousands of rupees in the annual exodus to the hills and in many other extravagances in spite of the fact that this money belongs to the tax-payers. Such being the case, Government has no right to meddle with the allowance which is the Begam's own property and with which she can do as she pleases. By such unjust interference the confidence which the public have in Government is shaken and the Begam, who is a helpless widow, is greatly oppressed. The Shams finally advises Government to cancel the appointment and avoid interfering in these affairs.

The same paper states that the Mukhbir-i-Deccan, in criticising the appointment of Ali Dost Sahib as manager to Her Highness Nawab Khair-nu-nisa Begam Sahiba, gives a very long account of the events that occurred previous to the appointment and says that the appointment is unjust and the salary attached to the post too high. It does not know why Government should decline to approve of the nomination by Her Highness of Abd-ul Hadi Pasha Sahib, who is a respectable and thoroughly qualified merchant and observes that it does not become Government to treat the Begam at her advanced age in such a manner. The Mukhbir fears she will sicken and die.

The Mukhbir finally asks Sir Arthur Havelock to pay serious attention to the matter and to cancel the appointment of Ali Dost Sahib.

Mr. Plowden and the Panjab Lieutenant-Governorship.

41. Regarding the news that Mr. Plowden, Resident at Hyderabad, will succeed Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick as Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab, the same paper says Mr. Mackworth Young, Resident in Mysore, and Sir F. Fraser, Chief Commissioner of Burma, have a superior right to the post. If, notwithstanding, the post be given to him, he will do no better in the Panjab than he has done in Hyderabad.

III.—Legislation.

The Malabar Marriage Act.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 22nd, 1896.

42. Referring to the Malabar Marriage Act the Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd June, says that the Malabar Marriage Bill received the assent of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council on the 27th May and is promulgated for general information in the current number of the Fort St. George Gazette as Madras Act IV of 1896. The paper remarks that the measure is only a step, but it is a great step, and it is glad to see that it has become law.

IV.—Native States.

A suggestion to the Mysore Government regarding the contemplated nomination of Mr. T. Weir as Deputy Commissioner of Kadur in Mysore, Dravida Pandiyan, Madras, May 30th, 1896.

43. The Dravida Pandiyan, of the 30th May, hearing that the Mysore Government intends appointing Mr. Thomas Weir as Deputy Commissioner of Kadur in Mysore, observes that Mr. N. Subramanyam is equally competent for the post, and that if a Native Government refuses to recognise native merit and native talent, it would simply demean itself in the estimation of foreign natives. The paper says that it is worth while that the Mysore Government bears in mind that it was the sin of colour and not want of merit that influenced Government in not conferring the Chief Judgeship of the Court of Small Causes on Mr. N. Subramanyam and that, if the English Government cannot have sympathy for natives, it is no reason why a Native Government also should follow its example and thus lose not only its self-respect but also the estimable regard of other natives.

Certain suggestions to the Pudukkóttai authorities regarding the Educational department.

44. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 16th June, commenting on the unsatisfactory administration of the Educational department of Pudukkóttai, says that the maintenance of a Director and three Inspectors of Schools by the State should be deemed a mere waste of money as no practical good has been done by them to promote primary education. The correspondent advises the State authorities to appoint only one Inspector and one Sub-Inspector, to fix text-books for various classes, to conduct the examinations regularly once a year and to do away with the office of the Director and utilise the sum of Rs. 6,000, which will be saved thereby, in giving grants to deserving schools and thus encourage the diffusion of primary education in that Native State.

Manorama, Calicut, June 15th, 1896.

Irregularities in the forest administration of the Cochin State and the Resident's interference in the matter.

45. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 15th June, says:—A fall of Rs. 13,000 having been noticed in the income of the Forest department of the Cochin State, the Diwan, in accordance with instructions received from the Resident, called for an explanation from the Conservator of Forests, who is said to have declined to render it, and reported the matter to the Raja. The Conservator being the Raja's favourite, the latter wrote to the Diwan demanding an explanation why the Resident was alone consulted in the matter and not he; the Diwan, in reply, said that he simply followed the custom. The correspondent adds that it is wrong on the part of the Resident to interfere in the State affairs especially without the Raja's knowledge. Subsequently the book containing the accounts for which explanation was demanded from the Conservator somehow caught fire and was destroyed although it had been placed in the midst of many other books which were uninjured. Curiously enough some innocent persons have been caught on suspicion.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, June 11th, 1896.

Mavelikkara post office.

46. A correspondent in the Kerala Mitram, of the 11th June, invites the attention of the postal authorities to the desirability of removing the post office at Mavelikkara to some place in the town so that people of all castes may have access to it. It appears the post office is at present located in a building in the fort which is nearly a mile from the town and the principal officer and into which the low castes are not allowed to enter.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, June 22nd, 1896.

The grant of permission to Europeans to acquire landed property in Hyderabad.

47. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 22nd June, states that the Paisa Akbar (place of publication not given), referring to the sanction accorded by the Government of India to the proposal of Mr. Plowden concerning the grant of permission to Europeans for acquiring landed property in Hyderabad, says Government's interference in such matters is quite uncalled for and is contrary to treaty engagements and remarks that so long as Mr. Plowden remains in Hyderabad the State will greatly suffer.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, June 8th, 1896.

Protest against Government maintaining an Ecclesiastical department.

48. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th June, protests against Government maintaining an Ecclesiastical department at a cost of 16 lakhs of rupees per annum from out of the Indian revenues. It says that, for the sake of a few European residents, Government has sanctioned a priest for three years for the Cochin State on a monthly salary of Rs. 100 and another for the sake of officials employed in the railway company. The paper says that European officials get large salaries, out of which they can conveniently maintain a priest themselves and is at a loss to know why Government propagates Christianity in India at the expense of the Hindus and Muhammadans.

49. The Janopakari, of the 16th June, says as follows:—In England, South Africa and in other parts of the British dominions, the representatives of the people look after the finance of the State; therefore every year a saving is left, so as to make the financial condition very satisfactory; whereas in India the European officials, who may not be interested in the welfare of the country, manage its finance; hence India's impecuniosity. The paper thinks it desirable that the people of India also should have the power to supervise the finance of India.

JANOPAKARI, Madras, June 16th, 1896.

Desirability of conferring on the Indians the power to manage the finance of India.

50. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th June, says that the recent appointment of a retired police inspector as agent to Her Highness the Nawab Begam Sahiba of the Carnatic on a salary of Rs. 500 to be paid from out of her monthly allowance of Rs. 6,000, with free lodging and boarding, in preference to Mr. Haji Muhammad Abd-ul Hadi, of the firm of Messrs. Haji Badshah Sahib and Co., who was recommended to Government by the widow in question to be appointed as her agent, has caused much dissatisfaction among the whole Muhammadan community so as to induce them to think that injustice has been done to their race. It further says that the agent appointed by Government and the Begam Sahiba are not in good terms, and that the order of Government that her adopted grandson, the only surviving hope and consolation of the Begam, should be expelled from her house merely makes matters worse. The paper exhorts Government to make careful inquiry into the matter and do justice to the widow of the Nawab who ceded to the English his vast dominion extending from Jaganath to Cape Comorin.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 16th, 1896.

An exhortation to Government regarding the appointment of an agent to Her Highness the Nawab Begam of the Carnatic.

51. A correspondent to the same paper reports that some of the Christian inhabitants of Srivilliputtúr are attempting to erect a church on a certain road by which the procession of Mari Ammal, a Hindu goddess, is accustomed to pass year after year at the celebration of the festival, and remarks that, if the Christians succeed in erecting a church at that place, they would surely cause the outbreak of fanatical riots like the recent one at Kalugamalai, and the loss of lives would be great. The correspondent cautions Government to be on the alert to do the needful in view to prevent such apprehended dangers.

A hint to Government regarding the contemplated erection of a church in Srivilliputtúr in the district of Tinnevelly.

52. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th June, referring to a correspondence says, that, to the great inconvenience of the public, certain janmis (landlords) have now commenced to fill up the public tank in Mayanad amsam (Calicut taluk) and plant cocoanut trees thereon. The tank is very useful for cultivation, supplies water to cattle and the low castes. Owing to its usefulness Deputy Collector, Mr. Chappu Menon, had once written to the Board in 1890 that the tank ought to be repaired at the cost of the Board. As it is highly objectionable to allow the landlords to fill a public tank for their private interest, the Collector and the Divisional officer should take notice of the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 13th, 1896.

Greediness of some of the Malabar landlords.

53. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 20th June, says that the order to stamp-vendors to discontinue the practice of adding stamp papers of less value to make up for papers of higher value should not be held applicable to court-fee stamps as the vendors in courts will thereby be forced to lay out large sums of money on stamp papers of high value for which there is little demand.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 20th, 1896.

Court-fee stamps.

54. A paragraph in the same paper says:—"A washerwoman of Peruntalmanna in Waluvanad taluk died after having been in labour for about five days. This sad occurrence could have been prevented if the Angadipuram hospital was not abolished."

Remarks on the abolition of Angadipuram hospital.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 24th, 1896.

Irregularities of ferry contractors in Malabar.

55. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th June, complains of the irregularities of ferry contractors in Malabar. The contractors do not keep sufficient number of good boats at the ferry. They unnecessarily delay passengers and generally levy from them more than the authorised rates. Good and experienced boatmen are not engaged by the contractors to avoid expense, and the passengers have in some cases to row the boat themselves across the ferry. Whenever tahsildars and other officers are expected, the contractor gets the news beforehand and makes all the arrangements to dupe them. The article cites a recent accident which occurred at the Cravampuzha ferry in Pandikad amsam in which a changadam (raft) carrying nearly thirty persons and two loaded carts sank in the river, and remarks that, if the tahsildars and revenue inspectors, who constantly move in the amsams, occasionally inspect the boats and rafts used by the contractors, such accidents could in a large measure be avoided. As a remedial measure, the editor suggests that the boatmen employed by the contractor should be paid directly by Government instead of by the contractor out of the funds collected from the latter for the purpose, so that the boatmen may do their duty independently of the contractor and that the rafts and boats should be marked with the number of persons, &c., that may be carried in each at a time.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th June, speaking of the misgovernment in Turkey, remarks as follows:—

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 29th, 1896.

The Turkish Empire.

It is well known that the massacres in Armenia were committed at the instigation of the Sultan's government. The troops of the Sultan cut down the men, women and children, and this they would not have done had the order not been given to them. The evidence on this point is quite clear and the authorities at Constantinople have not given any denial to it. These murders form a dark blot not only on Turkey, but also on all the powers of Europe, especially on France and Russia. These two powers would not join England in an endeavour to put a stop to the massacres; but it is not alone in Armenia that matters are mismanaged. Crete is once more in flame. Christians, as well as Muhammadans, are all in rebellion. The dominions of the Sultan are breaking up and one State after another is shaking off the Sultan's yoke. In short, the Turkish Empire is now in a state similar to that in which Moghul Empire in India was in its last days.

2. Referring to Cretan affairs, Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th July, says the news of the massacres has caused great uneasiness in England and questions in connection therewith are being eagerly discussed in the House of Commons. The Tilism advises England not to interfere in the matter, or she will suffer a rebuff as she did in the Armenian question.

II.—Home Administration.

3. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 29th June, complains very much that gambling of various sorts is more prevalent in Calicut than in any other part of Malabar. There have been reasons to suspect that it is carried on through the connivance of the police. During the late Muharram this nuisance had become so excessive that it was brought to the notice of the Deputy Magistrate, Mr. Swaminatha Aiyar, who made inquiries in the matter personally and arrested two of the offenders; but even then there was no abatement of this nuisance. It is to be hoped that the Superintendent of Police and the District Magistrate will take notice of these irregularities and adopt measures to put a stop to gambling.

Manorama, Calicut, June 29th, 1896.

Gambling in Calicut to be put a stop to.

Referring to the same subject a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 27th June, says that, owing to the connivance of the police, the gamblers, who are mostly Mappilas, have commenced to commit highway robberies in broad daylight and cites an instance that has recently occurred there. The leader of this notorious gang is said to be a Mappila named Jamala who has once been in jail for a similar offence.

4. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 11th July, writes regarding the inquiries conducted by the police into a dacoity committed at Nelliyalam, in the district of Nilgiris, as follows:—Although the dacoity took place in Nilgiris, the inquiries are carried on at Manjeri, in Malabar, where some policemen have arrived for the purpose. The action of the police may be said to be something akin to a daylight robbery. Owing to the advent of these myrmidons it has become difficult for respectable men to live there. The police go to some of the houses and commit various depredations, and if the owners remonstrate, the police will say that they suspect some of the members of the family and get something from them. To the people who are already terrified by the recent Mappila outbreak the investigation of the police has become a matter of greater terror. If the investigation continues for some days more, the local inhabitants will undoubtedly be put to great hardship. What will be the state of the country if policemen who are appointed for the welfare of the people themselves turn out to be oppressors. To fall out with the police, who have the power of keeping a man twenty-four hours in jail, is beyond the comprehension of these innocent people. The matter is therefore laid before the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, with a request that he will either postpone the investigation or send an able inspector for it.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, July 11th, 1896.

Oppression of the police.

(b) Courts.

MANORAMA, Calicut. June 22nd, 1896.

Sub-Magistrates to be placed under the High Court.

5. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 22nd June, says that as long as Sub-Magistrates are placed under the control of revenue officers, who exercise higher magisterial powers, the withdrawal of those powers from tahsildars fails to answer the purpose of separating the revenue and magisterial functions. Lately a case occurred at Cherpalcheri in which the accused Kannari Muhammad was sentenced by the local Sub-Magistrate to a fine of Rs. 50 and another in which on the same day he was sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment along with his brother, in both of which, however, the sentences were reversed on appeal to the District Magistrate, who ordered the case to be retried by the Deputy Magistrate, Calicut. The facts of the case are as follows:—The Special Assistant Collector, Mr. Gillespie, required some carts for carrying his things on his return from circuit from Cherpalcheri, and his peons went to the brother of the accused and asked him for his carts; but he declined to comply with the request on the ground that the bullocks had just then returned from a long drive and were consequently much fatigued and unfit for further work. Upon this the peons, getting angry, fell out with the brother of the accused and beat him. The accused was soon on the spot and he paid one of the peons back in the same coin. The accused and his brother were subsequently arrested, and, at the instance of the Special Assistant Collector, the peons lodged a complaint before the Sub-Magistrate whose unjust procedure is referred to above. It cannot of course be presumed that the magistrate had any special instruction from Mr. Gillespie, but at the same time it is hardly possible to believe that the conduct of the magistrate was not entirely guided by a fear of the Special Assistant Magistrate. Complaints of this sort will never cease as long as the Sub-Magistrates are not placed immediately under the High Court.

(c) Jails.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 20th, 1896.

A complaint against the jail authorities at Vellore.

6. The Lokopakari, of the 20th June, taking for granted that the following act of injustice was done in the central jail at Vellore, prays that Government will be good enough to institute necessary inquiry into the subject and get the offenders punished:—One Arumuga Mudaliyar, of the village of Atanangiri, in Sríperumbúdúr division, Chingleput district, was charged, on the 3rd instant, with the offence of having felled some trees standing on poramboke lands, without the necessary permission, and was sentenced to six weeks' rigorous imprisonment by the local magistrate. When an appeal was preferred on the same day to the Deputy Magistrate (?), an order of release from the jail was passed thereon by the said officer. A certain relative of the prisoner carried the order to the jailor in charge of the central jail at Vellore and delivered it there three and a half hours before the arrival of the prisoner at the jail in question, the latter having been kept at Katpadi during the previous night. The person who had brought the order told the constable in charge of the prisoner that he had delivered the order of release to the jailor and requested that the prisoner might be left free. In spite of the earnest entreaty on the part of the said person and the prisoner, the head of the prisoner was shaved and he was treated in an ignominious manner, nay, he was severely beaten by the jail warder.

7. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd July, learns that one Arumuga Mudaliyar, a mirasidar in the village of Atanangiri, in the Chingleput district, was convicted of cutting timber in a Government forest without license and was sentenced by the magistrate to rigorous imprisonment for six weeks. The mirasidar at once obtained a copy of the judgment and applied to the Appellate Court to be let on bail. Bail was accepted and he was ordered to be released. The order for release on bail and the prisoner reached the Vellore jail almost simultaneously; but the jail authorities, instead of releasing the man at once, submitted him to the degradation of having his head shaved and compelled him to wear the jail uniform. The mirasidar is a respectable man and had made a religious vow not to get shaved until he had finished the construction of a temple which he had commenced building. The compulsory shaving of his head in the face of the order for his release was therefore a violation of his vow. When he brought this to the notice of the jail authorities he was severely beaten and made to eat the ragi conjee served to prisoners in the jail. The editor says that if this account is true the matter deserves to be investigated by Government.

Irregular proceedings of the jail authorities in Vellore.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, July 2nd, 1896.

8. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th June, complains that inspecting schoolmasters, while on circuit, accept from teachers of village schools illegal gratification in the shape of money as well as provisions, such as rice, dholl, &c., and that if any teacher declines to follow this unjust course, his school will be so badly reported upon as to make it ineligible for grant. He says that the authorities concerned have in one or two places neglected to check these irregularities although informed of the same.

A suggestion to the educational authorities.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 26th, 1896.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd July, reports that the Bombay University has passed a resolution that candidates failing in any subject in an examination shall be required to appear in that particular subject only at a subsequent examination, and wishes that the same rules were adopted by the University of Madras.

A hint to the Madras University.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 3rd, 1896.

(e) Local and Municipal.

10. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th June, commenting upon the appointment of Mr. Ellis as acting President of the Madras Municipality, says that Government is not justified in not paying heed to the resolution of the Municipal Commissioners for the City of Madras recommending that Mr. P. Ramasawmy Chettiyar be made to act for the President. The paper adds that Mr. Ramasawmy Chettiyar is an old servant of the municipality and has also acted many a time as President, and Government has committed an error in overlooking his claims on this occasion.

A remark on the refusal of Government to appoint Mr. P. Ramasawmy Chettiyar to act as the President of the Madras Municipality.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 19th, 1896.

11. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 20th June, writes as follows:—Government did not approve of a certain recommendation made by the Commissioners for the City of Madras regarding a particular subject on the ground that the recommendation in question was not called for. The Municipal Commissioners are the representatives of the ratepayers who labour for the good of the community at large, and consequently their opinion and suggestion must naturally be highly conducive to public welfare; but how shall we be justified in saying that their opinion is useless? If Government fails to pay due regard to the opinion of the Commissioners, then of what use is a Commissioner to the people? Government may as well

Reflections regarding Government's disapproval of the recommendations of the Municipal Commissioners for the City of Madras.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, June 20th, 1896.

disfranchise the city of Madras and fill the municipal board with its own nominees. Municipal Commissioners are not now nodding puppets, but are men of sound learning, deep thought and vast experience, and to say that such persons shall have no power to recommend is not right.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI, Madras, June 1896.

Medical officers.

12. The Hindujanasamskarini, for June, referring to the order lately passed to the effect that the house-tax in the municipalities should be raised, for the purpose of maintaining apothecaries and assistant surgeons in addition to hospital assistants, remarks that the whole money expended on the Medical department is a mere waste. It observes that the surgeons, assistant surgeons, hospital assistants and apothecaries think too highly of themselves to realise their position as ministers to the well-being of the people. Large sums of money are expended as salaries to these medical officers, while suitable medicines are not available at the hospitals. Some mixture or powder is indifferently administered to the patient, who finds no relief. The poor people have no mind therefore to resort to the hospitals. The paper observes that while the hospitals for males are in this plight, it was thought necessary to establish hospitals for females, and a fund was started under the auspices of Lady Dufferin. The lady doctors, maintained by the fund, demand private fees and do not pay the requisite particular attention to diseases peculiar to women. They are of no help to the people. It considers it necessary that the local fund and municipal medical officers and the lady doctors should be prohibited from receiving private fees. It further observes that these medical officers unnecessarily refuse medical certificates to candidates desiring to enter the public service, and that they do not disclose defects if they or those that are near them are given bribes. There is no advantage to the people, it says, from the Government medical service.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 11th, 1896.

Rejoicing at the partial enfranchisement of the Calicut municipality.

13. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 11th July, while noticing with great pleasure the partial election granted to the Calicut municipality, says that the citizens of Calicut should be grateful to His Excellency the Sir Arthur Havelock for having restored to them this privilege for which they were fighting so much during the time of Lord Wenlock. The article also expresses gratitude to Mr. Hewetson, the Collector of Malabar, who submitted the rate-payers' memorial to Government favourably endorsing the prayers contained therein. It does not consider that the number of twelve councillors allowed to be elected under the partial franchise is sufficient, and therefore exhorts the councillors to discharge the duties properly and willingly so that the full franchise they formerly enjoyed may be restored.

Local Fund Engineering department, Malabar.

14. A leader in the same paper, while noticing that some of the overseers and clerks employed in the Malabar District Board Engineering department are unpassed and incompetent men who have got into the service by favouritism, invites the attention of the authorities to the necessity of appointing qualified men for such posts.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 4th, 1896.

Remarks on the postponement of the Malabar settlement.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 4th July, is glad to hear that His Excellency the Governor has postponed the Malabar settlement for three years. Although this postponement will not result in permanent good to the district, yet the fact that the people of Malabar will not be called upon to pay a revenue of twenty lakhs of rupees a year for three years at least will afford them great relief. If future Governors sympathise with the people, they may perhaps again postpone the settlement, but the pressure of the India Government for money is very great, and so the people of Malabar should not lose this opportunity of appealing to that Government to exempt Malabar from the re-settlement.

(h) Railways.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th June, describing the dangers sustained by passengers in the Mayavaram-Muttupet line owing to the absence of light in the train, and commenting on the frequent destruction of cattle due to the absence of railings on either side of the said line, requests the South Indian Railway authorities to do the needful to avoid such dangers. He also requests the said authorities to appoint an additional Brahmin to supply the passengers with water at the railway station of Tiruvarur, where passengers from all directions crowd in as it is a junction station.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 26th, 1896.

Certain suggestions to the South Indian Railway authorities regarding the Mayavaram-Muttupet line.

17. The Desabhimani, of the 1st July, requests the South Indian Railway authorities to open a goods-shed at the railway station of Tiruppáppuliyúr as its absence subjects the Tiruppáppuliyúr public to great inconvenience.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, July 1st, 1896.

Necessity for a goods shed at the railway station of Tiruppáppuliyúr.

18. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd July, says that Government has long been contemplating the laying down of a line of railway between Mysore and Tellicherry and thinks that this line, if constructed, would be of great use to the people of Coorg.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, July 2nd, 1896.

Advantages of a railway between Mysore and Tellicherry.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th June, reporting that certain missionaries are erecting a church in a certain street whereon the procession of a Hindu god is accustomed to pass at Tiruvadi, in the district of Tanjore, says that the people of Tiruvadi submitted a memorial to the bishop, who was living at Pondicherry, objecting to the erection of the church in question and that, after the lapse of six months from the submission of the memorial, the District Collector of Tanjore issued summons against the koil tambiran of Tiruvadi and Soondrum Aiyar, vakil of the place, and directed the tambiran to apologise to the bishop. The paper thinks it desirable that Government should so act in this matter as not to leave in the minds of Hindus an impression that Government favours Christian missionaries.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 30th, 1896.

A hint to Government regarding the erection of a church in Tiruvadi in the district of Tanjore.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 30th June, remarks that the upkeep of a large military establishment in India—to help the Government of England in its foreign wars—simply serves to drain the Indian exchequer and thereby drives Government to the necessity of subjecting the people to further taxation so as to make their condition more miserable. The paper says that Government pleads want of money for not effecting a total separation of the judicial from the revenue functions of Deputy Tahsildars and for not encouraging higher education, but that upon the Military department it does not grudge to lavish its revenues. The paper styles such an act of Government as a "political stratagem" and requests the commission nominated for inquiring into expenditure in India to pay due attention to this policy.

A protest against Government maintaining a large military establishment.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 3rd July, reports that, owing to an outbreak of hostility between the idle and turbulent characters of Madras and the native regiment stationed at Perambore, the sepoys assault the passers-by with impunity, so much so that people fear to go alone in the road. He regrets to learn that the Commissioner of Police, Madras, has not taken steps in regard to this matter even though fifteen days have elapsed since its first occurrence. The correspondent suggests to Government the advisability of transferring this regiment to another station to avoid further trouble.

HINDUJANASAMSKARINI, Madras, June 1896.

British administration in India.

22. The Hindujanasamskarini, for June, remarks that the British are governing India like merchants and not as rulers of a country. Their laws are adapted to their advantage, while their administration disregards the interests of the Indian subjects.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 13th, 1896.

The greediness of the English.

23. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th July, takes an extract from the Rasikaranjani which runs thus:—The English are never satisfied with the money they get. They are not mere rulers, but rather ruler-merchants. No nation is so clever in making money. They have various means of acquiring it, which are too numerous to recount here. They make a profit on the school books purchased by children. They receive money in the savings bank at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., but lend money to ryots at 5 per cent. Still our people borrow money from Government for improving their lands. Lately our Government (?) has issued circular No. 1555, dated 29th April 1896, increasing this rate of interest to 6 per cent. It takes nearly two years for the ryot to improve a land after the money is borrowed. We therefore hope the Government will not increase the rate of interest, but stick to the old 5 per cent.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 1st, 1896.

Village postmasters.

24. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st July, after giving a graphic description of the irregularities of the village postmaster, invites the attention of the postal authorities to the desirability of improving that branch of the service by the introduction of men of education and respectability.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, June 29th, 1896.

The appointment of Ali Dost Sahib as manager to Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba.

25. In commenting again on the appointment by Government of Ali Dost Sahib as manager to Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba and on the salary attached to the post, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 29th June, says though the office of the Carnatic Stipendiaries has, in addition to "receipt signing," much political work to perform, yet the pay of its head is Rs. 250 and that of its manager is Rs. 60 only. The first uncovenanted assistant of the Chief Secretariat performs the different functions of the Secretaries yet he draws Rs. 500 only. Such being the case, an accountant on a salary of Rs. 25 per mensem will suffice to keep accounts and to disburse the pay of the small establishment of the Begam. The Shams observes that the high-handed procedure of Government has wounded the feelings of all excepting a few evilly-disposed persons. It remarks that it does not become Government to trouble the Begam in her dotage by passing unjust orders and by forcibly carrying them out. It strongly advises Government to reconsider the order.

Referring to the above appointment, the Qasim, of the 29th June, says that it does not know why Government should make such appointment against the desire of the Begam to whose discretion it should have left the matter. The Qasim, after praising the editor of its Madras contemporary, the Mukhbir-i-Deccan for having published in many of its issues strong articles against the unjust procedure of Government, invites the attention of His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to these articles.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, July 6th, 1896.

Accident on the Madras tramway line.

26. Referring to the accident that occurred on the Madras tramway line on the 12th June, in which an old man received injuries which resulted in his death, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 6th July, states that the tram-car drivers are either blind, deaf, drunk or idiotic, otherwise they would not offend so frequently. It also observes that remedial measures should be adopted by the authorities and the company and the tram-car drivers should receive exemplary punishment.

III.—Legislation.

Desirability of passing into an Act the draft Bill amending Act XX of 1863.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th June, thinks it desirable that draft Bill amending Act XX of 1863 (Hindu Devastanam Act), which is now before the Council, should be passed into an Act, as it is decidedly an improvement on the said Act. He says that the draft Bill contains provisions necessary for the efficient administration of Hindu devastanams, namely, for changing the members of the committee once in five years, for revising the list of voters from time to time, for investing the committee with powers to deal severely with those trustees who are negligent and disobedient, for supervising the accounts kept by the trustees as well as by the committee, and for recovering from the trustees a certain sum of money for the maintenance of the establishment of the committee, and so forth, whereas Act XX of 1863 is silent on these points.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 26th, 1896.

Legislature to adopt measures to put a stop to melcharts (overlease).

28. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 1st July, regrets to observe that the Government has not yet enacted any law to regulate the relations between the landlords and tenants in Malabar. It remarks that the tenants are very much oppressed by the landlords in various ways, of which the most oppressive one is said to be their practice of putting on melchart (overlease) the land already leased to one tenant. The article brings to the notice of the authorities a recent instance of a melchart in which one Blahayil Tachunni Nayar obtained from the Zamorin of Calicut a melchart on the landed property which brings a rent of 600 paras of paddy and of Rs. 250 and which has for a long time been held and enjoyed by Vattezhuth Konthan Nayar on the ground that the latter took a civil warrant against the former for a debt of Rs. 30. The editor, after dwelling upon the matter at some length, remarks that as it can be ascertained on inquiry that most of the melcharts are given or obtained either for some trifling causes or for the purpose of oppressing the tenants at the instance of some others, the legislature ought immediately to adopt measures for putting a stop to this pernicious custom.

A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 4th July, alluding to the same subject, expresses a similar opinion. The remark is made that if Government does not put a stop to melcharts, not only will the Mappila outbreaks not cease, but Nayar outbreaks also will gradually occur.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, July 1st, 1896.

IV.—Native States.

Inefficiency of the police in the taluk of Vadakkancherri in Cochin State.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd June, reports that in the taluk of Vadakkancherri, in Cochin, robbers plunder and outrage the people with impunity and that there is no police to come to the people's rescue. The correspondent hopes that the State authorities will adopt proper measures to make the police do its duty vigilantly.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 23rd 1896.

High-handedness in the Nizam's territory.

30. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd July, says that a certain rich man was enjoying some jaghirs in Hyderabad. These jaghirs were claimed by a peishkar as his ancestral property. When the Nizam heard of the dispute about the jaghirs, he at once took possession of them and told the parties that the jaghirs would be retained in the possession of the Government until their claims were settled by the Board of Revenue. The editor says that this is the policy of the Moghuls, and wonders that such a policy should be in vogue in these days.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, July 2nd, 1896.

Auditing of the accounts of the Mysore Government.

31. A correspondent to the Mysore Desabhimani, of the 28th June, speaking of the work of Mr. Biddulph, who has been sent to audit the accounts of the Mysore Government, says that although the auditing work has been going on for the last several months, the auditor has not been able to find a single flaw in the accounts. This the correspondent says is due to the fact that the Controller was allowed some time to square up the accounts beforehand and thinks that, unless a new Controller is appointed, Mr. Biddulph will not be able to see the real state of the accounts. He must scrutinize every item shown under the head of miscellaneous expenditure and also check the totals with those shown by the Diwan in the annual reports. Then alone he will be able to see the real state of things.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 27th, 1896.

British servants not required to address all the members of the Travancore royal family as His or Her Highness.

32. A leader in the Malayala Kerala Patrika, of the 27th June, says that the British Resident of Travancore states in his reply to Captain Dawson, Assistant Resident, that no British servants should address the members of the royal family excepting the Maharaja and the senior Rani as His or Her Highness. Such a prohibition in its result would naturally be quite derogatory to the dignity of the royal family. The members of the royal house of Her Majesty the Queen Empress are all often addressed as their Royal Highnesses although they are none of them the ruling sovereigns of the day. The Travancore royal family is one of the oldest and the most renowned of Native States in India, and it would be unjust to deprive its members of a title that has long been in use in addressing them.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, July 11th, 1896.

British servants and the royal family of Travancore.

33. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 11th July, gives the following as the reason why the British Resident in Travancore reported to the Government that British servants, whose services are lent to the Travancore State, should be prohibited from addressing the princes as "their Highnesses." Very shortly after the death of the late Eliya Raja of Travancore, Mrs. Dawson, wife of Captain Dawson, Commandant of the Nair Brigade, sent an invitation to the present Eliya Raja to attend a dance. As the Raja was in mourning at the time and further as he was not addressed as His Highness he refused to reply to the invitation. The matter being reported to the Resident by Mr. Dawson, the former demanded of the Eliya Raja to apologise to Mrs. Dawson which the Raja declined. On this the Resident sent his report to Government which led to a ruling on the lines suggested by the Resident. Now, although Mr. Dawson is a British servant, yet, as long as he is paid by the Travancore State, he must be considered also as a servant of that State, and, as such, he is bound not to wound the feelings of the royal family in any way. It is then entirely out of keeping with the proverbial justice characterising British administration to have made a ruling in the matter overlooking the open insult flung in the face of the Eliya Raja by Mrs. Dawson.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, July 5th, 1896.

Policy of Government as regards Native States.

34. Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th July, has an extract from the Shoukat-ul-Islam (place of publication not known) to the following effect:—The policy of the Government of India in regard to Native States is to pretend to interfere on behalf of the subjects of those States, but no steps are really taken to improve their condition. The Shoukat, referring to Mr. Plowden, remarks that whatever he pretended to have done hitherto in Hyderabad was not for the good of that State but for his own benefit and interest.

Transfer of judicial powers by certain Native States.

35. The same paper states, on the authority of the Dar-us-Saltanat, of Calcutta, that it is not known why certain native chiefs of India transferred their judicial powers to the British Government, and remarks that by reason of the pressure of political agents, which has latterly become common in Native States, native chiefs have thought it advisable to relieve themselves of those powers and thus get rid of the responsibility which properly vests in them.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

36. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd June, complains that revenue officers begin their jamabandi work in the village of Karikkalavakkam, in Tiruvallur taluk, during the month of March, when there is a second crop on the field, and assess the crop fully according to the prescribed rates and grant no remission even though the second harvest proves a failure. He says that the water-supply from the tank of the village is very meagre, and all efforts on the part of the ryots to sustain the growth of the crop prove to be of no avail, and that under such circumstances the grant of the remission which the ryots pay for is most reasonable.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 23rd, 1896.

A request to grant remission in respect of second harvest proving a failure.

37. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 13th July, contrasts the present state of India with that forty years ago and comes to the conclusion that vast progress has been made in education, means of communication and in the moral and political condition of the people.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 13th, 1896.

Progress in India.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th June, remarks that Government is not justified in spending the balance of the Famine Relief fund and such other Indian revenues on foreign wars like the Suakim expedition not calculated to benefit India, while it pleads want of money for the construction of a railway and such other works which are highly useful to the people. The paper, while appealing to the people of England for redressing this piece of injustice, remarks that the condition of the people of India must be deplorable so long as His Excellency the Governor-General continues to be a puppet in the hands of the Secretary of State.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 19th, 1896.

A remark on the Suakim expedition.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th June, regrets to learn that the natives of India, domiciled in Natal, have been by an enactment declared ineligible to vote in the election of a member for the Legislative Council of that State on the ground that India is not represented in the British Parliament. The paper says that Europeans at present look down upon the natives of India, and that, unless they come forward to rival Europeans in the field of commerce, there is no hope that they will ever claim the respect and regard of Europeans.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 30th, 1896.

News regarding the Indians domiciled in South Africa.

40. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 6th July, reports that nearly twenty-three native merchants of India domiciled in the German territory, in the East Coast of Africa, have been hanged by the German Government, and that a question on that subject has been raised in Parliament by Sir William Houldsworth. The paper exhorts the British Parliament to regard this as a piece of insult to the British Government and requests that august body to exert its best to obtain this concession from foreign powers, namely, that no British subject domiciled in the dominion of such powers shall be punished for any serious crime which he may be guilty of without the same being communicated to the British Government. The paper also urges the Colonial Secretary and the Government of India not to drop this subject till they get satisfactory explanation from the German Government.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, July 6th, 1896.

Sad fate of twenty-three native merchants domiciled in the German territory in the East Coast of Africa.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th July, says that Lord George Hamilton, the Secretary of State for India, with seven other councillors, resolved that India should bear the expenses of the Indian troops engaged in the Suakim expedition, and that the opinion of the Government of India that India should not be charged with military expenses was disregarded. The paper says that the English Press, specially the Times, which generally speaks in favour of the administrative officials, does not approve of this resolution and condemns it as unjust. The paper

An advice to the people of India regarding a certain resolution of the Secretary of State.

advises the people of India to hold public meetings and protest against the proposal of the Secretary of State and give publicity to their opinion. The paper regrets to remark that, with the exception of the Bombay Presidency Association and a few other bodies, the whole of India is asleep with regard to this important subject.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, July 2nd, 1896.

The tutor to the Maharaja of Mysore.

42. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 2nd July, says that the Government of India having appointed Mr. Fraser, the new tutor to the Maharaja of Mysore, as an ex-officio Assistant Resident, Mr. Fraser cannot be considered a servant of the Mysore Government, and the Mysore Government cannot interfere in his duties as tutor. The editor therefore hopes that Mr. Fraser will be careful what people are allowed to keep company with the young Maharaja.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 29th, 1896.

The financial relations between England and India.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th July, repeats what the Statesman says, and remarks that certain items charged to India forcibly illustrate the one-sided character of the financial relations between India and England. Two of these minor items are Cooper's Hill College and the India Office Ball to the Sultan of Turkey. Cooper's Hill College has cost the people of India nearly half a million sterling, and is still costing them £3,000 to £4,000 a year in addition to the interest upon the original outlay, so that for the purely English college the people of India are paying £15,000 to £18,000. The Sultan's ball given in 1867 cost India something like Rs. 40,000. This, with interest at 4 per cent., must to-day represent nearly £1,50,000.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 6th, 1896.

Cost of the Indian troops to Suakim.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 6th July, says thus:—The despatch of Indian troops to the Soudan will be the means of accomplishing good for the country. The conscience of England is thoroughly aroused. It sees that it would be wrong—a downright robbery—to charge India with any portion of the cost of the expedition. The war was not brought about by India or for the good of India. India had no hand in the matter. The Government was ordered to send troops to Suakim and it sent them. We cannot see how the Secretary of State for India can ask this land to bear any portion of the cost of the force. It would be a fraud practised on the people of this land, and all ought to protest against it. Indian troops ought not to leave this country. If India can spare troops to be sent outside then it is plain that her military force is too large and it must be reduced at once. India should not maintain men to be sent to any part of the world to fight the battles of England. Should it be thought necessary to have troops sent from India to other parts of the world they should be raised specially for the purpose and should be paid entirely by the Imperial Government. This would be only fair and it would give the empire an extra force to combat its enemies.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, July 7th, 1896.

The indebtedness of India.

45. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 7th July, referring to the indebtedness of India, says that the indebtedness is increasing day by day owing to her being saddled with the expenses involved in matters in which she has no direct interest or concern. Whenever any field operations are conducted outside India, or any boundary disputes settled beyond its frontiers, the charges thereof are defrayed out of the Indian exchequer. The cost of maintaining the India Office in London and some consular appointments in China, Persia, &c., is considered an unnecessary drain on the Indian finance. The article, after dwelling on these matters at some length, notices with regret the decision of the Secretary of State that India should pay the expenses of the Indian troops sent to Suakim. Whenever the Government treasury becomes empty by increased expenditure fresh taxes are levied, but that, in spite of this, the debt of India should increase by leaps and bounds is not only a matter to be deplored but is a great misfortune to her.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitram, of the 17th July, condemns the decision of the English Parliament in insisting on India paying for the expedition against Suakim in Africa in spite of the protest of the India Government. The paper adds that not all the advantages of English administration will justify such lavish expenditure. The paper is of opinion that mass meetings should be held all over the province to discuss the injustice of the resolution.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 17th, 1896.

The injustice of the British Parliament in insisting on India paying for the expedition against Suakim.

Expenses for the Suakim expedition.

3. Under the head, "The old man has lost his senses," the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 20th July, has an extract from the India Gazette to the following effect:—God knows whether Mr. Gladstone has become melancholy, mad or has dropt into his dotage, but he has again commenced to foment mischief in regard to certain affairs and urges England to dethrone the Sultan. The India Gazette advises England not to lend an ear to the evil counsel of Mr. Gladstone who wants to revolutionise the whole world and to cause streams of blood to flow throughout Europe. England should not disregard the old alliance and friendship of the Sultan whose dethronement, suggested by the old man, is not an easy task.

II.—Home Administration.

4. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th July, complains that theft and burglary are being committed with impunity both day and night in the village of Milattur, Tanjore taluk, and that the neglect of the police to patrol the streets during night time is the cause of such occurrences. The correspondent adds that police officers abuse their power, and quotes, as an instance, the case of the head constable of the said village who had, for the marriage recently celebrated in his house, mercilessly closed the road for traffic to the inconvenience of the people.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 10th, 1896.

Frequent occurrences of theft and burglary in Milattur, Tanjore taluk, owing to the neglect of the police.

5. The Dravida Pandiyan, of the 11th July, observes as follows:—"The police exists to guard the interest of the public and to prevent riot, murder, theft, gambling, &c. The constabulary, at the time of their appointment, pledge themselves to the fulfilment of the manifold duties expected of them; but they, however, soon forget themselves and connive at the commission of the very offences they have been appointed to prevent the occurrence of. Thus they become a terror to the people. They prey upon petty cart-drivers and sweetmeat-sellers, and, should their demands be refused, the poor people are brought before the magistrates on some concocted charges which they boldly and proudly indulge in." The paper, after referring to some instances in support of the remarks above made, requests Government to be pleased to lend a patient ear to the complaints preferred against the police and to relieve people from their oppression by reforming the department.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 21st, 1896.

Indifference of police at Bhuvanagiri, Chidambaram taluk.

6. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 21st July, reports that a burglary was committed at Bhuvanagiri in the sub-postmaster's house at midnight of the 13th instant and that the postmaster was beaten to death. The correspondent ascribes the sad event to the indifference of the police who never go round the town on beat during night time. It is to be hoped that the police would spare no pains to detect the malefactors and restore the stolen jewels to the family of the deceased.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 17th, 1896.

Remarks on the appointment of Mr. D. H. Munro, a civilian, as the Sub-Judge of Calicut.

7. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th July, remarks as follows on the appointment of Mr. D. H. Munro, a civilian, as the Sub-Judge of Calicut:—This is the first time when a civilian has been made a Sub-Judge. It was an office reserved up to this time for natives of long service and great experience. Opinions differ as to the reasons which induced Government to make this new departure. Some are of opinion that Government is paving the way for appointing civilians as Sub-Judges in future, while others hold that some civilians will be thus trained to prove capable District Judges. It is not right to say that Sub-Judges are less responsible officers, though less paid, than District Judges, as it is they who mostly deal with original suits, while the latter may, if they choose, attend to appeal cases, neglecting altogether to hear original suits. Civilians may prove good and able Sub-Judges if they are made to learn judicial work by being appointed to lower offices in the department. The appointment of civilian Sub-Judges will cause much discontent among munsifs who are doing good work.

Remarks against the proposed reorganisation of the Madras High Court establishment.

8. The same paper observes that the scheme for the reorganisation of the High Court establishment calculated to curtail expenditure was submitted to Government by Justice Davies at the instance of Mr. Todhunter, the acting Registrar, that the scheme is said to have been forwarded to the Chief Justice, and that complaints have been made about the irregular acts of Mr. Todhunter to ruin some petty officials. The paper is of opinion that Government was wrong in appointing inexperienced men to responsible offices.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 24th, 1896.

Defects in the present mode of selecting jurors and the advisability of following the example of Mr. O'Farrell.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th July, condemns the present mode of preparing jury lists throughout the Madras Presidency for the following reasons:—

First, persons so selected are very often unequal to the responsibilities devolving on them; secondly, a list once prepared is not revised for many years though omitting the names of the deceased. Mr. O'Farrell, the District Judge of South Malabar, not satisfied with the list submitted to him by the District Magistrate, had it sent to his district munsifs for revision. The latter added to the list the names of some vakils and duly qualified merchants and landholders. The example of Mr. O'Farrell may advantageously be adopted by all District Judges. The paper wishes either Government or the High Court to insist on all District Judges adopting the same mode of preparing jury lists.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 24th, 1896.

Jurors.

10. The Sasilekha, of the 24th July, regrets that, notwithstanding the regular perversion of justice that is daily taking place, no attempt has as yet been made for the selection of proper jurors. Although the selection of jurors devolves by law on Collectors and Judges, it is practically done by the petty village officials, such as karnams and reddis, who name their own favourites that are mostly ignorant, dishonest, unscrupulous, and always in fear of the police. The paper therefore considers it necessary that the tahsildars or sub-magistrates should be deputed to select competent persons as jurors.

11. The same paper, referring to the appointment of Mr. Munro, of the Indian Civil Service, as Sub-Judge, remarks that, he being altogether unused to the hearing of civil suits, his appointment is a grave error of judgment. It says that the work of a Sub-Judge is as much as that of a District Judge, and that the District Judge always transfers intricate civil suits to the Sub-Judge. It therefore asserts that the duties of a highly responsible post as that of a Sub-Judge can never be satisfactorily discharged by a young civilian that has been in India for only two or three years. If the Government wishes to train Mr. Munro for a District Judgeship, it should appoint him first as a district munsif with powers to try only simple civil suits and gradually raise him to the place of a Sub-Judge. In support of this recommendation, the paper refers to the procedure observed in conferring criminal powers upon newly-arrived civilians by appointing them step by step as magistrates of the third, second and first class.

Mr. Munro's appointment as Sub-Judge.

12. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th July, remarking on the account of criminal prosecutions of Europeans published by Babu Rama Gopal Sanyal, says:—The insults and injuries which the ruling race heap upon the people of this country have necessitated the publication of this book which has reached a second edition. The present edition gives an account of 120 cases, and those who in season and out of season praise the administration of justice in India will do well to read this book. No fewer than 41 of these 120 cases were prosecutions for murder and 12 resulted in an acquittal. Only in three cases did the offenders receive capital punishment. The rest were left off either with fine or a light imprisonment; but the book by no means professes to be exhaustive. The author has included only those cases which have come under his observation.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 27th, 1896.

Rama Gopal Sanyal's book on criminal prosecutions of Europeans by Natives.

It might be said that these offences are nothing compared with those which the Mussalman rulers of India committed against the Hindus; but the Mussalmans never professed to rule the people according to strict principles of justice. There can therefore be no comparison between the two. Even now, if the English should declare openly that they would rule the country despotically or that they would observe one law for the rulers and another for the ruled, there would be no occasion for complaint or for the writing of such books. The duty as well as the honour of the British nation consists in mending these defects which tarnish the fair name of the British administration in India.

13. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 20th July, understands that the High Court has not only declined to sanction the appointment of an assistant Sessions Judge asked for by Mr. O'Farrell, but has also demanded from the latter an explanation why he does not attend court on all days of the week. Mr. O'Farrell explained that judicial officers need not be present in office every day of the week, that the days on which the Judge stays away from office are utilised in preparing judgments, &c., and that his predecessors were attending court only on every other day. Mr. O'Farrell has also submitted a comparative statement of the cases disposed of by himself and by his immediate predecessor who was attending the court on all days, and it is said the statement shows that Mr. O'Farrell turned out more work. The explanation submitted is far from satisfactory. If it is not necessary that judicial officers should attend office on all days of the week, it is difficult to see why the Judges of the High Court should do so. Some are gifted with more despatch than others, and Mr. O'Farrell may have been enabled by this gift of his to dispose of more cases in three days than his predecessor had been able to do in a week, but that is no reason why he should not attend office every day. It is absolutely necessary to bring about a better state of things.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 20th, 1896.

District Judges to attend the court on all days of the week.

A correspondent in the same paper complains that it is unjust that jurors and assessors should be liable to heavy fines, seeing that they are not in any way remunerated for their troubles. Those who are nominated jurors and assessors are generally heads of rich families, but while their position as such makes them liable to heavy fines for late attendance, not a pie of it can be met by them from the family property. It is therefore but just and proper that jurors and assessors should be granted adequate remuneration for their work.

14. Referring to the same subject a leader in the same issue of the paper recommends the Government to grant an allowance to jurors and assessors as many of them belong to the up-country and have consequently to undergo much expense in various ways in attending courts in that capacity.

Jurors and assessors to be paid allowances.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 10th, 1896.

15. The Lokopakari, of the 10th July, remarks as follows on the last administration report of jails:—Mr. Cardew's remark "that the number of prisoners committed to the jails during the year was comparatively few" is as much as to say that the offences were fewer and that people were improving in their character. However convinced Government may be in regard to the poverty and good nature of the people, they will not permit to them the use of muskets and other weapons without license. They will neither decrease the number of soldiers in the army nor lessen the increasing police forces. Mr. Cardew's remark "that the number of old offenders has not in the year under report decreased" is sufficient to show that they were not properly dealt with when they were brought before magistrates as old offenders. Government, by their leniency towards this class of criminals, cannot achieve their end of lessening crime. The real remedy lies in the appointment of even-handed and uncorrupt magisterial officers. For the remark of the Inspector-General "that the offences committed within jails by the prisoners were greater in the year under review," his officers should hold themselves responsible, because their brutal treatment justifies the end. It is deeply to be regretted "that deaths were many," and it betrays want of care on the part of the jail authorities. In these circumstances, the present jail administration cannot be regarded as satisfactory, as Mr. Cardew seems to think, and it is to be hoped that the next report will show an improvement.

Remarks on the last annual report on the administration of jails.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 20th, 1896.

16. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 20th July, speaking of the municipality of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore, says:—The Government has not treated the station as it ought to have done. It has helped to reduce the municipality to a nonentity. The authorities do not like the elective system. More than once the municipality has been in danger of being abolished. Now we are told that there is some idea of replacing election by nomination. The result has been that good men will not offer themselves as candidates for election. They are aware that, however well thought out a measure may be, it may not be allowed to pass by the higher authorities. The president may veto it or the Government of India may set its face against it. Matters are in a much better condition in many other places where Local self-Government has taken a firm root. The Civil and Military Station would have been in a better condition under better treatment. As the institution now stands the best thing would be to do away with the so-called elective system, or a thorough change. It is ridiculous to allow the municipality to remain in its present state.

The municipality, Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 21st, 1896.

17. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st July, says that the ill-treatment by the Tahsildar of Tanjore, a Muhammadan gentleman, of the karnams and others had already been brought to the notice of the District Collector, and repeats the remarks of the Janamukulan in these terms:—"The arrears of revenue are heavier now than during the time of the previous tahsildar. Government is appointing Muhammadans to high offices though their educational attainments are poor, and so they are very often the subject of complaint in newspapers. The incompetency of the tahsildar in question is evident from his recommendation to the Deputy Collector of the division for the suspension of forty karnams for some delay caused in the last jamabandi." The Swadesamitran is of opinion that the delay would never have arisen if the tahsildar had from time to time supervised the work of revenue inspectors.

Complaints against the Tahsildar of Tanjore—a Muhammadan gentleman.

18. The Deesabhimani, of the 22nd July, remarks in the following manner on the slow and unsatisfactory disposal of darkhast petitions by tahsildars and other revenue officers:—"Now that revenue officers are required to itinerate regularly throughout every village of their charge, it seems very desirable that they should be required to dispose of all darkhasts on the spot and in the presence of all the parties interested, due notice being given previously of the date on which each village will be taken up.

Deesabhimani, Cuddalore, July 22nd, 1896.

Remarks on the slow and unsatisfactory disposal of darkhast petitions by tahsildars and other revenue officers.

"In fact, with a proper itinerary and programme of work, there is no reason why village officers should be so often summoned to the taluk kasba as tahsildars can and ought to dispose of all work ready for disposal in any village before leaving it."

19. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th July, alludes to the miserable condition into which the landlords of the Wynaad taluk are driven by the new survey and settlement. Before the settlement landlords were not required to pay the assessment on lands which were left uncultivated by the tenants, but under the new settlement rules it has become compulsory on the part of the landlords to pay the assessment no matter whether the lands are cultivated or not. Owing to the difficulty of getting men to take up the lands in that taluk and cultivate them it was the common practice to leave untilled even cultivable lands, but as the assessment on such lands has now been enhanced, no one comes forward even to make attempts to cultivate them; and consequently nearly twenty thousand acres of land have been sold at low prices for arrears of revenue. Further, the landlords are told to hand over their lands to Government if they are unable to cultivate them. Owing to these and other iniquitous acts on the part of Government the landlords, who were once living in a princely style, have been reduced to penury. It has become a matter of very great necessity that provision should be made regarding lands which are left waste owing to unavoidable circumstances. It is said that the Board of Revenue itself has given consideration to the matter, and the settlement officer has submitted certain proposals to the Board. The settlement officer has suggested that all the waste lands should be entrusted to Government, viz., when such lands are taken up by tenants for cultivation, should, after deducting the revenue, fix a jenmibhogam and make them pay it to the landlords. As this suggestion is very just and acceptable, the landlords cannot possibly take any exception to it. Granting that such a suggestion has not been made by the settlement officer, it is the bounden duty of the Board to bestow special attention on the matter and give relief to the distressed landlords.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, July 18th, 1896.

Miserable condition of the Wynaad landlords after the settlement.

20. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 25th July, commenting upon the Government order revoking a resolution of the Board of Revenue to the effect that remission of assessment on waste unoccupied lands in the Wynaad which will not be made unless the jenmam rights of such lands be conveyed to Government, says that, although the order will enable the landlords to realize possession of their jenmam land without being sold, yet it cannot be considered to be highly satisfactory. It seems the order applies only to waste lands, and not to lands left uncultivated for one or two years. Moreover, it is not clear from the order whether when a land which had not been brought under cultivation for four years consecutively is cultivated in the fifth year, the assessment on the lands for the previous years should be paid or not. It is owing to the difficulty of obtaining labourers that arable lands in the above taluk are left uncultivated, and it is impossible to say when they will be available and when not. It is therefore suggested that the above order should be made more explicit and that it should be ruled that the assessments should be paid only in those years in which the lands are cultivated.

The Wynaad settlement and the landlords.

(g) Forests.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, July 18th, 1896.

Necessity to appoint a commission to inquire into the malpractices of forest officers.

21. A correspondent to the Kalanidhi, of the 13th July, reports that the High Court have released Kitta Goundan in the appeal preferred by him against the decision of the lower court for his alleged theft of sandal wood in Satyamangalam. This is an instance, observes the correspondent, of the way in which forest officers, from carelessness or other cause, inflict dishonour and heavy expenditure on the wealthy, not to speak of the hardship and suffering to which the poorer classes are put to by them. The correspondent adds that it is the duty of Government to appoint a commission to inquire into the malpractices of forest officers and relieve the sufferings of the people.

(h) Railways.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Nagapatam, July 13th, 1896.

A remark on the existence of only one way-out on the platform in the Trichinopoly fort station.

22. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 13th July, reports that there is only one way-out on the platform in the Trichinopoly fort station, and remarks that people are put to much trouble especially on occasions when large numbers of them alight at the station.

[JANAVINODINI, Tirupadi, July 24th, 1896.

The replacement of Natives by Europeans and East Indians in the South Indian Railway and a proposal to appoint a clergyman for their benefit.

23. A correspondent to the Janavinodini, of the 24th July, says that the authorities of the South Indian Railway have replaced the hardworked, but ill-paid, Natives by Europeans and East Indians on a higher pay. It is said that a clergyman would be appointed by the company for the benefit of its Christian servants, and that Government would have to make some contribution. The correspondent is at a loss to know why any portion of the tax collected from Hindus and Muhammadans should go for the appointment of clergymen for the sake of Christian servants in the company's service.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, July 25th, 1896.

Complaints against the railway police.

24. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 25th July, reports that Mr. Rama Rao, retired translator of the Tanjore Collector's office, had some time ago proceeded to Trichinopoly with his family to attend a certain marriage and that his tin box containing jewels and clothes to the value of Rs. 1,500 had been missed at the junction station. The correspondent observes that the existence of railway police is of no use whatever inasmuch as it does not put a stop to thefts in railway stations.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 22nd, 1896.

Remarks on the conviction of abkári offenders by magistrates.

25. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd July, says that when V. Kishna Menon, Salt and Abkári Sub-Inspector, Ponnani, conducted a search in the house of a certain Mappila, he found some contraband salt and the Mappila was accordingly charged by the circle inspector. The accused pleaded before the magistrate that the salt officers had not arrested him, he having gone to the adhikari of Kappur amsam in Pennati taluk to get a cattle permit. The adhikari, who was examined, deposed and produced records in favour of the accused, but the sub-inspector contended that, as the accused had confessed his guilt before the circle inspector, the case should not be decided unless and until the inspector was examined. When the inspector was examined he said that the statement of the sub-inspector was true. The magistrate expressed the opinion that the accused had gained over the adhikari and got a false permit made and that the case was true and sentenced him accordingly to three months' imprisonment. Section 25 of the Evidence Act lays down that the confession made by the accused before a police officer should not be accepted as evidence; but it is clear from the same enactment that the statement of the adhikari, who is a villages magistrate and does not belong to the above category, can be accepted as evidence. Under the circumstances it is very unjust that the accused should have been convicted and punished on the mere evidence of circle inspector.

(4) General.

Objections to the abolition of lunatic asylums.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 4th July, says, with reference to the question now under the consideration of Government about the advisability of abolishing lunatic asylums and leaving mad men to be taken care of by their relatives, that the present method of curing them is the best and the most charitable, and that the adoption of the suggestion in question would make many homes unhappy and be a source of nuisance to the public.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, July 4th, 1896.

The condition of village munsifs.

27. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 10th July, speaks of the condition of village munsifs in these terms:— A knowledge of civil, criminal, and forest laws is essential to village munsifs. They are held responsible for the detection of the various offences committed within their jurisdiction and are often summoned as important witnesses for prosecution. For nearly six months in the year they are engaged in revenue collections, and their difficulties during the time are many. They have further to supervise the work of the village karnams. The village munsifs are after all paid lower than the karnams, who themselves are not paid equal to their work. It is necessary that Government should think of placing village munsifs higher than karnams in consideration of their multifarious and responsible work.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 10th, 1896.

Invoking the intervention of Government to put an end to the vices of dramatic companies.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th July, says that dramatic companies encourage drunkenness, debauchery, gambling, and other vices, and that a Brahman woman, aged 16 years, was lately enticed into one of them in Madras. The correspondent invokes the intervention of Government to put an end to the vices here complained of.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 10th, 1896.

Suggesting the advisability of opening a telegraph office at Kamuthi, Madura district.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th July, draws the attention of Government to the advisability of opening a branch telegraph office in the village of Kamuthi (Kamalanagar), Madura district, as prayed for in the mahazars submitted to the Superintendent and the Director-General of Telegraphs by the inhabitants of the place who are mostly traders.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 14th, 1896.

The advisability of His Excellency the Governor in allowing the people of Coimbatore an opportunity to ventilate their grievances in person.

30. A correspondent to the Kalanidhi, of the 15th July, reports that the big tank is full, but its water is not allowed to be used for agricultural purposes. The reason for this is guessed by some to be to produce in the mind of His Excellency the Governor, during his coming visit, an impression that Coimbatore does not suffer from scarcity of water, while others say that it is simply for giving by percolation a good supply of water to the wells of the town. The same correspondent adds that His Excellency the Governor is one of the best rulers the country has had, that he has the good of the people at heart, and that he will make his name memorable should he, like some of his predecessors, be pleased to take the people into his confidence and hear their grievances in person.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, July 15th, 1896.

Causes for the Hindus not seeking medical help from hospitals and dispensaries.

31. The Desabhimani, of the 15th July, assigns the following reasons for Hindus not seeking medical help from hospitals and dispensaries:—"A notion is current chiefly among our uneducated men that the European medicines and methods of treatment prescribed and practised in hospitals are unsuited to the native constitution. Then again the mechanical and perfunctory manner in which most salaried medical practitioners hear or pretend to hear multitudes of patients of a morning and dismiss them to be cared for by compounders or other subordinates produces upon patients an impression that the Sirkar vythians do not take an interest in their ailments as they are sure of their fixed salary whatever the result of their treatment in individual cases. The employment of low caste people in the compounding of prescription also deters a considerable number of our countrymen from availing themselves of the benefits of hospital treatment."

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, July 18th, 1896.

Reasons assigned by Government for the increasing returns of the income-tax without a knowledge of real state of affairs.

DRAVIDABHANU, Tuticorin, July 11th, 1896.

The position of subordinate magistrates as affected by the influence of Police Superintendents with District Magistrates.

33. The Dravidabhanu, of the 11th July, observes as follows on the position of subordinate magistrates as affected by the influence of Police Superintendents with District Magistrates:—Magistrates usually hear cases brought before them by the police and decide them according to the evidence adduced. The police force is increasing in strength and the promotion of every police officer and constable depends upon the number of cases detected by him. It becomes their interest, therefore, to get the Police Superintendent to use his influence with the District Magistrate so that the subordinate magistrates may become subservient to the police. Some District Magistrates have issued circulars to their subordinate magistrates to act according to the wishes of Superintendents of Police in disposing of cases. The District Magistrate of Tinnevelly has issued a circular to the stationary magistrates to the effect that they should in all cases against the police report the matter to the Police Superintendent. The order is simply absurd, and the Criminal Procedure Code does not sanction it. This irregularity was brought to the notice of Government by one of the Honourable Members at the last meeting of the Legislative Council and it has promised to call for the papers and take necessary steps. Dangers arising from such a circular are many; it deprives the magistracy of their judicial independence. It is, therefore, the duty of Government to discountenance such a procedure.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 20th, 1896.

Condition of the village karnams and the advisability of increasing their pay.

34. The Lokopakari, of the 20th July, observes as follows on the condition of village karnams:—There being a surplus in the collections of the village cess, the opinion of District Collectors was asked as to the advisability of devoting a portion of the surplus to increasing the pay of village karnams. Some of the officers so consulted seem to have expressed themselves against any increase of pay to the karnams on the ground that they are sufficiently well patronised by the land-owners of their respective villages. The fact is that the present condition of these officers is one of pity. They are insulted by all higher officers from the Collector downwards. They have to supply revenue inspectors, salt and abkári officers with provisions gratis whenever they visit the villages, In these circumstances, it is desirable that Government should treat the village officers with some consideration and increase their pay.

35. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th July, complains that the dharmakarta of the temple at Tiruvottiyur insists on levying a quarter anna from every one of the visitors to the temple. The same correspondent adds that there is a garden near the road leading to the railway station newly opened and that the temple-going people are troubled by a large number of idlers who shelter themselves in the garden during night time. It is necessary that either the chairman of the union of the place or the railway company should see to the lighting of the road and that the police should keep out idle vagabonds from the locality.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 24th, 1896.

A complaint against the dharmakarta of the Tiruvottiyur temple and the necessity to light the road leading to the railway station and to station police force.

36. A correspondent in the Malayala Manorama, of the 13th July, invites the attention of the postal authorities to the irregularities in the Nadapuram post office. Letters, &c., are usually delivered a week or two after the dates when they are due and in some cases they go amiss altogether. Lately a parcel was delivered to a certain gentleman showing traces of attempts made to open it, and, when the postman was questioned on the matter, he replied that it had been received in the same condition. The addressee being a good-natured man did not bring the matter to the notice of the authorities. It is a matter of great surprise that, in spite of the repeated complaints that have appeared in various newspapers, the authorities do not take proper measures in the matter.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, July 13th, 1896.

Postal irregularities.

37. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 18th July, referring to the system that has been recently introduced into the post offices in the town of Madras and Bombay of stamping letters showing the time at which they were taken from the post-box in addition to the dates now impressed upon them, says that when the addressees can easily find out from the impression that the letter was taken from the box at such a time the delay, if any, made in delivering it could be brought to the notice of the authorities. The article, while remarking that this system would be very useful in checking the growing irregularities in mofussil post offices in the matter of clearing and delivering letters, recommends its adoption in these offices also.

KERALA PATRIKA Calicut, July 18th, 1896.

Measures for checking the postal irregularities.

38. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 25th July, testifies to the high degree of satisfaction which Mr. Hewetson has been able to give to the people of Malabar. All the leading men of Calicut were present at the railway station to bid farewell to the departing Collector. The godspeed that was accorded to him is unparalleled in the history of Malabar Collectors. Mr. Hewetson is an able and conscientious Collector, having always the welfare of the people at heart. Nothing will therefore please the people of Malabar more than to see him back in that district after the expiry of his leave.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 25th, 1896.

Remarks on the departure of Mr. Hewetson, Collector of Malabar.

Referring to the same subject a leader in the Calicut Manorama, of the 27th July, says that the bright official career of Mr. Hewetson, coming after the cruel and unwise administration of Messrs. Moberly and Varada Rao, has been the cause of much satisfaction to the people.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, July 13th, 1896.

39. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 13th July, complains that the allowance of Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba for the last month has been unjustly withheld and that the pay of the Begam's escort has been disbursed under the superintendence of Ali Dost Sahib whose uncalled-for appointment as manager has not been recognised by Her Highness, and remarks that the illegal procedure of Government in Her Highness' case leads every one to think that, if the Begam does not recognise Ali Dost Sahib as her manager, Government will deprive Her Highness of her rank and allowance in favour of the said Ali Dost Sahib who will enjoy her rights and privileges as her successor.

ALHAMI, Madras, July 19th, 1896.

40. The Alhami, of the 19th July, says that the Aum, of Lahore, considers the petition rules of the Government of India too severe and remarks that, in consequence of the expenses and inconveniences occasioned by these rules, people are prevented from representing their grievances to Government and bringing their wants to the notice of the authorities.

Petition rules.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, July 27th, 1896.

41. In commenting on the case of Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 27th July, notices the action taken by the Government from time to time since July 1894, and asks what right it has to interfere in Her Highness' domestic affairs, to pass an arbitrary order based on the misrepresentations of interested parties and to subject Her Highness to every sort of inconvenience by unduly withholding her allowance because she has justly refused to recognise the Government nominee as her manager and to abide by the unreasonable terms of the order. In conclusion, the Shams-ul-Akbar requests Sir Arthur Havelock to review the whole case minutely and to render justice to the aged and helpless Begam who is the widow of the last Nawab of the Carnatic.

Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba's case.

42. Referring with disapproval to the order of Government regarding the closing of Muhammadan cemeteries in Madras, the same paper remarks that last year the Muhammadans of Madras brought to the notice of Government the inconvenience, trouble and expense that would result from closing the existing cemeteries, and forwarded several petitions against the proposal. In spite of all these reasonable protests, Government has passed the order for closure.

Closing of Muhammadan cemeteries.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

DRAVIDABHANU, Tuticorin, July 11th, 1896.

43. The Dravidabhanu, of the 11th July, regrets to notice that the Madras Government has exempted the English officers, employed in the Travancore State, from addressing the members of the Royal family as their Highness in violation of the notification in the Fort St. George Gazette "that all members of Royal families in India should be addressed as their Highness." The paper can assign no other reason for the new departure of Government than the offence which the Elaya Raja is believed to have given to the wife of Captain Dawson by his non-compliance with her invitation to an entertainment and by his failure to apologise to her for the same. It is expected that His Excellency the Governor would rectify matters.

Objections to the Madras Government exempting the English officers in the Travancore State from addressing the members of the Royal family as their Highness.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, July 27th, 1896.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th July, says:—We regret to hear that even the British Parliament, which professes to see justice done to all Her Majesty's subjects in the empire, has denied justice to the Maharaja of Jhallawar. The Rana has ruined himself by listening to the advice of his Diwan and disregarding the effects of the wrath of the Political Agent. The young Raja was led away by the notion that his own sense of justice prevailed everywhere and tried to be ruler in his State not only in name but also in reality, and for this he has been obliged to suffer.

45. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 29th July, hears that the Mysore Civil Service Competitive examination is to be revived this year and prays the Maharani-Regent to confine the examination to the Mysoreans alone.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, July 29th, 1896.

The Mysore Civil Service Competitive examination.

46. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 13th July, suggests that railways should be opened in the Native States of Travancore and Cochin at the State expense. At present the annual savings of the Travancore State amount to about one crore of rupees and that of Cochin to about half a crore. Besides these the Maharaja and the Raja have at their disposal large amounts of money belonging to the temples in their States. These large sums, for which they have to render account to none, not to say anything of the savings of the State, may well be utilised in constructing railways in the two States for the benefit of the people.

MANORAMA, Calicut, July 13th, 1896.

Railways to be constructed in Travancore and Cochin.

47. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st July, referring to the deplorable condition of the bridge over the Kandadai canal, in Poravur taluk, Travancore, invites the attention of the Sirkar to the necessity of repairing it. It appears that the bridge has been out of order for the last six years, and travellers now use a cocoanut tree which has been temporarily laid across by the local inhabitants. With great fear and inconvenience the travellers go over the tree, some of them sometimes falling down in the canal and sustaining serious injuries.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, July 21st, 1896.

Deplorable condition of a certain bridge in Travancore.

48. Another leader in the same issue of the paper complains of the extraordinary delay made in disposing of the applications which are put in by the people of the Cochin State in the matter of the Sirkar waste lands. The article, after dwelling at great length upon the corrupt practices of the various officials through whom the applications have to pass for inquiry, suggests, as a remedial measure, that the officer to whom applications for waste lands are made should be ordered to keep a register showing when and how such applications were received and disposed of and to furnish a monthly statement thereof to his superior for information.

Delay in the disposal of applications for waste lands in the Cochin State.

49. A correspondent in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd July, complains of the oppression of the tax collectors of Native Cochin. When the payment of the taxes is delayed from any cause, these officers of their own accord attach the property of the rate-payers and retain them for their own use. The receipts are not granted when the taxes are collected, and often these amounts are employed for their own purpose. The innocent tax-payer is thus held responsible for the delay on the part of the tax collectors in paying the amount to the proper authorities.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 22nd, 1896.

Oppression of the tax collectors of Native Cochin.

50. Under the head, "The unsound policy of the Government of India," the Alhami, of the 22nd July, has a very long article to the following effect:—There is no doubt that the Government of India is gradually reducing the powers of the Native States and treating them in an oppressive manner. The character of its policy was shown in the case of Kashmir, which was up to the death of Rambir Singh an independent State, but after whose death intrigues became rampant. The Government taking advantage thereof appointed a Resident, who began to interfere in its affairs and subsequently deprived the Maharaja of his sovereign powers.

ALHAMI, Madras, July 22nd, 1896.

Policy of the Government of India as regards Native States.

Such a policy foreshadows the fate of Hyderabad, Indore, Mysore and Beluchistan and even Nipal, Bhutan and Afghanistan.

Though Nipal was and still is considered an independent State, yet the presence of a Resident therein renders it dependent, and, as there is no fear of a Russian invasion from that direction and no fitting opportunity has offered as yet, the Government of India is slow in giving effect to its crafty policy in that State.

Everywhere in India a belief is gaining ground that the British Government is averse to the retention of their independent powers by chiefs and princes of India. All the native chiefs of India, who will be invited to England next year on the occasion of the celebration of the sixtieth year of the reign of Her Majesty, might as well be consigned to one vessel on their return journey to India and drowned in the sea, when it would be easy for Government to annex their States.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Pariyan, Madras, July 25th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Government of Burma for taking steps to put an end to robbery, &c., in Rangoon and other places in Burma.

51. The Pariyan, of the 25th July, reports that highway robbery, dacoity, theft, and other offences are being committed with impunity in the town of Rangoon and the surrounding places in Burma even under British rule. The paper desires the Government of Burma to adopt remedial measures.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 27th, 1896.

Public opinion in India and the Suakim charges.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 27th July, writing on the question of charging India with the cost of the troops sent to Suakim, says that, although it is generally thought that there is not much of public spirit in India, there is more of it displayed on occasions than people imagine. Remarking on the charges themselves, the editor says it is all nonsense Lord George Hamilton telling the world that the Soudan is essential to Egypt or that India has anything to do with Egypt. The only object of interest for India is the Suez canal and this is far more essential to England than to India. Even if the canal were destroyed, the loss to India would not be very great while the Cape route was open to the trade of the world. There is therefore no justification whatever for making India contribute to the cost of the expedition. The people of all classes in India with the rulers at their head see the injustice of the proceeding and have lifted their voice against it. It is to be hoped that this will be a lesson to the Home Government. The editor then exhorts the people not to allow their interest to relax and to form and maintain a strong public opinion.

Unjust charges on India.

53. The same paper asks:—What had India to do with a mission to the Court of Persia that it should pay £7,000? What again justifies the expenditure of £12,500 incurred in connection with Her Majesty's establishment in China? Where is Jeddah and what have we to do with its consulate that we should be mulcted in the sum of £458?

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, July 22nd, 1896.

Oppression of the Malabar landlords.

54. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 22nd July, writes that it is surprising that in these times when the British Government dispenses justice the people of Walavanad taluk in Malabar should be obliged to undergo the punishments awarded to them by their landlords. It appears that a certain Nambudri landlord of Kavalappara amsam fined a tenant of his Rs. 100 in addition to the corporal punishment inflicted upon him because the former heard that the tenant had reported to some of his friends the hardships which were suffered by him on account of a portion of his land having been taken and given to another by the landlord. The correspondent adds that the fine was afterwards refunded though no reparation was made for the other punishment.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Desabhimani, of the 29th July, remarks as follows on the English public opinion with reference to the Suakim charges :—" It is gratifying to find that public opinion in England is so much in accord with our own feelings in condemning the injustice of requiring India to bear the cost of our Egyptian contingent. 'Why bleed India,' 'Why should India pay,' 'Preying upon India,' 'The milch cow,' 'The meanness of ministers,' 'The depth of meanness,' 'Melancholy meanness,' 'A masterpiece of melancholy meanness' are some of the sentiments which this unpopular measure has evoked from the English press. It may be too much to expect the Secretary of State to cry mea culpa and to extricate himself and his colleagues from their unenviable position in this matter, but nothing short of this will repair the damage done to the ministerial cause and by this thoughtless measure."

Remarks on the English public opinion with reference to the Suakim charges.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, July 29th, 1896.

2. A correspondent to the Nilalochani, of the 20th July, reports that twenty-three Indian native merchants were tried for some offence and executed by the German Magistrate in that portion of East Africa which belongs to Germany. The injustice of the punishment was reported to England, but no attention has been paid to the appeal. The English Government should regard it as its duty to take action against the German Magistrate as it took on a former occasion when an English merchant was brought to trouble. It is to be hoped that the Government of England will make no distinction between British-born subjects and subject-races in the administration of justice.

The injustice of the German Magistrate in East Africa and the necessity for the Government of England to take active action in the matter.

Nilalochani, Negapatam, July 20th, 1896.

3. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th August, says that the punishment inflicted upon Dr. Jameson was nothing when compared with the crime he was charged with. He was guilty of having undertaken an unauthorised expedition against the Transvaal Republic. It is feared that the British Government will not be thought well of by other Governments for its partiality.

The lenient punishment inflicted by British Government on Dr. Jameson.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1896.

4. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd August, has a paragraph to the following effect:—It is stated that Prince Otomski, the confidential adviser of the Czar, is specially entrusted with the mission of everywhere following the footsteps of Li Hung Chang, as the latter pursues his way from one European court to another. It will be the function of Otomski, at Berlin, in Egypt and elsewhere to quietly undo the diplomacy of the old Chinaman.

The Czar sets a spy on the movements of Li Hung Chang.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 3rd, 1896.

5. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 1st August, says :—The deposition of an Indian prince is a matter of supreme gravity, demanding the most matured thought and care, and it would be satisfactory if the public could be assured that the Maharaja's case had been thoughtfully and impartially considered. So far as published the charges against the Prince of Jhallawar are vague, and we may well distrust the official version of the matter when we note that absolutely nothing tangible is alleged against the Maharaja.

The deposition of the Maharaja of Jhallawar.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Aug. 1st, 1896.

6. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th August, learns that the boundary dispute between Nipal and Tibet has not yet been settled and that the Nipalese Government is sending military stores to the frontiers and constructing roads for the march of troops.

Prospects of a war between Nipal and Tibet.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 10th, 1896.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 1st, 1896.

Suakim charges.

7. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 1st August, protests against the expenses of the Indian contingent to Suakim being met from the revenues of India and congratulates the Government of India on their able advocacy of India's cause.

Referring to the same subject the Calicut Manorama, of the 3rd August, remarks that few persons can be found anywhere who will agree with the Secretary of State in his decision in the matter.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1896.

Expenses of the Suakim expedition.

8. In commenting upon the expenses of the Suakim expedition, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 1st August, says that the war which is now being waged in Soudan is undertaken neither for the benefit of India nor of Egypt, but to regain the lost prestige of the Italians. Such being the case, it does not behove Lord George Hamilton to charge the Indian exchequer with the expenses thereof.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1896.

Drawing the attention of the Commissioner of Police, Madras, to the misdeeds of the Labbays of Triplicane that pelted the Ellaiyamman with stones in the last festival.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th August, reports that a band of Labbays in Triplicane pelted with stones the Ellaiyamman while out on procession last year and that some of them were apprehended and punished. The authorities of the Amman temple obtained the aid of a police force this year for passing the Labbay street unhurt. The police constables insisted on the Hindu gentlemen that accompanied the goddess staying behind lest they should be injured while passing through the street. This enabled the Labbays to make a free use of stones and cause hurt to some Hindus. The police force that followed the idol were not able to arrest the culprits. The Labbays would have refrained from using stones if the respectable Hindus that stayed behind had followed the goddess. It is hoped that the Commissioner of Police will exert himself to bring the offenders to punishment and that he will see to the reserve police being in attendance on future festival occasions.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 29th, 1896.

Extortion by the Quilandy police.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th July, says that certain constables of the Quilandy police extorted money from the local fishermen, threatening them that they would be prosecuted for nuisance. The Assistant Superintendent of Police, to whom the matter was reported, inquired into the case, and, finding that the allegations made against his constables were true, suspended them. The Superintendent at first wanted to prosecute the constables, and for that purpose all the records were forwarded to the prosecuting inspector, but he subsequently gave it up considering the difficulties in conducting the case and the troubles that would thereby be caused to the fishermen and dismissed the constables, five in number, from the service. The editor remarks that it is rumoured that the police inspector of that division and the constables are not on good terms.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 1st, 1896.

Remarks on the dismissal of two constables of the Manantoddy police.

11. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st August, says that the two constables who gave evidence against the head constable in the case in which a bazaarman in Manantoddy bazaar beat a Cheruma (slave) with a bottle and caused him injuries were dismissed. The report is that the fault really lay with the head constable.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 3rd, 1896.

Police neglecting to inquire into theft cases reported to them.

12. An Angadipuram correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 3rd August, writes that as cattle thefts has increased in Walavanad taluk, Malabar, cultivators are put to great hardship. Whatever precautions the owners may take for the security of the cattle, when they go to the shed in the morning to take cattle to the field the cattle are not found there. What the sorrow of the owners would be at the time can be better imagined than described. The correspondent adds that if complaints are made to the police about any theft they pay no heed to them. The police are so indifferent that up to this time no relief has been given to any one of those who have given complaints, and the attention of the authorities is therefore invited to the matter.

13. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 12th August, bitterly complains of the conduct of certain Mappila youths, who cause great inconvenience to the girls going to and coming from the Moyan Girls' Training school, Calicut, by standing here and there in the roadside and uttering indecent and annoying expressions and showing certain indecent signs with their hands. The headmistress of the school, to whom the matter was reported by the guardians of these girls, brought the matter to the notice of the authorities but it was of no avail. When things of this sort are carried on in broad daylight with impunity, it is to be presumed that these Mappila youths do this with the connivance of the police patrolling those parts. If the Police Superintendent and the Town Magistrate are graciously pleased to take notice of the matter, these grown-up girls could save their decency and modesty from being outraged by these vagabonds referred to.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 12th, 1896.

The police to check the indecent behaviour of certain Mappila youths towards the girls studying in the Moyan school, Calicut.

A leader in the same issue of the paper, while supporting the above correspondence, remarks that, after the editor got the information, he made a personal inquiry into the matter and was convinced that the girls had experienced this trouble for a very long time and that the annoyance has lately become intolerable. The article requests the authorities concerned to take stringent measures in the matter.

(b) Courts.

14. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, observes as follows on the holding of public offices late in the night:—Public offices in the Presidency of Madras are not closed by 5 o'clock in the evening; and the poor clerks are made to work till a late hour in the night. Taluk offices are the worst of the lot. A change, however, is coming. The destruction by fire of the office of the P. W. D. Secretary in Simla has led Government to direct all district officers not to hold office after sunset, and to be very careful in regard to the custody of records. Office establishments will hereafter be supplied with candle lights and protected kerosine lamps. It is deemed that there would be no necessity for deferring the closing of offices till late in the night, if the establishments were equal to the work. The heavy work which now falls to the lot of revenue officers will not enable them to get out of office before nightfall; but it is expected that Collectors of districts will enforce the rule as soon as the proposed re-organisation of the department shall come into force.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 31st, 1896.

Remarks on the holding of public offices till late in the night.

15. A correspondent to the Ariyajana Pariyan, of the 1st August, observes that a magistrate in Tinnevelly district committed four lads to the sessions on a charge of incendiarism, and that the Sessions Judge acquitted them as there was no evidence. The magistrate must have identified himself with the police in conducting the prosecution, inasmuch as he committed the case without noticing whether the confession of guilt by the boys—a result of intimidation by the police—was enough to establish guilt in the absence of other unimpeachable evidence. It should be the endeavour of Government to discountenance such conduct in the subordinate magistracy.

ARIYAJANA PARIYAN, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1896.

The advisability of Government to see whether committing magistrates are reasonable in the disposal of cases.

SASILEKHA, Madras, July 31st, 1896.

16. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 31st July, remarks that the District Judge of Nellore, though hearing the suits well enough up to the point of decision, altogether grows indolent thereafter. He says that the judge no doubt writes judgments as he cannot avoid it, but does so only after a year or six months from date of hearing, and that it is therefore a matter of surprise how the judge can recollect facts after such an interval of time. In fact, observes the correspondent, a large number of suits have been in arrears for years together, and the people are suffering from a serious want of speedy justice in spite of the heavy expenditure incurred in litigation.

The District Judge, Nellore.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 3rd, 1896.

17. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 3rd August, does not approve of the reply of His Excellency the Governor to a reference made in the address presented by the Salem people regarding the payment of allowances to jurors and assessors. The editor is of opinion that as this system is one intended for the welfare of the people, the expenses incurred in that connection should be met from the public revenue. Another suggestion is made that steps should be taken to improve the tone and character of jurors and assessors, to grant them immunity against penalty for trifling causes and to give the power of imposing fines upon them only to the High Court.

Jurors and assessors to be paid allowances.

18. A leader in the same paper says that the appointment of a Civilian as the Sub-Judge of Calicut is a great mistake. It is prejudicial to the interests both of the Civilian himself and of the people. If it is intended that the young Civilians should undergo a course of training in courts in civil matters, courts such as those of Calicut or other large towns should not be made the subject of experiment. Either small unimportant stations such as Cochin should be selected for the purpose or the Civilians should be appointed only as assistant judges, so that they may have a wider scope for acquiring legal knowledge and the people may not have to suffer so much. As it is, the grievances of the people are twofold. On the one hand, the suits suffer at the hands of an inexperienced Civilian, who has no knowledge of their customs or languages and, on the other, they are deprived of a high office which some of them could otherwise have hoped to occupy.

Disapproving of the appointment of Civilian Sub-Judges in important towns.

ALAHMI, Madras, Aug. 9th, 1896.

19. Referring to the sentence of nine months' rigorous imprisonment passed on several constables for cruelly treating an innocent man, who was arrested on suspicion of theft in the district of South Canara, the Alhami, of the 9th August, remarks that, taking the nature of the offence into consideration, the punishment awarded to the culprits is inadequate.

Inadequate punishment to constables causing death of a man in South Canara.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, July. 25th 1896.

20. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 25th July, is of opinion that Indian Universities should not take the surplus of fee collections to their credit, but that it should be spent for the benefit of the student population. The paper adds that expenditure in any other direction could not be justified. When the fees exceed the charges, there ought to be a reduction in the rates of examination fees.

A suggestion to Universities as to how the surplus collections of fees should be utilised.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 28th, 1896.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th July, says that the Sub-Assistant Inspector of Schools, Ramnad range, has effected a general transfer of Local Fund schoolmasters in his division without considering their pay and service. It is alleged that the Sub-Assistant has been very partial to some. The correspondent hopes that the Acting Assistant Inspector of Schools will cancel the arrangements made by his Assistant.

A complaint against the Sub-Assistant Inspector of Schools, Ramnad range, in regard to his transferring the Local Fund schoolmasters from place to place.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 10th, 1896.

Study of Sanskrit.

The same issue of the paper publishes a translation of an article in the Sanskrit journal, Vijnanachintamani which suggests the appointment of some one to report to Government on the articles appearing in the Sanskrit journal, and dealing with political questions. The Vijnanachintamani says that this can be easily done without any additional expense to the Government if it is ruled that some one of the vernacular translators should have a pretty good knowledge of Sanskrit. It hopes the Government will consider the matter.

(e) Local and Municipal.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th July, draws the attention of the District Board of Tanjore and the English press to the necessity of rectifying the following defects in the present mode of managing the palace chatrams in the district of Tanjore:—

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 28th, 1896.

A suggestion to the District Board of Tanjore and the English press about the necessity of rectifying some defects in the management of the palace chatrams.

(1) The servants employed in Pattukkóttai taluk, though too many, do not attend to their duty.

(2) Travellers and the poor who resort to the chatrams are not fed properly.

(3) The poor who seek only accommodation are not given any shelter.

(4) Expenses are daily increasing though there is no equitable distribution of food to the poor.

24. The Desabhimani, of the 29th July, complains as follows on the bad condition of the Vriddháchalam road:—

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, July 29th, 1896.

Complaints against the wretched condition of the Vriddháchalam road.

"Now that most of the important taluk kasbas and principal towns had been connected by railway, and the number of roads to be maintained in first-rate condition has been considerably reduced, there is not the slightest excuse for neglecting these few either on the score of paucity of funds or pressure of other demands on the time and attention of the Local Fund Engineer or his staff. We regret, therefore, to learn that the condition of the road to Vriddháchalam is so disgraceful that even common carts are over-turned in several parts of it, and that ant-hills have been allowed to grow up along the sides of it, while pitfalls are as countless as the sands of the beach or the stars of heaven. It is not surprising that this state of thing should have been allowed to continue so long, for the Head Assistant Collector—the responsible divisional revenue officer—has his head-quarters at Cuddalore and has probably never used this road, but it seems strange that non-official members of the District Board, some of whom must hail from Vriddháchalam, should not have thought fit to represent the state of affairs at the monthly meetings of the board. We would strongly urge the President of the District Board to drive along this road at an early opportunity, particularly between Kurinjipadi and Vadalur, i.e., from the 19th to the 22nd mile, and to judge for himself whether our description of it is an overdrawn picture. That this particular portion of the road is situated close to the gravel pits at Vadalur only accentuates the discredit attaching to officers for its dilapidated condition."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1896.

Requesting the Local Fund Board, Coimbatore district, to construct a bridge over the canal near Kodimudi.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th August, says that there is a canal in the vicinity of Kodimudi in Coimbatore district and that people find it difficult to go out of the place during the flood season as the canal is unbridged. The correspondent hopes that the Local Fund Board of the district will make a liberal contribution towards the construction of a bridge over the canal.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 5th, 1896.

Government to favourably consider the memorial of the Local Fund Engineers on the question of grading their appointments.

26. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th August, referring to the memorial submitted to Government last year by some of the Engineers of the Local Fund department requesting Government to make their appointments graded, says that if they had chances of being transferred from one district to another on higher salaries in consequence of their services being graded it will afford them great encouragement to do the work more conscientiously and to greater perfection. The Local Fund Engineers are the subordinates of the Presidents of District Boards, and as the Presidents, who are also District Collectors, know absolutely nothing of engineering they have no other alternative but to be guided by what the engineer says. If the appointments are graded the engineers will very likely be placed under the supervision of the Superintending Engineer of the Public Works Department who will be competent by his professional knowledge to deal fairly with them. The article therefore hopes that the Government will give a favourable reply to the memorial and that in considering the memorials opportunity will be taken to make the salaries of clerks belonging to the engineering establishment in each district uniform instead of their being different as now in different districts.

(g) Forests.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 31st, 1896.

Complaints against European officials and forest officers in Kourtallam.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, makes the following complaint against European officials and forest officers in Kourtallam:—European officials of the place have obtained the sanction of the local temple trustee to bathe in the falls from 7 to 10 in the morning. The trustee cannot be justified in disposing of places intended for the use of the public according to his will. Again, there is a flight of steps at the foot of the hill. Both the land and the road belong to the temple. Forest officers of the station have obstructed the way, alleging that the ground belongs to Government. They are further giving out that the temple and the falls are situated on Government land. Sooner or later they may obstruct the way leading to the temple and the falls. It is a pity that the temple trustee is indifferent to the encroachment of forest officers. The correspondent adds that a forest establishment for Tenkási taluk is unnecessary as the forest revenue is small, and that it is advisable to entrust the care of Government forests to the tahsildar. It is highly desirable that a beneficial retrenchment should be effected in this direction.

HINDU-JANASAMSKARINI, Madras, July 1896.

Want of manure.

28. The Hindujanasamskarini, for July 1896, remarks that it is purely want of manure that causes the unproductiveness of lands in the Madras Presidency. In many of the villages there is no pasture land for cattle and the cattle being poorly fed, there is a scarcity of manure. As the Government has conserved even shrub-growing lands giving them the name of forests, any vegetable refuse too is scarcely to be had for manure. Under these circumstances how can the lands be expected to yield a rich crop? The paper further remarks that no man can earn by any calling as much as one could do if he could call himself a Government servant.

(h) Railways.

29. A correspondent to the Nilalochani, of the 6th July, mentions that the Board of Directors and the Agent of South Indian Railway have approved of the suggestion made to them about the advisability of constructing wells in every station for the use of third-class passengers.

Sanctioning the construction of wells in every station of South Indian Railway for the use of third-class passengers.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, July 6th, 1896.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

30. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 8th August, says that the residents of a street in Ráyapuram presented a petition to the abkári authorities against sanctioning the opening of a toddy shop in the street and that an officer was sent by the department to make local inquiries. It was a pity to notice that respectable people, who objected to the measure, were fewer in number than the vagabonds of the place who in a body advocated the opening of the toddy shop. It is, nevertheless, hoped that the Abkári department will set aside the opinion of the majority in consideration of the fact that the street, already full of bad characters, will grow still more degenerate.

A suggestion to the abkári authorities in Madras not to sanction the opening of a new toddy shop in Ráyapuram.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1896.

31. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 12th August, says that the cases detected by the preventive police stationed on the Cochin frontier are not genuine ones but are either concocted or got up by a mutual agreement between the salt officers and the low castes, such as Cherumars, &c., who have no means of subsistence and who do not in consequence mind going to jail where they can get food without much work. This artifice of the salt officers will only serve to lessen the popular dread of imprisonment and to mislead Government as to the number of cases detected. The article therefore suggests that as the work now done by the preventive officers can be done by the salt officers of the range bordering the Cochin State provided the present strength of the peons is increased, the preventive force should be done away with and their salaries saved to Government.

Reprehensible conduct of the preventive officers on the Cochin frontier.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 12th, 1896.

(k) General.

32. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 28th July, reports that the sorters and peons in the head post office, Coimbatore, open newspapers addressed to subscribers in the town, and that letters sent by the latter to newspaper editors are opened in the office. The correspondent warns the postal servants that their names would be revealed if they should continue their malpractices.

Complaints against the postal servants in the head post office, Coimbatore.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 28th, 1896.

33. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 31st July, states that the High Court of Madras expressed an opinion that head constables sometimes abuse their power to inquire into, and report on, murder cases. It is always unfair to authorise petty officers to inquire into grave crimes.

Opinion of the High Court about the inadvisability of entrusting the inquiry into grave offences to head constables.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, July 31st, 1896.

34. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th August, says that the meeting convened in Madras to discuss "the Suakim charges" was largely attended and altogether a success. Many are the advantages resulting from such an agitation when a measure is universally condemned, for the proceedings of meetings so convened may draw the attention of the British Parliament to the injustice of its ministers. The paper desires that similar mass meetings should be held all over the presidency.

Advantages of holding public meetings to discuss measures universally condemned.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1896.

35. A correspondent to the same paper complains that boats ply in the Cauvery at Kodimudi, Coimbatore district, even in high floods and that the ferry-contractor puts the people, who have to cross the river, to much inconvenience and expense by making them wait for a long time on the banks and by levying from them more than the rate prescribed by Government. It is to be hoped that the authorities of Kodimudi will rectify matters.

Drawing the attention of Kodimudi authorities to some local grievances.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1896.

36. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 8th August, reports that theft is being committed with impunity within the town of Erode and that the authorities of the place should bestir themselves to detect the offenders.

A suggestion to the authorities of Erode regarding thefts committed within the town.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Aug. 8th, 1896.

37. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 8th August, remarks thus on the oppressive collection of income-tax:—Income-tax was intended to be levied once in ten years or so to serve as "The Famine Insurance Fund;" but it is now being levied on all—the rich and the poor—without proper graduation. There is another blunder demanding the serious attention of Government, i.e., the income-tax list is generally prepared by village officers, and therefore the taxation is necessarily irregular and capricious. It will be a boon to the country if Government should be pleased to impose income-tax on those whose annual income is Rs. 1,000 and upwards.

Remarks on the oppressive collection of income-tax.

RAJAYOGI, Coconada, July 27th, 1896.

38. The Rajayogi, of the 27th July, writes thus (in English):—"Perhaps the Government are not prepared to show better sympathy towards the ryots of this (Gódávari) district. They are more bent upon increasing the revenue than upon looking after the welfare of their subjects. Notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the Gódávari District Association, the report submitted by Mr. Clerk and the views expressed by the Board of Revenue tend to show that however hoarse the people may cry they are determined to squeeze the life juice out of the ryots."

The Government and the ryot.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Aug. 7th, 1896.

39. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 7th August, observes that Mr. G. Vasudeva Sastri, the Registrar of Nellore, attends office daily at 1 P.M. and takes rest until 4 P.M. In the meanwhile the parties having business in his office give vent to their feelings thus: "Alas! We came here at 11 A.M. and it is nearly 5. P.M. now. The officials of the district court and munsif's court are going home, whereas we are not as yet called in. We have to walk a long distance. The sky is cloudy and darkness is setting in. Our business is concerned with money matters and some thief may attack us in the dark. There are no roads to our villages and we have to walk home across paddy fields." The correspondent next states that the registrar calls in the parties at 5. P.M., and, after inquiring as to who all had been waiting at the office since the previous day and who came there only that day, sends away the latter and goes on disposing of the business of the others till 9 P. M. The correspondent further states that as it is usual for parties to pay and take moneys in the presence of the registrar, the recipients of money cannot be sure of safely carrying it in the dark to their far-off homes, and remarks that no other registrar of Nellore has ever been so bad or negligent. He therefore prays the Government may redress the grievance of the people in this respect either by transferring Mr. Sastri to some other place or by appointing some one to supervise his work daily, prohibiting his holding office after 5 P.M.

Mr. G. Vasudeva Sastri, the Registrar of Nellore.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 10th, 1896.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th August, speaking of the public meeting held in Madras to protest against India being charged with any portion of the cost of the Soudan expedition, says that the meeting was a great success, the more so because the Sheriff refused to call the meeting. The editor, referring to the plea of precedent put forward by the Secretary of State for India, says

The Soudan charges.

"suppose a thief who is caught red-handed and brought before a magistrate pleads that he had committed theft in the house of the complainant several times before with impunity, would the magistrate accept the defence of the accused and set him free?"

Reflections on the gubernatorial visit to Salem.

41. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th July, while giving a summary of the various addresses presented to His Excellency the Governor during his visit to Salem and of the replies of His Excellency thereto, remarks that it is possible only for persons possessing extraordinary tact to give a satisfactory reply to addresses which are presented by various bodies and which deal with all the grievances that come within their knowledge. If not they will have either to give a disagreeable reply to the people or for an ephemeral popularity to make promises which it is not in their power to fulfil; but it may be inferred from the speeches of His Excellency at Salem that his replies were not of the above description. In conclusion the paper says that His Excellency has given complete satisfaction to the Salemites and that, on this account, the people of other parts of the presidency could not but have felt great pleasure.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 29th, 1896.

A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 1st August, referring to the same subject, says that the fact that His Excellency gave a patient and sympathetic hearing to the grievances represented by the people of Salem has greatly tended to confirm the very high opinion which the people had already had of His Excellency. The article, after commenting at some length upon the several addresses and replies to them, exhorts the people of Malabar to make arrangements to accord as fitting a welcome to His Excellency as at Salem during his proposed visit to Malabar in September next, and to present separate addresses representing the interests of the various classes of people in the district.

Post peons to be appointed in village post offices.

42. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 29th July, in noticing with pleasure the opening of a village post office in Mullasseri amsom, Chowghat range, remarks that, as no peons are generally attached to such post offices the inconvenience experienced by the people is greater than that previous to the establishment of such offices. The editor, while hoping that the postal authorities will not show indifference in the matter of appointing peons in village post offices, considers that when the Registration department strives so much to establish new sub-registry offices, the postal authorities ought to make greater efforts to open new post offices in different places.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, July 29th, 1896.

III.—LEGISLATION.

Legislative Councils.

HINDU-JANASAMSKARINI, Madras, July 1896.

Government to legislate against the capricious evictions by Malabar landlords.

44. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st August, says that if owing to any cause the landlords are displeased with the tenants the latter are evicted from their lands. This system of taking retribution is carried on not only in their own behalf but also in behalf of others. It appears that Kutiravettath Naitiar, who had leased out certain lands on kanom tenure to one Vellepalli Krishna Menon, has, without any ground and without giving any notice to the latter, filed a civil suit to eject him from the land because he was instrumental in inducing a Sudra woman to bring a maintenance suit against a Pattar Brahman who was her husband. By such acts the independence of the people in general and the reputation of the landlords in particular are seriously compromised, and it is therefore highly necessary that some remedial measures should be immediately adopted. To argue that the interests of the landlords and tenants should not differ is really absurd and to let the tenants be oppressed with impunity when such is the case is certainly cruel and unreasonable. In conclusion, the article suggests that it should be provided that, if a tenant pays the residual rent and the renewal fees regularly and does not raise any dispute regarding the janmam right, he should not be evicted from his holdings.

IV.—Native States.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 28th, 1896.

A warning to the rulers of Baroda, Indore and Hyderabad.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th July, repeats the remarks of the Champion, a leading paper in Bombay, in these terms:—"Diwan Bahadur Srinivasa Raghavaiyangar has taken charge of office as Diwan of Baroda; but things will take such a turn as to necessitate his resigning the office within a year, for the people of Baroda do not approve of the Gaikwar's nomination and they are divided into two hostile factions. The Maharaja is further a fickle-minded person who will not put faith in anybody for a length of time. The Native States of Baroda, Indore and Hyderabad are so mismanaged as to drive the British Government to the necessity of taking the administration of the provinces into its hands. It is, therefore, desirable that the rulers of these States should take the warning and attend to the needs of their country."

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 31st, 1896.

Present condition of Cochin.

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, speaks of the present condition of Cochin in these terms:—This being the rainy season, rivers are full. Traffic is rendered impossible in some parts as some rivers are without bridges. The administration of all departments is very satisfactory as the Maharaja is fully alive to the importance of checking corruption and other vices of the official class. A British post office is a want in the town and people are put to much inconvenience thereby, and it is to be hoped that the Postal Superintendent will soon remove the want.

Nilalochanii, Negapatam, July 6th and 20th, 1896.

Present condition of the Native Rajas of India.

47. The Nilalochani, of the 6th and 20th July, observes as follows on the present condition of the Native Rajas of India:—Many Native Rajas there are in India under the control of the British rule with liberty to govern their territories. There is nothing to complain of the English supervision, except that the abuse of power of some of the Political Agents is unchecked. Political Agents are appointed to see that nothing is done in Native States prejudicial to English interests; but, on the other hand, they interfere in all affairs unnecessarily. The intervention is a violation of the original understanding between the English and Native rulers. Rajas and diwans are at the mercy of Political Agents who in fact become the virtual rulers of Native States. The inferior position held by Rajas is in some States taken advantage of by their diwans and other officials who side with Political Agents against their masters. British Government further bases its decision on the report of Political Agents in disputed points. The Native States in Northern India are instances where the Political Agents transgress their bounds. The Raja of Patna is alleged to have shot his wife and himself unable to endure the insolence of his Political Agent. The Government of India has failed to inquire into the cause of the suicide, and this betrays a gross neglect of duty. The Raja of Jhallawar is said to have been deposed by British Government on the complaint preferred against him by the Political Agent. It is the duty, on the other hand, of British Government to deal with Native Rajas justly and respectfully. It is desirable that British Government should have the prosperity of Native Rajas at heart.

48. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th August, comments as follows on the remarks of the Champion in respect of the attitude of British Government towards Native States:—With reference to the Champion's observation "that Political Agents have been secretly instructed to allow irregularities in Native States to increase till they take a serious turn and then report against the mismanagement to British Government," the Swadesamitran says that there has been nothing in the past to warrant the statement. The states of Jhallawar and Kashmir have been quoted as instances, where British Government did not resort to annexation even though it could be justified on public grounds. Neither is there any instance to show that British Government allowed evils to grow in Native States without being checked. The mere fact that Diwan Bahadur Srinivasa Raghavaiyangar has been sent to Baroda as diwan is a conclusive proof to show that Government has the good of Native States at heart. The new diwan's administration will be a complete success in spite of the opinion of the Champion, for he will by his impartiality and skill reconcile the factions and effect many salutary reforms.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 4th, 1896.

Comment on the remarks of the Champion in respect of the attitude of British Government towards Native States.

49. The Hindujanasamskarini, for July, remarks that as the zamindars, rajas and maharajas are blindly wasting and abusing their wealth, instead of co-operating in movements for public good, the Government will do well to take possession of their lands and devote the net income, after deducting peshkash, for educational improvements.

HINDU-JANASAMSKARINI, Madras, July 1896.

Landed proprietors.

50. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 2nd August, suggests that, as Mr. Bhaba is going to retire, the proper person to succeed him would be V. N. Narasimha Aiyangar, who is well up in Sanskrit, Kanarese and English, as neither Mr. Púrnia nor Mr. Narahari Rao would do justice to the work, the former being out of touch with educational matters, the latter having little knowledge of Kanarese.

MYSORE, DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Aug. 2nd, 1896.

The Inspector-Generalship of Education in Mysore.

51. The same paper hears that Mr. A. Narasimha Aiyangar, who was retired on the death of the late Maharaja, is again to be taken into service, and remarks that, as the man led the late Maharaja out of the path of virtue, he may do the same with the present prince if he is allowed to be anywhere near the palace.

Re-employment of Mr. A. Narasimha Aiyangar.

52. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 9th August, says:—The injustice committed by the British Government is seen only when we go deep into a matter, but the injustice committed by the Government of Mysore is glaring. Each of the councillors and the diwan are careful to give promotions to their favourites, but none of these care for the poor hard-working servants who have not been fortunate enough to secure the favour of the diwan or the councillors. The fortunes of the Government servants are settled by demi-officials and secret consultations between the diwan and the councillors, and matters are now worse than they were when the diwan was the sole ruler.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Aug. 9th, 1896.

Injustice in Mysore.

53. The same paper learns that in Travancore one Mrs. Dawson, wife of the Commandant of the Nayar Brigade, invited the Maharaja to a ball, but as the Maharaja was in mourning he did not accept the invitation, nor did he intimate to the lady his inability to attend. The British Resident considers this an insult to the lady and has called upon the Maharaja to apologise. The editor thinks that it is rather the lady and the Resident that should apologise, the former for her presumption in asking the Maharaja to a ball when he was in mourning and the latter for thinking that the ruler of a state owes an apology to a servant of his. The editor hopes that the Maharaja would not put up with this insult, but address the Government of India on the subject.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Aug. 1st, 1896.

Bad state of roads and bridges in the Cochin State.

54. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 1st August, while complaining of the deplorable condition of roads and bridges in the Cochin State, remarks that the annual allotments under the Public Works Department are recklessly expended by the Engineering department instead of being spent to the best advantage. It is said that if the Sirkar had sufficiently supervised the works executed by the Civil Engineering department and checked the expenditure, the roads and other communications would not have been in such an unsatisfactory state as at present.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 1st, 1899.

Approving of the proposal of Government to remove the disabilities of converts in Travancore and Cochin by legislation.

55. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st August, approves of the order of the Madras Government requesting the Resident to advise the Darbars of Travancore and Cochin to introduce a regulation similar to Act XXI of 1850 securing a Nayar convert to Christianity his right to maintenance from his tarwad property, but it suggests that the legislatures of those States should see that, in drawing up the proposed measure, the maintenance provided for therein does not exceed what is generally given to the junior members of Marumakkatayam families. It is further suggested that, as the self-acquisitions of a member of a Marumakkatayam family now lapse to the tarwad after his death and the wife and children lose their right to those acquisitions, it should be provided in the proposed regulation that the tarwad should have no right to the self-acquired property of a convert.

MALAYA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Aug. 1st, 1896.

Regretting the departure of Mr. Thomson, British Resident in Travancore and Cochin.

56. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 1st August, testifies to the immense satisfaction felt by the people of Cochin and Travancore at the sterling qualities possessed by their late British Resident, Mr. Thomson. Mr. Thomson has devoted much attention to the welfare of the people, and, unlike his predecessors, he always made it a point to hold thorough inquiries into every popular grievance referred to him for redress. He knew his duty and scarcely ever interfered in the affairs of the State when he had no concern with them. He was not in favour of any public demonstration in honour of himself, but fully realised that the welfare of the people was to the interest of the Resident. The people of Cochin and Travancore will always be glad to have such men appointed as their Resident.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR,, Madras, Aug. 1st, 1896.

Hyderabad Imperial Service troops.

57. In disapproving of the proposed placing of the Hyderabad Imperial Service troops under His Excellency Lieutenant-General Commanding the Forces, Madras, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 1st August, says the proposal is unreasonable and it is a pity the Nizam's exchequer has been charged with the expenses of constructing substantial barracks and providing four hundred ponies for the troops which it is unable to bear. The editor proceeds to state that no officer of the Nizam's Government will take any objection thereto for fear of being punished in the same way as was done in the case of the Nawab Vicar-ul-umra when he had on a former occasion objected to some of the proposals of the Resident in regard to the same matter, and remarks it is no wonder if the Imperial proposal are based on injustice and self-interestedness since Lord Elgin, who belongs to the Liberal party, acts according to the wish of the Conservatives, and His Lordship's ignorance of their policy has made him a bigoted Conservative.

ALHAMI, Madras, Aug. 9th, 1896.

Mr. Plowden's policy as regards Native State.

58. On the authority of the Mushir-i-Deccan, of Hyderabad, the Alhami, of the 9th August, says that the policy of Mr. Plowden as regards Native States has been notoriously severe. Native chiefs in general and the Maharaja of Patiala in particular are warned to be on the alert when Mr. Plowden assumes the reins of government as Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

59. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th August, says that, owing to the absence of bunds, the Cauvery and the Coleroon overflowed their banks in Trichinopoly and destroyed all the houses in a whole village and that the crops over an area of many thousands of acres have been completely under water, in consequence of which the people are in great distress. Similar distress is also said to prevail in countries bordering on the Kistna in the north.

Destruction by floods in Trichinopoly.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Aug. 10th, 1896.

60. The Alhami, of the 9th August, has an article from the Paisa Akbar (place of publication not known) on the straitened circumstances of the people of India in which it is observed that its inhabitants are gradually sinking into poverty and are bitterly complaining against the harsh treatment they experience at the hands of the authorities.

Straitened condition of the people of India.

Alhami, Madras, Aug. 9th, 1896.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

61. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 25th July, makes the following appeal to the members of the Indian National Congress:—Many are the advantages and disadvantages resulting from the British rule of India. Europeans do not treat Indians with as much respect and kindness as they showed to them in former days; hence arose the necessity for the organisation of the Indian Congress. Among the benefits of the National Congress, the appointment of Indians to offices of Judge and Collector is mentioned as one; but it is no new privilege. We enjoyed it even before the days of the Congress. The enlargement of Legislative Councils is spoken of as another boon. It cannot be said that any good has resulted to the country from the power of interpellation conferred on non-official members. It is impossible for Indian members to dissuade European councillors from spending money in a direction which the former do not approve. It is almost certain that the privileges we aim at will not be accorded to us, but at the same time it is not advisable for us to remain silent. It would be well if the Indian National Congress would agitate the question of giving the people of India a voice in the appointment of the Secretary of State for India. Let Government nominate two European candidates, and the choice of one of them for the office be left to the people of India.

An appeal to the members of the Indian National Congress.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, July 25th, 1896.

62. The Swadesamitran, of the 31st July, says that the inhabitants of Madras requested the Sheriff to convene a public meeting for expressing their regret at, and adopting remedial measures for, the resolution of the British Parliament compelling India to pay for its Indian contingent sent against Suakim, and that the Sheriff refused to comply with the request. He is said to have passed some remarks on the inadvisability of such a gathering. His attempt to comment on the action of the citizens was unwarranted. He was wrong in thinking that they solicited his individual opinion; on the other hand, he was called to do a duty. It is a matter for congratulation that the people of Madras will nevertheless hold a meeting to have their say on the question.

Remarks on the refusal of the Sheriff of Madras to convene a meeting at the request of the leading citizens.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 31st, 1896.

63. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th August, observes that the streets of Melaipalayur, a village near Kodavasal, Nannilam taluk, are in an insanitary state and that encroachments have been made in the streets by the erection of pandals Grievances of the people of Melaipalayur, near Kodavasal in Nannilam taluk.

and storage of wood. The police and village officers are alleged to be very indifferent. The road sanctioned for the village some two years ago has not yet been completed and this puts people to no small inconvenience. The tunnel under construction for the river in the village is not made of strong material and it shows want of proper supervision on the part of the divisional overseer and engineer. The correspondent hopes that the grievances pointed out will be attended to.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1896.

The unnecessary existence of a council to the Secretary of State for India.

64. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th August, observes that the Pioneer an Anglo-Indian journal, agrees with the Indian press and questions the necessity for the existence of a council to the Secretary of State for India when there is the Government of India as the proper exponent of the Indian public. The abolition of the said council is one of the questions agitated by the National Congress, and it remains to be seen when the Home Government will be pleased to sanction the prayer.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 3rd, 1896.

The shrievalty of Madras.

65. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 3rd August, speaking of the refusal by the Shèriff of Madras to call a public meeting on a written requisition by the people, says that the Sheriff has no right whatever to refuse to call a public meeting and thinks that the office of the Sheriff is a mere sinecure with a good salary, and, if he refuses to call a public meeting when the citizens require one, it cannot be said to be useful at all and the best plan is to abolish the office. The meeting could not, in the opinion of the editor, be considered for a seditious purpose since it was meant to support the action of the Government of India and to protest against an imposition which all people think to be unjust.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vikata Dutan, of the 22nd August, speaking of the railway extensions made by Russia in the southern borders of her dominions both in Europe and Asia, says that the Russians have constructed a line as far as Viladivastak, a town near the Pacific Ocean. The paper farther says that the attempt of Russia to open a line, under the pretext of commerce as far as Kandahar in Afghanistan, proved unsuccessful, as the Amir, notwithstanding the advice of the Government of India to assent to the proposed construction, stoutly opposed the opening of a railway in his dominions on the ground that it would facilitate the transport of Russian troops in times of war. The paper is unable to judge of the attitude of the Government of India in this matter, and admires the far-sighted policy of the Amir.

Attempts of Russia to construct railway lines in Afghanistan.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

2. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 29th August, says:—The insurrection in Crete and the impossibility of suppressing Greek sympathy and participation in the same is likely to have momentous issues. It is pretty certain to free Egypt from the suzerainty of the Porte. This would mean the remission annually of some eighty million francs, the tribute which at present Egypt pays to Turkey. In fact, a vista of aggrandisement is opened out to the former country. The Khedive's kingdom will be extended to its original limits by the invasion and reconquest of the Soudan which England has virtually undertaken. In these circumstances, it is not surprising that the Continental press should inveigh against England and impute the insurrection in Crete to her diplomacy. It is roundly asserted that Lord Salisbury was actuated by selfish and sinister motives in declining to assent or take part in the suggested blockade of the beautiful but "distressful" island of Crete, and that his aim was to frustrate the concert of Europe. The object of the proposed blockade was to prevent the landing in Crete of Greek sympathisers with arms and ammunition. Though this measure was proposed to be taken in the interest of Turkey, to uphold the authority of the latter, and prevent the insurrection from making headway, the Porte immediately objected to the proceeding, alleging that it would be an infringement of the sovereign rights of Turkey. It is clear that the idea of the blockade was not abandoned owing to the representation, inasmuch as England, Austria and Italy have since landed a joint naval force on the shores of Crete, which is undeniably a more serious infringement of the Sultan's sovereign rights than a blockade would have been. In this connection it would be interesting to know the interpretation Turkey puts upon her "sovereign rights." Apparently she includes in this category the license to pillage, rape and murder and ravage the country with fire and sword. It is well that at last Europe has declined to acquiesce in such a definition of the "sovereign rights" of an empire which claims to be civilised. It was the press of Austria that first started the crusade against England for alleged implication in fomenting the disturbances in Crete; Germany then joined in and now Russia is following suit. They are all agreed that the Machiavellian plots of England are at the bottom of the whole business and they cannot find sufficiently hard terms in which to denounce the treachery of "Perfidious Albion." England has committed herself to this sinister policy, it is alleged, in order to divert the vigilance of Europe from Egypt and her own aggressive invasion of the Soudan. But if England succeeds in reconquering the Soudan, developing the resources of the Nile Valley and civilising East Africa, she will aid all, the other nations engaged in exploiting the "Dark Continent." The only power likely to suffer by the proceeding is Turkey. It is extremely probable that Greece, who is at present indirectly engaged in aiding the Cretan insurgents to throw

The political outlook in Europe.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Aug. 29th, 1896.

off the Turkish yoke, will ultimately be installed at Constantinople under the ægis of Germany, England, Austria and Italy. This step would be the most effectual check to the colossal aggrandisement of Russia and indeed appears to be the only way of preventing the Golden Horn from falling into the grasp of that insatiable power. Lord Cromer is credited with a very statesmanlike scheme to get rid of the obstructive interference of France and Russia in Egypt. It is said that he is negotiating an arrangement in London, by which England should undertake to guarantee the national debt of Egypt. The proposal is that England should pay at par the bondholders, who are principally French. It is affirmed that, by consolidating the debt, 33 per cent. of its annual payment of interest will be saved the revenues of Egypt. That is to say, that were England to become security for the solvency of Egypt the bondholders would be paid in full or required to take 33 per cent. less as interest. In this way Egypt would free herself of the interference of the European powers with her finances. The question is whether France and Russia will allow this arrangement to be effected. Russia practically commands the suffrages of the most potent European powers. France will go any lengths to aid her and even Germany is now truckling to secure the favour of the Northern Colossus. Germany has much to fear from the enmity of her formidable neighbour. It is said that the only bond which unites Hungary with Austria is a sentiment of love and veneration for the present aged emperor, Francis Joseph. At his demise, which, in the nature of things, cannot be far off, there is likely to be a violent disruption of the dual monarchy. This will all be in favour of Russia, inasmuch as there are fifteen millions of slaves who are likely to take an active part in the impending revolution. Germany's anxiety to remain on good terms with Russia can, in these circumstances, be well understood. Indeed it is said that Germany suggested the abortive idea of a blockade of Crete by the powers at the secret instigation of Russia, and this is sufficient indication of the extent of her subserviency to her powerful neighbour.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 10th, 1896.

Grant of subsidy to the Amir.

3. Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 10th August, says that one of its Panjab contemporaries states that the payment of an annual subsidy to the Amir together with gifts of arms, &c., in consequence of the apprehended Russian invasion of India viâ Afghanistan, is impolitic, for the reason that Russia will one day or other entrap the Amir and thus pave the way for invading India. It is then suggested by the contemporary that Afghanistan should be conquered and annexed to India.

In combating this view, the Qasim remarks that, if Afghanistan were conquered and annexed, it would be impossible, as experience has shown, for the British Government to exercise authority over its unruly inhabitants. Internal wars and bloodshed would become the order of the day and the Government would be involved in difficulties. The Amir, whose loyalty has been often acknowledged by many a British politician, has done nothing to justify a reversal of the existing policy.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengód, Aug. 16th, 1896.

A complaint that people commit nuisance near the bridge over the Kalingarayan canal in Erode.

4. A correspondent to the Viveka Thivakaran, of the 16th August, complains that people commit nuisance near the bridge over the Kalingarayan canal in Erode and also on its sides and thus render the place very insanitary. He requests the authorities concerned to adopt remedial measures.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Irregular conduct of the police in Calicut.

5. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th August, says:—Last week at Calicut a beat constable arrested a certain person, who with his wife was passing in a carriage, on the plea that he was enticing away the woman, and, in spite of the protestations of the respectable gentleman to the contrary, he took the party to the police station. The Town Police Inspector persuaded the unfortunate couple to go away without lodging a complaint against the constable. We cannot say what a complexion the case will bear when closely looked into; but a careful inquiry seems necessary in the matter, the more so because the Calicut police have not been of late enjoying the best reputation. The couple referred to are respectable people, and, if they were not sufficiently known to the constable, the words of respectable people ought to have put him on his guard.

Misconduct of the Calicut police.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th August, refers to the misconduct of the Calicut police. It remarks that, owing to the leniency shown by superiors in the department whenever their subordinates commit any iniquities, the latter are emboldened to more atrocious deeds. The article describes an incident which recently occurred at Calicut, in which a beat constable ill-treated certain respectable people who were going in a carriage through the town. On last Wednesday (12th August) one Allamputhur Govinda Menon, of Quilandy, and his wife, who belongs to a respectable Nayar tarwad near Ferôk, came to the Calicut station to go to Ferôk by the evening train. As they missed the train they were much confused, and a beat constable of the fifth party taking advantage of the circumstance apprehended and took them to the police station alleging that Govinda Menon was abducting the woman who was no other than his wife. Certain respectable persons who happened to meet them on the way and who knew Govinda Menon and his wife told the constable who they were, but he did not listen to it. The husband made a complaint to the Town Police Inspector against the constable stating all the particulars, but the inspector, without going into the complaint, compromised the case and told the couple to go away. The editor asks, what authority the inspector had to dispose of the matter so summarily without inquiring into the complaint, and requests the Superintendent to make a thorough inquiry into the matter as the action of the constable was both unjust and oppressive.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 15th, 1896.

How to improve the station-house officers of the Police department.

7. The Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th August, has a leader making certain suggestions regarding the selection of station-house officers of the Police department. The paper says that as the security of the people within the jurisdiction of a station-house officer depends on his honesty and ability, the candidates selected for such post of trust and responsibility should be educated, honest and unselfish men who have the good of the people at heart. It is suggested that the constables, who by their low association have become so callous as to commit any atrocious deeds, should not be promoted to the grade of station-house officer and that the salary of the latter should be raised to Rs. 40 or 50 per mensem. Candidates appointed as station-house officers should also be men who are in every way qualified for the post of inspectors.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 24th, 1896.

(b) Courts.

Race distinctions among officials.

8. The Desabhimani, of the 12th August, writes in English as follows:—

"Though Mr. T. Varada Rao, our Assistant Collector, has been invested with first-class magisterial powers and placed in charge of the Cuddalore taluk, yet he is not authorised to hear and dispose of appeals against the judgments of Messrs. Coombes and Willimott, who are only magistrates of the third class. We must confess that we can see no valid reason for this distinction. Both of these gentlemen are very considerably Mr. Varada Rao's juniors in the service, but, even if it were otherwise, there can be nothing derogatory to their official dignity in appeals against their judgments being disposed of by the divisional full-power magistrate.

* * * * *

"Mr. Varada Rao is an officer of more than ten years' standing, and, if he can be trusted to dispose of appeals against second-class magistrates in his division, it is a most invidious distinction to exclude from his jurisdiction a couple of third-class magistrates merely because they happen to belong to a different race or a higher service than other subordinate magistrates."

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Aug. 12th, 1896.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Law touts in the Egmore Police Courts.

9. Referring to the notice of the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Egmore, addressed to persons who frequent the court as law touts, calling upon them to show cause why they should not be registered as such and prevented from entering the precincts of the court, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 24th August, says that such persons should not be allowed access to the court as they have taken to perjury and the concoction of cases as the means of their livelihood.

(c) Jails.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Aug. 15th, 1896.

A suggestion regarding jails.

10. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th August, regarding the jail administration, writes in English as follows:—"Our Governor seems to imagine that our jail birds enjoy a comfortable time during the period of their incarceration and that the penal element appears to be either altogether lacking or deficient in the present system of jail discipline. His Excellency is not perhaps altogether wrong in his observation, so far as the habitual offenders of the regular criminal classes are concerned, who do not now find the jail life a hardship at all; but it will not do to treat with severity everybody who gets into jail for some offence or other, as even under the present humane system many people suffer very severely and some even die very prematurely while working out their sentence. Our own recommendation is to send fewer people to jail and use other punishments, such as heavy fines, forfeiture of property, whipping, pillory, stocks, &c., to suit different classes of prisoners and offences."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 11th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Director of Public Instruction.

11. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th August, writes as follows:—The headmasters of some high schools, such as Udamalpet Board High school, Chittoor Board High school, &c., which were some years ago transferred by Government to Municipalities and Local Fund Boards, continue to receive the same high pay which they received when the schools were directly under Government. The result of paying the headmasters on a liberal scale has been a low scale of salaries to the assistant teachers—a policy which has had the effect of rendering the schools inefficient. The subject deserves the consideration of the Director of Public Instruction who should, if possible, take back into Government service the highly-paid headmasters.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Aug. 12th, 1896.

Contemplated reduction in the pay of teachers employed in the Local Fund schools in South Arcot.

12. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 12th August, learning that the Local Fund authorities contemplate the reduction of salaries of the teachers of the Local Fund schools in South Arcot, says that the scale of pay now given to these teachers is indeed very low when compared with their hard labour, and advises the board to reduce the pay of highly-paid officials rather than diminish the pittance given to the teachers. The correspondent also implores the inspecting officers to plead the cause of the said teachers to the board and to recommend the abolition of all the Local Fund schools in the district in case the board insists on reducing the salaries of the teachers.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 15th, 1896.

Reformatory school.

13. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th August, in commenting upon the report on the working of the Reformatory school for the past year, remarks that it is a pity that, owing to the want of accommodation in this institution, which is so well calculated to mend the conduct and character of juvenile offenders, many have to be sent back. Although it is a matter for congratulation that the number of boys annually sent to the school is greatly decreasing, yet it is doubtful whether the decrease is not due to the offenders being let off with corporal punishment instead of being sent to the Reformatory school.

(e) Local and Municipal.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th August, complains that the sanitation of Karvetnagar is very unsatisfactory and that carts without lights pass at night both from Karvetnagar and Puthur along the ghât roads. The matter deserves the attention of the authorities concerned. The correspondent also requests the authorities to arrange for the erection of a parapet wall round the temple tank at Tiruttani for the reason that its absence is likely to cause danger as the streets around it are very narrow.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1896.

A complaint regarding the sanitation of Karvetnagar and the necessity for a parapet wall round the temple tank at Tiruttani.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 21st August, reports that the No. I. road which leads from Tanjore to Trichinopoly viâ Goonampattee, Killukottai, &c., is in so wretched a condition as to be highly dangerous to traffic, and requests the authorities to attend to its repair at once.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1896.

Wretched condition of the No. I. road leading from Tanjore to Trichinopoly.

16. A correspondent to the same paper, speaking of the importance of the village of Kalyanapuram in the district of Tanjore, observes that it pays a kist of Rs. 18,000 and a road-cess of Rs. 1,000 per annum and so forth, and complains that the authorities have paid no attention to the repeated memorials of the villagers, requesting them to repair the short road, about two furlongs in length, which connects the village with the main road.

Necessity for repairing a certain road in the village of Kalyanapuram in Tanjore district.

17. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th August, referring to the Local Fund Provident fund in South Canara, which has recently been founded, says that it is a pity that the Local Fund employés on a salary of Rs. 10 and less are not under the rules given the option of joining the fund. These ought also, in the opinion of the editor, to be allowed to enjoy the benefit of the fund.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 15th, 1896.

Local Fund Provident fund, South Canara.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th August, disapproves of the notice issued by the Calicut Municipal Council to the occupants of houses in which the scavengering system has been adopted stating that the fee paid by them is proposed to be enhanced and that those who are unwilling to pay the enhanced rate should inform the council. The article says that, while the scavengering system has not yet become popular in the town, it is very indiscreet on the part of the council to contemplate enhancing the fees paid by those who have adopted the system and thus to discourage them. Under the circumstances what the municipality ought to do is to withdraw the notice and to get the system introduced throughout the town in the interests of public health without increasing the present rate, which the editor considers as quite adequate for maintaining the system in the municipality.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 29th, 1896.

Scavengering system in the Calicut municipality.

19. With reference to the recent outbreak of cholera in Bangalore, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 13th August, suggests to Dr. Ross, Residency Surgeon and Special Health Officer, the advisability of having an Urdu translation of the necessary portions of "The Guide to preserve Health" made, published, distributed broadcast and furnishing the necessary medicines to all the police stations. These measures, it says, will tend to the suppression of cholera now raging there.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 13th, 1896.

Cholera in Bangalore.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Closing of the Muhammadan cemeteries in Madras.

20. Referring again to the order of Government regarding the closing of the Muhammadan cemeteries in Madras, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 24th August, says with regret that this order was passed in spite of reasonable protests and weighs heavily on the Muhammadan community. It hopes that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will reconsider the order and give justice to the Muhammadans as he already has to Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Mr. Leonard, the President of the Bangalore City Municipality.

21. In thanking Mr. Leonard, the President of the Bangalore City Municipality, for introducing many useful reforms in the departments under him, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 24th August, says Mr. Leonard, who is a very energetic, zealous and painstaking officer, always has the well-being and comfort of the people at heart.

(g) Forests.

DRAVIDA BHANU, Tuticorin, Aug. 15th, 1896.

Mischief of the ministerial officers of the Forest department.

22. The Dravida Bhanu, of the 15th August, says that the ryots in Southern India regard the Forest department as a curse owing to the mischief done by the ministerial officers of that department. It adds that, if the ryots fail to bribe them, they prosecute the ryots for cattle-trespass, and it costs these men no small amount of trouble and expense to get themselves acquitted. The paper further says that, during the sowing season, the said officials delay the leasing out of plots of forest land, and the ryots are put to much difficulty in procuring wood for agricultural implements and dried leaves for manure. The paper hopes that the higher authorities will attend to the matter here complained of.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

Forest Act in Kurnool.

23. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd August, referring to the oppression caused to the people by the recent prosecutions of poor ryots before magistrates in the Kurnool district for not having produced licenses when required, although they had the same at home, and for one of them having in his possession a beam which was suspected to have been stolen from the forest, &c., observes that in 1894, when the ryots in the Kurnool district were oppressed and ill-treated by the Forest officials, the then Governor of Madras deputed a Member of the Board of Revenue to investigate the matter and rebuked, on his report, the Forest officials for their irregularities. The paper does not know what the present Government would be disposed to do if acts of oppression such as the above were now brought to its notice.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1896.

A suggestion to the railway authorities.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 17th, 1896.

Treatment of native passengers by Europeans on railways.

25. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th August, quotes from the Weekly Review the case of a European Joint Magistrate on leave using violent means to oust a Muhammadan and his wife from a first-class compartment which he himself wanted to occupy; but, as the Muhammadan was an educated man, the paper says no amount of persuasion, even from the stationmaster, could prevail upon him to quit the compartment for the benefit of the European.

(i) Public Works.

26. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th August, describing the devastation caused by the recent floods of the Coleroon, remarks that, if the Public Works authorities had repaired and strengthened the northern bank of the Coleroon in time, the vast damage now done would not have occurred. He hopes that now at least the repairs necessary would be attended to.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 11th, 1896.

Advisability of repairing the northern bank of the Coleroon.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 11th, 1896.

A remark on the revenue of the Salt department.

28. A correspondent to the same paper says that in the village of Edakkalinadu, in Madurantakam taluk, people for the purpose of making jaggery generally draw toddy from cocoanut trees in pots lined with chunam, and complains that, whenever there is a deficiency in the quantity of chunam, the abkári officials classify the liquid so drawn under the heading of "toddy," prosecute the drawers before magistrates and get them punished. The correspondent further adds that, from fear of the oppression of the abkári officials, nearly all the toddy-drawers of the place have abandoned their profession and are starving without means of livelihood. The correspondent prays Government to pay attention to this subject.

Highhanded dealing on the part of abkári officials in the village of Edakkalinadu in Madurantakam taluk.

29. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th August, while referring to the oppression and corruption of the salt and abkári officers, remarks that it is doubtful whether any other department under the Government is more oppressive and corrupt than the Salt and Abkári department. It recommends the abolition of the system of marking trees tapped for sweet toddy as the system only serves to give additional facilities for the salt officers to oppress the toddy-drawers and it is not moreover very profitable to Government. The article states that the abkári officers systematically collect as blackmail a sum ranging from one to three rupees per tree, which is applied for to be marked, just as they levy blackmail on the fish-curers at the rate of four annas per bag sold in the fish-curing yards, and, if the amount asked for by these officers is not paid, they not only make unusual delay in marking the trees, but they try to bring them trouble afterwards. The attention of the authorities is therefore invited to the necessity for doing away with that system.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 29th, 1896.

Government to do away with the system of marking trees tapped for sweet toddy.

(k) General.

30. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 15th August, makes a complaint that on Tuesday preceding not a light was seen in the Madras harbour and that the passengers from the Rangoon mail steamer, which anchored in the harbour late in the evening, were with much difficulty and annoyance obliged to make their way in darkness. There was a large crowd of vagabonds on the beach in the guise of coolies, apparently bent on mischief. Who is responsible, asks the paper, for this gross neglect of duty? The subject demands the attention of Government.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 15th, 1896.

A complaint regarding the absence of lights in the Madras harbour.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 18th, 1896.

A request to the postal authorities.

31. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th August, dwelling on the heaviness of postal work in the post office at Trichur, requests the postal authorities either to open a branch post office at Vadakkancheri or appoint an additional clerk to help the postmaster at Trichur.

A complaint against the post office at Pudukkóttai.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 21st, 1896.

A suggestion to the postal authorities regarding the village of Kalyanapuram in Tanjore district.

33. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 21st August, saying that the village of Kalyanapuram in the district of Tanjore contains about 2,000 houses, remarks that the postal peon delivers letters to the inhabitants of the village only thrice a week and that this subjects them to much inconvenience. He requests the authorities to arrange for the daily delivery of letters to the village and to put up there a pillar-box that was promised long ago.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

Desirability of increasing the pay of postmasters.

34. The Jananukulan, of the 22nd August, hearing that all post offices in the district of Tanjore have been ordered to sell quinine in future, observes that the work and responsibilities of postmasters increase day by day, whereas their pay is not enhanced in proportion. The paper then dwells on the various items of work performed by postmasters in their daily routine and says that the task of selling quinine that is newly imposed on them is no doubt an additional duty and that it therefore behoves Government to encourage them in some substantial way. The paper, in this connection, mentions that it is in contemplation to entrust the task of delivering summonses of Civil Court and of registering documents to postal authorities. The paper also publishes a letter written in English by some correspondent to an English paper which criticises the administration of the postal department under the following headings :—

"(1) Paltry pay to the sub-postmasters,"
"(2) Defective delivery system,"
"(3) Enormous powers vested in the divisional superintendents,"
"(4) Slow promotions to merit and rapid promotions to the relatives in the higher grades,"
"(5) Want of qualifying tests, and
"(6) Deductions from the pay of the officials for the Postal Guarantee fund," and ends with the following remark :—

"Now in these days of advanced civilisation when congresses and conferences are annually held in the several centres of India in which the working of the several departments of the British Indian administration is criticised on all hands and the public cry like thunder craves forth for reforms, it is a matter of deep regret that there is no association claiming forth reform in the Postal department and disburden the mute postal officials of their several responsibilities and their illegal blackmail."

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

A novel order regarding light-keepers.

35. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 22nd August, referring to the suggestions of Mr. F. W. Ashpitel that in light-houses natives should not be employed as lightkeepers and that in their place East Indians and Eurasians should be entertained on salaries of Rs. 30 and 40 per mensem, observes that, while all menial work is thrown on natives, these have to make room for men of hats and boots as light-keepers. The correspondent says that this is neither justice to the hard-worked natives nor economy.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 15th, 1896.

Village karnams' grievances.

36. The Andhraprakasika, of the 15th August, hears that the karnams in the Cuddapah district having been ordered to be trained in surveying at their own expense in the far-off taluk-towns, two hundred of them have resigned their posts simultaneously. It believes that such proceeding on their part is the outcome of helplessness and despair and remarks that the karnams are very ill-paid in spite of their heavy work, and are on some plea or other detained almost throughout the whole year at the taluk head-quarters, where they cannot obtain proper food though they pay heavy hotel charges. The paper observes that inasmuch as the whole work of the village is turned out by the karnam, it is ridiculous to subordinate such a responsible official to the village munsif who cannot do so much as spell his own name properly. It regrets that, as the village servants are not placed under the control of the karnam, he is obliged to go about, carrying a load of account books with him. It prays the Government will direct its attention to the grievances of these petty officials and increase their salaries and arrange matters so as to suit all districts, as these grievances are existent in all of them.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Lord Wolsley's evidence.

37. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th August, speaking of Lord Wolsley's evidence before the Royal Commission on Indian Finance, says that his evidence was reckless, audacious and insulting to India. He thinks that in the connection between India and England the gain is all on the side of India; but, says the paper, he does not know how much money goes from India to England and how the latter has been enriched by the former, and that her greatness is in a great measure due to the connection with India. Many ships touch at Aden bound for other parts of the world in the East and yet Lord Wolsley thinks that India ought to pay for Aden. He thinks that India should pay for everything that can by any possibility be thrown upon her, and he would not only make her pay for the army but also for the navy. This is justice with a vengeance, says the editor.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 17th, 1896.

Head clerks in Sub-Registry offices to be appointed sub-registrars.

38. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 17th August, while referring to the recent appointment of three under-graduates, who were head clerks in Sub-Registry offices as sub-registrars, suggests that, as by these appointments a departure has been made from the rule that only graduates should be appointed sub-registrars, the claims of some of the head clerks of Sub-Registry offices, who have even completed the Special tests for the posts of Tahsildars and Deputy Collectors but who are only under-graduates, will also be taken into consideration by the authorities when opportunity occurs.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Aug. 26th, 1896.

The number of village postmen to be increased.

39. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 26th August, complains of the irregularity in the delivery of letters and newspapers in villages. It is of opinion that it cannot be otherwise so long as one peon is made to deliver letters in six or seven amsams. The number of letters and newspapers delivered in villages has of late been increasing by leaps and bounds, and, if the number of village postmen is not increased so as to cope with the increased work, various irregularities cannot but occur.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Aug. 15th, 1896.

Disposal of the case of Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba.

40. In inserting a translation of the Government order passed in regard to the case of Her Highness Nawab Khair-un-nisa Begam Sahiba, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 15th August, thanks Government for disposing of the case favourably to Her Highness, and remarks with regret that the privilege of "exemption from courts" has been unreasonably withdrawn. It hopes that the above privilege may be restored to the Begam.

The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 17th August, also thanks His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock for favourably disposing of this case.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Aug. 17th, 1896.

41. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 17th August, thinks that the frequent occurrence of accidents on the tramway line in Madras is due to the want of alarm bells in cars, and says the drivers, however careful they may be, will go wrong some time or other in the absence of such bells. The Shams asks the authorities to supply the want at once.

Want of alarm bells in the tram car.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 18th, 1896.

42. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th August, observes that the beggar population in Southern India has increased to such an extent that it proves a source of great annoyance and worry to the people. He thinks that, with the exception of blind persons and others who are disqualified for manual labor, if the whole population is made to work under the force of a legal enactment, not only will the worry now caused be lessened, but that the market price of articles, both industrial and agricultural, will also grow less. The correspondent hopes that the Government will legislate on the subject.

Desirability of passing a law for compelling the beggar population to work.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

DESOPAKARI, Kilore, Aug. 16th, 1896.

43. The Desopakari, of the 16th August, referring to the Maharaja of Vizianagram's offer of a lakh of rupees towards the Suakim expenditure, observes that the acceptance of the same by Government would make the other Maharajas feel embarrassed for not having made similar offers, besides inducing in them a fear of probably losing the favour of Government. If this course were adopted whenever an opportunity offered itself, the Native States, the paper asserts, would surely come to ruin, and the liberty of the people would be endangered with numerous other evil consequences. It refuses, therefore, to believe that the said offer of the Maharaja will ever be accepted by Government.

Maharaja of Vizianagram's offer.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Aug. 20th, 1896.

44. The Malayalam Nazrani Dipika, of the 20th August, complains of the hardship caused to people during the tours of the Travancore Maharaja through the State. The police take advantage of such visits for oppressing people and levying blackmail. It is the practice of the police to detain almost all the carriages passing by the road under the pretence that they are required for conveying the things of the Maharaja and to worry and insult the respectable men and women seated inside the carriages until they are given something to keep them quiet. The police are said to commence this iniquitous practice just a month before the visit of the Maharaja to a place and continue it for a month after His Highness' departure.

The Travancore police oppressing the people during the tours of His Highness through the State.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Aug. 21st, 1896.

45. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st August, referring to the irregularities prevailing in the elementary educational branch of the Cochin State, says that, as the candidates selected for admission into the training school for teachers do not possess the necessary qualifications required for teachership in elementary schools, they are even after that training invariably found to be incompetent to teach the classes in such schools. A suggestion is therefore made that an entrance examination should be held to test the ability of the candidates before they are admitted into the training school.

Elementary education in the the Cochin State.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 8th, 1896.

46. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 8th August, says that it was discussed lately in the British Parliament whether if an army were formed in India, composed exclusively of Eurasians resident in the country and granted one-half the privileges now enjoyed by the British army, England might not be spared the trouble of sending out

Expediency of forming an army exclusively of Eurasians living in India.

British troops to India. The paper adds that the plan proposed is quite practicable and will prove a financial blessing to India.

47. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th August, referring to the Suakim expedition, urges the people of England not to drop the subject altogether on the ground that the House of Commons has once come to a decision on it, but to try their best to bring it again for the reconsideration of Parliament in the same way as questions affecting the interest of the British public are treated in spite of repeated failures. The correspondent says that, if England would deal by India justly, the Indians would band themselves together in defence of England against all the world if necessary.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 14th, 1896.

An appeal to the British public regarding the Suakim question.

48. The same paper, reporting that a certain missionary lady in Calcutta kidnapped a married woman, leaving her children and husband destitute, remarks that, unless Government steps forward to check the action of missionaries through its tribunals, the mischief of the missionaries would greatly increase, for which Government alone would be answerable.

A hint to Government regarding missionaries.

49. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th August, writes as follows:—When the Indian budget was brought before the consideration of Parliament at its last meeting, Lord George Hamilton praised in high terms the Government of India for its economy in finance. This statement is true in one way, i.e., Government has systematically declined, on grounds of financial distress, to remedy those defects of administration which injuriously affect the interests of the people. Is this economy? If Government had been really economical, the welfare of the people at large would have been far advanced. A large portion of the revenues of India is being spent on the maintenance of the military and civil establishments. Even the surplus balance of the revenues of each district is, instead of being devoted to the good of the people of the district, added to the general fund which is allowed to be rapidly consumed by those two grand establishments. It is really inexplicable how Lord George Hamilton was induced to regard this policy of Government—a policy not at all conducive to public welfare—as sound economy. Lord George Hamilton is not much acquainted with the affairs of India and moreover he is a mere puppet in the hands of his Anglo-Indian councillors. His opinion therefore may not be mature. Persons like Sir Auckland Colvin, Sir David Barbour, who possess greater experience in Indian affairs, never bestow such shallow praises, but, on the other hand, regret that no one has come forward to check the receipts and disbursements of the Indian revenues and to give an accurate account of them. The paper then dwells on the many acts of Lord George Hamilton, such as import duties, Suakim question, &c., which are detrimental to the welfare of India, and declares that Lord George Hamilton's action as a whole does not merit the thanks of the Indian public.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 18th, 1896.

A remark on the opinion of Lord George Hamilton on Indian budget question.

50. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd August, regrets that, although the Carnatic Begam Sahiba is grateful to the Government for having considered favourably her petition to them, she has been compelled to reside in Umda Bagh only to mend her conduct and that she has not been allowed to go wherever she might like to go. While the Government owns palaces on the Mount Road and at Guindy, the Governor occupying either at pleasure, it is at a loss to know why the Begam Sahiba should be prevented from frequenting her many garden mansions. The remarks as regards her conduct are evidently made, it observes, by some Government subordinate officers with a view to annoy her and rouse in the public mind serious suspicions about her. There is no occasion or necessity, it goes on to say, for making remarks upon her conduct and it thinks it has been very improperly done. It frequently hears that there has been great corruption in the Stipendiary office for a very long time and prays the Government will re-organise the said office and put a stop in future to misdoings.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

The Carnatic Begam Sahiba.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

Native princes acquiring lands in British India.

51. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 22nd August, does not see the object of the Government of India in prohibiting the acquisition of lands in British India by native princes, and asks if the prohibition extends to the acquisition of lands by one native prince in the territories of another native prince. This prohibition, the paper thinks, puts the native princes under a restraint from which their subjects are free, and says that acquisition of land in British India by native princes cannot be so objectionable as the acquisition of land in Native States and maintenance of troops therein by the British Government and ultimately trying to annex the whole territory. When the white-ants build a nest it is made use of by the cobra; the editor therefore does not see why native princes should be debarred from acquiring lands seeing that, even if owned by them, such lands would be at the service of Englishmen, and asks, if, for some reason or other, the native princes should be deprived of their territories, why they should not find an asylum in British India on land which they can call their own.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 17th, 1896.

Starving the Congress Committee in London.

52. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th August, says that the Madras Congress Committee owes the Committee in London the sum of Rs. 28,847 and yet makes no attempts to pay, and wonders why the Madras people are so apathetic although they have a large sum of money at Arbuthnot and Co.'s to the credit of the Congress Committee. The editor fears that the foes of the Congress movement will point to this neglect and declare there is no life in it. He therefore hopes that all connected with the committee will be up and doing and not starve to death an institution which has been so useful in bringing about the existence of the enlarged councils.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Aug. 15th, 1896.

Government to put a stop to melcharts given by landlords.

53. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th August, publishes two series of letters from North Malabar complaining of the conduct of some of the local landlords who are in the habit of putting on melchart (over-lease) lands already leased out to their tenants. Owing to such melcharts the condition of certain tenants has, it appears, become very miserable. Numerous cases of melchart are said to be occurring every day and certain specific instances of it are also cited. In conclusion, the correspondent, after dwelling at some length on the evils arising from melchart, invites the attention of Government to the desirability of taking steps to check it.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 17th, 1896.

Exhorting Malayalis to join the Madras Army.

54. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 17th August, gives the substance of the notification regarding the advantages obtainable by men enlisting in the Madras Army and exhorts the Malayalis, who are striving so much to get a footing in the Salt and Police department, to join the Army as it is more honourable and advantageous to them.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Proposed appointment of a committee to supervise Indian expenditure.

55. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 24th August, says the Secretary of State for India has refused to entertain the proposal of Sir William Wedderburn as regards the annual appointment of a committee to supervise Indian expenditure on the ground that such a committee would unduly interfere in the administration of India and would be an extra charge upon the Indian exchequer.

In criticising the refusal, the Qasim-ul-Akbar thinks that the Secretary of State is not really a friend and supporter of India, for, if he was, he would not have charged the Indian exchequer with the expenses of the Suakim expedition and remarks that the appointment of the committee, instead of entailing an extra charge upon India, would amply repay its cost by putting a stop to extravagances.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th September, says that it has become public that the Sultan of Turkey has addressed letters to the Amir of Afghanistan and the Shah of Persia asking them to be in alliance with him. It seems that Mussalmans are thus combining because they cannot endure the troubles given them by the European powers. China and Japan also, it is understood, are following suit.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 7th, 1896.

Combination of Muhammadans and other States.

2. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 3rd September, says that the Christians in Constantinople having been driven to desperation by the oppression of the Mussalmans went and seized the treasury. This still more exasperated the Mussalmans who killed no fewer than 1,000 Christians—men, women and children—in the city. The editor remarks that a government in which such riots are of almost daily occurrence cannot last long, and it is high time that the Sultan, who seems quite helpless to keep his men under any control, should be deposed and somebody who is able to manage the affairs better should assume the power.

II.—Home Administration.

3. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 20th August, reports that every jutkawallah at the railway station of Suramangalam worries the passengers that alight at the station to engage his own jutka, and, in so doing, each tries to pull off their luggage from their hands to be taken to his jutka, and, in the confusion that arises, the jutkawallahs carry away the article so taken. The correspondent cites a particular case of this kind which seems to have occurred at the said railway station, and regrets that the police constables, who were on the spot, took no notice of the act. The correspondent further complains that at the railway station of Erode police constables, instead of preserving order at the booking office, are busy purchasing tickets for the passengers in order that they may get a petty present of three pies per ticket.

Lokopakari, Madras, Aug. 20th, 1896.

Mischief of the jutkawallahs and the indifference of the police at the railway station of Suramangalam.

4. The Sasilekha, of the 11th September, remarks that cases of theft are occurring very frequently at Arcot and states that thieves broke into the houses of the Collector, Police Superintendent and the police head constable, while the Sub-Magistrate narrowly escaped from his turn. It regrets that the people are reminded of the plunders and devastations of the Mahrattas and Pindaris and that they are spending sleepless nights. It remarks that the police constables are quite useless and incompetent, and that, though the station-house officer is a good man, he is unable to do anything for want of help from his superiors. It prays therefore that the Inspector-General of Police will kindly direct his attention to this matter and protect the people of the Arcot taluk against danger.

Sasilekha, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1896.

The police at Arcot.

5. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 7th September, says that ever since the last Mappila outbreak the number of cases of theft has been steadily on the increase. The police, instead of putting a stop to the crime by duly bringing the offenders to book, not only connive at it, but are often found to be the offenders themselves. This statement is amply borne out by two recent occurrences in the Calicut taluk, in one of which some stationery was stolen from the taluk office and in the other Rs. 122 from Chevayur sub-registrar's office. In the first of these some evidence has been recorded against a certain constable and popular suspicion is also strongly against him. The sub-registrar's office is in the same compound as the police station. The sub-registrar has strong suspicion against one of the peons in whose house certain constables are lodging, but the crime has not as yet been detected. The lethargy of the police from whose custody and in whose presence thefts are committed and who cannot yet detect the criminals is certainly inconceivable. It is high time that the Government should turn its attention to the deplorable state of the Malabar police.

Inefficiency of the Malabar police in detecting crimes.

Referring to the same subject, the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th September, has a leader deploring the inefficiency of the police in detecting the robbery and dacoities largely committed in the Malabar district. The practice of sending a head constable and a few constables first to inquire into such cases is strongly deprecated. When a theft occurs the police who investigate the matter do not, it appears, arrest the real culprits, but they arrest some known depredators or old offenders who know nothing of the thefts and charge them before the magistrate together with a very small portion of the stolen property and secure convictions. Sometimes the accused are let off by the magistrates as the property presented is what the police have kept in the house of the accused and discovered. Thefts are said to be committed at the instance of the police by some thieves who are kept under them, and a suggestion is made that if the police is divided into two sections, the detective and the guard, and educated men on higher salaries and of special training are appointed to the first and their duty is confined to the detection of crimes occurring in the district, the hue and cry now raised against the police will not only be abated, but the crimes will be greatly diminished. In the event of dividing the police force into two sections as suggested above, the article says that the punitive police stationed at Malappuram can be done away with and the expenses of maintaining it may be diverted to the maintenance of the detective police. In conclusion, the editor says that the best way to draw the attention of the Government to the subject is to mention it in the address to be presented to the Governor during his approaching visit to Malabar.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Aug. 26th, 1896.

A complaint against the Sub-Magistrate of Panruti.

6. The Desabhimani, of the 26th August, complains that Mr. Sivaramakristna Sarma, the present Sub-Magistrate of Panruti, attends the court only at 4 P.M. and compels parties to effect a compromise among themselves, threatening at the same time that, if they should fail to do so, he would either dismiss the case or punish the prosecutor himself. The correspondent says that within a month the Sub-Magistrate disposed of nearly hundred cases in this manner and that the people are attempting to memorialise Government on the subject.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 1st, 1896.

Remark passed by a Judge of the Allahabad High Court regarding native ladies.

7. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st September, reports that during the trial of a criminal case lately disposed of by the High Court of Allahabad, wherein a British soldier was charged with the offence of rape on a Rajput lady, the judge made a very sweeping remark regarding the chastity of native ladies, namely, that they give their consent for immoral act for a little consideration, and, if they are detected in the act by their relatives or friends, they raise a cry that they have been outraged. The paper remarks that such insult offered to the women of India ought not to be put up with and that it behoves the Congress to take up the subject.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1896.

Alleged rape by Private Burdis.

8. The Sasilekha, of the 4th September, observes that British soldiers in India are very strong, voluptuous and brutal. As there is not sufficient work for them, they roam about like wild beasts, forcibly outraging the chastity of the women they come across. When such cases of rape are tried before courts, the jurors (generally their countrymen) pronounce "not guilty" and the judges discharge the accused, while the injured women and their female witnesses are disgraced by being called (by the defence) prostitutes and the male witnesses that tried to rescue them are insulted as go-betweens. The paper does not know when this grievance will be redressed, and remarks that the white man is not punished at all even when he murders the dark man. Referring to a recent Allahabad case in which a soldier, Private Burdis, is alleged to have committed rape upon a woman in Rajputana, the paper deeply regrets that the High Court Sessions Judge has, as reported, publicly stigmatised in the course of the trial that the native women of India commit adultery for money. If he had really said so, he is, the paper asserts, totally incompetent to be a judge in India. It further contends that the sexual morality of the Hindu women is in no way inferior to that of the English women, and asks the natives of India to meet together in large numbers to take notice of the judge's conduct and rebuke him. It points out that a former judge of the Calcutta High Court having said that the Hindus were perjurers, was obliged to confess his error. It prays the Government to make proper provision for the prevention of these grievances.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Sept. 7th, 1896.

Local civil courts.

10. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th September, says:—It is a well known fact that Europeans who commit crimes against the Natives generally escape punishment. A fresh instance of this is the case of Private Burdis in the Allahabad High Court. This case has been made the more painful to the Hindus on account of the unwarranted remarks made by the presiding judge that native girls give their consent for a small consideration. The judge seems to look upon the Hindu society in the same light as the society in Europe.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 7th, 1896.

The crimes of Europeans against Natives of India.

11. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th September, while commenting upon the remarks made by Justice Blennerhasset, of the Allahabad High Court, on the character of Indian women during the trial of Private Burdis on a charge of having committed rape upon a Rajput woman, observes that the judge's knowledge of the Indian women and his dexterity in turning and twisting cases are really wonderful. The article doubts whether the people can ever hope to get justice and protection at the hands of a judge who follows his own opinion in deciding cases and not the evidence and truth of the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 5th, 1896.

Disapproving of the remarks made by Justice Blennerhasset on the character of Indian women.

12. Referring with approval to the order of the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Egmore, preventing certain persons from entering the precincts of his court, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 7th September, says that, besides the above persons, there are many who live in Black Town and Triplicane earning their livelihood by means of perjury and the concoction of cases to the great loss of the people. The Shams requests the authorities to institute an inquiry and to prevent all such persons from entering all courts.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Sept. 7th, 1896.

The prevention of law touts from entering Police Courts.

(d) Education.

13. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 5th September, advises Government to abolish the Upper Secondary examination on the ground that it proves a source of pecuniary loss to Government. The paper remarks that this examination will carry no weight unless the Lower Secondary examination is brought to the level of the Middle School examination.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Sept. 5th, 1896.

A hint to Government regarding the Upper Secondary examination.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

A charge against the Madras municipality.

14. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 22nd August, reports that the Madras municipality during moonlight nights lights the town at different hours, and that this practice proves a hardship during rainy weather when the moon is not visible and the nights are totally dark. The paper remarks that the lighting tax is paid in view to have the town lighted during all nights as is done in Bombay and Rangoon, and it is a matter for regret that the municipality should carry their economy so far as to cause great inconvenience to the public. The paper is at a loss to know why the police, who charge the owners of carriages driving without lights during moonlight nights when the moon is not visible, do not choose to prosecute the municipality for not lighting the town during such nights.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1896.

Insanitary condition of the municipal market, Madras.

15. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 29th August, requests the Madras municipality to take steps for erecting a new market and draws its attention to the insanitary condition of the present market, and hopes that early measures will be adopted in respect of the same.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Aug. 31st, 1896.

The Cantonment Act in Bangalore.

16. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 31st August, after stating how prejudicial to the interests of the house-owners the introduction of the Cantonment Act would be, says that such a step would be a piece of arbitrariness of the worst type and it would produce a bad feeling against the Government in general and against the municipality in particular. It is a matter of regret that English gentlemen (English officers) should think it right to take a man's property for less value than he could obtain in the open market. The sense of right and wrong must be blunted before a man can give himself up to such an act. The paper further remarks that Bangalore is not British territory. It is a part of Mysore lent to the British for a civil and military station and not a military station alone. In 1858 the question was raised and the Government of India came to the conclusion that the Act could not be enforced in Bangalore. The editor therefore hopes that the president will resist the blandishments of the military authorities and will determine to preserve the present status of the station.

Bangalore city water-supply.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Sept. 5th, 1896.

The introduction of cantonment rules in Bangalore.

18. In re the question of introducing the Cantonment Act in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, the Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini publishes an extract from a letter written by Sir Mark Cubbon to the General Commanding the Bangalore division in 1857, in which Sir Mark Cobbon says "I should be guilty of a grave dereliction of duty if, with the full knowledge that Bangalore is no more a military cantonment in the proper sense of the word than Perambore or Vepery, I give my consent that the Judicial Commissioner and other officers charged with the administration of the country, the sick officers, the aged widows, the ladies whose husbands are on foreign service, and other familes who have made it their abode should be turned out of their houses at the caprice of the brigadier who happens to be in command of the station and who of course is the absolute judge of the 'absolute necessity' of his own force."

19. After applauding the Mysore darbar for the prompt manner in which pipes for supplying pure drinking water were laid in Bangalore city, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 3rd September, says the proposal for supplying pure drinking water to the inhabitants of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore, from the Hissarghatta water-works has been already sanctioned by the Government of India, but that no actual steps have yet been taken to carry out this very useful and necessary work. The Resident's attention is drawn to this matter.

Hissarghatta water-works scheme.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 20th August, writes as follows:—In October 1891, two ryots, one of the village of Kumarapalayam and the other of the village of Kurichi, in the district of Coimbatore, applied to Government for loan under the Land Improvement Loans Act for the purpose of erecting a water-pump worked by a windmill, and, after considerable delay and lengthy correspondence on the subject, Government resolved to grant a loan of Rs. 720 and this sum was paid to the said ryots in August 1896. (There is apparently here a mistake about the year.) The Act lays down that the sum lent can be claimed by Government only after the work, for the execution of which the loan was raised, has been fully completed and the fruits thereof realised; but, in the meanwhile, Government may claim interest from the date on which the money was lent; but, in the present case, the revenue authorities served the ryots in question with notice in August 1895, demanding interest from 1894. The work in question has not yet been completed owing to want of funds. Nearly double the estimated cost has been spent. While so, the severity of the village officers demanding payment of interest has driven the villagers away from their village. There is no one to till the land for raising a crop. Thus a public loan not only subjects the debtor to much trouble and vexation, but also causes ruin to him. It is hoped that Government will direct its attention to this subject and will so mend matters as to make a public loan a source of benefit to the ryots.

A remark on the grant of loans under the Land Improvement Loans Act.

Lokopakari, Madras, Aug. 20th, 1896.

21. The Sasilekha, of the 4th September, proposes to prove from the statistics of the Government itself the harshness with which land revenue is being collected. It states that the amount to have been realised in the year 1894–95 was Rs. 605,00,000 including arrears. Of this, so large a sum as Rs. 595,00,000 was collected, which evidences the policy of the revenue officials too plainly. In order to realise this large sum, the revenue officials issued 5,874,474 notices, which were made up of 5,394,303 demand notices, 290,654 distraint processes and 209,417 sale notices. The paper is unable to describe what the poor ryots must have suffered when so many notices were served on them. It remarks that these poor ryots are more patient than the proverbial mother earth, and that they give up the whole of their crops to the Government, having worked hard all the year long under the scorching sun. It further states that the property of 14,198 ryots was sold for default of payment of revenue. The property sold included 54,484 acres of land, which, though valued at Rs. 7,16,612, brought in only Rs. 1,55,762; and half of the said lands could find no purchasers and were therefore bought by the Government. These statistics are taken from the Government administration report, and they are not, it remarks, of its own invention. Being itself very poor, it says it is thoroughly acquainted with the sufferings of the poor ryots, and regrets to find the Government officials frequently remark, in the face of these facts, that the Indian ryot is extremely prosperous. The Government, it suggests, should, out of pity for the ryot, modify the system of collecting land revenue; else he would surely die in absolute penury.

Land revenue.

Sasilekha, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1896.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Aug. 31st, 1896.

The Gódávari resettlement.

22. The Rajayogi, of the 31st August, writes (in English) thus:—"The appointment of such a man (Mr. W. J. H. LeFanu) to the Settlement Commissionership is opportune, and we hope he will see things for himself before settling the fate of our ryots. We have a word to say to him and we hope he will excuse us for venturing to say it. . . . Briefly stated his (the ryot's) grievances are these:—His land has not the same productive power as in the early years of anicut irrigation; intermittent cultivation with wet crops has tended to deteriorate the soil, to make up for which very strenuous efforts at an enormous cost are needed, and even then it is very rarely that the used-up land becomes adequately fertile. It must not be forgotten that it is not every ryot that can put himself to the expense of bettering the soil. In every village we find nearly every backyard, whether attached to or detached from houses dug deeper and deeper still year after year to find manure for the weakened soil, and at this day there is perhaps no village in the district which has not to go miles off in search of manure. Improved methods of manuring are not known to the ryots, nor is any persistent effort made by the Government Agricultural department to make such methods known and adopted. The cost of such manure as ryots now use is incredibly excessive, and Government officials do not allow the unfortunate ryot so much as a spade of earth from disused or periodically dried up tanks and canals without demanding a fee. There is next the cost of labour. The impetus to and demand for manual labour which the numerous public works—canals, roads, railways, &c.,—have occasioned have made labour very much dearer than at the last settlement, and the expenses of cultivation have enormously risen in consequence and have moreover placed the cultivator at the mercy of the labourer. It is vain to look for proof of this in official statistics. One has only to go into the fields in the transplanting and harvesting seasons to be convinced of our statements. . . . . For all agricultural operations from the sowing of the seed to the harvesting of the produce hard cash is needed, the tendency of the field labourer of to-day being, generally speaking, to demand at every step money wages in place of payment in kind. The pressure of kists which promotion-seeking subordinates and name-seeking superiors in their anxiety to outshine their compeers give obliges the ryot to sell or mortgage at considerable disadvantage. The debt is a trifle to start with. The usurious sowcar makes the ryot fancy that it is nothing. The ryot wants more and more however and more is ungrudgingly found for him by his kind friend and at last he finds it too late that the trifle has expanded into a mighty obligation.

* * * * *

"In fine, land has become less productive, agricultural operations have become more costly than ever, living even in the rural parts is far more costly than at the last settlement, population has enormously grown, litigating propensities which are indirectly fostered by a rapidly expanding class of legal advisers have become their second nature. Everything in fact points to the impoverished condition of the tiller of the soil, and it is bare justice to the ryot so circumstanced that the numerous growing demands on his slender means should be adequately allowed for before fixing the sovereign's share of his income.

"We commend the above to the gracious consideration of Mr. LeFanu. We trust that Mr. LeFanu will bring the best qualities of his head and heart to bear on this very anxious question and save the poor ryot from the misery of future years to which it is feared he is well nigh doomed by Mr. Clerk's proposals. We are sanguine that the ryots' interests are in safe hands."

MANORAMA, Calicut, Aug. 31st, 1896.

Inviting the attention of Government to the settlement article in the Madras Review.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 31st August, while commenting upon the article on the Madras settlement published in the latest issue of the Madras Review, remarks that, if Government takes pains to read the article in question and is disposed to conduct the settlement after ascertaining the truth, it will be enabled to discharge its duty with equity and justice.

Advisability of constructing a railway line from Kumbakónam to Pattukkóttai via Mannárgudi.

24. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th August, reporting that the Collector of Tanjore has suggested to Government the advisability of constructing a railway line from Kumbakónam to Pattukkóttai viâ Mannárgudi, observes that Mannárgudi and Pattukkóttai are the only two important stations in the district that are without railway communication and that the construction of the proposed railway would be a source of great convenience to the people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Aug. 25th, 1896.

A request to Government regarding the ensuing festival of Mahamaham at Kumbakónam.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 1st September, describing the inconvenience which third-class passengers sustain in railway carriages during times of festivals and also bringing to the notice of the authorities that the Mahamaham, a festival celebrated once in twelve years in Kumbakónam, will take place early next year, requests Government to direct the Agent of South Indian Railway to adopt necessary measures for securing comfort and convenience to the third-class passengers that will resort to Kumbakónam to witness the said festival.

A suggestion to excavate a certain channel in the district of Tanjore.

26. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th September, says that the excavation of a channel from the anicut to the river Maharaja Samudram near Vallam will serve as the best means of utilizing the surplus water of the annual floods of the rivers Káveri and Coleroon in the district of Tanjore, and hopes that the authorities will adopt the suggestion as it will secure a good water-supply for the irrigation of the taluk of Pattukkóttai and the southern parts of the district.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

Abkári officers levying blackmail for marking trees for tapping.

27. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd September, supports the statement made by the Kerala Patrika that almost all the abkári officers levy blackmail at the rate of one rupee for every tree marked for tapping. This may not perhaps be so astounding if the various other misdeeds of the department are considered. It is an open secret that the officers of the preventive force levy an annual contribution of money and paddy on some of the people inhabiting the border of the Cochin State. If the fisherman refuse to give fish gratis to the abkári officer, the latter stows away bottles in the boats used by the former and "discovers" them and charges him before the magistrate, and the several cases now pending in the Chávakkát Magistrate's court are instances in point. It is a matter of great grievance that the Government gives salaries and maintains a set of officers who are ever ready to extort whatever they can from the poor and innocent persons.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 2nd, 1896.

(k) General.

A hint to Government regarding the darisu lands adjoining the Periyar.

28. The Satyavartamani, of the 15th August, regrets to learn that it has been recommended to Government that waste lands adjoining the Periyar should be given to pattadars of neighbouring lands. As the pattadars are mostly impoverished, with their lands mortgaged, the proposal, if adopted, will not benefit them. The paper adds that there are hundreds of agricultural labourers who have, already in hopes of getting pattas of waste lands, spent labour on them and made them arable. To these the lands, if made over to them, would give means of livelihood. If these poor hardworking men are not to be cared for by Government, who will care for them?

SATYAVARTAMANI, Pasumalai, Aug. 15th, 1896.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 22nd, 1896.

29. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 22nd August, says that the number of compositors working in the Government Press, Madras, has increased so much that many of them, who are paid by the day, do not get work at all, and that even those who do get some work are so low paid that they get barely enough for their livelihood. On a representation of the matter by the compositors to the Superintendent, that officer has dispensed with the services of all newly-employed compositors, thus improving the wages of the old employés. This is however a hardship to the men thrown out. Had more care been exercised in the entertainment of new men, such a necessity would not have arisen. It is suggested that the Superintendent may be called on to submit to Government an annual statement, giving particulars regarding the number of compositors employed, their earnings, &c.

A suggestion regarding the work of the compositors in the Government Press, Madras.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 4th, 1896.

30. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 4th September, remarks that the absence of uniform standards of measurement leads to cheating in the district of Tanjore, and hopes that Government will remedy the evil by introducing a uniform scale of weights and measures for adoption throughout the presidency.

Desirability of having a common standard of measurement throughout the presidency.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 8th, 1896.

31. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th September, complains that skin merchants behind the office of the Sea Customs expose and dust the hides on the public road. This causes an offensive smell almost unbearable to the passers-by. The paper refers to an order of Government directing the railway authorities not to store hides either on railway platforms or in the passengers' train, and regrets that the authorities concerned do not take notice of the public nuisance here complained of even though it occurs in the heart of the Presidency town.

Nuisance caused by skin merchants behind the office of the Sea Customs, Madras.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1896.

32. The Sasilekha, of the 11th September, observes that, in spite of the large sums of money expended on salaries and pensions to the European and Native officers in the superior grades of the public service, they are receiving bribes now just as petty officials used to do some fifty years ago and that their subordinates also do the same in the name of their masters. There is no easy method of detecting and punishing a bribe-receiving Collector or his subordinate, and, this being so, the British Government is in no way better than the administration of the country by the nawabs or the Hindu rajas. It suggests that receivers of bribes would be sufficiently deterred if the law were so modified as to let off the bribe-givers unpunished, and remarks that, as both the giver and receiver of bribes are punished at present, neither party comes forward to reveal the fact. It is of opinion that Europeans only should be appointed Collectors and Sub-Collectors, while educated Hindus and Muhammadans might be made District Judges. A member of each of the Executive Councils at Madras, Bombay and Calcutta should also be a native. Though the taxes in India are as numerous and varied as in England, the Indian Government, it says, is greatly perplexed for want of funds.

The British administration.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Aug. 27th, 1896.

33. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 27th August, in a leading article, speaking of the loss of life and property by the recent floods in various parts of India, says that the people are exposed to great risk in crossing rivers in the rainy season, and thinks that the money realised by the Government hitherto from ferry contractors must be used for constructing bridges across such of the rivers as are yet without bridges.

Bridges to be constructed across rivers.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 5th, 1896.

34. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th September, invites the attention of the postal authorities to the desirability of increasing the strength of the village post peons attached to the Trichur post office as it has now to serve several distant places and letters and packets are consequently delayed for a month before being delivered.

The number of village post peons attached to the Trichur post office to be increased.

35. The Calicut papers, the Kerala Patrika, the Manorama, the Kerala Chandrika, and the Kerala Sanchari, of the 5th, 7th, 8th and 9th September, respectively, notice with great joy the proposed visit of His Excellency the Governor and exhort the people to make the necessary arrangements to accord him a fitting welcome. All the papers request the people to present the Governor with addresses touching upon the settlement, the vagaries of the police and salt and abkári officers, the bad condition of the roads in Malabar, the hardships suffered by the tenants on account of melcharth (overlease) and the railway extension in Malabar, &c. Some of the papers, especially the Kerala Patrika, advise the tenants that it is better for them to present a separate address to His Excellency unfolding the grievances suffered by them at the hands of the oppressive landlords rather than join in the address of the Kerala Mahajana Sabha which is more or less a landlords' association and which is not therefore likely to plead the cause of the tenants.

Reflections on the proposed visit of the Governor to Malabar.

Kerala Patrika, &c., Calicut, Sept. 5th, &c., 1896.

Referring to the same subject, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd September, publishes an imaginary dialogue, in which there appears, among other things, a reference to the visit of His Excellency to the Salem jail. One of the speakers says that His Excellency conversed with the prisoners of the Salem jail which shows that he is a sympathetic Governor; then the other replies, "Yes, that is a very good way of easily earning a good name without any loss or trouble to himself. If His Excellency has a real intention of ascertaining the requirements and welfare of the people, it is to the honest and respectable public and not to the prisoners that His Excellency should address himself."

36. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 8th September, regrets much that gambling is carried on unchecked in Buffalo street in Manantoddy. The hard-earned money of the poor workmen is all frittered away in no time. Some of the leading men of the locality are said to countenance the practice and it is a great pity that this crying evil is not put a stop to by Government.

Government to put a stop to the gambling at Manantoddy.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Sept. 8th, 1896.

37. A paragraph in the same paper rejoices at the acceptance of the presidentship at the ensuing Congress meeting by Mr. Sayani and is in high hope that at the next Congress meeting the Muhammadans will be well represented.

Rejoicing at the selection of Mr. Sayani as president of the coming Congress.

38. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th September, referring to the great agitation in Malabar caused by the High Court decision in the matter of "kuri," says that there were of late several conflicting decisions on the subject in Malabar, some of them being in direct opposition to the High Court decision. The Malabar "kuri" being of a peculiar nature does not come within the operation of the provisions of the Companies Act. He proposes that a Bill should be introduced so that the matter may be settled once for all and peace may be restored to the much-agitated district. He further exhorts the people to refer to this among other grievances requiring speedy remedy in the welcome address to be presented to His Excellency on his visit to the district.

Exhorting the people of Malabar to refer to the "kuri" decisions in the welcome address to His Excellency the Governor.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 9th, 1896.

39. In referring with approval to the action of the police in preventing the Shias of the district of Gaya from carrying the panjahs during the last Muharram and wounding the feelings of the Sunni sect, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 31st August, says, if the police had not prevented the Shias, there would have been a breach of the public peace.

The prevention of panjah procession in Gaya.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras. Aug. 31st, 1896.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Aug. 31st, 1896.

Disturbance on the Cavalry road, Bangalore.

40. Referring to the disturbance which recently occurred on the Cavalry road, Bangalore, in which certain badmashes attacked some Hindu passers-by and two European Military officers for not coming down from their carriages and horses to show respect to the sandal procession of the prophet, which was then passing the road, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 31st August, says the occurrence is universally regretted. It is a pity the police, whose duty it was to be present with such processions in order to prevent any breach of the public peace, were conspicuous by their absence. The occurrence, it is apprehended, will create ill-feelings between the two communities. The Qasim requests the authorities to concert measures to prevent such occurrences in future.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Sept. 7th, 1896.

The alleged corruption in the Government service.

41. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 7th September, states that the Aum, of Lahore, referring to the punishment awarded to two sub-judges of the North-West Provinces and to Lieutenant W. B. Brown, of the Royal Fusiliers, for embezzlement and corruption, complains that corruption is far too prevalent in all directions. The Aum says it is hoped that the punishment of these individuals will have the effect for a short time at least of checking its spread.

III.—LEGISLATION.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1896.

A suggestion to Government regarding the trial of European offenders.

42. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 29th August, referring to the rape case that was disposed of in the High Court of Allahabad, wherein the accused, a British soldier, was finally acquitted, remarks that, as a rule, European offenders, however heinous their crime may be, are let off unpunished by the British tribunals for the reason that the punishment of a European is likely to be regarded as an insult to the British nation. The paper observes that the present rule that European offenders should be tried before European judges and a jury consisting mostly of Europeans greatly contributes to the miscarriage of justice here complained of, and that if, on the other hand, European offenders were tried before two judges, one a Native and the other a European, with a jury consisting of an equal number of Europeans and Natives, the administration of justice would give no room for any dissatisfaction.

KERALA PATRIKA Calicut, Sept. 12th, 1896.

Government to pass a law for the better management of temples in Malabar.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 12th September, says that, as the property belonging to the temples in Malabar is being squandered by the uralars (trustees) in litigation and for other unnecessary purposes, a law ought to be passed to regulate their management. The editor therefore suggests that in the address to be presented to the Governor a request should be made that the Devastanam Bill introduced in the local Legislative Council by the Honourable Mr. Kalyanasundra Aiyar, which is not applicable to Malabar, should be made applicable to that district.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Aug. 24th, 1896.

The Jhallawar Maharaja.

44. The Rajayogi, of the 24th August, referring to the report of the debate in the House of Commons published in the London Times, in the matter of the deposition of Prince Zalim Singh, of Jhallawar, writes thus (in English):—"We cannot but draw the inference that so long as Indian princes please the British Residents their position is safe; but, when once they incur their displeasure, nothing short of deposition will be the outcome."

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 7th, 1896.

Muhammadan rule.

45. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th September, has a leader, in which the editor, after showing that Turkey is drifting into anarchy, says that the Muhammadan rulers in India also are far behind their Hindu compeers. Speaking of the Hyderabad State, he says that it has gradually declined since the death of Sir Salar Jang the senior. The present Prime Minister is said to be unable to do much, and the official who practically rules the country is the Peshi Secretary, who does just what he pleases and has made an immense fortune by corruption and extortion. This man, the editor says, interferes in every thing, even in the decisions of the highest court in the country. This state of things makes Hyderabad another edition of Turkey in which the Hindus take the place of the Christians in Turkey.

46. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 2nd September, publishes a Kanarese translation of a letter said to have been addressed by the ex-Raja of Jhallawar and says that the letter cannot fail to elicit sympathy for the writer thereof and cause surprise to every one at the conduct of the British Government in dealing with him.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Sept. 2nd, 1896.

The Maharaja of Jhallawar's letter to the Viceroy.

47. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 10th September, learns that some misunderstanding has arisen between the Maharaja of Kashmir and the Resident and the abrupt departure of His Highness from Srinaggar has caused some anxiety among the people as to what the issue of the misunderstanding will be.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore. Sept. 10th, 1896.

The Maharaja of Kashmir and the Resident.

48. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 13th September, speaking of the vacancy of the Deputy Commissionership of Hasan, says that there is no justice in the Mysore Government although the papers subsidised by the Government may proclaim that there is no country better governed than Mysore. The British Government only cares for the subsidy of Rs. 25 lakhs, and, if this is regularly paid, does not care what injustice is perpetrated in the internal administration. The editor thinks that the vacancy above alluded to should be given to B. G. Krishna Aiyangar.

MYSORE, DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Sept. 13th, 1896.

Injustice in the Mysore Government.

49. The Malayalam Nazrani Dipika, of the 31st August, refers to the petition recently presented to the Resident in Travancore and Cochin by Nidhiyirikkal Manikka Kathanar protesting against the decision of the Diwan of that State that certain landed properties belonging to the petitioner in Ilakkad pravirti, Muvattumpuzha taluk, should be considered as Sirkar waste lands and put in public auction. The petitioner's ancestors obtained the assignment of these lands from a Malayali Brahman landlord and were enjoying them undisturbed for about a century. The paper says that, if the facts contained in the petition are impartially and justly considered, it cannot be doubted that the decision of the Diwan was quite unreasonable. It is remarked that, if the alleged janmam right of the petitioner as well as the documents connected therewith are for any reason disbelieved by the Diwan, he ought to give the parties time to settle the matter in a Civil Court before passing any final orders on the matter relying upon the misrepresentations of certain greedy and corrupt revenue officials.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Aug. 31st, 1896.

Commenting upon a petition presented to the Resident by a Travancore subject.

50. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 29th August, says that in the question papers set to a class of grown-up girls in the Female Normal school in Travancore for the recent annual examination the passages given for annotation and analysis were very obscene and vulgar. The article, in commenting upon these passages, quotes them in full and observes that, if things are allowed to continue in this fashion, the female education, which is now getting a hold on the people of Travancore, will seriously suffer.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Aug. 29th, 1896.

Female education in Travancore.

51. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 11th September, does not approve of the idea of appointing a foreigner, who is ignorant of the usages and customs of Cochin, as the Diwan of that State. It says that there are in the State itself some KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Sept. 11th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the appointment of the next Diwan of Cochin.

persons who are both able and competent to fill that office; but, if the raja does not like to select one from among them and wishes to bring in a foreigner, his choice should fall on Mr. Govinda Pillai, Judge of the Travancore High Court, who has much experience of men and things in the Cochin State and who has done so much to put down official corruption in Travancore.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 9th, 1896.

Remarks on the Travancore Female Normal school examination scandal.

52. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th September, referring to the obscene paper set for the Female Normal school in Trivandrum, is of opinion that it would be much better to have no female education at all than to have one after this fashion.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Aug. 24th, 1896.

Question moved by Honourable Mr. Pherozeshah M. Mehta at the Bombay Legislative Council.

53. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th August, writes as follows:—Honourable Mr. Pherozeshah Mehta requested, at a meeting of the Bombay Legislative Council, permission to ask a question regarding the disposal in appeal by the Bombay Government of cases tried in the Agency Courts in the Native States subject to the control of that Government, the object of the interpellation being to bring to the notice of Government that people are not satisfied with the decisions of the Bombay Government in such cases and would prefer to have the appeals heard and decided upon by the judicial tribunals of Bombay. The question was disallowed on the ground that it was of a political character. Mr. Mehta has, however, sent up a protest against the decision of the Bombay Government, assigning reasons for his difference of opinion and quoting as authority the example both of the Bombay Legislative Council and of the Imperial Legislative Council where similar questions have been asked and answered. The subject is important, and the decision of the Government of India is awaited with interest.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1896.

Arbitrary dealing of the British Consul-General at Zanzibar.

54. The Vikata Dutan, of the 29th August, reports that, after the death of Saiyid Ali, Sultan of Zanzibar, which occurred on the 5th March 1893, the British Consul-General, instead of nominating Kalid Barkash, his son, nominated one Ahmad Benthuain as Sultan; that this unjust nomination has stirred up the feelings of many; and that great consternation and political disturbance prevail in Zanzibar. The paper says that, if a war should ensue, India alone would be called upon to supply both army and funds and that the poor Indians would have to suffer for the arbitrary action of the British Consul-General in Zanzibar. The paper further says that, in many Native States in India, Political Agents exercise their authority arbitrarily and are a source of worry to the native rulers. The paper quotes the suicide of the Raja of Patna and the affairs of Jhallawar, &c., as instances in point.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Sept. 1st, 1896.

Difference between the Government of England and that of India.

55. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st September, writes as follows:—The report that a lady has been assaulted while travelling in a railway carriage in England has stirred up such public indignation that the serious attention of Government of the country has been called to it, and a revision of the railway rules is contemplated. Such outrages have occurred in India and yet what has been done?

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Aug. 29th, 1896.

Madras slave trade.

56. The Andhraprakasika, of the 29th August, says that ten or twelve Madrasees on board the Palitana, which arrived in Rangoon on the 16th August, reported to the Police Head Constable Brown that they were forcibly shipped, consigned to a great merchant at Poojundung as slaves, without their consent, and that he thereupon landed them and took steps to prosecute the consignors. It regrets that people should be thus forcibly taken away from Madras for the purpose of slavery. When such is the state of affairs in the metropolis itself, the mofussil ports, it remarks, must be faring more horribly. It therefore prays the Government will issue strict orders directing each steamer, bound for Rangoon or other ports, to be carefully examined an hour before its departure by the Marine police in Madras and by the Port officers at each of the intermediate ports.

57. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 31st August, states that the Aum, of Lahore, in concurring with Lord Wolseley in his criticism of the extravagant expenditure on the British troops stationed in India, applauds his Lordship's sentiments and says that British soldiers enjoy great ease and comfort in India and live luxuriously. If such is the state of the army, it will be impossible for it to cope with an enemy in time of war.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Aug. 31st, 1896.

Lord Wolseley and the British troops stationed in India.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st September, after giving an account of the massacre of upwards of five thousand innocent Armenians in Constantinople and the confusion and anarchy prevailing in the country, says thus:—Matters cannot go on in this way for ever. Unless there is a change soon, the whole empire will be depopulated. Sooner or later the Sultan must be dethroned and all power must be taken from those who now so diabolically use it. England has done her best, but Russia is the proper power to take Turkey in hand, and it would be well if England gave her to understand that no interference would take place should the Balkhan peninsula be invaded. Of course England would look for compensation in other parts. Egypt must be guaranteed to her and she must also be guaranteed immunity from attack on the North-Western frontier of India. If such an arrangement could be arrived at, the gain to India would be very great inasmuch as a large portion of the military force now employed would not be required. Therefore both for the sake of the subjects of the Sultan and the subjects of the Queen-Empress, it is to be hoped that such an arrangement as we have suggested will be made.

The Turkish affairs.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 21st, 1896.

2. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 26th September, referring to the Armenian atrocities, severely deprecates the indifferent attitude of the Great Powers towards the suffering Christians of Armenia. The inability of the Great Powers to bring about a union among themselves before interfering in the matter has given great encouragement to the Turks, who have now begun to massacre the Christians even of Constantinople. Mr. Gladstone, Lord Rosebery and others are now working to rouse the British nation, but, unless they succeed in rousing the other nations of Europe, no material good will be forthcoming.

The Armenian atrocities.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, Sept. 26th, 1896.

3. Referring to the news that Russia has concentrated an army of one hundred thousand men all told in Eastern Siberia for the alleged purpose of attacking China and Japan and that it is thereby inferred by some politicians that she has given up the idea of the invasion of India, the Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th September, says it is foolish to suppose that Russia has given up the idea, but, on the contrary, it appears that her hostile intentions are constantly developing. The British Government is advised to be always prepared.

The invasion of India by Russia.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Sept. 15th, 1896.

II.—Home Administration.

4. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th September, dwells at length on the illiterateness of the Police constabulary and on the consequent evils, and suggests the desirability of transferring police men from station to station at frequent intervals of time, of enlisting into the police force graduates and members of respectable families, of investing divisional officers with greater powers than they possess now, and of placing the department under the immediate control of Government.

A suggestion regarding the Police department.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1896.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 15th September, reports that robbers find a convenient place of resort in the two roads, named the old road and the new road, leading from Mariammankoil to Tanjore, a distance of four miles, and waylay the passers-by with impunity. The correspondent requests the police to bestow attention on the matter.

A request to the police of the town of Tanjore.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Sept. 15th, 1896.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1896.

Rape committed by two police constables in the town of Chingleput.

6. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th September, reports as having been informed by one of its correspondents that two police constables in the town of Chingleput arrested at midnight a native woman who was pregnant under the false charge of her having committed theft, took her to a private place instead of to the police station, committed rape upon her, and drove her out of the town. The paper says that there is evidence enough for prosecution and requests the Superintendent of Police to pay particular attention to this subject.

The police a source of annoyance to hackney carriage drivers at Triplicane.

7. A correspondent to the same paper complains that police constables, taking advantage of the running of tramway cars along the Triplicane high road, cause a great deal of annoyance to hackney drivers. The road is lined with shops, and, when a coach stops at one of them on one side of the tramway line, the jatkas that come from the opposite direction, in order to avoid the coach and also the tramcars that may be running at the time, have, of necessity, to cross the tramway line and move to their right, which is against the ordinary rule of the road. For this unavoidable act, the jatka drivers are harassed and dragged to the police station.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 21st, 1896.

A rule for the suppression of the police extortion.

8. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 21st September, is glad to report that the Bombay High Court has passed a rule which will tend to check police extortion. The rule is as follows:—That if any police officer, in view to make an accused person brought before him for inquiry confess the crime, or, for any other reason, subjects him to extortion, and, if any other police officer is present at that time, the latter will be held to have abetted the commission of the offence of extortion even though he takes no active part in it, and will be dealt with accordingly.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1896.

A police torture case.

9. The Andhraprakasika, of the 19th September, referring to the order passed by Government in the police torture case at Nuzvid, Kistna district, remarks that, although the punishments awarded by the Government to the Deputy Magistrate and Police Superintendent in the case cannot be said to be altogether satisfactory considering the atrocity of the crime, the position of the officers would not only make them feel sufficiently punished, but that the order of the Government would also tend to make the police and magisterial officers more careful in the discharge of their duties. The paper further observes from the decisions of some of the cases published in the papers that, both in the metropolis and in the mofussil, there is a close acquaintanceship between the magisterial and the police officers and that the former do not in some cases exercise their powers independently of the latter. It remarks that in the Presidency town itself the authority exercised by the police constables in nuisance cases is intolerable, and complains that the accused is punished merely on the evidence of the constable. It therefore prays the Government, the embodiment of justice, that it will administer justice, constantly directing its attention to the protection of the aggrieved.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 19th, 1896.

Apprehending a riot as the result of the Police Superintendent's order in the matter of religious preachings by Hindus.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 19th September, says that it is customary with the missionaries who use to preach Christianity in the Vaniyamkulam market, Malabar district, to abuse Hinduism in order to extol the Gospel. The Hindus, who could not tolerate this, began to preach their own religion by the side of the missionaries, and this work was undertaken by one Karimpanakkal Raman Eluthatchan. The missionaries, finding their efforts fruitless, contrived means to put a stop to the preaching of Hinduism, and, curiously enough, one day the police under the orders of the Superintendent forbade the above Eluthatchan to preach any more. This unjust and unreasonable interference of the police is said to have enraged the local

(b) Courts.

11. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 12th September, regrets to learn that the Appellate Side of the Madras High Court dismissed four appeals for the reason that the parties concerned had not submitted the papers of the lower court within fifteen days, the period prescribed for it. The paper adds that, at present, there is no definite rule requiring the lower courts to furnish within a given period the petitioners with the papers applied for, that the lower courts in consequence make considerable delay in furnishing the required papers, and that the parties are therefore unable to submit the papers of the lower courts within the time prescribed by the High Court. The paper remarks that the High Court will be justified in enforcing such a rule as the one here referred to only when it has adopted measures to make the lower courts furnish the petitioners with the papers applied for in time, and that, in the absence of any such measure, the observance of this rule of limitation will be a heavy infliction on the parties who have no redress for a mistake for which they are not responsible.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Sept. 12th, 1896.

A remark on the observance of a certain rule by the Appellate Side of the Madras High Court regarding the submission of the papers of the lower court.

12. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th September, reports that a student of the College of Engineering charged Mr. Chatterton, one of its professors, before Mr. Sultan Muhi ud-din Sahib, with the offence of using unlawful force, and that the magistrate, after questioning the student as to why he wished to deal so hard with his professor, disposed of the case with the remark that the accused had gone to England and that the student should therefore take out fresh summons on his return, which would be about fifteen months hence. The paper remarks that this judgment induces one to think that, when the accused is a European, the court and the injured party should wait for his convenience to attend the court to answer the charge.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 15th, 1896.

A remark on the criminal case brought against Mr. Chatterton, a Professor of the College of Engineering.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd September, speaking of the village munsifs, remarks that many of them are ignorant of their powers and privileges, nay, the very functions they have to perform; that they rarely take notice of the irregularities and frauds of all kinds prevailing in the village, but remain passive, satisfied with the petty presents or bribes which they receive from the villagers; that they delay the disposal of the few cases filed in their court for a considerable length of time and thus inconvenience the parties that resort to them for justice; and that, when they do dispose of any case at all, their decision depends upon the position of the parties to the case and not upon its real merits.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1896.

Irregularities of the village munsifs.

14. The Sasilekha, of the 18th September, referring to the charge brought against Mr. Chatterton, of the Madras Civil Engineering College, and to his subsequent departure to England with the permission of the Presidency Magistrate, Mr. Sultan Muhi-ud-din Sahib, expresses its surprise at the magistrate having informed the complainant, a student, on the day of hearing, to take out a fresh summons against Mr. Chatterton on his return from home. How can

SASILEKHA, Madras, Sept. 18th, 1896.

Mr. Sultan Muhi-ud-din Sahib.

a person, the paper asks, on whom a summons has been served, be permitted to go to a distant country without the case being tried? What guarantee is there that he will ever return to India? It further asks how the witnesses of the complainant are to be expected to be able to recollect the circumstances of the case after a lapse of 15 months? The paper is unable to understand how it was that the magistrate had expressly permitted Mr. Chatterton to leave India. It remarks that native magistrates (Hindus and Muhammadans) in fact lose their heads when they have to try Europeans. The complainant should, the paper says, petition to the High Court to see how far Mr. Sultan Muhi-ud-din Sahib's proceedings are justifiable.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1896.

15. The Andhraprakasika, of the 19th September, remarks that there are numerous cases in which Europeans commit even the most atrocious crimes upon Native Indians and still the law is powerless as regards them. In such cases there is room to suspect that there is one law for Europeans and another for Natives. The paper next refers to Varadachari's case against Mr. Chatterton in the Court of Mr. Sultan Muhi-ud-din Sahib, a Presidency Magistrate, who issued a summons on the accused, but, when the case came on for trial, informed the complainant's vakil that Mr. Chatterton had left for England on 15 months' leave, and that, if the complainant still wished to have the case tried, he might institute fresh proceedings against Mr. Chatterton on his return from home. The paper asks whether it is not evident that Europeans could freely absent themselves at their pleasure from attending courts and that the law would wait for them. It expresses a doubt whether the same law would wait in a similiar case, where (let us suppose) the students thrash Mr. Chatterton for his mischief and he complains against them, and, after the service of summons, the students are absent from court in their native places. Finally, it remarks that in all these cases the law does not at all protect the Hindus.

Weakness of law.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 21st, 1896.

16. The Kurnataka Prakasika, of the 21st September, says that the remark made by the judge of the Allahabad High Court in summing up after the trial of a soldier charged with rape must have been made in temporary forgetfulness of the state of the highly cultivated European society, for, if he had this in mind, he would never have made such remarks about native women. In the face of the strong evidence and the opinion of the committing magistrate, the judge and the European jury have acquitted a countryman of theirs charged with a serious offence. A Bengali paper suggests that, if the judge does not condescend to apologize for his unwarranted remarks, he must be compelled to do so by means of an agitation in England; but we do not like to be so hard upon the judge. Every man is liable to forget himself, and how can we expect a European judge working hard in a hot climate preserve an even state of mind? It is foreign to the nature of the Indians to humiliate a man for such temporary slips of judgment.

Unjust remarks by a judge of the Allahabad High Court.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Sept. 23rd, 1896.

17. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 23rd September, says that, in Bijnour, a girl of five years, while playing in the streets, was run over by a cart and killed, and that the father of the child was punished by Government for his carelessness in letting the child to play in the streets. This, says the paper, illustrates the proverb: "The man that fell from the ceiling was beaten with a stick for falling down."

A father punished for the accidental death of his daughter.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 21st, 1896.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 21st September, while noticing that, in obedience to a recent order of the High Court, Mr. O'Farrell, the District and Sessions Judge of Calicut, is attending office daily instead of on alternate days as he was doing before, says that the present Collector of Malabar, Mr. Dance, does not make it a point to attend office regularly and that much inconvenience is consequently caused to parties, and hopes that Mr. Dance will discontinue his anomalous practice.

The Collector of Malabar requested to attend office daily.

(d) Education.

19. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 12th September, announcing that the Madras University has a surplus balance of Rs. 2,70,822-8-8, thinks it desirable that the University authorities should in future reduce the scale of the examination fees and utilise the balance in hand for opening a library for the use of students preparing for the University examinations.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Sept. 12th, 1896.

A hint to the Madras University.

20. The Rajayogi, of the 14th September, writes thus (in English):—

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Sept. 14th, 1896.

Multiplicity of examinations.

"To pass results grants is the only use that is made at present of the Primary examination so far as primary schools are concerned. The pass lists are forwarded by Chairmen of Primary Examination Boards to Inspecting officers who prepare the certifying memoranda and fix the amount of grant earned by each school. This, we venture to think, is a very minor purpose because the Inspecting officers may be considered competent enough to examine an Upper Primary class for the purpose of giving results grants.

"Again, the Government has been losing on account of this examination about Rs. 20,000 every year, and the Director of Public Instruction has, therefore, been obliged to frame new rules to curtail the expenditure, whereby the centres of examination have been reduced in number, officers of the Revenue and Registration departments have been called upon to serve on the board, and no sum was ordered to be spent on account of travelling allowance excepting money paid to chairmen. The Government, in passing these rules, seem to have been actuated by no other desire than to reduce expenditure and make the examination self-supporting. In the first place, the reduction in the number of the examination centres has resulted in very great inconvenience to the infant-candidates who are now obliged to travel miles and miles to reach the examination centre, undergoing several hardships.

"In the second place, the tahsildar, the sub-magistrate, and the sub-registrar, who act as members, do not understand the standard of the examination and are not accustomed to value answers correctly. The chairman is, therefore, obliged to undertake the task of setting questions himself and of valuing a major portion of the answers, the other members being very slow and the number of days allowed being very small. The result is that the examination is very much hurried to the detriment of the interests of the boys.

"One more point we wish to bring to prominence, and that is that the standard of examination is most unequal in the several centres. In one centre candidates have to answer very difficult questions and in another a set of easy questions. This is owing to the change of examiners, the inequality of time that is allowed, the insufficiency of accommodation that is available, &c.

"While the advantages to be derived are so few and the inconveniences so many, it is beyond our comprehension why the Government do not think of abolishing it or limiting it only to those who seek Government or other service."

(e) Local and Municipal.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th September, draws the attention of the municipal council of Coimbatore to the extremely insanitary condition of some of the streets in that town and suggests the early adoption of remedial measures to prevent an outbreak of cholera.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1896.

A complaint regarding the insanitary condition of some of the streets in the town of Coimbatore.

22. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 28th September, is glad that the Municipal Commissioners of the Civil and Military Station have objected to the introduction of the Cantonment Act, and says that, were the Act to be introduced into the station, it would ruin the place as many people would leave the place at once, never to return, while nobody would be found to take their place. The editor, therefore, hopes that the protest of the commissioners would stop any attempt that may be made to introduce the Cantonment Act.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Sept. 28th, 1896.

The municipality of Bangalore and the Cantonment Act.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1896.

Taxes on houses in Calicut municipality considered very high.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th September, says that a meeting was held at Calicut by the rate-payers of the municipality to concert measures to present a welcome address to His Excellency the Governor, in which some of the speakers strongly deprecated the proposal of Government to make provision in the Municipal Bill for increasing the house-tax from Rs. 7–8–0 to Rs. 10. A resolution was unanimously adopted to the effect that reference to the subject should be made in the address to be presented. The article, while endorsing the opinions expressed by the speakers, of which it gives a summary, remarks that it is quite unfair to tax alike houses which are occupied by the owners and those that are let for rent.

QASIM-UL AKBAR, Bangalore, Sept. 10th, 1896.

Mismanagement of the Civil and Military Station municipality, Bangalore.

24. Qasim-ul Akbar, of the 10th September, bitterly complains that the financial affairs of the Civil and Military Station municipality, Bangalore, are grossly mismanaged. Embezzlement after embezzlement has followed in quick succession for a year or so and yet no preventive measures have been adopted. The Qasim attributes the cause thereof to mismanagement, carelessness, indifference and lack of supervision on the part of the president and other revenue officers, and, after praising other municipalities, especially that of Bangalore city as being free from all such scandals, invites the attention of Mr. Macworth Young to this matter.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Aug. 1896.

Increased taxation.

25. The Hindujanasamskarini, for August, complains that the Government of Madras have, by their settlement and survey operations, fixed the land-cess, water-cess, &c., so high as to leave nothing to the ryot. The ryots are therefore compelled to give up their lands, and capitalists are hesitating to invest their capital in land.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 26th, 1896.

Registration of janmam titles in Malabar.

26. A correspondent to the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 26th September, writes that, as it has been ruled that parties who put in applications for registering janmam titles should have them endorsed by the amsam menons and it affords sufficient scope for the latter to resort to corrupt practices, Government should cancel it.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 15th, 1896.

An advice to the Nilgiri railway authorities.

27. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 15th September, alluding to recent deaths of two coolies from the effects of dynamite explosion resorted to in the construction of the Nilgiri Railway, observes that, if Government, the railway engineers and the contractors would take special care of the coolies, such accidents might be avoided, and that otherwise deaths of this kind would be very frequent.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1896.

Inconvenience caused to travellers by the watchman in charge of the railway bridge over the Kalpathi river.

28. A correspondent to the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th September, invites the attention of the authorities to the inconvenience caused to travellers who use the foot-path on the railway bridge over the Kalpathi river near Olavakkod station, Madras Railway, by the watchman who is in charge of the bridge. It appears that it is invariably the practice of the watchman to shut the gates of the foot-path long before the train passes over the bridge and detain persons going to catch the train at Olavakkod until they pay something to him.

(i) Public Works.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 8th September, writes to say that the chief source of water-supply for the village of Timmasamudram in the taluk of Vellore in the North Arcot district is the tank of the village, and observes that at present there is no water in the tank, and that, unless a sluice be constructed at the anicut of the river channel, there is no chance of water ever coming into the tank, and hopes that the authorities concerned will do the needful. He reports that the work connected with the bund and the sluice of the tank, lately completed by the contractors, is not satisfactory, for the reason that the bund is breached in many places and that the gates of the sluice allow water to flow out.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 8th, 1896.

A request to the Public Works authorities regarding a certain tank in the village of Timmasamudram in North Arcot district.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

30. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th September, says that the recent introduction in Malabar of the system, which requires toddy-drawers to get the trees marked and obtain license for them before they are tapped for sweet toddy, has given increased facilities to the officers of the Salt and Abkári department to oppress innocent persons and levy blackmail. Owing to the difficulty of getting trees marked and of obtaining license and also to the fear of being arrested and punished in the event of their failure to carry the license with them always, many of the toddy-drawers have discontinued tapping trees for sweet toddy, and, consequently, there is a great dearth of jaggery. The Government do not derive any profit from the introduction of the above system nor do they expect any. Under the circumstances, the article suggests that it is better to revert to the old system which is not oppressive to the people.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Sept. 14th, 1896.

Government to do away with the system of issuing licenses for tapping trees for sweet toddy.

(k) General.

31. The Parayan, of the 5th September, brings to the notice of the authorities that the Paraiyas living in the village of Madayampakkam in Madurantakam taluk were, owing to the recent grant of darkhast of waste lands to the pattadars of the village, not only deprived of the privileges which they had enjoyed from time immemorial of tilling and cultivating the waste and forest lands of the village, but have also been evicted from the place. The paper says that the Paraiyas are at present without any means of livelihood and that their condition is pitiable, and requests Government to lease out to the Paraiyas the forest land measuring about 300 acres which is in the neighbourhood of the village mentioned above.

PARAYAN, Madras, Sept. 5th, 1896.

The condition of the Paraiyas in the village of Madayampakkam in Madurantakam taluk.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd September, takes objection to Collectors holding their cutcherry in their own residence instead of in the building allotted for the purpose notwithstanding the Government order prohibiting such a procedure, and regrets that even Lord Havelock's Government does not take notice of this irregularity and the difficulties the parties are put to in consequence. The paper alludes to the particular case lately disposed of by the Madras High Court bringing to prominence the irregularity here complained of and the evils attending thereon, wherein it was ruled that Collectors in their summons should sepecify the place where they mean to hold their cutcherry.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 22nd, 1896.

A remark on Collectors holding their cutcherry in their own residence.

33. The Hindujanasamskarini, for August, says that it hears that, if the civil Members of the Madras Executive Council stand in opposition to the Governor, the wishes of the Governor cannot be carried out. If this be true, the regulations, it remarks, should be so modified as to make the Governor's decisions prevail.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Aug. 1896.

The Executive Council.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Sept. 23rd, 1896.

A request to the Registration department.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 16th, 1896.

35. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th September, says that a correspondent writes to the paper that, as some peons refused to do the private menial work of a certain official in Malabar, the latter was greatly displeased with them and is now not only worrying them, but also tries his best to find fault with them in order to dismiss them from the service. The article, after dwelling on the subject at some length, remarks that, as it is customary with the officials to make their peons do private menial work in spite of the Government order to the contrary, it should issue a fresh order in this connection.

Officials making peons do private menial work.

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Sept. 14th, 1896.

36. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 14th September, says the Civil and Military Gazette dealing with the recent meeting of the Mulla Powindah with the Amir of Afghanistan states that the former, in interceding on behalf of the Waziris, recommended that they might be supplied with arms and ammunition, &c., to enable them to again try their fortune against the Government. If the Amir acts according to the advice of the mulla, he will surely create a misunderstanding between himself and the Government.

Referring to the above, the Shams remarks that the Amir will never help the Waziris in the way in which the European powers, acting on the advice of Mr. Gladstone, have helped and are helping the Armenians and Cretans though the grievances of the former (Waziris) against the Government exactly coincide with those of the latter (Armenians and Cretans) against the Sultan.

The Amir of Afghanistan and the Waziris.

37. Referring to the news that the proposal for the increase of European officers in the native regiments of India has been approved by the Secretary of State and is now under the consideration of the Government of India, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 14th September, says that ever since the number of European officers attached to each regiment was reduced on economical grounds the fear, which the regiments inspired, has been comparatively lessened.

The proposal to increase the number of English officers in native regiments.

III.—LEGISLATION.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Sept. 19th, 1896.

38. A correspondent to the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 19th September, writes that the uralars (trustees) of temples in Malabar fleece the poor tenants, who hold temple lands, as much as they can and spend the money for their private purposes. If these arbitrary demands of the trustees are not satisfied, the tenants are either evicted or their lands are put on melchart. As this is a great hardship and Government to pass a law prohibiting the capricious eviction of tenants by landlords.

loss to the tenants, Government should reconsider Devastanan Bill. It should also pass a law prohibiting the capricious eviction of tenants by landlords. The melchart system, which is very harassing and oppressive to the tenants, should also be put a stop to; if not, outbreaks similar to those which occurred at Chembrasseri amsam, Ernad taluk, are likely to happen in other parts of the district.

A correspondent to the same issue of the paper refers to the same point and expresses the same opinion.

IV.—Native States.

39. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st September, hears with some apprehension the news that the Diwan of Baroda has now called away his brother-in-law, one Mr. S. Srinivasa Raghavachari, from Trichinopoly to Baroda with the intention of giving him a high post in the State. He had already taken some Madrassees with him. The editor therefore fears that the Diwan might become unpopular in the country by giving appointments to his own countrymen. The editor also says that the amount of four lakhs of rupees sanctioned by the State for the reception of the Viceroy is too large to be wasted on preparations which will give only a temporary gratification to the Viceroy and the people, and thinks that such large sums should not be spent without doing something lasting for the benefit of the people.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 21st, 1896.

The Diwan of Baroda and the amount sanctioned for the reception of the Viceroy in the State.

40. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 12th September, while reviewing the administration of Mr. Subramanyan Pillai, Diwan of Cochin, says that it has not been productive of either good or evil to any noticeable extent. If he has been trying his best to add to the treasury of the State, he has on the other hand been allowing his feelings to have the better of his reason and blasted the prospects of many an officer for whom he had a dislike while judge of the Appeal Court. Referring to Mr. Rajagopala Charyar, the Diwan-elect, the article observes that, although it is not in a position to form an opinion of Mr. Charyar, yet it fully believes that the choice of the Madras Government that has the interest of the Cochin State at heart can never fall on an unworthy man and hopes that his administration will be conducive to the welfare and contentment of the State. The Raja has also done wisely in appointing the next Diwan for a term of five years as the prosperity of the State and the people may thereby be materially increased.

Malayala Manorama, Kóttayam, Sept. 12th, 1896.

Remarks on the administration of the present Diwan of Cochin.

41. A correspondent to the same issue of the paper complains that gambling has become an intolerable nuisance in Kóttayam and regrets that the authorities in Travancore do not take steps to put a stop to the evil in spite of repeated complaints.

Gambling in Kóttayam to be put a stop to.

42. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th September, rejoices to find a leader in the Madras Mail proposing the name of the Honourable Mr. Sankara Nayar to the Diwanship of Travancore. The disabilities under which the Nayars and Tiyans of Travancore have been labouring during the diwanship of Brahmans will then be removed to a considerable extent and it will pave the way for the prosperity of Travancore. That the Honourable Mr. Sankara Nayar has lost caste by his visit to England is a pure myth and must be a fabrication of prejudiced Brahmans as it has been already declared by competent men that Sudras do not lose caste by going to England. Besides, after his return to India, Mr. Sankara Nayar has worshipped in the temple of Sri Padmanabha, the family deity of the royal house of Travancore, which he would not have been permitted to do had he lost caste.

Kerala Chandrika Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1896.

The Honourable Mr. Sankara Nayar to be appointed Diwan of Travancore.

Referring to the same subject, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 23rd September, has a leader saying that the appointment of Mr. Sankara Nayar as the Diwan of Travancore will be productive of immense good to the people of that State. The Honourable Mr. Sankara Nayar is a gentleman free from all prejudices and he has distinguished himself wherever he has been by his sterling independence, ability and sound common sense.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Sept. 21st, 1896.

Wanted a dead letter office in Cochin State.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st September, invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the desirability of establishing a dead letter office in that State in order to enable the postal authorities to return to the senders all unclaimed letters, &c., which are now being heaped up in the corner of the Huzur office.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Sept. 26th, 1896.

Admission to the Agricultural school in Travancore refused to all classes of people.

44. A correspondent to the Malayala Manorama, of the 26th September, draws attention to the unjust way in which admission to the Agricultural school in Travancore is accorded only to certain classes of the people. The great agricultural needs at present felt by all classes of people alike certainly afford a good reason why such an invidious restriction should at once be removed.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Sept. 15th, 1896.

The Hyderabad premiership.

45. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th September, says that the Shonkat-ul-Islam, of Hyderabad, referring to the news that the Hyderabad premiership has been offered to, and accepted by, the Nawab Sir Asman Jah on certain conditions and that the present premier and the Nawab Sirwar Jang are threatening His Highness, saying that they will reveal his alleged malpractices in case of any change in the present ministry, remarks that such a change would greatly benefit the State. Alluding to Mr. Plowden, the Shonkat says that, on account of the pressure he exerts, the condition of His Highness is getting daily worse and worse, and trusts that he may be frustrated in his hopes. His political life is filled with high-handedness and ill-treatment towards the innocent people of India. The auspicious day of his retirement, which is fast approaching, is anxiously and patiently awaited. The Shonkat advises the Government of the Nizam not to act according to his evil advice.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 11th, 1896.

A suggestion to the rulers of India.

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th September, is of opinion that, if Government of India be vested with full powers in financial matters and if the non-official members of the Legislative Council be given the privilege, which they have not at present, of interpellating Government on the Indian budget, the existing defects in the administration of Indian finance will be removed ere long.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Sept. 20th, 1896.

A suggestion to Government regarding the coolies at Natal.

47. The Lokopakari, of the 20th September, says that native coolies meet with very bad treatment at the hands of European planters in Natal and that it is desirable that the Government of India should put a stop to coolies being taken to Natal.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Aug. 1896.

Pensions for police officers.

48. The Hindujanasamskarini, for August, stating that a scheme to grant pensions to the families of Police Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents is being considered by the Government of India, remarks that it is in the first place a perfect waste of money to have them, and that to grant pensions to their families is still more so.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Sept. 14th, 1896.

The great Indian charter.

49. The Rajayogi, of the 14th September, states that, in 1858, when Her Majesty the Queen assumed the government of India, a document descriptive of the privileges and rights of the Indian subjects was promulgated, and observes that it is still looked upon as a great treasure in itself; but day by day it is being disregarded by the administrators of the country, and this has produced in the Hindu mind a sense of disappointment. Distinctions of colour have, the paper says, been prevalent, and it would be beneficial to both parties to root them out. The condition of the Native Princes is deeply regrettable, for they feel their position too insecure. It is therefore necessary, the paper remarks, to re-affirm the said charter, which, among other things, brings to light the rights and privileges of the Indian Princes. In re-issuing the charter, it should be provided that those that transgress its provisions would incur the displeasure of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress and that the administrators of the country should be made to lend their helping hand to the attempts made by the Indian National Congress.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Sept. 21st, 1896.

Decline of the Congress.

50. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st September, says that certain squabbles in the municipal council among the Congress leaders have divided the people of Calcutta and threaten seriously to interfere with the arrangements to be made for the ensuing Congress. Such a state of things will in course of time affect the weight now attaching to the Congress and will give a handle to its enemies to scoff at it and will tend to confirm the Anglo-Indians in their opinion that there is no union in India and that the Indians have not the power of organization, and thus it will undo the great work that has been in progress for the last eleven years.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Sept. 23rd, 1896.

The Secretary of State for India on newspapers.

51. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 23rd September, says that the Secretary of State, in a speech in the Parliament, condemned the way in which Indian newspapers discussed the measures of Government and said that the Indian press ought to be gagged.

An astrologer's prediction concerning Her Majesty the Queen-Empress.

52. The same paper says that an astrologer in Madras, by name Srinivasa Aiyangar, has predicted the death of Her Majesty Queen-Victoria in November 1899.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 16th, 1896.

Another Mappila outbreak expected.

53. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th September, reports that the Malabar Spectator says that, as seventeen Mappilas, who wished to become martyrs in the last outbreak, could not do so, they are now making preparations to cause another outbreak.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Sept. 24th, 1896.

His Excellency the Governor and the Eralpad Raja of Calicut.

54. The Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 24th September, regrets to hear that an interview with His Excellency the Governor was refused to Eralpad Raja of Calicut presumably on account of a Government order which was passed expressing the displeasure of Government at the conduct of the Raja, who is said to have refused to co-operate with the authorities during the Mappila outbreak of 1894. The Raja has evinced a great deal of interest in welcoming His Excellency to Calicut, having promised a contribution of Rs. 500 towards the expenses required thereto, and it is a pity that he should have been refused an opportunity to interview His Excellency on account of a fault for which his agents are solely responsible.

The Kerala Patrika, of the 26th September, referring to the subject, expresses a similar opinion. The refusal of His Excellency the Governor to grant an interview to the Raja is said to have been keenly felt by the Malabar public, who hold the Raja in high estimation and reverence.

Shams-ul Akbar, Madras, Sept. 14th, 1896.

The Sultan and Mr. Gladstone.

55. Referring to a London telegram, of the 12th September, announcing that Mr. Gladstone has published a letter, in which he describes the Sultan of Turkey as the great assassin and declares that, unless all the European powers conjointly adopt coercive measures, it will be useless to demand any reforms from him, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 14th September, says Mr. Gladstone's suggestions are founded on no sound reasons but on his well-known hostility to the Sultan.

56. Referring to the punishment awarded to the Munir and Alwaqat (Arabi papers in Egypt) for publishing scurrilous and indecent articles against Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, the same paper says they deserve this punishment since their procedur is not only contrary to all propriety, but is also calculated to disturb the friendly relations existing between the different powers.

Remarks on the punishment awarded to some Arabic papers in Egypt for publishing indecent articles.

Issued 9th September 1896.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th October, says that the massacre of the Christians in Constantinople was committed with the full knowledge of the Sultan and at his bidding, and that he is a man devoid of mercy. The editor thinks that England is very anxious to bring about a change while the other nations are indifferent. According to him the plan now most in favour is that the Sultan should be deposed and another member of his family elevated in his place, but nothing short of ending the Mussalman rule would be a radical remedy for the present state of affairs.

Turkish affairs.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 12th, 1896.

2. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th September, says that the present attitude of the European powers towards the suffering Armenians is certainly not creditable to the former. The recent fearful massacres at Constantinople and Eguin call for serious consideration. The responsibility imposed upon the Russians by the treaty concluded at the end of the last war between the Turks and the Russians of safeguarding the interests of the Armenians was subsequently accepted in part by the English. This and the treaty of Cyprus between the Turks and the English clearly make the English particularly responsible for the safety of the Armenians; but they have not as yet done anything to put a stop to the atrocities of the Turks. The London Times states that certain European powers are against interfering in the matter; but, before such difference of opinion among the European powers is settled, the Armenians will be reduced to rack and ruin.

The Armenian atrocities.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Sept. 30th, 1896.

3. Referring to a Paris telegram, of the 23rd September, announcing that Mr. Gladstone has published a letter in the Figaro, of Paris, which is couched in libellous terms against the Sultan, by which he seeks the aid of the French for the Armenians, the Shams, of the 28th September, says, as it is impossible for the British Government or for any British party to render aid to the Armenians without the common consent of other powers, Mr. Gladstone is trying to secure his ends in this way. The Shams thinks that the Egyptian question will prevent the French from aiding the Armenians, and the French Government will not do so until and unless Russia joins. However, the Shams-ul Akbar remarks a great revolution is apprehended in Europe.

Mr. Gladstone and the Armenians.

Shams-ul Akbar, Madras, Sept. 23rd, 1896.

4. The Qasim-ul Akbar, of the 28th September, says the Mukhbir-i-Deccan, of Madras, in commenting upon the Armenian question, expresses its satisfaction at the action of the British Government in determining to decide the question conjointly with other powers, and remarks, if England acting on the evil advice of her prejudiced statesmen and clergy were to adopt any other policy in this respect, she would surely suffer a rebuff.

The Armenian question and the British Government.

Qasim-ul Akbar, Bangalore, Sept. 28th, 1896.

II.—Home Administration.

5. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th October, takes the following from an article in the Amrita Bazaar Patrika on police torture:—"Sir Arthur Havelock has made the Madras officials feel that he will not allow them to do everything at their sweet will. His Excellency is a man of indomitable will and strong sense of justice. Such a Governor is bound to be a blessing to millions entrusted to his charge."

Sir Arthur Havelock and police torture.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 5th, 1896.

6. A paragraph in the Malayalam Manorama says that, in the Calicut taluk, a few days ago, while certain thieves were breaking the wall of a house, named Panankulangara, in Ootumparamba desam,

A double murder undetected in Malabar.

Manorama, Calicut.

Olavanna amsam, a little to the east of Thiruvannur, the inmates, a woman and her son, opened, and stepped out by, two different doors to see who were the thieves, when they were both suddenly cut down by the latter. The murderers have not as yet been found out. It is about the failure of the police to detect such cases that people complained to the Governor. The editor requests that His Excellency will be pleased to inquire how many such cases occurred and how many were detected after October 1895.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 7th, 1896.

Increased crime in Thiruvannur in Malabar.

7. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 7th October, enumerates about six or seven cases of theft and one of murder which recently occurred at Thiruvannur in Malabar and says that a strange terror has consequently been struck into the heart of every one in that locality. Some of the residents of the place are said to be among the offenders. During the tenure of office of Mr. Chappan Menon, Deputy Collector, everything was in good order as security for good behaviour was then taken from many of the notorious characters of the place. The period of their security having now expired, the old state of things has revived. The police and the magistracy ought to pay special attention to the matter.

The number of constables in Thanur station to be increased.

8. A correspondent to the same paper invites the attention of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, to the fact that in the Thanur police station there are at present only five constables, including the head constable, while the rule distinctly requires the number to be nine. Thanur is notorious for its known depredators, and it is to be hoped the Superintendent of Police will see that the number is soon raised to nine.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 10th, 1896.

Suggesting the appointment of Mr. Kottayi Raman to inquire into the Keezhutumbu desam murder in the Calicut taluk.

9. Reporting a case of theft and murder recently committed at Keezhutumbu desam, Olavanna amsam, in Calicut taluk, in which Neyana Veetil Kuttiparnamma and her son, Kunhi Krishna Menon, were murdered at night and certain property stolen, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th October, suggests the appointment of Mr. Kottayi Raman, Inspector of Police, to inquire into the case as he is the only police officer in Malabar who seems in every way fitted to unearth the murderers. Mr. Raman has, ere this, distinguished himself in detecting the Wynaad coffee theft and the Tellicherry record stealing cases and his capacity may be tried once more by appointing him a detective with special powers. The editor hopes that the Superintendent of Police will suggest to the higher authorities the appointment of Mr. Raman to inquire into the above case.

(b) Courts.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Sept. 19th, 1896.

A complaint against the District Munsif, Sub-Magistrate, and Amin of Tiruvadi.

10. The Jananukulan, of the 19th September, reports that the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvadi, at the instance of the District Munsif of that place, imposed heavy fines on about seventeen persons for the reason that they obstructed the amin of the District Munsif's Court in the discharge of his duty as a public servant when he went to the village of Anthalay for the purpose of delivering possession of certain houses to a judgment-creditor in execution of the decree passed by the District Munsif, and that, on appeal, the judgment of the Sub-Magistrate was reversed and the fines, if paid, were ordered to be refunded. (Vide appeal No. 21 of 1896 in the court of Sub-Divisional First-class Magistrate of Pattukkóttai division.) The paper says that in the original case the District Munsif, the Sub-Magistrate, and the amin failed to do their duty; and it therefore behoves the authorities concerned to inquire into the matter and redress the grievances of the wronged parties.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding village offices.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th September, observes that in village courts the revenue functions are discharged very satisfactorily, whereas civil and criminal functions are not properly attended to, and that the superior officials take no notice of this irregularity. To mend these defects the correspondent makes the following suggestions:—

(1) That the village court should be held in the village chavadi and two days in a week should be set apart exclusively for the disposal of the civil and criminal cases—say Friday and Saturday—even as is done in District Munsifs' courts and sub-courts for the disposal of cases of small causes.

(2) That the power of executing the decrees of the village courts in respect of cases of small causes should be left to the District Munsif's court, as the execution of such decrees by the village munsif himself, as is done at present, is derogatory to his official dignity.

(3) That the village munsif, in regard to the disposal of criminal cases—say cases of theft below one rupee—should apply to the nearest station-house officer for a police constable, and, if the offender is proved guilty, the village munsif should get him punished by the constable.

12. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 30th September, is surprised to hear of the allegations made in the columns of some of the numbers of the same paper against Mr. Sivaramakrishna Sarma, the Sub-Magistrate of Panruti, regarding his unpunctual attendance in court and his manner of disposing of cases, and presumes that they must have been made in a malicious spirit by some of the relations of Sarma's predecessor, who was by no means a punctual officer, and by some of those who hover about the magistrate's court in pursuit of illicit gain. The correspondent remarks that Mr. Sarma is a punctual and strict officer who evinces a deep interest in the welfare of the public.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Sept. 30th, 1896.

Remarks on the allegation against the Sub-Magistrate of Panruti.

13. A correspondent to the same paper reports that the Sub-Magistrate of Panruti shows reluctance to hear and dispose of nuisance cases brought before him; that the people in consequence do not scruple to commit nuisance in public streets; and that the sanitation of the place is becoming unsatisfactory. The correspondent cites a particular case of nuisance which was not taken notice of by the police for the reason given above.

A complaint against the Sub-Magistrate of Panruti.

14. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, commenting on the conduct of the Tanjore police inspector in the Mannargudi riot case as calculated to cause distrust in the minds of the people, recommends the transfer of the trial to a first-class magistrate, as the higher magistrates are likely to be independent and impartial. This is especially necessary in this case in which influential missionaries are on one side.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1896.

A request to the authorities regarding the inquiry of the Mannargudi riot case.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th October, reports that the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvadamarudúr holds his court till a late hour in the evening to the great inconvenience of the parties, even though there is a Government order prohibiting such practice. The correspondent requests the higher authorities to attend to this subject.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 6th, 1896.

A complaint against the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvadamarudúr.

16. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th October, complains that, owing to the transfer of certain cases from the Palghat Sub-Court to Calicut, great inconvenience and trouble is caused to the parties concerned, and requests that the High Court may be pleased to retransfer them to Palghat which now has an able sub-judge turning out good work.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 10th, 1896.

The cases transferred from the Palghat Sub-Court to Calicut to be retransferred to the former court.

(d) Education.

17. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 7th October, observes that, owing to the sectarian character of the Kerala Vidya Sala at Calicut, many poor low caste people who are eager to receive higher education are prevented from prosecuting their studies in the F.A. classes. It was chiefly owing to the existence of this college at Calicut that the Government college there was abolished; but, as this college is closed to the low-castes, the abolition of the Government college is now felt to be a decided loss. A memorial was presented to the Zamorin by the people of Calicut praying for the removal of the disability, but no reply has as yet been forthcoming. It is a pity that even His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock was silent on the matter although reference was made to it by the Principal on the occasion of the last prize distribution of the college.

(e) Local and Municipal.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Sept. 19th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Madras Municipality.

18. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 19th September, complains that in cases of death by cholera in Madras people, in order to secure a large attendance at the funeral, misrepresent the cause of death and thereby prevent municipal officers and servants from disinfecting the house in which the death took place and its surroundings. The paper points out the magnitude of the danger caused to the public by such misrepresentations, and suggests to the municipality the advisability of prosecuting such persons as give false reports regarding cases of death by cholera.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 6th, 1896.

Wretched condition of the road leading to Rámésvaram from Tanjore to Danushkoti.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th October, describing the importance of the road leading to Rámésvaram and extending from Tanjore to Danushkoti, a distance of 150 miles, as being daily resorted to by pilgrims in large numbers proceeding to Rámésvaram, says that the road is not only in a wretched condition, but is without avenue trees and bridges. Travellers on the road consequently experience much inconvenience and hardship.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 9th, 1896.

The preventive force on the frontier of Mahé and Cochin not to be made permanent.

20. The Kerala Chandrika, of the 9th October, understand that the Salt and Abkári Commissioner has recommended to the higher authorities that the preventive force now temporarily maintained by that department on the frontier of Mahé and Cochin may be converted into a permanent force, and remarks that the adoption of such a measure will only serve to create discontent among the people. The charge of corruption so universally brought against the Salt and Abkári department is to a great extent due to the vagaries prevailing in this force. They are stimulated to concoct as many cases against poor and innocent persons as possible inasmuch as, in their line, promotion and favour can be secured only according to the number of cases detected. The oppression of the officers constituting this force has been so proverbial that, by making this force permanent, the hardship of the people will also be perpetuated. The editor hopes that the recommendation of the Commissioner will be well considered before being accepted, and exhorts the people of Malabar to present a memorial to Government protesting against its adoption.

(k) General.

SATYA VARTAMANI, Pasumalai, Sept. 15th, 1896.

A suggestion regarding the Postal Guide.

21. A correspondent to the Satya Vartamani, of the 15th September, draws the attention of the postal authorities to the following:—A large number of copies of the Postal Guide have been sold at auction apparently as waste paper and bought by petty bazaarmen for the use of the paper for wrapping. This is because of the high price at which the postal guide is offered for sale. If the postal guide be translated into vernacular languages and copies of the translation be entrusted to postal delivery peons for sale at one or two annas per copy, there is no doubt that the guide will be largely used by the people.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th September, regrets to learn that the Madras Government has disallowed the supply of butter-milk in public water-sheds on the ground that it is expensive, and remarks that this is one of the many instances to show that the English in India pay little or no regard to the habits and conveniences of the Hindus and much less to their public charities. The paper comments strongly on the pride of Englishmen which makes them so unsympathetic to the people of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 25th, 1896.

Order of Government disallowing the use of curds in public water-sheds.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Sept. 28th, 1896.

A hint to Government regarding Mr. Ponnusawmi Aiyar, the Tahsildar of Anantapur.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Sept. 29th, 1896.

A remark on the contemplation of Government to appoint another Secretary.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, makes the following suggestions:—

that the right of conferring and withdrawing magisterial powers should vest with the High Court on the recommendation of District Judges and not, as at present, with Government on the recommendation of District Collectors and the Board of Revenue; that, inasmuch as people are put to great inconvenience by the separation of engineering and revenue offices—those entrusted with the collection of revenue not being responsible for good irrigation of the lands paying revenue—it is highly desirable that revenue officers in charge of divisions should have the powers of sub-divisional engineers and hold under their control overseers, tahsildars and deputy tahsildars; and that all revenue officers should be deprived of their magisterial powers.

The correspondent makes the suggestions noted below for the district of Tanjore:—

that an Assistant Sessions Judge should be appointed on a salary of Rs. 1,000 a month and exercise the powers of a District Magistrate and of hearing and disposing of civil and criminal appeals; that for revenue administration the district should be divided into six divisions under a Head Assistant Collector, an Assistant Collector and four Deputy Collectors, all of them being without magisterial power, but having instead the control of the engineering works in their divisions; and that there should be one first-class magistrate—a circle magistrate—for every three taluks, even as there is a Sub-Judge for three taluks.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1896.

Certain suggestions regarding district administration and in particular the administration of the Tanjore district.

26. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 3rd October, observes that message peons in the Telegraph department of this Presidency are paid only Rs. 3 per mensem and 5 pies per message, whereas in Bengal and Bombay they are paid Rs. 5 per mensem and 5 pies per message. The correspondent, after describing their hardship and the dangers they are liable to when carrying messages at night, says that the question of giving them an increase of pay deserves the favorable consideration of Government.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Oct 5th, 1896.

Water pandals and butter-milk.

27. The Rajayogi, of the 5th October, referring to Government order disallowing butter-milk charges in water pandals "within the jurisdiction of the Narsapur Taluk Board," writes thus (in English):—"The orders of the Madras Government are very curious sometimes. They are very careful about the pies while the rupees have their own way. How many thousands of rupees are being wasted over the so-called local fund public works every year? But the Government thinks it wise to observe strict economy in sanctioning expenditure for butter-milk in water pandals.

"The cost of butter-milk for each pandal is one rupee, and it is simply a temporary charge. We fail to understand how such a paltry saving effected after greatly inconveniencing the public could help the objects set forth by the Government."

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 30th, 1896.

Comment on His Excellency the Governor's reply to the addresses presented in Malabar.

28. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th September, has a leader expressing the great satisfaction of the people at the plain and outspoken replies given by His Excellency to the grievances brought to notice in the various addresses presented to him in Malabar. The people rejoice to hear that something will soon be done to remove the hardship caused to poor tenants by the system of melchart and also that the abolition of the reward system in the Salt and Abkári department is under consideration. His Excellency's reply to the complaints against the police has given especial satisfaction; but the interpretation put upon the unmistakable language of the promise contained in the proclamation of 1805 does not seem to be acceptable. The editor purposes to return to this in an early issue.

Referring to the same subject, the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 3rd October, observes that His Excellency's reply to many of the important questions referred to in the addresses were extremely unsatisfactory and says that the reason is the addresses did not treat of the popular grievances in the way they should have done. For instance, says the editor, the address presented by the Mahajana Subha stated, without in any way verifying their statement, that the proclamation of 1805 promised to establish a permanent revenue in Malabar which was unalterable. His Excellency's short, but unsatisfactory, reply was that it was not so. Again, in reply to the complaint against the police, His Excellency said that the statistics for 1890—95 showed a diminution of crimes in Malabar. Such an unsatisfactory reply would never have been given had it been pointed out that all the cases that crop up are not generally entered in the register. That the people of Malabar, who have most of them taken to agriculture, will find themselves in great difficulty if the assessment is increased is also a just grievance, and His Excellency's reply to it will be found to be extremely unsatisfactory when it is remembered that in Malabar, unlike other districts of the presidency, the agriculturist's profit is considerably lessened owing to the intervention of the landlord and tenant between him and the Government. His Excellency remarked that, as the market value of articles has increased, while the assessment has remained stationary, the people are gainers by the difference; but this increase in the market value of articles is due to a diminished supply of the articles themselves and an increase in population. That the request of the people to open the Kallai bar cannot be complied with as it involves much expense is really surprising as it is difficult to perceive for what purpose, if not for works of public good, Government should accumulate money. The article ends with the remarks that His Excellency's words with regard to the Salt and Abkári department and Mappila education were highly satisfactory.

The following is what the Malayalam Manorama, of the 5th October, has to say on the above subject:—"His Excellency the Governor's statement that the proclamation of 1805 did not promise a permanent assessment to Malabar is really surprising as there is ample reason to believe, and many responsible Government officers have hitherto believed, that it did contain such a promise. With regard to the complaint against the police, His Excellency produced the statistics of crimes in Malabar for the last five years, which His Excellency said showed a diminution of crimes in Malabar. This is not true for the statistics show that there was an actual increase in the number of crimes in 1895 over those of 1894. As to the other years it must be borne in mind that the statistics contain the most trivial offences as well as the most serious crimes. It is by the increase or decrease in the latter that the state of a country should be judged. If His Excellency inquires how many such cases have been detected, His Excellency will see that the number bears a very poor proportion to those detected during the previous year. Since the last Mappila outbreak crimes in Malabar have been steadily on the increase. The article ends with the remark that the pay of stationary magistrates may without any pecuniary loss to Government be increased by giving them the present salary of tahsildars, the salaries now drawn by stationary magistrates being given to tahsildars.

29. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 9th October, very much rejoices at the plain and outspoken character of His Excellency's replies to the various addresses presented to him in Malabar. His Excellency's remarks on the reward system in the Salt and Abkári department, on Mappila education and on the restoration of the municipal franchise were specially satisfactory.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 9th, 1896.

Remarks on His Excellency the Governor's reply to the Malabar addresses.

Referring to the Governor's speech on the occasion of the prize distribution at the Kerala Vidya Sala, Calicut, the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th October, says that His Excellency certainly adopted in an "ungracious manner" as he himself admitted, in referring, in the very presence of the benefactor of the institution, to the statement of the Director of Public Instruction that to ensure the retention and efficiency of the staff salaries should be raised all round. Now, if the efficiency of the staff may be estimated from the result of the annual examinations, the staff of the Kerala Vidya Sala is far from inefficient. It was, therefore, entirely out of place for His Excellency to have said anything about the scale of salaries in a college which receives no aid of any kind from Government.

The same issue of the Kerala Patrika has the following:—In reply to the people's complaint at Cannanore that the Abkári Act entails on them a double tax on the cocoanut tree His Excellency said that under the existing revenue system the cocoanut tree bears a distinct tax which forms part of the land revenue, and that by proceeding to tap it, people render themselves liable to a fresh revenue charge. Now this sort of reasoning is unsound, for inasmuch as all trees that are tapped do not bear fruit, a corresponding loss of the cocoanut fruit has to be incurred by tapping cocoanut trees which practically leaves the tappers only one source of income. It is, therefore, unjust to levy a double tax on those who have only one source of income.

30. Referring to the outbreak of the bubonic plague in Bombay, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 5th October, says Madras has connection with Bombay in many ways and that merchants and other people daily leave Madras for Bombay and vice versâ hence it is advisable that the authorities should make some arrangement to prevent the plague from reaching Madras.

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Oct. 5th, 1896.

Bubonic plague.

31. The same paper states, on the authority of a Mannargudi correspondent, that, at the annual meeting of the Wesleyan Mission Society recently held there, certain Hindus attacked and wounded some of the innocent padres present, suspecting that a Brahman lad was about to be baptised by them. The Shams hopes that the authorities will institute an inquiry into the matter and punish the offenders.

Attack on Wesleyan Mission padres at Mannargudi.

III.—Legislation.

Lokopakari, Madras, Sept. 30th, 1896.

A request to Government regarding Act II of 1864.

32. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 30th September, with regard to the sale by auction of immovable property for arrears of kist, observes that paragraph 1 of section 38 of Act II of 1864 (?) merely provides that a sale might be set aside within thirty days from the date of sale on the ground of irregularity, mistake or fraud in conducting the sale; but no provision is made for setting aside the sale on the ground that the defaulter has tendered money within thirty days from the date of sale, even as is provided in section 310 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The correspondent complains that the absence of this provision works a hardship on the ryots and requests Government as well as the members of the Legislative Council to amend the Act so as to make it include the provision herein pointed out.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 2nd, 1896.

Bill brought in by the Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerji before the Bengal Legislative Council.

33. The Swadesamitran, of the 2nd October, is glad to learn that the Hon'ble Mr. Babu Surendra Nath Banerji, of the Bengal Legislative Council, has brought in a Bill similar to the one brought by the Hon'ble Kaliyanasundram Aiyar before the Madras Legislative Council, for the efficient administration of the property of the Hindu devastanams. The paper says that the draft Bill in question imposes on the district officer the task of framing a list of the important mirassidars, pundits and moulvis of the district who ought to constitute the body of electors, and on the electors the duty of forming the district and central committees for managing the affairs of the Hindu devastanams, and makes it the duty of the High Court to carry out the decrees of the central committee, which is to be the highest appellate body, and whose decision is therefore irreversible. The paper believes that both the Bills aim at improving the management of the Hindu temples; and it behoves Government to bestow its best attention on the subject.

IV.—Native States.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Oct. 7th, 1896.

The state of Government in Mysore.

34. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 7th October, has a long article in which it says that a great deal of looseness prevails in the government of Mysore. The Diwan and the Councillors do not attend office, and their example is followed by Deputy Commissioners and other officials. In some cases mere boys have been invested with high authority who from want of a knowledge of the world have no sympathy with the people; while in other cases old men who are past their age of efficiency have been retained. The editor therefore concludes that the government of the country will not improve unless high officials are now and then transferred from one place to another, young men put under the authority of those experienced, officers who have distinguished themselves brought into towns and those who cannot do good work shoved away into corners, and the term of the Diwan's office limited to a few years.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 5th, 1896.

The Nizam's Government's resolution to levy customs duty on articles exported by parcels post.

35. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th October, says that the Nizam's Government have made arrangements to levy customs duty on all articles exported by parcels post to provinces outside his dominions through the British Post offices at Hyderabad and Secunderabad.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Oct. 12th, 1896.

Changes to be made in the Mysore Civil Service Examination.

36. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th October, suggests that the Mysore Civil Service Examination should be made a more practical one by making it compulsory on the candidates to bring up the History and the Geography and other particulars of Mysore instead of confining the examination to purely literary and scientific subjects in which the candidates have shown their proficiency already in the B.A. Examination.

37. A correspondent to the Nazrani Dipika, of the 30th September, refer- NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Sept. 30th, 1896.

The Travancore Female Normal school examination scandal.

ring to the obscure question paper recently set at the Female Normal school in Trivandrum, remarks that it is most surprising that a book containing the obscene slokas under reference should have been a text-book in a girls' school taught by male teachers.

This opinion is echoed by the editor in a short paragraph in the same issue of the paper.

38. Referring to the disabilities of the Tiyars of Travancore, a leader in the KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 7th, 1896.

Disabilities of the Tiyars of Travancore.

Kerala Sanchari, of the 7th October, remarks that it is a matter for surprise and sympathy that His Highness the Maharaja should so cruelly deny the privileges of an enlightened government to such a large section of his obedient and loyal subjects. Although the last census report shows the number of educated men among the Tiyars to be 25,000, yet the whole community is shut out from the service of the State. Not a single member of that long-suffering community is permitted to be even a peon under the Sirkar. A Tiyar graduate, who lately applied for a copyist's place in the Travancore High Court, was told that the traditional State policy was against his entertainment. A memorial signed by 13,176 Tiyars has lately been submitted to the Maharaja, praying in the very hnmblest terms to remove these disabilities; but the editor believes that, unless the British Government interferes on behalf of the down-trodden Tiyars, that much-oppressed community can never expect any good at the hands of the State.

Referring to the same subject, the Malayala Manorama, of the 10th October, says that it is an injustice of the gravest character that Tiyars who form a very large portion of the population in Travancore should thus be trampled under foot and denied access to public service in their motherland. Rumour attributes the suicide of a renowned native physician of this community to the unjust treatment of his castmen in Travancore.

The Kerala Mitram, of the 11th October, emphatically echoes the opinion expressed by the Kerala Sanchari.

39. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 5th October, complains that British SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Oct. 5th, 1896.

The Residents and the Native Chiefs.

Residents generally make mischief and create hostile parties for the purpose of gaining full power over the Native states in which they reside. The Shams advises the British Government not to pass any orders on their reports made against Native Chiefs until and unless an opportunity has been given to the chiefs concerned for defending themselves. If this procedure is not adopted, the Shams says misunderstanding will be created between the Native Chiefs in general and the Government.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

41. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th October, takes serious objection to the SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 6th, 1896.

Protest against the opening of a Pastuer institute in India.

opening of a Pastuer institute in India on the ground that it will inflict much suffering on a large number of animals while experiments are being made on them, and that such an institution will greatly wound the feelings of the people who are generally averse to cruelty to animals. The paper, learning that Government also is in favour of the opening of the said institute, observes that it is Europeans who clamour aloud for the opening of the institute in question, and that Government will not be justified in taking action in the matter, unmindful of the annoyance which the institute may cause to a large section of its subjects. The paper doubts besides the efficacy of the treatment under Pastuer's method for the reason that there is a division of opinion among professional men in Europe on the subject.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Oct. 8th, 1896.

One of the subjects for deliberation at the ensuing Congress.

42. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th October, says, on the information given by a correspondent, that at the ensuing meeting of the Congress the abolition of the Governorships of Madras and Bombay and the appointment instead of Lieutenant-Governors as in Allahabad and Bengal will be discussed, the same being economical.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 5th, 1896.

The coming Congress.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th October, after expressing great regret at the quarrels now prevailing among the leaders of the Congress in Calcutta, suggests that in future the meetings of the Congress should be held in smaller towns, as the party spirit there does not run so high as in the capitals of presidencies, and wishes that at this year's meeting the Congress would take up the question of the cost of the Soudan expedition, and of the material wants of the country, which latter subject has been too much neglected in past years.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 12th, 1896.

The subjects to be discussed at the next Congress meeting.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th October, says that the following subjects may be considered at the ensuing congress meeting:—

(1) The advisability of reducing Madras and Bombay to Lieutenant-Governorships.

(2) The abolition of Revenue Boards.

(3) The amalgamation of Postal and Telegraph departments.

(4) The reduction of money order commission to one anna for Rs. 5 and under.

(5) The issuing of currency notes from a single circle so as to make the same notes current throughout India.

(6) The use of the English language alone in all civil courts.

(7) The abolition of the section in the Penal Code which makes the giver of bribes punishable.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Sept. 30th, 1896.

Providing no seats in the Collector's bungalow in Malabar for the gentlemen who presented addresses to His Excellency the Governor.

45. A paragraph in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th September, says that the many leading gentlemen, who went to the Collector's bungalow at Calicut to present addresses to His Excellency the Governor, were put to much inconvenience and had to take shelter under the shade of trees in the compound of the bungalow as no seats were provided for them on the occasion. It is to be regretted that the matter was not provided for by the Collector.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 10th, 1896.

An advice to the Malabar authorities to guard against an importation of the bubonic plague into that district.

46. Referring to the bubonic plague in Bombay, a leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 10th October, exhorts the Collectors, the Port officers and Municipalities of Malabar to take every precautionary measure calculated to prevent an importation of the disease into that district as it would be almost impossible to check its spread if once imported.

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Oct. 5th, 1896.

Mr. Gladstone's alleged connection with the secret Armenian committees in Constantinople.

47. Referring to a London telegram announcing that three secret committees of the Armenians have recently convened meetings at Constantinople and other places in the Turkish empire for the purpose of creating disturbances against the Turkish rule and that the Porte was not aware of the existence of such committees, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 5th October, believes that the above meetings were held at the suggestion of Mr. Gladstone and other sympathisers with the Armenians.

[Issued 24th October 1896.]

CONFIDENTIAL. No. 20 of 1896.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. Referring to a London telegram, of the 5th October, announcing the departure of the Czar from Portsmouth, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 12th October, on the authority of the English papers, says that the Czar during his stay in England convinced himself of the fact that the procedure adopted in England as regards the Armenians is disinterested and is not based on any political motive.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Oct. 12th, 1896.

The Armenian question.

2. The same paper says that, taking into consideration the indecent utterances of Mr. Gladstone, it is clear that there is something wrong in his brain. It appears that he wishes to involve the British nation and the British Government in a difficulty from which it will be impossible for it to extricate itself without serious loss and injury. This shortsighted old man sometimes styles the Sultan a "cruel monarch" and sometimes "merciless and tyrannical," and thus persuades the British nation to commence action against Turkey without concert with the European powers. His procedure is not only against the foreign policy of the British Government, but also tends to create a great revolution in Europe. It is matter for regret that the British Government has not kept such a mischief-maker under its control. On his support alone the Armenians have girded up their loins and create disturbances in the Ottoman Empire from time to time which not only causes uneasiness and trouble to the Turkish Government but also ruins themselves. The Shams advises the British Government to arrest and banish Mr. Gladstone and his party.

Mr. Gladstone and the Armenians.

3. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 19th October, says the Novoe Vremya of St. Petersburg, has an article on the Nile expedition, in which it is predicted that, before the capture of Khartoum, Egypt will possibly become quite subservient to the British Government, in which case it is asserted that the power of the British Government will develop considerably and will become a source of constant dread and trouble to France, Russia and Germany who are especially interested in the Suez canal. In order to remedy this evil, it is suggested that the above powers should receive the sovereign rights of the Sultan over Egypt from His Majesty who will not hesitate to vest them in the above powers as he is unable to maintain them.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Oct. 19th, 1896.

The Nile expedition and the Novoe Vremya.

Referring to the above, the Shams thinks that these attacks on and the bad name of the British Government are occasioned by Mr. Gladstone and some of his followers who wish to ruin and entangle the British Government in endless difficulties. Indeed such persons deserve banishment.

4. Referring to a St. Petersburg telegram of the 11th October, announcing that the Novoe Vremya states that, in consequence of the change in the tone of England, it is easy for the European powers to act conjointly as regards Turkey, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 19th October, says the above change in the tone of England shows a change in England's policy regarding the Eastern question so much that, even if Russia takes possession of Armenia or exercises control over Constantinople, England will never object.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Oct. 19th, 1896.

British Government and the Eastern question.

II.—Home Administration.

5. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th October, says that, after the Kalugumalai riots, the people of that place are assessed a special tax for maintaining a police force there, and regrets that this tax is imposed arbitrarily not only on the permanent residents of the place but also on the visitors.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 9th, 1896.

A special tax imposed on the people of Kalugumalai for maintaining a police force at that place.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1896.

"The Kolattur murder case."

6. The Andhraprakasika, of the 24th October, hears, in connection with the Kolattur (Kalattur) murder case of 20th June, that no reliable evidence has as yet been obtained; that the corpse was allowed by the Police Superintendent to be buried without medical examination; that the police inspector repaired to the village thereafter and intimidated persons volunteering information about the occurrence by giving out that the murderers had threatened to kill anybody giving evidence in the case. The paper is surprised that the culprits should still escape detection by the police, and states that the villagers are clamouring that the Government should take note of these facts and send some members of the Madras City Police to investigate the case.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 21st, 1896.

Remarks on the last Police Administration Report of the Madras Presidency.

7. Commenting on the last Police Administration Report of the Madras Presidency, a leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st October, remarks that the practice adopted by Mr. Fawcett, Superintendent of Police, Malabar, of transferring all police officers, who have discharged their duty satisfactorily, to their native place has its own disadvantages. It is true that it may serve as an encouragement to them to work hard; but it is likely that, in their eagerness to be transferred to their native places, they may endeavour to "fudge," and, when once they get into their native place, who knows how they will behave.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1896.

Natives to be appointed Assistant Superintendents of Police.

8. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 25th October, urges upon the Government the necessity of appointing natives as Assistant Superintendents of Police and believes they will even be more successful than Europeans in the same capacity. Europeans cannot, as a rule, give up their comforts. When an inquiry has to be held in any case all that they do is to go to the place of action accompanied by a few native officers and, after taking up their abode in some comfortable bungalow, send their subordinates to conduct the inquiry. When evidence is secured the credit goes of course to the European. This shows that even at present the work of Assistant Superintendents is practically done by natives. Moreover, the natives are better acquainted with the arts and artifices of the people than any foreigner is likely to be. The only native Assistant Superintendent of Police in this Presidency has been doing his work so satisfactorily that the editor hopes to find Sir Arthur Havelock's Government entertaining more natives on the staff of Assistant Superintendents of Police which will certainly induce educated natives to join that department.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 28th, 1896.

The police of Parpangady in Malabar to put a stop to the troubles caused by Mappilas.

9. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th October, draws the attention of the police and the magistrates of Parpangady to the trouble caused by the Mappilas who live in the vicinity of the mosque near the Munsif's Court of that place. Recently they caused serious injuries to a number of Hindu pilgrims from Ramnad by pelting stones at them while passing along the road between the court and the mosque. Had the pilgrims offered any opposition, says the correspondent, the matter would have ended in another Mappila outbreak.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 9th, 1896.

A complaint against one Kistnasami Aiyar, clerk in the District Munsif's court of Tiruvarur.

10. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th October, publishes an extract from a letter of one of its correspondents regarding one Kistnasami Aiyar, clerk in the District Munsif's court of Tiruvarur, wherein it is complained that the said Kistnasami Aiyar, who is entrusted with the work connected with the execution of decrees, delays the submission before the court of the applications of parties for execution of decrees for a period of eight days and then very often returns them to the parties on some frivolous excuse.

11. The Sasilekha, of the 23rd October, states that in giving judgment in the Calicut police torture case, the Sessions Judge remarked that a witness who had absconded and some others who had given false evidence should be brought to trial. The people are surprised at the Collector not taking any steps to enforce the Court's order, though the said judgment was delivered a year ago. The paper therefore desires that Government should inquire into this matter.

The Calicut police torture case.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1896.

12. Referring to the appointment of Mr. Ramachandrayyar, Sub-Magistrate of Chowghat, to act for Mr. Govinda Menon, Tahsildar of Kóttayam taluk, now on three months' leave, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th October, observes that it is unjust that the claims of his seniors drawing Rs. 120 a month should have been overlooked for the simple reason that they were not graduates.

Overlooking the claim of seniority in the appointment of a Tahsildar for the Kóttayam taluk.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 28th, 1896.

(d) Education.

13. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 10th October, referring to the scheme of Dr. Duncan regarding the examination in Oriental languages intended for pandits and munshis, asks what guarantee is there that the Sanskrit Professor of the Presidency College and the several Translators to Government possess ability in Oriental languages superior to that of the candidates themselves? The paper observes that only such scholars as are well versed in the various philosophical systems connected with Hinduism and in the religious history of India are competent to be examiners and that pandits are the best qualified men to examine would-be pandits.

Opinion regarding Dr. Duncan's scheme for examining pandits and munshis in Oriental languages.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Oct. 10th, 1896.

(e) Local and Municipal.

14. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 3rd October, draws the attention of the Madras municipality to the bubonic plague now prevailing in Bombay and advises it to adopt preventive measures.

An advice to the Madras municipality.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Oct. 3rd, 1896.

15. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 17th October, reports that rumour has it that one Swaminatha Chettiyar, a member of the union panchayet of Tiruvadi, has, while erecting a house in the south street (No. 2 Public Road) of that town, made an encroachment on the said road to the extent of 36 feet by $1\frac{1}{2}$ feet and the union maistry, whose business it is to report to the authorities all cases of encroachment, has maintained silence in the matter. The correspondent says that if this rumour be true it behoves the authorities concerned to deal severely with both the persons for their having violated their duty as public servants.

A case of encroachment not reported.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 17th, 1896.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th October, complains that the union of Kadaikanal does not attend to the roads and lighting of the town. It behoves Government to convert it into a major union or a municipality.

Advisability of making Kodaikanal a major union or a municipality.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 20th, 1896.

17. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 26th October, learns that the Government of India and that of Mysore cannot come to an agreement with regard to the supply of water to the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore from the Hesserghatta tank, as the Mysore Government does not like to give to the station more than the quantity of water they can spare after meeting fully the wants of the city, while the India Government insists upon getting half the quantity in the tank. The editor, therefore, says that it would be the best thing for the Civil and Military Station to have a water-supply of its own.

The Bangalore water-supply.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 26th, 1896.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1896.

Insanitary condition of a public lane in the Tellicherry municipality.

18. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 25th October, draws the attention of the chairman of the Tellicherry municipality to the very insanitary condition of the lane running from east to west by the side of the Syedar mosque at Thalai owing to the accumulation of filth and urine and hopes that the Mappilas coming to worship in the mosque will be forbidden to pass urine there any more.

Referring to the same subject correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th October, says that, owing to the filthy condition of the above lane, those who had to go along it used to pass through the compound of the mosque which the mosque authorities have now prohibited. A petition to the municipality has not as yet been attended to. The correspondent thinks that the grievance may be remedied by converting the said lane into a road as suggested by Mr. Churia Canaran, a deceased Deputy Collector and once the vice-president of the Tellicherry municipality.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 28th, 1896.

A comment on the administration report of the Tellicherry municipality for the year 1895–96.

19. Commenting on the administration report of the Tellicherry municipality for the year 1895–96, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th October, hopes that the attendance during meetings will in future be more satisfactory and urges on the municipality the necessity of encouraging primary education. The report shows a clear profit of Rs. 239-7-8 this year on account of the Lower Secondary School at Thiruvangad which at least, says the editor, must be a sufficient inducement to the municipality to advance the cause of primary education.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

PARAYAN, Madras, Oct. 17th, 1896.

A suggestion regarding kaipathu lands.

20. The Parayan, of the 17th October, writes as follows regarding kaipathu lands :—Under the revenue regulations of the presidency if a ryot or holder of patta lands fails to pay the revenue kists due for the land, he is liable to be ejected and the land made over to another and the patta transferred in his name. In the district of Chingleput, Paraiyas, who are holders of lands, being ignorant of the rules of Government regarding payments of kist, &c., generally employ an agent to carry on business for them. In many instances the agents have stealthily transferred the pattas of the Paraiya holders to their own names, while, however, the lands have continued in possession of the real owners themselves. Civil suits brought for the recovery of lands on the strength of pattas have failed. It is time for Government to interfere and remove the anomaly of one man holding the patta and of another enjoying the land.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1896.

Evils of the joint patta system.

21. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd October, observes that the joint patta system now in vogue in the district of Tanjore, according to the new settlement, is productive of more evil than good for the following reasons:—

(1) It does not enable pattadars to know accurately what extent of lands they have interest in and what kist is due from them.

(2) It gives village officers free scope for embezzlement of revenue collections as they are in a position to collect from the several pattadars constituting a joint patta more than what is due for it and appropriate to themselves all excess collection.

(3) It enables village officers to annoy those pattadars who are not in good terms with them. It is to be hoped that for the convenience and good of the landed public Government would abolish the joint patta system and assign to each pattadar his extent of land and the assesment due on it.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 12th, 1896.

Oppression of the Malabar survey officers.

22. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 12th October, complains of the oppression and corruption of survey officers in Malabar. Survey expenses are recovered from parties by issuing a warrant against a number of persons. Neither the extent of the field to be surveyed nor the charge for each field is shown in detail, but only the total amount to be paid by each. The matter having been represented to the Governor in the address presented by the landlords of Cannanore, His Excellency said, in reply, that the grievance would be remedied as far as possible. The article says that it is possible to remedy it wholly and hopes that Government will take up the matter seriously into consideration.

(h) Railways.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd October, advises the South Indian Railway authorities to construct a latrine near the booking office of the Villupuram railway station and to cover the floor extending from the said office to the overbridge with stones for the convenience of passengers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1896.

Advisability of constructing a latrine near the booking office of the Villupuram railway station.

24. The Andhraprakasika, of the 24th October, observes, in connection with the proposed establishment of a refreshment room for natives at the Arkónam station, that the Madras Railway authorities would do much better to provide closets in third-class carriages as is done by the G.I.P. and other railway companies.

25. A correspondant to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th October, observes that a bridge called Melappalam, at Tiruvarur, is too narrow for carts to pass, and they frequently capsize in consequence. The correspondent requests the Local Board to widen the bridge.

26. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 29th October, makes the following suggestions to prevent the spread of drunkenness among the people :—

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Oct. 29th, 1896.

Measures to be taken to prevent drunkenness among people.

(1) The people must be made to understand clearly that it is not the intention of Government to increase drinking, because the people are labouring under the notion that as Government is creating facilities for the consumption of liquor it wants them to drink and thus contribute to the increase of revenue.

(2) No new liquor shops should be allowed to be opened in a street unless the inhabitants of that street desire the Government to do so.

(3) The Government must raise the price of liquor to the highest point possible.

(4) If two-thirds of the inhabitants of a street desire that a shop already existing in their street should be closed, it should be closed by the Government immediately.

(5) The cultivation of tapping trees on an increased scale must be discouraged as much as possible.

(k) General.

27. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 3rd October, regrets to report that the Collector and the Sub-Collector of Malabar struck out certain portions in the addresses presented by the people of Malabar to His Excellency the Governor even though His Excellency had forbidden them to interfere with them. The paper suggests the desirability of passing a definite rule that Collectors should not look into the addresses which the people might choose to present to the Governor.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Oct. 3rd, 1896.

A suggestion to Government regarding the presentation of addresses to His Excellency the Governor.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 9th October, observes that European soldiers often maltreat natives, causing personally injury to them and violating the chastity of the women. The British tribunals seldom punish the offenders. The correspondent, as a remedial measure, suggests to the authorities the desirability of making the soldiers wear their regimental numbers on their helmets, for easy identification, of inquiring departmentally into the charges preferred against them and of relegating them, when proved guilty, to any place in the presidency that is not inhabited by natives.

A request to the postal authorities for a runner for the post office at Milattur.

29. A correspondent to the same paper requests the postal authorities to help the post office at Milattur in Tanjore district with the services of a runner for carrying mails to the railway station of Thittai. He says that, at present, there is in this post office only one mail peon, who is not only required to carry mails every day to the said railway station but has also to deliver letters to the people, which causes considerable delay in the delivery of letters.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negoptam, Oct. 12th, 1896.

A remark on Government regarding snakes and wild beast.

30. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 12th October, reports that during the year 1895 nearly 22,086 persons died from snake-bite and nearly 3,104 were killed by wild beasts, and presumes therefrom that Government does not take steps for the destruction of poisonous and dangerous animals.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 13th, 1896.

The malpractices of Christian missionaries.

31. The Swadesamitran, of the 13th October, reports the case of a Bible woman employed to teach a Hindu young woman at Saidapet needle-work enticing her to leave her home with her infant and her jewels at an hour when her husband and her mother-in-law were absent from home and to accompany her to various places. The object of the Bible woman seems to have been the conversion of the Hindu woman to Christianity. The husband brought against the wife and the Bible woman charges of theft and of leaving, and being carried away from, home for purpose of adultery. The magistrate, who tried the case, has, the paper says, commented strongly on the conduct of the Bible woman and the way in which she has perjured herself in giving evidence. The paper adds that there is no provision of law to prevent such misconduct on the part of the agents employed by Christian missionaries and that on the other hand they are helped by the influence and the wealth of the mission agencies and by the support of a Christian Government. The paper advises its Hindu countrymen to strengthen themselves with money, &c., to put down the mischief of the missionaries.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 14th, 1896.

A complaint against the Collector of Chingleput.

32. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 14th October, speaking of the importance of the village of Mamur as yielding a beriz of Rs. 4,500 per annum, says that the village possesses a public pasturage measuring about 200 acres, and that the cattle of the ryots, which are about 2,000 in number, derive their fodder exclusively therefrom. The correspondent regrets to report that the Collector of Chingleput, on the recommendation of the Sub-Collector, and without listening to the reasonable explanations of the ryots, darkhasted the said pasturage in favour of a European missionary. The paper adds that the ryots proposed to the Collector that they would even pay rent for using the pasturage; but the proposal was not attended to. The correspondent prays Government to inquire into the matter and to adopt measures for protecting the cattle in these days of famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 20th, 1896.

Expediency of adopting measures to dispel the ignorance of the masses.

33. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th October, learning from the Madras Times that the statue of Her Majesty in Bombay was found besmeared with tar, agrees with the Times that it must have been done by some foolish people out of wantonness. The paper remarks that Government is to blame for people committing such foolish acts as it keeps a large section of its subjects in ignorance. The paper says that it behoves Government not only to adopt measures for dispelling the ignorance of the masses, but also to patronize the native press, which greatly contributes to the enlightenment of the public.

Addresses to the Governor.

34. The Sasilekha, of the 23rd October, says that when the Governor visits a town, the people desire to set forth their grievances in the address which they present to His Excellency; but the Government officials of the place modify it so as to contain nothing unfavorable to them. It is therefore plain enough that the grievances of the people totally escape the Governor's notice. If His Excellency really wishes to ascertain the condition of the people, it is necessary that he should issue strict orders to the Collectors not to tamper with the addresses. If he does not do so, it is all the same, whether he visits the various districts or remains asleep in Madras.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1896.

The Financial Secretary and the reform in the Police department.

35. A correspondent to the Rajayogi, of the 26th October, writes thus (in English):—"The Secretary of State has sanctioned a new appointment, that of Financial Secretary to the Madras Government carrying salary of Rs. 2,500 per mensem, and thus created a comfortable berth for one of the heaven-born service. What necessity there is for creating such an appointment the people fail to understand. It was only the other day that the Madras Government have refused to sanction a paltry expenditure of 4 rupees per mensem for the purchase of butter-milk by the Narsapur Taluk Board.

"Again I hear that in place of the head-quarters inspector of police, attached to the office of the District Superintendent of Police, a manager with emoluments rising from Rs. 60 to Rs. 100 per mensem will be appointed. Taking all this into consideration, it seems to me that the policy of the Government is to reduce the number of the smaller fry and throw all the savings into the pockets of one European. On the one hand there is the financial pressure and the consequent pressure of additional taxation, on the other hand there are the periodical visitations of famine and the consequent destruction and desolation. Thus, trying to avoid Scylla, the poor Indians are knocked against Charybdis and between the two rocks many have been perishing. We cry loud but our sahibs snap their fingers at us."

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Oct 26th, 1896.

The way British justice is administered.

36. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 17th and 24th October, has an article which contains the following remarks:—The popular delusion in regard to the way that British justice is administered is that an accused person is placed on his trial, the evidence carefully sifted, the impeached person afforded every opportunity of rebutting it, and only, after these safeguards have been observed, is sentence delivered. This is a pleasant hallucination if we may judge by the case of Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. Watson. This case proves that the approved method of administering British justice is to clandestinely receive grave aspersions, to leave the victim of these in ignorance of the calumnies uttered against him, to accept the calumnies as proven without inquiry and to deal out drastic punishment without affording an opportunity to the unfortunate person who has been secretly arraigned to defend himself and rebut the charges of which he has been found guilty without a hearing or trial. Nay, more, when the victim of these scandalous proceedings discovers the charges on which he has been secretly found guilty and disproves them, the head of the English Government issues orders that the victim is to remain under punishment and that no notice is to be taken of his irrefragable vindication! Let all men understand that this is how English justice is dispensed. It is a splendid object lesson for our Indian fellow-subjects to whom we are always prating about the impartial justice of the English rule in contrast with the alleged despotic arbitrariness of Russian administration. Why, no Russian tribunal would be guilty of criminal oppression of this sort; it is only an English conservative Government that would cast to the winds legality, justice and decency and behave in this barbarous fashion. We are not writing allegorically. Most unfortunately we have

VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Oct. 17th and 24th, 1896.

chapter and verse for every item of the indictment against English justice which we have formulated above. Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. Watson was not a persona grata with certain officers in high places. We do not think we do the latter an injustice when we say they were more than willing to receive evil reports of Colonel Watson and they would not have wept had he been brought to grief. We imagine we hear the usual hypocritical ejaculations anent this expression of opinion, that officers in high places are incapable animus, &c. Are they indeed! Our experience is that officers in high places are considerably more vindictive and unscrupulous than officers in low places. They are so much accustomed to exercise authority that they resent opposition as a personal affront and they stick at nothing to silence the victim. Look at Lord George Hamilton, for instance, who is supposed to be the fountain head of justice (under the present administration) issuiug an order that the vindication of an innocent man should not be received or attended to! He did this in Colonel Watson's case, and, as a result, the Colonel labours and has been labouring for years under an iniquitously unjust punishment. Let us hear no more nauseous protestations regarding the incapacity of officials in high places to do wrong. Facts prove they have a decided talent in that direction, and it is to the facts and not the exalted officials that we should look. To resume the thread of our narrative: Certain officers in high places, we repeat, would not have been heart-broken had Colonel Watson been brought to grief and their ears were ever open to tales calculated to injure the reputation of that officer. The Colonel, however, did his duty so well that nothing tangible could be brought against him, until, in an evil hour, he suppressed a riot and then his persecutors arraigned the Colonel for doing his duty; but we are giving them more credit than is their due when we state that they "arraigned" the Colonel, for this is exactly what they did not do. Had they "arraigned" him and given him the benefit of a trial, he would have proved conclusively not only the blaselessness, but the iniquity of the charges against him. He would thus have scored a decided triumph and frustrated all efforts to injure him. There was only one way by which the Colonel could be brought to grief, and that was by throwing justice and legality to the winds, giving him no chance to defend himself, and punishing him without a hearing. In this eminently English, just, and gentlemanly procedure Lord Cross, Sir George Greaves and Lord George Hamilton took prominent parts. How proud we ought to be of these distinguished Englishmen! They are so little trammelled with conscientious scruples or a regard for the law which they are supposed to administer that they perpetrate an act which an English costermonger would have too much innate honesty to condescend to. It required not a little ingenuity to treat the suppression of a riot as a crime; but the gentlemen referred to were quite equal to the task. And this is how they evolved the pretext. In July 1890, at Malegaon, Nasik, during the festival of the "Baqr-id," a number of Muhammadan weavers, known as Momins, slaughtered a cow in a house environed by the habitations of high caste Hindus, and in the vicinity of a Hindu shrine of great sanctity. This was done in defiance of the inhibition of the magistrate and with the sinister object of provoking a riot with the Hindus. These Momins are truculent ruffians, intensely fanatical and with an evil reputation for their turbulent proclivities. The Hindus were not slow in responding to the challenge thus thrown out to them. They mustered in great numbers and both sides prepared for a free fight, and the most intense agitation and commotion reigned throughout the city. The civil and police authorities were thoroughly dismayed and cowed; they were quite unequal to coping with the emergency and appear to have completely lost their heads. The head of the local civil power was Mr. W. Doderet, C.S., and he with the chief constable rushed in a state of panic to Colonel Watson's bungalow; the chief constable was so unmanned that he was in tears! These officers represented to Colonel Watson that a most serious attack by the Momin mob was about to be made. Thereupon Colonel Watson wrote to the General Officer Commanding Bombay District suggesting that a party of European soldiers should be held ready at Deolalee to proceed to Malegaon on receipt of a telegram which would be sent should the emergency arise. This letter Colonel Watson showed to Mr. Doderet before despatching. The latter concurred in the wisdom of the suggestion and afterwards admitted in writing "Colonel Watson showed me his letter to the General; I told him I thought it a wise precaution." Having taken the precautionary measures referred to, Colonel Watson preserved order with his own men of the 1st Bombay Grenadiers, who had served with him in the Afghan war. At the same time, as Colonel Watson was the nearest first-class magistrate, the Momin who had slaughtered the cow in defiance of magisterial prohibition was put up before him for trial. Colonel Watson tried, convicted and punished the man notwithstanding that he was warned of a probable attack on his court by the mob and that they would attempt to rescue the prisoner during the reading of the judgment. These warnings were given by Mr. Doderet in the most agitated and panic-stricken manner. However, it became known that the Colonel had caused European troops to be held in readiness at Deolalee, and this knowledge of itself prevented the riot from breaking out, so that the Colonel's timely precaution bore fruit. Colonel Watson had commented in contemptuous terms to Lieutenant MacMunn on the agitated and panic-stricken behaviour of Mr. Doderet and the chief constable, remarking that no emergency could excuse such pusillanimity. Probably Mr. Doderet heard of this. However that may be, he appears to have found it necessary to save his own credit and he secretly affirmed that the Colonel had been in a state of "nervous panic," and in proof of this allegation he pointed out that the Colonel had recommended European troops to be held in readiness. This, it was alleged, proved that the Colonel had no trust in, or dependence on, his own troops. It will scarcely be believed that this secret aspersion of a discredited person, who had exhibited pusillanimity himself, was unreservedly accepted. For ten months Colonel Watson was left in ignorance of the fact that he had been secretly charged and found guilty without a trial. He was first removed from his appointment and then compulsorily retired. This compulsory retirement was the more ruinous as Colonel Watson was approaching the time when he would be entitled to Colonel's allowances. All these iniquities were capped by Lord George Hamilton directing that no notice should be taken of Lieutenant-Colonel Watson's vindication and that no answer or communication of any kind should be vouchsafed him. It is a sad tale of arbitrary injustice and wrong, of the ruin of a gallant officer at the end of his meritorious career, of his household being laid in desolation even as his fortune has been laid in ruins. And we feel it as a wound that all this iniquity has been perpetrated in the name of the English administration. Is it really vain to seek for justice from an English Government? We do not think so, and we shall return to this subject and afford the most exhaustive details in the hope that Englishmen will be true to their traditions and that justice will be done at last.

Manorama, Calicut, Oct. 12th, 1896.

Melcharth and Mappila outbreak.

37. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 12th October, criticises the statement made in some of the addresses presented to the Governor at Malabar that the practice of putting lands on melcharth is one of the causes of Mappila outbreaks, and remarks that it would be cruel if the Government should proceed on the basis of this statement to pull down the traditional rights exercised by landlords without carefully investigating the matter.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Oct. 21st, 1896.

Great nuisance caused in Malabar by gambling.

38. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st October, complains of the growing nuisance caused by gambling in Chernad in Ernad taluk. He says that the gamblers are all Mappilas of Calicut. The nuisance continues with impunity in up-country places and the gambling sheds are guarded by men armed with clubs. It is a pity that the matter does not receive the attention of the Government.

A paragraph in the same issue of the paper says that the thefts now being committed on houses and shops on the Choultry road in Calicut can be effectively put an end to by stopping the gambling carried on in a building north of the choultry by certain Mappila fishermen.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 25th, 1896.

False weights and measures in Malabar.

39. The Kerala Chandrika, of the 25th October, regrets to find that while the weights and measures in all other districts have been examined and sealed with the Government seal during the year 1895-96 the same thing was not done in Malabar and Nilgiris. False weights and measures are very common in the former of these two districts in petty shops and among some jennis. Some jenmis in Malabar use measures of specially large size to measure the paddy they receive from their tenants as rent while those they use in selling paddy are of quite a different size.

A warning against an apprehended Mappila outbreak.

40. The same paper remarks that if the fear that is expressed by certain newspapers of a Mappila outbreak in the near future be well founded the authorities should be on their guard during the next fasting season of the Mappilas which is to be in January.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 26th, 1896.

The really aggrieved class of tenants in Malabar.

41. A correspondent to the Malayalam Manorama, of the 26th October, referring to the grievance of tenants, says that the really aggrieved tenants are not the ordinary Kanakutiyans, but another class whom he calls Kovilagam Verumpattakkar. The ordinary kanam lessees are mere cultivators and as long as they duly pay to the jenmis the rent fixed it will be a loss to the jenmis to evict them. Not so in the case of the other class. They from the olden times enjoy various privileges and concessions which are now tampered with. They are the really aggrieved tenants.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 28th, 1896.

Mr. H. T. Ross inquiring into the grievances of tenants in Malabar.

42. A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th October, says that the editor of that journal had an interview with Mr. H. T. Ross who is now in Malabar to inquire into the grievances of the tenants. Mr. Ross is said to have remarked on the occasion that it is his intention to prepare the Tenancy Bill so as to leave no room for complaint either to the tenants or the jenmis and that therefore he would be glad to listen to all grievances from both parties. The editor says that he has been specially requested by Mr. Ross to publish the news and the object of his arrival in Malabar in order that people may come and represent their grievance to him and exhorts the people to render all possible assistance.

A new way of oppressing tenants in Malabar.

43. The same paper has the following:—"Since the recent visit of His Excellency the Governor to Malabar the jenmis of that district have found out a novel method of oppressing their tenants. They deceive them by giving out that the Governor has ordered that no value need, in future, be paid for improvements on lands.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Oct. 12th, 1896.

The alleged preparation of the Mappilas to create a disturbance.

44. Referring to the statement of the Malabar Spectator that the Mappilas are preparing to create a disturbance, that they are secretly supplied with gunpowder from Cochin and that they have collected a very large number of fire-arms for the purpose, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 12th October, asks if this alleged intrigue is similar to that of the Armenians who are protected by Mr. Gladstone.

Reporting the proceedings of the general meeting of the Muhammadans held in Madras for soliciting the British Government to prevent certain papers from using disrespectful language concerning the Sultan.

45. The same paper reports that a general meeting of the Muhammadans of Madras was held under the presidency of Qazi Maulvi Haji Ubaid-ulla Sahib on the 9th instant at the Madrasa-i Saidiah in the Big Mosque, Triplicane, for the purpose of concerting measures to respectfully solicit the British Government to prevent the use of disrespectful language by certain English papers against His Imperial Majesty the Sultan of Turkey; that the meeting was a crowded one and that the following resolutions were passed therein, viz.:—

(1) Proposed by Maulvi Haji Ghulam Rasul Sahib and seconded by Dr. Raisul Islam Khan Sahib that the feelings of the Muhammadans in general have been greatly wounded in consequence of certain English papers having used disrespectful language against His Imperial Majesty the Sultan of Turkey and the defender of the faith of Islam; therefore this meeting expresses its great regret and sorrow at the wanton action of such papers.

(2) Proposed by Haji Shirf-ud-daula Bahadur and seconded by Maulvi Zahid Husain Sahib that it should be respectfully solicited that the British Government should prevent these papers from writing in this way hereafter.

(3) Proposed by Hakim Muhammad Abd-ul Aziz Sahib and seconded by Haji Muhammad Abd-us-subhan Sahib that the just and equitable British Government graciously tolerates every religion; hence this meeting heartily thanks it for the same toleration.

(4) Proposed by Haji Muhammad Nasir-ud-din Khan Sahib and seconded by Hafiz Muhammad Abu Saiyid Sahib that the proceedings of this meeting together with the resolutions may be forwarded to the British Government.

IV.—Native States.

46. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st October, has the following:—In attempting to prevent their brethren from indulging in intoxicating liquor, the Syrian Christians of Cochin and Ernakulam and more recently all Syrian Christians generally prohibit the sale of toddy in shops and the tapping of cocoanut and palmyra trees. Syrian Christians found indulging in toddy are marched through the public streets with pots, &c., tied round their neck and fined by the church; afraid of excommunication by the church, the sufferers dare not offer any opposition.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Oct. 21st, 1896.

An unjust procedure of the Syrian Christians of Cochin, Ernakulam, &c.

47. A correspondent to the Kerala Chandrika, of the 25th October, says that recently while the Syrian Christians of Trichur were passing a mosque with music and drum on a festival day the Mappilas of the place prepared themselves for a skirmish when they were quelled by the police. The correspondent says it is high time to enforce the Mappila Act in Trichur also.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Oct. 25th 1896.

The Mappila Act to be enforced in Trichur.

48. A leader in the Kerala Mitram, of the 21st October, observes that the administration of Cochin under its retiring Diwan has been exceptionally good. He has never been known to be partial. The charge of filling up the service of the State with his kinsmen or even his castemen has not even been whispered against him. Some say that he is slow and not easily accessible to those who have to make complaints, but the editor dissents from this opinion and says that even taking these charges to be true the first of them is explained by his old age and the second is palliated by his readiness to mete out justice in every instance.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, Oct. 21st, 1896.

The retiring Diwan of Cochin.

49. The same paper says that the ruling of the Maharaja of Travancore declaring Mr. Kesava Pillai ineligible to be examiner in future is a great injustice, seeing that the offence alleged against him of setting an obscene paper at the Female Normal School examination is not really an offence inasmuch as all the questions were selected from the text-book prescribed.

The Travancore Female Normal School scandal.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

50. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th October, describing the severity of drought in the district of Cuddapah owing to the absence of rain and the distress experienced by the people in consequence, regrets to report that the local merchants, anticipating a famine in that district, store large quantities of grain and refuse to sell them to the people either wholesale or in retail, hoping to realise famine prices later on. The paper adds that the severity of the forest rules even at this season of drought makes fodder a clear commodity and the cattle are in consequence famished.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 16th, 1896.

Famine in Cuddapah.

51. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 16th October, observes that there has not been sufficient rainfall for the last six years in the sub-division of the Cuddapah district and that the condition of the "main division" during the present year is still more deplorable. The paddy crop is completely destroyed and the ragi crop very much damaged. Famine has fully made its appearance. Rice is selling at four measures a rupee and ragi at nine. Thefts are frequent. Paddy and ragi stocks have been looted by the poor and hungry in Cuddapah, Pulivendla and Jammalamadugu. Famine will, in the course of two or three months, be as disastrous as that of 1877. The people complain that the Government has imposed innumerable taxes and squeezed from them all they had. They are calling it the most sinful Government as it has deprived the cattle of fodder. The ryots are unable to feed their cattle and are compelled to think of abandoning them. The correspondent is at a loss to know what the Government will do when such a thing happens.

Famine in the Gódávari district.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1896.

Famine in Jammalamadugu.

53. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 23rd October, remarks that the suffering of the ryots and the poor people in Jammalamadugu, Cuddapah district, is indescribable. The sun is very severe; the crops have withered; prices of food-stuffs have risen; and rice, cholum and raggy are selling at 4, 9, and 11 measures a rupee. Grain stores are looted, and the police are sending thieves and robbers, who have become too common, to prison. He believes that the Government will have to start relief works very soon. Remarking that the condition of the cattle is very sad, he says they have neither grass nor hay and are fed on leaves, &c., and that the people, being unable to feed them, give them away to anybody that asks for them.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Kllore, Oct. 21st, 1896.

Famine in the Bellary district.

54. A correspondent to the Vibudharanjani, of the 21st October, states that the people of the Bellary district have given up all hopes of rainfall. People from other parts of the country are carrying away paddy stored in the district which would otherwise last for six months. He thinks that the real cause of famine in the district is none other than exportation. When white and yellow cholum are selling at 13 and 18 seers a rupee, how can, he asks, the poorer classes that subsist upon them get on? The people have already suffered severely from cholera. They are now afraid that the impending famine will be more disastrous than that of 1877. The correspondent believes that Government alone can save the people in the present crisis, and confidently hopes that it may issue orders for the prevention of any rise in the prices of food-grains.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1896.

"Grain riots."

55. The Andhraprakasika, of the 24th October, hears that rice was not obtainable even at famine prices in Tekkali, Ganjam district; that the poorer and lower classes began to riot on the 14th instant and looted four grain stores; that the police did not interfere though the mob was parading through the streets for four hours; and that at last the popular gentleman of the place, Mr. S. D. Perimbam, restored order in the town. The police were, it hears, roused to activity the next morning and commenced to arrest offendors. Further, the people are suffering from scarcity of water, and the ryots have taken to quarrelling over the small supply of water available and heads are being broken in consequence.

Famine in Ganjam.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Oct. 23rd, 1896.

An agricultural want.

57. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 19th October, speaking chiefly in reference to Mysore says:—It is allowed on all hands that the condition of the ryots is not what it ought to be. In too many cases they are miserably poor. The land does not produce much for the labour bestowed upon it and the sowcar comes in for a large share of what the ryot is able to obtain from his land. The Mysore Government has done well in establishing agricultural banks; but there is another way in which the authorities can render assistance to the ryot and that is by breeding good bullocks and selling them to the ryots for a reasonable price. The bullocks which the ryots now use are in miserable condition and will not do for deep ploughing. The Government would not lose by this, because it can sell the bullocks at cost price. If this suggestion were carried out we are certain it would be of the greatest benefit to the ryots at large.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Oct. 19th, 1896.

Condition of the times.

Some horrible results of the famine now prevailing in Northern India.

59. The Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th October states that some riots have recently been taking place in Northern India owing to the famine now prevailing there. The Banians who demanded high prices for rice were attacked by the people at Hubli and severely handled. Hearing that rice had been brought to the railway station to be imported to other famine-stricken places the people thronged to the station platform whence they had to be dispersed by the police. In Poona the people in a crowd went to the Collector's bungalow to complain of the high price demanded for rice. The Collector telling them that the matter would be considered they went back and an attempt to raise an outbreak was defeated by the prompt interference of the police.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Oct. 28th, 1896.

Famine in Northern India.

60. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 19th October, has a very long article on the dreadful famine which is now prevailing in Northern India, in which it says that, in consequence of the above famine and apprehended withering of the Rabi crops, prices have enormously risen, the effect of which has been extended to Bangalore city, where wheat which was selling at 10 or 11 seers now sells at

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Oct. 19th, 1896.

7 seers per rupee. People being unable to bear starvation are taking to commit offences with a view to be sent to jail where they hope to get meals twice a day. It is understood that grain-sellers have large quantities of grain kept in store from avaricious motives. It therefore behoves the Government of India, which is responsible for the safety of the life and property of its subjects to evince extraordinary zeal, to spend ungrudgingly as much money as is required at this time of scarcity, to appoint trustworthy European officers in the famine-stricken districts to be engaged night and day in relieving the poor, to suspend the rules of free trade for a short time at least, to prescribe rates according to local circumstances, and to direct the merchants to sell grain accordingly, to make arrangements for the purchase of large quantities of grain to be despatched to the affected districts and there sold at low rates, to provide labour for the poor and to grant them wages sufficient to maintain them, to open charitable institutions to be utilized by the old and infirm, attention being especially paid to see that they obtain their share of the charity, to prevent the exportation of grain from India, and to keep an ever-watchful eye over their subordinates so that they may not fraudulently sell the grain intended for the famine-stricken people and thus collect large sums of money as was the case during the last famine.

The Qasim, also requests the Lord Mayor of London to convene a meeting of rich people, and, after explaining to them the present condition of the people of India, collect subscriptions for their relief.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Lokopakari, Madras, Oct. 14th, 1896.

A wish that rajas and zamindars should join the congress movement.

61. The Lokopakari, of the 14th October, wishes that native rajas, zamindars and such other millionaires should join the congress movement, and believes that by their co-operation Government will be induced to consider the concessions prayed for by the congress for the well-being of the community. The paper regrets that enlightened rajas, such as Raja Suriahkantha and Maharaja Joginthranath, are indifferent towards the congress movement.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Oct. 22nd, 1896.

Mappilas of Malabar preparing for another rising.

62. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 22nd October, learns that the Mappilas of Malabar are bringing home gunpowder concealed in kerosine oil tins from Cochin and are mustering about 500 men to commit a riot again. It is hoped that the authorities will take timely warning and prevent any rising.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Oct. 29th, 1896.

An appeal to Government for help from a member of the family of king Theebaw.

63. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 29th October, says that a member of the family of Theebaw who had fled to Calcutta to escape from the oppression of Theebaw and was under the protection of the English Government, by name Nyangyen, having died lately, his sons and daughters have represented to Government that they are starving and are sorely in need of help. The paper hopes that their prayer will be listened to.

The desirability of the use of vernacular languages in Telegraph offices.

64. The same paper says that in Egypt, Turkey, Persia and other countries telegraphic messages are written in the vernacular languages, the papers, therefore, thinks that in India also the introduction of the vernaculars in telegraphy would have the effect of considerably increasing the revenue of the department.

Manorama, Calicut, Oct. 12th, 1896.

The appointment of marriage registrars under the Malabar Marriage Act.

65. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 12th October, understands that the Collector of Malabar has been asked by Government to report whether there is any objection to appointing sub-registrars as marriage registrars under the Malabar Marriage Act, and hopes that Christians, Muhammadans and members of caste inferior to the Nayars will not be appointed to register the marriage of Nayars.

66. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 26th October, observes that the charge brought by certain persons against the Indian National Congress that while it always requires the Government to spend more money for the people it raises a cry of increased taxation all over the land without ever making any suggestion as to how to curtail public expenditure is altogether unfounded. As a proof of this the editor refers to the suggestions proposed to be placed before the next National Congress by a member of the congress committee at Benares. A printed summary of these, which has been received by the editor, is given for the information of the people.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Oct. 26th, 1896.

The next Indian National Congress.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Andhraprakasika, of the 31st October, referring to the memorial presented to the Government of India by the Indians in Natal, suggests two measures to be adopted by the said Government—first, that emigration should be prohibited; secondly, that the Government of India should press upon the Home Government the necessity of placing the Indian and European subjects of Her Majesty's dominions and of allied territories on a footing of perfect equality in the matter of trade and enjoyment of privileges.

Grievances of the Indians in Natal.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1896.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 9th November, says that the Czar's visit to England has been productive of some good. He has been made to understand that, in desiring to interfere in Turkish affairs, England has no interested motives, and it is now believed that Russia will step in and take possession of the greater part of the Turkish dominions. In this case the gain to India would be considerable. If England allowed Russia to take what she liked in Turkey, an agreement might be arrived at with regard to the North-west frontier of this land. If we could be assured that the Russians would not come to India, there would not be any need to spend money in fortifying the frontiers.

The future of Turkey.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Nov. 9th, 1896.

3. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 7th November, says that although the Sultan of Turkey does not care for the threats of England and other powers and knows that such threats cannot be carried out owing to the jealousy that exists among them, he is yet very much in awe of a party of reform in his own dominions, who call themselves "young Turkey," the major portion of whom consists of men of the learned professions, such as barristers, doctors, priests and politicians. The Sultan is in mortal dread of this party who are circulating placards denouncing death to the Sultan on the score that it is lawful for Muhammadans to put to death a caliph systematically guilty of tyranny in contravention of the law of Islam.

The Sultan's contumacy.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Nov. 7th, 1896.

4. The Sudarshana, for October, says that the Sultan of Turkey has addressed letters to the Amir of Afghanistan and the Shah of Persia inviting them to join in alliance with him. It seems that the Muhammadan potentates will all join together and resist the aggressions of the European powers. It has also become known that China and Japan have joined in a secret treaty.

Union of Muhammadan potentates.

Sudarshana, Udipi, Oct. 1896.

5. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 5th November, says that the Amir of Afghanistan issued an order that one-seventh of the adult males in every village in his dominions should join the army and that the expenses of maintaining them should be met by the inhabitants of each village; but the people agreed to this on the condition that the Amir should remit taxes on the land not cultivated in the villages. The Amir having refused to accede to this condition, none of the inhabitants have joined the army as ordered.

Attempt at conscription in Afghanistan.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Nov. 5th, 1896.

6. Referring to a lecture delivered by Mr. Gandhi, Barrister-at-law, at the Pachaiyappa's Hall on the suffering of Indians in South Africa, the Kerala Patrika, of the 31st October, remarks that the conduct of the Sultan towards the Armenians is not to be wondered at when compared with the cruelty that the poor Indians are subjected to by Europeans who are ever ready to preach sympathy and fellow-feeling.

The suffering of Indians in South Africa.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Oct. 31st, 1896.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 2nd, 1896.

The Malayalam Manorama, of the 2nd November, while giving emphatical utterance to the same opinion and bringing out the similarity of the situation of Armenians in Turkey and of Indians in South Africa, expresses the hope that the grievance will ere long be remedied as the cause of the suffering Indians has been taken up by the English Press.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1896.

Robbers at Menasi in Salem district.

7. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 31st October, reports that the inhabitants of Menasi in Salam district are harassed by robbers during night and sometimes even in broad day-light, and that when cases of theft are brought to the notice of the village authorities, they simply make some stir and bring the policemen to the village, but make no real exertion to trace out the culprits.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 7th, 1896.

The last police administration report.

8. Commenting on the last police administration report of the Madras Presidency, the Kerala Patrika, of the 7th November, remarks that the system of Mr. Fawcett of transferring constables who have been without any black mark for three consecutive years to their native place is injurious for obvious reasons. As to the practice of magistrates transferring cases to the police for obtaining evidence, the article says it should be discontinued, or else magistrates who transfer the cases must specify the points on which the police have to gather evidence.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1896.

The Chiyanur police station not to be removed to Chalasheri.

9. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 9th November, writes protesting against the proposal to transfer the Chiyanur police station to Chalasheri bazaar in Kappur amsam, Ponnani taluk. The station is now located in Othelur amsam, which is equi-distant from Pallikkara, Allancode, Kothachira and Kappur amsam and the convenience of the people and the police is thus assured; but if the station be removed to Chalasheri, which is nearly 8 miles away from each of the above amsams, the result will be quite the reverse. Perhaps the removal has been proposed for the convenience of Europeans who come and go on bicycles and for no other reason. However it will be a great boon if it is decided that the station shall not be removed till the public opinion is ascertained by an inquiry.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Nov. 9th, 1896.

The alleged mismanagement of the police.

10. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 9th November, mentions that on the 4th November the attention of the police was directed to an offensive odour proceeding from a house in Washermanpetta, whereupon they entered the house and seeing that blood was coming out of a room which was locked, through a small hole, they broke the lock and got into the room where they found a decapitated corpse in an advanced stage of decomposition. The Deputy Commissioner and the District Surgeon ordered the body to be at once removed and burnt after holding an inquiry on the spot.

Referring to the above the Shams sarcastically remarks that such irregularities are due to the excellent management of the police.

(b) Courts.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1896.

District and private presses.

11. The Andhraprakasika, of the 31st October, states that the printing work of the Madras High Court is solely entrusted to the Scottish press, which, it seems, submits bills to the value of about Rs. 5,000 or 6,000 every month. It hears that the parties are charged As. 14 a page of foolscap size, and that this is the rate even when the page contains only a few lines of printing matter. If this be true, the rates are very unjust. The High Court would do well, it says, to invite tenders instead of entrusting the work exclusively to the Scottish Press and instead of throwing additional burden on the parties; for it is confident that many other presses would willingly undertake to execute the work at cheaper and more reasonable rates. It is, in fact, surprised why the High Court has not adopted the said "tender" system, and says that it may even create a suspicion that the High Court has entered into a contract with the press (as it has had the sole privilege for about thirty years) for its perpetual employment, though it has heard to the contrary. It further complains that the Scottish Press does not even pay rent for the portion of the High Court buildings it occupies, and remarks that the late Deputy Registrar, Mr. Todhunter, has attempted to interfere, but that somehow the attempt seems to have been dropped. The Registrar, Mr. Cowie, should, it says, now provide work for other presses and thereby minimise the expenditure incurred by the litigant public.

A European criminal inadequately punished.

12. A correspondent to the Malayala Manorama, of the 31st October, referring to the fine of Rs. 50 imposed by the Bhagalpore Sessions Judge on a European named Lee for causing the death of a railway gatekeeper, remarks that the punishment was extremely inadequate as it generally is in the case of Europeans causing the death of natives. He also cites a few instances selected at random of the miscarriage of justice in other cases of the same kind.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kottayam, Oct. 31st, 1896.

Unjust dismissal of a suit.

13. The Kerala Patrika, of the 31st October, says that Mr. Munro, the Sub-Judge of Calicut, lately dismissed a case owing to the late attendance at court of Mr. Gover, Barrister-at-law, who was to plead in it, and refused permission to re-instate the case on the file. Section 103 of the Civil Procedure Code on which Mr. Munro seems to have based his procedure does not warrant such an extreme step if late attendance has been due to inevitable causes. Mr. Munro's procedure was certainly an abuse of the section quoted and, says the editor, it is to be hoped that the High Court and Government will either appoint such Judges only as will use wisely their discretion in the application of law or modify the said section so as to occasion no injury to innocent parties.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Oct. 31st, 1896.

A miscarriage of justice.

14. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 7th November, writes that the complaint before the Sub-Magistrate of Taliparamba, in connection with the cruel treatment of certain Cherumars of Peringam desam, Eramam amsam, in Ernad taluk, by some persons of higher castes, has been dismissed without fully examining or cross-examining the adikari who is the principal witness on the plaintiffs' side and without taking any evidence from the defendants. The correspondent says that although a report of the circumstances of the case appeared in the Madras Mail as soon as it took place, yet matters were investigated and the case brought before the magistrate very late. He hopes, however, that as the Sub-Collector has called for the records of the case, justice will be done in the matter and the grievance of the Cherumars redressed.

(d) Education.

Desirability of retaining the Training School for Mistresses at Coimbatore.

15. The Kalanidhi, of the 1st November, regrets to learn that the Inspectress of Girls' Schools has submitted a report to the Director of Public Instruction recommending that the Training School for Mistresses at Coimbatore may be transferred to Salem, or to any other place, as several of the Brahman girls have left that institution and joined another rival school opened in that place. The paper doubts the success of the new girls' school and hopes that the Inspectress as well as the Director will reconsider the matter and allow the institution in question to remain as it is. In regard to the rival school, the paper says that it was opened in view to give the girls a chance of getting instruction in Telugu and music and not for any other reason.

(e) Local and Municipal.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1896.

Advisability of abolishing the municipality for the town of Chingleput.

17. A correspondent to the Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th October, writes as follows:—On the suggestion of Dr. King Government abolished the major union and opened in its place a municipality for the town of Chingleput. To all the numerous memorials presented by the people, describing the hardship which the opening of a municipality might entail on them, Government replied that the resolution for opening a municipality for the town of Chingleput had been made during the time of the previous Governor and that it was of opinion that the arguments adduced by the memorialists were not strong enough against the establishment of a municipality. The Collector and the Sub-Collector of the district—officers fully acquainted with the real state of things—reported that the opening of a municipality for the town would be inadvisable; but Government, without giving their reports due consideration, believed, nay, even accepted, Dr. King's statement—a person who stayed in the district only for two days—"that the town has grown more wealthy, that the sanitation has considerably improved and that the opening of a municipality is therefore desirable." The town contains 10,000 inhabitants, of whom nearly three-quarters are living from hand-to-mouth; how could the town have grown wealthy while the condition of the people has been poor? Dr. King simply passes a sweeping remark that the sanitation is far improved without assigning satisfactory reasons for his statement. The town being hilly on all sides is sadly wanting in water-supply. The sanitation of the streets is in no way improved. There are only 45 lamp posts for the town, which are altogether insufficient. Amidst these glaring facts it is a matter for surprise how the opinion of Dr. King, which does not appear to have been based on a full understanding of the real state of things, commended itself to Government. It is hoped that Government will soon abolish this municipality as it will subject the people of Chingleput to great hardship and inconvenience.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1896.

Evils of enhancement of assessment by the Madras municipality.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras Oct. 31st, 1896.

Desirability of appointing sub-committees for the preparation of Local Fund budget estimates in every district.

19. The Lokopakari, of the 31st October, says that the system adopted by the President of the District Board of Madura of appointing a sub-committee consisting of members chosen from the various taluks boards to prepare the Local Fund budget, is found to work satisfactorily and that the same may be adopted with benefit in other districts.

20. A correspondent to the Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st November, says:— Government seems to have resolved on converting Chingleput into a municipality evidently duped by the figures presented by the late census which are erroneous. According to the late census 1,718 merchants are said to live in Chingleput, which is an exaggeration. The officers engaged in the late census must have counted as merchants every member of a house depending on the principal man who carried on merchandise and included under the head "merchants" brokers, gumastahs and a number of cooly-men. The fact that the various public offices, such as those of the District Collector, Police Superintendent, District Registrar, Forest Officer and Engineer are not located in Chingleput, but in Saidapet, St. Thomas' Mount, Madras and elsewhere, clearly shows that Chingleput is not a healthy and convenient place to live in. As Chingleput is near Madras commerce does not thrive there. It is surprising to observe that Government, which has hitherto been saying that Chingleput is a small and unhealthy town, should now resolve on converting it into a municipality. As the poor inhabitants of the place will desert that town and settle themselves elsewhere unable to bear municipal taxation, Government will undoubtedly repent for its act. It is hoped that Government will be pleased to pay due attention to the various petitions submitted to it protesting against the introduction of a municipality into Chingleput.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 1st, 1896.

The inadvisability of converting Chingleput into a municipality.

21. The Vijayathvajam, of the 1st November, does not like that the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruppattúr should be nominated as chairman of the union that is newly organised at Kandanur, for the reason that he is already a chairman of the Karaikudi union and that he has enough of revenue and magisterial work to attend to. The paper says that a correspondent to the Madura Mail also objects to the proposed nomination.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Devakotta, Nov. 1st, 1896.

Objections raised to the Sub-Magistrate of Tiruppattur being nominated as chairman of the Kandanur union.

22. The Parayan, of the 7th November, complains that the municipal lights in the city of Madras hardly shed good light and the people very often sustain injuries and sometimes meet with serious accidents in consequence. The paper thinks that, if the President inspects the town at night, even as he does in the mornings, the lighting of the town would be more satisfactory.

PARAYAN, Madras, Nov. 7th, 1896.

A suggestion to the Madras municipality.

23. Reviewing the administration of the Local Funds in the Gódávari district during the year 1895–96, the Rajayogi, of the 9th November, writes thus (in English):— "There has been a very objectionable practice obtaining in the district of spending large sums of money towards maintaining temporary establishment out of maintenance grant for roads. It was Diwan Bahadur S. V. Ramadoss Nayudu that brought this wretched practice to light and ever since no real action seems to have been taken to knock it on the head. The Local Fund Public Works Department in the Gódávari district could very easily show a smaller percentage of expenditure on establishment than in the other districts in the presidency and thus present a coloured and varnished appearance to the actual state of things. We shall watch and observe how far the pungent remarks of the president in his administration report touching this question will be carried into effect. Mr. P. H. Brown has been too long in the district to be of any use to it. We require a young, energetic officer with a set of duly qualified subordinates to expect any proper return for the money spent by the Local Fund Board. We hope the re-organization scheme, if sanctioned, will bring about a thorough reform in the administration of the Local Fund Public Works Department.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Nov. 9th, 1896.

Administration of the Local Funds in the Gódávari district during the year 1895–96.

"The Local Fund Educational Department is controlled by two agencies, the Presidents of the District and Taluk Boards who are invested with powers of management, and the Government educational officers who examine the work of the teachers and advise the Presidents of Local Boards. There is often very great friction between the two controlling agencies, and the consequence is that the poor teachers suffer. The way in which Mr. Ch. Venkatachalam Pantulu managed this branch of the Local Fund Department when he was President of the Taluk Board, Narsapur, was most notorious and no teacher was safe in his place for a number of days. Unless this divided authority is put an end to no real improvement can be expected.

"We are told that a sub-committee has been formed 'to inquire into the working of the present educational arrangements in this district and suggest measures for improvement,' but as far as our information goes, most of the members that constitute this sub-committee are such perfect strangers to Primary and Lower Secondary education to which the attention of Local Boards is almost exclusively confined, that we expect no good from the formation of this sub-committee."

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 2nd, 1896.

Registration of jenmam titles.

24. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 2nd November, approves of the recommendations made by the Collector of Malabar to the Board in the matter of registering jenmam titles. The Special Deputy Collectors have come to the unanimous conclusion that the present adangal register is entirely unreliable and that land-owners cannot possibly apply for registration of their jenmam titles unless they are supplied with the sub-division number and plan of their property. It is to be regretted that this fact was not brought to the notice of the Government ere this; while Mr. Pinhey was in charge of the Collectorship the same point was brought to his notice, but was overlooked by him, nor did he take any notice of the mistake when he found it was due to his oversight; but Mr. Dance is unlike Mr. Pinhey and should be congratulated for boldly facing the situation.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 10th, 1896.

Desirability of stopping the evening mail train of the South Indian Railway at Singaperumálkóil station also.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th November, observes that the evening mail train of the South Indian Railway, which leaves Madras beach at about 5 P.M., halts at all other stations than Singaperumálkóil,—a place noted for the shrine situated therein which is frequently visited by devotees in large numbers. The correspondent says that this arrangement puts the people of that place to great disadvantage and wishes the railway authorities to arrange for the train in question to halt at that station also.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Nov. 9th, 1896.

East Coast railway.

26. The Rajayogi, of the 9th November, writes thus (in English):—"We invite the attention of the Traffic Superintendent to the fact that the number of carriages attached to the night trains are too insufficient to accommodate the passengers. In fact, about twenty-five men are being loaded in one compartment of a third-class carriage which ought to contain only ten. Mr. Pope, we hope, will soon make arrangements for greater accommodation."

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Nov. 7th, 1896.

The Arsikere-Mangalore railway.

27. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 7th November, says that the Agent of the Southern Mahratta Railway Company has declared that he never was against the construction of a railway from Arsikere to Mangalore, that such a line is highly desirable, and that his company would be prepared to work it when constructed.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 30th, 1896.

A request to the Public Works authorities regarding a certain channel in Villuppuram.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 30th October, observes that the three tanks in the town of Villuppuram, which form the chief source of irrigation to the fields adjoining the place, draw their supply of water from the river Pennar by a feeder channel which, however, passing through seven villages and over a distance of ten miles, brings in such a scanty supply, that the lands of Villuppuram yield but a poor harvest. The correspondent is of opinion that if the feeder channel in question were brought from the tunnel on the Perumpakkam road and at the place where the road leading to Nannadu diverges, directly along the side of the said road, it would prove an effective source of water-supply to the tanks. The correspondent assures the authorities that the people are prepared to share a portion of the cost of executing the work herein suggested.

29. The Lokopakari, of the 31st October, observes that it is the Public Works Department that drains Government money to an enormous extent more than any other department, and that the officers of this department do not scruple to take bribes from contractors. It adds that the corruption of the officers of this department is not brought to light because of the great unanimity that exists among them, and that all of them, from top to bottom, have a share in the bribe obtained. It concludes by saying that it is highly desirable that the Revenue Department should be made to attend to the immediate wants of the ryots in respect of irrigation and move the Public Works Department to do the needful, for it is the revenue officers who ought to know the real grievances of the people from whom they collect the Sirkar revenue.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1896.

Remarks on the Public Works Department.

(k) General.

30. The Jananukulan, of the 24th October, disapproves of the system of "Dispensary committees" now constituted in the taluk of Tanjore for inquiring into and reporting upon any complaints against medical officers, for checking their bills for articles other than medicine, and for taking stock of medicines and furniture once a year, on the ground that it does not allow the medical officers that amount of independence which is indispensable for the efficient discharge of their onerous duties.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Oct. 24th, 1896.

Disapproval expressed against the dispensary committees instituted in the taluk of Tanjore.

31. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th October, makes the following suggestion to the postal authorities:—

First, for money orders not exceeding Rs. 5, the commission charge be one anna.

Second, that the postage fee for newspapers, packets, &c., weighing not more than 5 rupees be 3 pies, and that the same be not payable in advance.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Oct. 27th, 1896.

A suggestion to the postal authorities.

32. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st November, writes as follows:—

A Hindu youth in Bengal resorted to a Christian missionary with a view to embrace the Christian faith. The boy's father accused the missionary before a Joint Magistrate of having kidnapped the boy who had been in the custody of his lawful guardian. Mr. Kumaragirindara Narayana Dev, the Joint Magistrate, thereupon issued a warrant to have the lad brought after making the necessary search in the missionary's house. When the missionary reported the matter to the European Commissioner of the division, the latter instantly sent for the records of the case, censured the magistrate for his procedure, and transferred him to another place. Ultimately it was proved that the lad was a minor and that the procedure adopted by the Joint Magistrate was just and proper. This case affords sufficient testimony to show that European Civilians favour the Christian missionaries, both being of one caste and creed. While a native magistrate is thus censured by an European officer for a just and proper discharge of his duty. How can we expect others to administer justice?

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 1st, 1896.

A remark on the conduct of an European Commissioner in Bengal.

33. A correspondent to the Viveka Thivakaran, of the 1st November, reports that some two weeks ago a certain cart-driver, seeing that his bullocks would not move, and in view to seek the help of his fellow cart-drivers, who were in advance, ran to them for help on the road leading down to Méttupálayam and that a soldier who was coming in the opposite direction stabbed the cart-driver with his bayonet for no reason whatever and made him fall down. He says that the authorities took no prompt action to arrest the accused who was about to undertake a railway journey, but simply ordered a search after he had gone on in the train. He asks whether the authorities would be so very indifferent if the accused in this case had been a native. The correspondent alludes to the Guntakkal murder case, and, after pointing out how the prisoner in that case was let go scot-free, remarks that as long as such a state of things continues the mischief of soldiers would be endless and the sufferings of the poor natives would be beyond description.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Truchengód, Nov. 8th, 1896.

A complaint against the postal authorities at Tiruchengód.

34. The Viveka Thivakaran, of the 8th November, reports that the postal authorities at Tiruchengód delayed the delivery of a book-post for a period of twenty-three days, while the book-post was not miscarried and was lying all the time in the Post office, as might be seen from the date seal of the Post office in question. The paper further complains of the non-delivery of its numbers despatched to mofussil subscribers and remarks that such irregularity seriously threatens the existence of the paper itself and hopes that the authorities concerned will adopt remedial measures.

MANORAMA Calicut, Nov. 2nd, 1896.

Public satisfaction in Malabar towards His Excellency the Governor.

35. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 2nd November, expresses its gratification at finding the promises of His Excellency the Governor about opening new communications in the Walawanad and Ernad taluks and about sending Mr. Ross to inquire into the grievance of tenants so soon fulfilled and hopes that His Excellency will show equal promptitude in other matters also.

Writing about the contemplated visit of the Director of Public Instruction to Malabar to inquire into the present state of Mappila education the Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th November, expresses the same opinion about His Excellency.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 4th, 1896.

A claim of seniority unjustly overlooked.

36. In a leader the Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th November, gravely deprecates the practice of ignoring the just claims of competent men in the Government service in making higher appointments simply because they have not passed any high examination. While bringing no charge of any kind against the able and honest Mr. Ramachandrayyer, who has been appointed to act as Kóttayam tahsildar, the article observes that the claims of equally able and honest sub-magistrates on a salary of Rs. 120 per month have been altogether overlooked. Experienced officers, who are only Matriculates, are often made munsifs by the High Court in preference to Graduates of Law simply because it is cruel to overlook the claim of seniority. Why then should the same good principle not be followed in the appointment of tahsildars also?

A request to postal authorites.

37. A correspondent to the same paper, writing about the promise of the postal inspector to make the necessary arrangements for clearing the letter post at Kellore daily and to open money order and parcel departments in the branch post office at Panapuram in Manantoddy, solicits an early fulfilment of these promises and requests the postal superintendent to remove the latter office from the locality where it now is to some other convenient place.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1896.

Iniquities of village accountants in Palghat taluk.

38. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 9th November, complains of the iniquities practised by the amsam menons (village accountants) in Palghat taluk in assessing income tax. If these menons bear a grudge against any individual in their amsams they generally take revenge by reporting that that individual has an income above the taxable minimum and getting him assessed. As an instance the correspondent cites a case which occurred some three or four years ago and in which a Chetty who, when asked by a certain menon, refused to give him gratis two bundles of pappadam was, on the strength of a report made by that menon, assessed Rs. 10 as income tax and in consequence of his inability to pay that amount the house in which he was living was also sold though he appealed against the tax. Now some of the menons in the same taluk are alleged to levy blackmail by threatening others with similiar treatment. If the menons find that a particular individual has no income of any sort in British territory then they say that his income is derived from some source in the Cochin State. An amendment of the Act is suggested whereby if any person on whom income tax is imposed raises any objection to it an affidavit should be taken from him to the effect and a searching inquiry conducted in the matter and provisions should be made for punishing any assessee or assessing officer who should have given a false account.

Another curious story told by the correspondent in connection with the mode of imposing income tax by a certain village official of Chulamur amsam in the above taluk is this: In the Manorama, of the 28th September last, there appeared a correspondence regarding the irregularities committed by the above village official in assessing punja lands in that amsam. The official appears to have threatened with the imposition of income tax any person who should dare expose him. This official, suspecting a certain man to be the author of the above article, has imposed this year taxes on two persons of Pazhampalakod desam who do not from any sources derive an annual income of Rs. 500, the taxable minimum. The correspondent, while inviting the attention of the authorities to the above matter, requests them to adopt repressive measures regarding village officials who, by sending a false statement of the income of persons in their villages, oppress them and levy blackmail.

39. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th November, referring to the manner in which peons attached to the Calicut post office are over-worked, says that it is doubtful whether there is any class of Government servants who are more worked than these peons. They have no leisure either by day or by night. During the day they have to go round the suburbs of Calicut and deliver letters and as soon as that work is over they are required at the office to sort letters, &c., and almost every night they have also to watch in the offices. The article hopes that the authorities will adopt measures to give them a little leisure every day.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 11th, 1896.

Over-worked post office peons.

40. Referring to the sixtieth year of the reign of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 2nd November, congratulates Her Majesty on her long and beneficial reign over nearly every nook and corner of the world.

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Nov. 2nd, 1896.

Congratulating Her Majesty the Queen-Empress on the sixtieth year of her reign.

41. The same paper says, on the authority of a correspondent of the Times, that telegrams are generally despatched from the Telegraph offices in Egypt, Turkey and Persia in Arabic, Turkish and Persian languages. This is not the case with the Indian Telegraph offices, where intending despatchers have to translate telegraphic messages before transmission, which, after reaching their respective destinations, have to be re-rendered for the benefit of the addressees who do not know English, which causes great inconvenience. It is understood that the British Government gets £15,000 annually by means of Arabic telegrams alone in Egypt. The population of India being thirty times greater than that of Egypt, the introduction of the system in the Indian Telegraph offices will enable people of every caste and creed, who do not know English, to despatch telegraphic messages in their own languages and will financially benefit Government.

Suggesting to introduce in the Indian Telegraph offices the system of despatching telegrams in the oriental languages.

The Shams, in concurring in the above opinion, remarks that the introduction of the system into India will surely prove advantageous to Government.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Oct. 26th, 1896.

Transfer of the Commissary-General's office from Bangalore to Ootacamund.

42. Regarding the transfer of Commissary-General's office from Bangalore to Ootacamund, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 26th October, states that the constant transfers of public offices from one place to another subject their staffs as well as the State to much inconvenience and loss, and remarks that the officers of the present day care very little about their legitimate duties and are generally disposed towards games and luxuries; hence they prefer Bangalore or the Nilgiris, where they can conveniently gratify their desires to the utmost.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore. Nov. 5th, 1896.

Bubonic plague.

43. Referring to the bubonic plague now raging in Bombay, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 5th November, says that it is undertsood that a rumour is prevalent to the effect that some Government servants extort money from the people by intimidation and permit patients attacked by the plague to remain at their respective residences. It is also said that a misunderstanding prevails among the inhabitants of Bombay that the police compulsorily take all sick people suffering from other diseases to the bubonic hospital, that poisonous medicines are administered to them, that before they are quite dead their bodies are dissected, that, in consequence of such a misunderstanding, thousands of people leave Bombay for other places, and the labourers, who do not now like to come out of their houses, have attacked the hospital. The Qasim, referring to the above rumours, says that, unless a few leaders of every community are selected and are charged with the duty of endeavouring to pacify the people by all possible means, it is apprehended that serious results will ensue.

III.—Legislation.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Oct. 27th, 1896.

Expediency of amending the Act relating to the Court of Small Causes.

44. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th October, makes the following suggestion:—The power of revision in the case of small cause judgments, which now rests exclusively with the High Court, be transferred to District Courts.

Manorama, Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1896.

Malabar tenants to be given fixity of tenure.

45. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 9th November, publishes the continuation of a correspondence which appeared in a previous issue of that paper. In the former article it was strongly urged, both in the interest of landlords and tenants, that fixity of tenure should be given to kanamdars and also to persons who have taken lands on lease direct from kovilagams and in the present letter it is stated that the Nambudri lands, which are either held by the landlords or belong to the temples, are those that were formerly made over for a nominal sum by the Sudra tenants under the superstitious belief entertained by them that the Sudras were not entitled to hold jenmam lands. These lands were then leased out to the tenants on kanam tenure, the nominal price given therefor being converted into kanam amount. Under mutual understanding between the Brahman landlords and Sudra tenants a rent was fixed for such lands and from this rent a nominal interest on the kanam amount was deducted and the balance was agreed to be paid to the landlord by the tenant; and the rent thus received by the landlords without any cost to them was the share of the Government of those days. Such being the case how far is it just to give the landlords power to enhance such rents and evict the tenants. The landlords fear that if fixity of tenure is given to kanamdars they will not be able to exact money from the kanamdars or increase the rent as they now do and this is the very reason why the landlords object to fixity of tenure being given to kanamdars. The correspondent, after dilating upon the subject at some length, says that it is incumbent upon Government to pass a law for the protection of the poor and oppressed tenants.

IV.—Native States.

46. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 31st October, reports that the number of magistrates in the district of Kolar is inadequate to inquire into and dispose of the criminal cases of that place and that it is necessary to appoint more magistrates.

Lokopakari, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1896.

Want of sufficient number of magistrates in the district of Kolar.

47. Referring to the appointment of Mr. Rajagopal Chari as Diwan of Cochin, a correspondent to the Nazrani Dipika, of the 30th October, observes that while there are no fewer than half a dozen men in Cochin itself competent to hold the office it was quite unnecessary and unjust to bring down a foreigner to fill the vacant place.

Nazrani Dipika, Mannanam, Oct. 30th, 1896.

The new Diwan of Cochin.

Referring to the above the same opinion is expressed by a correspondent to the Kerala Patrika of the 7th November.

48. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 11th November, referring to the reply given by the Travancore Sirkar to the memorial submitted by the Thiyas of that State regarding their non-admission to public service, says that the reply cannot but cause great sorrow to the memorialists. On a perusal of the reply it is to be presumed that the diwan had not the least intention of doing anything for the memorialists and that he had thought only of giving some reply or other to this grave and important matter which is one of the many indictments made against the Sirkar in the public press. The article, criticising the reply at some length, concludes with the remark that it is only by the interference of the British Government that justice will be done in the matter of this legitimate aspiration of that class.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Nov. 11th, 1896.

Disabilities of Travancore Thiyas.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

49. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th November, speaking of the severity of famine in the Panjab, Bengal, Burma and of the grain riot at Sholapur, in Bombay, where grain is sold at 3½ seers per rupee, surmises that, owing to the failure of the monsoon, this Presidency also would be visited by famine, and says that it is incumbent on the local wealthy men as well as on Government to protect the poor by opening relief works in different parts of the presidency.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 12th, 1896.

A hint to Government about the impending famine in this Presidency.

50. A correspondent to the Andhraprakasika, of the 31st October, states that the prices of grains are rising in Kurnool, that the wells are becoming dry, and that fodder is scarce. He believes that the forest laws affect the people much and that their relaxation, at least in these days of want and scarcity, would promote the welfare of the people and provide fodder for the cattle. The hungry poor and habitual criminals are committing crimes in various places.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Oct. 31st, 1896.

Famine in Kurnool.

51. A correspondent to the Rajayogi, of the 2nd November, writes thus in English :—"The season prospects at Narsapur (Gódávari) are very gloomy, and, owing to want of rain, crops are withering away. The late floods have caused immense damage to them and the drought has taken away what little hope there was of some yield at least. Paddy is selling here at Rs. 46 per candy. We find many poor people crying for food. It is generally believed that the famine will continue for two years more, and, unless the Government open relief works, which can engage labourers for a year or two, the present relief afforded by them in the shape of distributing rice among the poor, will be of no tangible good to the people. In this connection we venture to suggest that the best relief works that can be taken on hand seem to be to construct feeder lines to the East Coast Railway and roads wherever they are needed. Perhaps Narsapur may be connected with Nidadavólu or some other railway station by a railway which will open up these parts and act as a civilising agency which we people here sorely need."

Rajayogi, Cocanada, Nov. 2nd, 1896.

Famine in Narsapur.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Nov. 6th, 1896.

52. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 6th November, says that there have been no rains in the Kurnool district, that crops have withered, that fodder is scarce and that the cattle are suffering severely. The long-stored "jonna" and "korra" having become cloddy and begun to stink are now resorted to by the bazaarmen, who mix them with a little of new grains and sell them somewhat cheaper, but the poor people, though glad at the lower prices, are disappointed at finding them stenchy and unwholesome. The Government officials are afraid that any attempt to check the sale of such damaged grains might help the merchants to withdraw all the grain from the market.

Famine in Kurnool.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 9th, 1896.

53. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 9th November, says:—Among the poorer classes of Ellore and Tangellamudi the struggle for paddy and rice is great. The leading merchants, pleaders and city fathers held a very influential meeting in the Municipal office to adopt alleviating measures. Information comes that people in parts of Ellore and Narsapur taluks are seen eating, out of distress, the pith of date and palmyrah stumps. A high official complains that he cannot get enough of rice.

Scarcity in Ellore and Tangellamudi.

54. The same paper asks if during this time of scarcity Government would come to the help of petty Government servants who are better entitled to consideration than Europeans who lose a small fraction of their salary by the fall in exchange.

Famine allowance to petty Government servants.

QASIM-UL AKBAR, Bangalore, Oct. 29th, 1896.

55. The Qasim-ul Akbar, of the 29th October, says the Czar has recorded the following views in his Eastern travels as regards India, viz.:—The taxes levied in India appear to be very small and levied in a sympathetic spirit, but the wealth of India is gradually disappearing, or, in other words, it goes to foreign countries. It would not be out of place to mention here that the blood of this country is being sucked and that the prosperity of the natives is being wrested from them. The outward appearance of the people of India shows that they are happy and contented as their life and property are safe from any civil wars and lootings such as occurred in former times; but the real state is quite the contrary, as, for instance, the Czar says that, at the time when the Maharaja of Baroda was independent, he was purchasing silken cloth to the value of about £80,000 annually from Ahmedabad merchants, but, after he was deprived of his independence he ceased to do so which ruined the cloth merchants of Guzerat, and to-day the experts in the art of weaving silken cloth remain idle and are unable to get meals twice a day.

The Czar and the condition of the people of India.

The Qasim concurs in the above views of the Czar and says the changes that are being made in India in consequence of Western civilization greatly tend to eradicate old arts, sciences and industries.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Oct. 24th, 1896.

56. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 24th October, hearing that a certain person informed Government that Rs. 2–8–0 would be sufficient for a native to maintain himself for a month, says that in hotels the minimum sum that is demanded for ordinary vegetable meals is Rs. 5 and is at a loss to know how this pittance would be sufficient for a person even for a ragi meal in these days when the price of articles is greatly enhanced. The paper adds that in former days Rs. 7 was fixed as the least sum sufficient for the maintenance of a single native and that is the reason why sepoys and constables are paid Rs. 7 a month. If the 2 rupees 8 annas theory be adopted it will simply reduce the recipients to a state of bitter starvation.

A remark on the theory that Rs. 2–8–0 would be sufficient for the upkeep of a native life.

57. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 3rd November, reporting that a boy of 18 years was run over by the tram car at Chintadripet, on the evening of the 27th ultimo, says that drivers of tram cars, who are mostly East Indians, disregard the natives and consequently indulge in fast driving in crowded quarters where accidents of the kind herein reported are imminent. He says that the drivers are indulgent and obliging to Europeans and stop the car at the pleasure of such passengers and pay due regard to their convenience in all possible ways, and if the car is over-crowded the drivers generally ask a native passenger to vacate his seat for the sake of the European passenger. He further adds that towards natives the drivers are very insolent and they do not stop the car wherever the natives ask them to stop and do not even patiently wait till they get into or alight from the car, but hastily set the car in motion while the native passenger has one foot on the foot-board of the car and the other on the ground. The correspondent observes that it behoves the Company to pass strict rules to make the drivers not to show such racial differences, to treat all passengers alike, and to be extremely cautious while passing through crowded quarters. The correspondent thinks that if natives are appointed as drivers the public will have few opportunities for making complaints against the Tramway Company.

Complaints against the Madras Electric Tramway Company.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 3rd, 1896.

58. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 2nd November, says that the Times of Malabar understands that an official report regarding the probability of another Mappila outbreak before long has reached the Collector. When the Zamorin visited the Collector a few days ago, he told Mr. Dance that, from information of a fairly reliable nature that had reached him from the turbulent taluks, he apprehended a big outbreak.

Another Mappila outbreak anticipated in Malabar.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 2nd, 1896.

59. The same paper, speaking of the insult offered to the statue of Her Majesty the Queen in Bombay, says that it could not be the work of the Hindus as they are too loyal to do such an act and worship the Queen as a goddess and hopes that the offenders will soon be found out and receive exemplary punishment.

Insult to the statue of Her Majesty the Queen in Bombay.

60. A correspondent to the Malayala Manorama, of the 31st October, says that the Zamorin of Calicut is said to have spoken to the Collector of Malabar that he has information about a probable Mappila outbreak in the near future and observes that the approaching fasting season of Mappilas may perhaps serve an occasion for it.

A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 31st October, observes also that a strong rumour is current in Ernad taluk that another Mappila outbreak may soon be expected, and that the Mappilas are getting in ammunition from British Cochin. His Excellency the Governor's reply to the address recently presented to him by the Mappilas, though most favorable, does not seem to have satisfied them. They still look upon the Arms Act and the Mappila Act as unjust enactments directed against their liberty. Although the rioters are generally the poorer classes among the Mappilas yet it is impossible that they should be acting without the consent of some of the most influential Mappilas. The editor suggests that either the Mallapuram police or else a small detachment should be stationed at Pandicad and other places in order that the apprehended outbreak may be prevented. If no such precaution is taken and if the rumour should prove true great loss of human blood will take place ere the outbreak is quelled.

An apprehended Mappila outbreak.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Oct. 31st, 1896.

61. A correspondent to the Kerala Sanchari, of the 4th November, writes that the pollution of the water of the Manan-chira (a public tank in Calicut) by persons who bathe on its banks naked, causing nuisance to the public ought to be stopped at once.

Pollution of water used by the public.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 4th, 1896.

KERALA CHANDRIKA,] Calicut, Nov. 9th, 1896.

An apprehended Mappila outbreak.

62. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 9th November, alludes to the rumour current in Malabar that there is every probability of another Mappila outbreak during the next ramzam festival and that preparations are being secretly made for the same by some of the Mappilas of Ernad taluk. It is said that if the Mappilas once prepare themselves for an outbreak and some of them happen to escape arrest, those that have so escaped are bound to prepare for an outbreak again; and as some of the Mappilas who joined the rebels in the last outbreak have escaped the rumour above alluded to is likely to prove correct. A suggestion is, therefore, made that it will be expedient at this juncture to increase the number of beat constables in the Ernad taluk and to take security from those who are known to be roudy characters.

Issued, 25th November 1896.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. Referring to the news that the first portion of the army of the Niger Company has started from Liverpool to the province of Alwern in the State of Sakato in Africa, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 23rd November, says the Christian powers have begun to provoke and invade Islamic States everywhere. The Dutch are oppressing the people of Achin, forcibly taking away their countries, looting and burning down their houses, seducing their women and killing them brutally, yet neither any European power nor the British Government, which is well aware of the fact, has shown any sympathy towards them or adopted any preventive measures in the way it has been zealously doing in regard to the Armenians, in spite of the fact that Mr Gladstone, in connection with the Armenian question, held out hopes of impartial treatment. This indifference on the part of the Christian powers shows that they are bent upon the ruin of the States of Islam.

The Niger expedition.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

II.—Home Administration.

2. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 14th November, wishes that one Mr. Babu Rao Nayudu, Inspector of Police, should be appointed Superintendent of Police as promised by His Excellency the Governor in his reply to the address presented by the people of Bellary. The paper gives a glowing account of the competency as well as the remarkably enterprising character of this officer, and remarks that his past exceptionally meritorious services deserve such an encouragement.

Advisability of appointing Mr. Babu Rao Nayudu, Inspector of Police, as Superintendent of Police.

Vettikkodiyon, Madras, Nov. 14th, 1896.

3. The Vikata Dutan, of the 21st November, reports that wicked characters waylay the people with impunity even on such public roads as the Popham's Broadway, and that the police constables posted on beat, being otherwise engaged, take little or no notice of such grave offences. The paper thinks that, if police sergeants patrol the division in their charge at least twice or thrice a day, the constables on beat will be more attentive to their onerous duty and the public will have fewer opportunities for complaint.

A suggestion to the police authorities.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1896.

4. The Andhraprakasika, of the 21st November, referring to the police circular issued by the District Magistrate of Tinnevelly, by which sub-magistrates are required to refer beforehand all complaints made against police officers to the Superintendent, remarks that the circular is in direct contravention of the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Section 202 of the Code enacts that a magistrate, when he has reason to disbelieve the truth of a complaint, may direct a preliminary local inquiry by a police officer, and the paper therefore says that the said circular is not consistent with that section. If the complaints made against police officers prove to be unfounded, there is sufficient provision in law, it adds, for the punishment of malicious prosecutors. It does not therefore understand why the District Magistrate of Tinnevelly has so unnecessarily favoured the police, but asserts that the circular issued is pregnant with serious danger to the people.

A questionable police circular.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1896.

5. The Sasilekha, of the 13th November, referring to the Masulipatam dacoity case disposed of by the Sessions Judge of Bellary, remarks that Government has unnecessarily incurred heavy expenditure owing to the concoction of the case by the Masulipatam police. It opines that the indiscriminate prosecutions conducted by Government afford opportunities for such concoction of cases.

The Masulipatam dacoity case.

Sasilekha, Madras, Nov. 13th, 1896.

It suggests that the unscrupulous members of the Police department might be taught a lesson by ordering the cost of each such prosecution incurred by Government to be recovered from them. The Government, it adds, should also visit the guilty police officials with due punishments and secure peace to innocent subjects. The paper holds the Police Superintendent, Mr. Hasted, responsible for the imprisonment pending trial of the alleged offenders, who are very wealthy and respectable merchants. It is impossible, it adds, to describe their sufferings while in jail for three months. His Excellency the Governor, who has earned just reputation by punishing the Police Superintendent and the European Magistrate in the Kistna district in connection with the case wherein an Yerukala man was tortured to death, should continue to punish the police, who are always engaged in manufacturing cases, getting up false evidence, and torturing in various ways innocent witnesses and alleged offenders.

(b) Courts.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Nov. 11th, 1896.

A remark on the Deputy Collector of Tirukkóyilúr.

6. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 11th November, observes that the Deputy Collector of Tirukkóyilúr does not dispose of the revenue and criminal cases on his file promptly.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1896.

A remark on the decision in Pithápuram case.

7. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th November, alluding to the Pithápuram case lately disposed of by the Madras High Court, remarks that the decision of the High Court is highly detrimental to the well-being of zamindaris as it empowers zamindars to alienate or otherwise dispose of their zamindari according to their pleasure. The paper says that this augurs a good time to money-lenders like the Nattukottai Chetties. The paper concludes with the remark that the decision in question will greatly encourage zamindars of an extravagant tendency to make use of their zamindari as a means of borrowing money from money-lenders who will, in course of time, become masters of these zamindaris, while the descendants of the zamindars will become paupers.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Nov. 18th, 1896.

A complaint against a certain Stationary Sub-Magistrate in the district of South Arcot.

8. The Desabhimani, of the 18th November, complains that a certain Stationary Sub-Magistrate in South Arcot was guilty of gross breach of the rules of decency in putting to a caste-girl, 13 years old, questions of a most objectionable kind, calculated to wound her feelings of modesty, and that he allowed the vakil to put questions of a like nature to another witness. The paper learns that the police, fearing similar treatment to other respectable witnesses, have applied to the District Magistrate for a transfer of the case to another court.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

A suggestion regarding Honorary Magistrates.

9. The Nilalochani, of the 23rd November, thinks it desirable that the duration of the tenure of office of a Honorary Magistrate should be limited even as membership of the Municipal and Local Fund Boards is limited. It says that the unlimited duration of the tenure of office of a Honorary Magistrate gives room for miscarriage of justice. The paper thinks that, if persons possessing some knowledge of law be appointed for the post, they will render the public good service.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 21st, 1896.

Cause of the irregularities prevailing in the District Munsif's court, Taliparamba.

10. A correspondent to the Kerala Patrika, of the 21st November, draws attention to the fact that much room for grievance arises from the staff of the Munsif's court at Taliparamba being almost entirely constituted of the members of a particular family in that place. The deputy nazar of the court is one Appataveetil Sankara Menon; the miscellaneous clerk is Ananta Menon, a member of the same house; Kannan Menon, another member of the house, is one of the amins of the court; Mavila Kannan Nambiar, one of the clerks of the court, is a brother of the brother-in-law of the above officials. Several irregularities are said to be committed with impunity through the joint connivance of these officials, and one of them referred to by the correspondent is cited below :—

"Thirty-five buffaloes belonging to a Putiyatavan in Kuttoor amsam were recently attached for a decree of Rs. 200 against him and kept under the custody of the deputy nazar for five or six days, during which time the latter milked them for his own use. The papers were sent to the sub-court only on the fifth day after the attachment, when, on his furnishing security, the cattle were set free. Afterwards the deputy nazar submitted a bill for Rs. 200 as his cost of feeding the buffaloes. The correspondent remarks that such irregularities as these are not brought to light as the interest of all the members of the court is one and the same. A suggestion is therefore made that, in the interests of the public, the members of the staff should be transferred to different courts in the district.

11. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 19th November, expresses great pleasure and satisfaction at the news that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock has decided to confer the appointment of the Sheriff of Madras on a Muhammadan this time, and hopes that a well-qualified Muhammadan will be selected for the post.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Nov. 19th, 1896.

The alleged contemplated selection of a Muhammadan for the Madras Shrievalty.

(e) Local and Municipal.

12. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 16th November, complains that the road leading from the railway station of Kumbakónam to Mahamaham tank is miry and hardly fit for traffic, and requests the municipal authorities to attend to its repair at once.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Nov. 16th, 1896.

Wretched condition of a certain road in the town of Kumbakónam.

13. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 23rd November, requests the municipal authorities of the town of Negapatam to raise a wall on the north side of the market in order to screen from public view the meat exposed for sale.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

A request to the Negapatam municipality.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Nov. 14th, 1896.

Village roads.

15. A correspondent to the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 11th November, invites the attention of the Cochin municipality to the insanitary condition of Eraveli desam in the municipality and also to the deplorable condition of the Eraveli-Mattancheri trunk road.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, Nov. 11th, 1896.

Insanitary condition of the Cochin municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th November, pointing out to Government that the failure of rain has ruined the crops and impoverished the mirassidars of Srívilliputtúr and fearing that the village officers will begin next month to worry the mirassidars for kist, prays Government to cancel the kist due for this year and thus relieve the mirassidars.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1896.

A prayer to Government by the mirassidars of Srívilliputtúr.

(h) Railways.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Nov. 7th, 1896.

A request to the railway authorities.

17. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 7th November, is glad to learn that the railway authorities have passed a rule permiting third-class passengers to enter the platform as soon as they purchase tickets and that the old system of keeping them outside the platform till the arrival of the train, which was a source of great inconvenience to them, has been done away with. The paper requests the railway authorities to pass rules for the admission on the platform of the friends and relations who accompany passengers for the purpose of bidding them "farewell."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 20th, 1896.

A request to the South Indian Railway authorities.

18. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th November, requests the South Indian Railway authorities to furnish the railway station of Kolatur (North) with a few benches for the use of the third-class passengers and to put two more lights on the platform and one on the gate outside for the convenience of passengers.

(k) General.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Nov. 7th, 1896.

A remark on the Earl of Onslow, the Governor-General-elect.

19. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 7th November, announces that the Earl of Onslow, the present Under Secretary for India, has been nominated to succeed His Excellency Lord Elgin as the Viceroy of India. The paper says that the Earl of Onslow had been Governor of New Zealand, Under Secretary to the Lord-in-Waiting of Her Majesty and Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce; that he is a person of great experience although he is only 44 years old; and that he evinces much interest in the well-being of the people entrusted to his care.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Nov. 10th, 1896.

Certain suggestions to the Government of India.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 10th November, says that many of the Native States in British India are financially solvent, whereas the Government of India always suffers from financial distress, for the reason that it maintains a large army which is not necessary at present. The paper further says that the upkeep of a large military establishment drives Government to the necessity of imposing new taxes which are a source of hardship to the people. The paper advises Government to cut down its military establishment and remarks that agricultural banks opened in Mysore and the system of compulsory education introduced in Baroda are examples worthy of imitation by the Government of India.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Nov. 14th, 1896.

A request to Government to grant rice compensation allowance to the servants on low pay.

21. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 14th November, in consideration of the dearness of rice and other articles of food, requests His Excellency the Governor to grant an allowance of a rupee or a rupee and-a-half as rice compensation allowance to police constables and such other low-paid servants to keep them above temptation even as is done in Bengal.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 14th, 1896.

Sikharamvari street, Nellore.

that the Government may call for the records bearing on the subject and grant the Hindus equal and common rights in the use of the various streets of Nellore.

23. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 18th November, referring to the memorial submitted to the British Postal authorities by the inhabitants of Peringattukara and the neighbouring amsams in Native Cochin praying for the establishment of a post office, says that, as there are many persons in that amsam who get newspapers and money-orders in considerable number from Colombo from persons who have gone from those amsams to that place and as great inconvenience is caused to the addressees by such money-orders being delivered to them only once in ten days by the village post peons, this reasonable prayer of the memorialists should be granted. The opinion is expressed that, if a post office is opened at the place mentioned in the memorial, there will be no loss to Government.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Nov. 18th, 1896.

Wanted a British post office at Peringattukara in Native Cochin.

24. Referring to the appointment of Mr. Macworth Young, the British Resident at Mysore, as the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab in succession to Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 9th November, congratulates that officer and says the people of the Panjab are extremely fortunate in having such a sympathetic and philanthropic ruler especially at this time of scarcity. During the short period for which he held the office of Resident at Mysore, he conducted his duties in such a manner as to give no room for any complaint. He aided Her Highness the Maharani satisfactorily and adopted such measures for the education of the Maharaja, &c., as will tend to the prosperity and good name of the royal family and of the Mysore province. The Qasim hopes that he will be knighted before he reaches Lahore.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Nov. 9th, 1896.

Appointment of Mr. Macworth Young as the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab.

25. Referring to a St. Petersburg telegram, of the 18th November, announcing that some well-known proprietors of newspapers in Moscow have opened a fund, called "The Indian Famine Fund," the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 23rd November, says previous to the present one there occurred many a famine in India yet no measures were adopted in Russia for the relief of the famine-stricken people of India, and it is not known why the Russians have now begun to interfere in matters relating to India. This interference will possibly open a way to Russian trade with India, and, as soon as the extension of the Russian railway line to Herat is completed, there will be a great change in Indian matters.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

Remarks on the establishment of a fund called "The Indian Famine Fund" in Russia.

26. The same paper bitterly complains that the grain-sellers in Madras are daily increasing prices notwithstanding the fact that large quantities of grain are brought every now and then by the South Indian Railway and that some of them are in the habit of fraudulently mixing sand and dust in the grain, and attributes the cause thereof to the indifference of Government in the matter.

Prices of grain.

III.—LEGISLATION.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 8th, 1896.

Desirability of passing a rule regarding cases of defamation brought against editors of newspapers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1896.

28. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th November, wishes that the Madras Legislative Council should convene its meeting as it is nearly a month since His Excellency the Governor arrived in Madras. It says that as many districts are suffering from famine, it is expedient that the said council should meet as often as it can to concert measures for relief.

Expediency of convening a meeting of the local Legislative Council.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SWADESAMITIRN, Madras, Nov. 13th, 1896.

29. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 12th November, says that at Trichoor in Cochin cholera, fever and dysentery reign supreme and great anxiety is felt concerning the probable outbreak of the bubonic plague which seems to have rapidly spread in certain parts of Bengal. The correspondent regrets that the authorities concerned have adopted no preventive measures.

A complaint against the municipal authorities of Trichoor in Cochin.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Nov. 19th, 1896.

30. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 19th November, writing about the transfer of Mr. Macworth Young from the Residentship of the Mysore Province, says that it is a matter for much regret that the Residents in Mysore should be transferred as soon as they get some experience of the people and the government of Mysore. No time is allowed for any consistent policy to be followed. The editor hopes that, in future at least, the Government of India will not make such frequent transfers especially at this time when the province is under a regency, but would allow the next Resident at least to remain in that office for some years.

Constant changes in the Mysore Residentship.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 30th, 1896.

31. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th November, says:—The Berars were originally wrested from the Nizam on account of a certain sum of money due by the Nizam and were to be returned to him as soon as the British Government had recouped itself; but, when some years ago the Nizam's Government asked for the fulfilment of this condition, the people who had tasted of the sweets of British administration objected to being made over to the Nizam and hence an agreement was entered into by which the British were to keep possession of the provinces, but were to hand over to the Nizam whatever balance of revenue remained after meeting the expenses of the administration. After this, a good amount of money was paid to Hyderabad. We believe that at one time as much as thirty lakhs of rupees were thus paid over; but, gradually, this amount diminished till now only about four and-a-half lakhs are forthcoming. This is little less than downright robbery on the part of the British Government. The machinery of the rule is of the most expensive description and so the Nizam's share is very small. He is being unjustly treated. It throws a slur on the good faith of the British Government. It makes people say that it does not treat the Native princes as it ought to do.

The Berars.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Nov. 11th, 1896.

32. The Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 11th November, has a leader regarding the appointment of the next Diwan of Travancore. On the one hand the article strongly protests against the appointment of a Brahman to the Diwanship be he the Chief Justice of the Travancore High Court or one of the Diwan-Peishkars of the State; but, on the other, it dislikes the idea of bringing in a foreigner as the Diwan.

The Diwanship of Travancore.

The Malayalam Manorama, of the 23rd November, publishes a lengthy correspondence on the same subject. The correspondent severely deprecates the policy of Mr. Sankara Subbayya and says that, in order to redeem the State of Travancore from the low depth into which it has sunk, the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nayar must be appointed as the next Diwan. In expressing this opinion, the article dwells at great length on the sterling qualifications possessed by Mr. Sankaran Nayar and questions the ability and moral character of Mr. Kristnasami Rao, Chief Justice of Travancore High Court, who is now mentioned as the probable successor of Mr. Sankara Subbayya.

33. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st November, says that it regrets to remark that the Sirkars of Travancore and Cochin have not yet taken steps to have the criticisms of the officials which occasionally appear in the vernacular papers of those States brought to their notice just as is done by the Madras Government in regard to the vernacular papers published in that presidency. The article remarks that, if the Sirkars at least get these newspapers and examine them, and if, when a paper contains a criticism of any official's conduct, they send it on to him for explanation, the iniquities of the officials will not only be lessened but they will not dare to do them for fear of being exposed by the press and taken to task.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Nov. 21st, 1896.

Sirkars of Travancore and Cochin to appoint reporters on vernacular newspapers.

34. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 14th November, speaks of the order of the Diwan of Cochin forbidding the sale of tobacco by Cochin merchants to persons not belonging to Cochin as a most inconsiderate one calculated to subject the tobacco merchants of Cochin to great loss. The article says that this order was given as it was found that certain persons belonging to Travancore, who purchased tobacco from Cochin, were not license-holders. It is the business of the Travancore Government and not of the Diwan of Cochin to see that only such of its subjects as are license-holders deal in tobacco. The order referred to serves only to cause loss to the Cochin merchants, and it is to be hoped that it will be reconsidered.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 14th, 1896.

Tobacco merchandise in Cochin.

35. Referring to the news that His Highness the Nizam has been invited by Her Majesty the Queen-Empress of India to visit England next year, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 16th November, says it is not known if the Nizam undertakes the journey at an enormous expense of money at this time of scarcity. The Shams remarks that it is advisable that the Imperial hostess should pay the expenses of her distinguished guest. Such a gracious act on the part of Her Majesty would be becoming to her rank and dignity.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1896.

The Nizam's visit to England.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

36. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th November, speaking of the impending famine in the northern parts of the presidency, remarks as follows:—It is the duty of Government now to utilise the accumulated balance of the Famine Relief Fund and use every effort to save the people from distress. The responsibility of helping the famine-afflicted should not be thrown on the general public at large. Special officers should be appointed to visit the famine tracts and organise for the administration of relief. If Government would cooperate with Mr. LeFanu, the officer whose duty it is to superintend famine operations, people might pass the year with tolerable ease.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Nov. 8th, 1896.

A suggestion to Government regarding the impending famine.

37. The Viveka Thivakuran, of the 15th November, alluding to the impending famine, remarks that time is ripe for the authorities to adopt measures for relief, such as the suspension of taxation, opening of relief kitchens and relief works in different parts of the presidency. The paper says that the reduction by one-half of salaries of officials drawing a pay of Rs. 100 and upwards will bring Government a good saving which may be conveniently utilised for the purpose in question.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengód, Nov. 15th, 1896.

Suggestions to the authorities regarding famine.

38. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th November, referring to the order of Government to open relief works in the districts of Cuddapah, Kurnool, Bellary, Anantapur and Chingleput, advises Government to entrust the management of such works to honest, god-fearing and sympathetic officials or to wise municipal councillors. The paper says that during the famine of 1877 the supervision of relief works was entrusted to unscrupulous persons who used such works as a means of gain to themselves, and the poor therefore were not benefitted as they ought to be.

A hint to Government regarding relief works.

PATRIKASARA-PRAKASIKA, Tuni, Nov. 15th, 1896.

Famine in Tuni, Godávari district.

39. The Patrikasaraprakasika, of the 15th November, states that famine is exerting its full pressure upon the people in Tuni division, Gódávari district; that the practical closing of the grain shops occasions looting and that houses are set on fire. This miserable state of affairs, it believes, may be prevented by compelling the grain merchants to sell their stock of grain at low prices. It further thinks that famine will probably become more severe hereafter, and recommends relief works to be started from January next. In its opinion, the famine relief works as provided for in the Famine Code are more advantageous than Government and Local Fund works, but the construction of water-works and rest-houses may also be taken in hand with advantage in different villages. It observes that prospective rainfall will not avail much, that crops may fairly be considered to have completely withered, that wages are insufficient and that people are suffering from want of food in the neighbourhood. Believing the famine to be severe, it prays the Government to start suitable relief works and the Collector of Gódávari to fulfil his generous promises.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

The several districts affected by famine in the Madras Presidency.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd November, says that in several districts in the presidency the distress is very severe and everywhere riots, dacoities and murders are rife. On the 12th instant there was a grain riot in Guntoor as the bunials of the place had large orders for grain from the North and raised the prices of grain to more than famine rates. In Cuddapah the condition is bad. There has been no cultivation whatever for want of rain. Anantapur is still worse. The ryots here have stored up enormous quantities of grain in the hope of prices still rising. Bellary is another district where relief works are necessary.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Nov. 21st, 1896.

The present famine and the treatment of the famine-stricken people by the officers of Government.

41. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 21st November, remarks thus:—The people in Mysore look aghast at the inhuman measures of the British Government to "dragoon" a famine—such as flogging starving wretches, who ventured to seize grain to allay the pangs of hunger and keep alive the spark of life, and the firing on famine-stricken mobs driven mad by want, and other disgraceful spectacles of inhuman barbarity which British officials have perpetrated in the North. That the Belgians should behave with inhuman barbarity with the wilds of Africa is not incredible when we see the British Government, which esteems itself the most humane and civilised in the world, flogging famine-stricken wretches and firing on crowds driven to madness by the pangs of hunger. The people do not understand the laws of Politcal Economy, and, when they find that grain-dealers form a ring and would not sell grain although they have large stocks of it, they think it the duty of Government to interfere and compel the traders to sell at certain rates as in the good old days of John Company. A sinister feature of the present distress is the readiness of the people to precipitate themselves on the rifles of the police and other myrmidons of authority. Never were riots more frequent or obstinate. Is it because the people are losing faith in the benevolence and justice of our administration that they have become so defiant of authority and so callous to their own personal safety? Our rulers should pause and reflect. "Dragooning" a famine is not only the least humane but the least politic method of grappling with the difficulty.

The famine fund.

42. Speaking of the famine fund, the same paper remarks:—The soundest factor in the famine policy, the famine fund, was abrogated to alleged imperial needs and the money diverted to other purposes. A famine fund is a sine qua non for a country like India, where famines recur with appalling regularity and increasing severity as time progresses. No civilised administration worthy of the name should neglect so obviously indispensable a provision to safeguard its subjects from suffering and death; but, if we have lost the famine fund, we fear we have retained the traditions of the temple famine rations.

43. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 28th November, says:—The present mode of relieving distress by means of feeding-houses, where the poor and hungry are fed with gruel or congee of rice or ragi, is more calculated to induce diseases than to sustain the already exhausted nature. The initiating of organised charity for relief necessarily attracts a large number of people and disturbs the natural economy of labour in the country. A scattering of the labouring and vagrant classes in different directions takes place which is most undesirable. What seems most needed is to leave the people undisturbed, to discourage immigration as much as possible, and for the Government and the charitable persons to do all they can to convey by the most judicious arrangements food-grains to the nearest proximity to the homes of the people. The shops in the rural towns and large villages should be supplied with food-grains from funds contributed by Government and charitable persons. Thus not only will distress be relieved, life preserved, homes and villages saved from desertion and desolation, but diseases, death and other concomitant evils arising from emigrating and wandering will be prevented, and the people themselves left to remain quiet and peaceful in their own homes.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Nov. 28th, 1896.

Famine relief how to be given.

Further, why not revive the good old system of the "nirk," which regulated the market prices in Jack Company's time? May not greater attention be given to irrigation works which will bring under cultivation extensive areas of lands now remaining waste?

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 30th November, says that the famine all over India consequent on the failure of one single monsoon speaks volumes for the poverty of the people. There are men who do not agree with Mr. Naoroji as to the fact of the growing poverty of the people. This year's famine will show how India has been pumped and pumped and reduced to the last extremity because it has no responsible master to take care of it.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Nov. 30th, 1896.

The poverty of the people.

45. The Sudarshana, for November, says that great distress prevails in Udipi for want of rain and that there are signs of famine.

Sudarshana, Udipi, Nov. 1896.

Distress in Udipi, South Canara.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

46. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 9th November, says that, as the task of nominating a member for the vacant seat in the Negapatam devastanam committee has devolved on the District Judge, it is hoped that he will consider carefully the relative merits of the candidates and select the person most fitted for the office.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Nov. 9th, 1896.

A hint to the District Judge regarding the Negapatam devastanam committee.

47. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th November, contrasts the constitution of the Government of England with that of India, and the voice and influence which the people of England have in the administration of their country with the little or no political privileges possessed by the people of India in the government of their country, and says that the Congress is organised with the object of demanding from the imperial authority the same political rights and privileges as are now enjoyed by the people of England.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 17th, 1896.

The usefulness of the Congress.

48. A correspondent to the same paper, speaking of the sufferings of the natives of India in Natal, says that the rule that a native cooly, after the expiration of his term of service, should either return to India or remain there on paying a poll-tax of £ 3 per annum must necessarily operate as a severe and stringent measure on the coolies. The correspondent

Maltreatment of cooly emigrants in Natal.

then complains that the present "Protector," an officer whose duty it is to protect the coolies against all kinds of oppression, is not acquainted with Tamil or Hindustani, and this proves an impediment to coolies in representing their grievances to him, and the coolies therefore derive very little help from him. The correspondent then dwells on a few cases of violent treatment sustained by the coolies at the hands of their masters, and remarks that cases of suicide,—a means generally resorted to by the coolies as a way of escaping from the inhuman treatment of their masters,—increase day by day and that it behoves the authorities to pass measures to protect them from such high-handed oppression.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Nov. 25th, 1896.

Invitation to His Highness the Nizam.

49. The Andhraprakasika, of the 25th November, remarks that the invitation to the Nizam and other Indian princes to witness the forthcoming celebration of the sixtieth year of the reign of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress affords fresh opportunities for saddling India with heavy expenditure, and observes that as the invitations are strictly private and not of a political character and as India is suffering from a serious famine, the Government of India should take time by the forelock and impress upon the Home Government the necessity of meeting all such expenses from the over-rich British treasury.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

Government of India and native industries.

50. The Rajayogi, of the 23rd November, complains that the Government of India is sacrificing the interests of India for the benefit of labourers in Lancashire and others. The articles required for use in India are purchased in the United Kingdom instead of in the cheapest market and instead of native industries being encouraged. It regrets that the Act passed by Lord Ripon for encouraging native manufactures has been nipped in the bud, that it has become a dead letter, and that the prayers of the Indian manufacturers have ever remained unheard. It thinks that great advantages may be secured both to the rulers and the ruled by removing the various restrictions under which native manufactures have been placed ever since the year 1883, and asserts that, with a little help from Government, all the railway materials (now got from England) can be manufactured in India and that neither capital nor labour is wanting for the enterprise. The present law is most unfavourable to the growth of Indian manufactures and needs to be cancelled. Stating that native industries developed themselves when Lord Ripons's Act was in force, it remarks that the present impediments are nothing more than the existing law and the wish of the Secretary of State to favour his countrymen. It is confident that Indian manufactures can be purchased as cheaply as the English ones, and prays the Government of India to abolish the Stationery department attached to the India Office and to encourage native industries and manufactures by creating a demand for them.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

The Congress and Famine.

51. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 23rd November, says that the present famine in the country makes it incumbent on the Congress to take up the question of the Famine Relief Fund formed after the famine of 1877–78. This fund, says the editor, was raised by means of exceptional taxation, and, though some complained of the incidence of this taxation, they felt the cause was a good one and submitted with a good grace; but the Afghan war swallowed up the whole of this fund and something more besides. The people feel that the Indian Government has been guilty of a breach of faith with the tax-payers of the land. It would be well therefore for the Congress to bring the matter forward and have a discussion over it. Another fund should be formed and some method should be found by which to have the money replaced.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

The Collector of Malabar to pay special attention to the memorial of the Ottanaickars.

52. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 23rd November, says that the Ottanaickars (a labouring class) living in certain parts of Palghat and Walavanad taluks of the Malabar district have sent in a memorial to the Collector of Malabar, explaining the hardships to which they are put by one Bhadran, a wealthy and influential member of their community, and seeking redress thereof. The article, in supporting the memorial, invites the attention of the Collector to the desirability of conducting a searching inquiry into the grievances disclosed therein. It appears that the said Bhadran has intimated to the members of his community, residing in the above taluks, that they should pay him an annual contribution and that they should abide by his decisions in matters connected with their caste and society. If the members of this community refuse to pay the above contribution or disobey his orders in matrimonial affairs, the said Bhadran, who is a maistry in some of the coffee-estates in Coorg, takes advantage of his position and gets the authorities in court to issue warrant against them under Act XIII of 1895 (sic). Now the warrants issued by the magistrates in Coorg are generally endorsed either by the Collector or the Superintendent of Police before they are sent for execution. As this procedure does not enable these functionaries to ascertain whether the warrant issued against the persons mentioned therein is true or not, an amendment should be made in the law to the effect that, before the execution of any warrant of this sort, an inquiry should be made by the local sub-magistrate or head constable, through whom it is executed, whether the person against whom it is issued has really gone to, and lived in, Coorg. In order to wreak his vengeance, the said Bhadran has had several warrants taken against persons who have not even seen Coorg, and, as his oppression in the matter above described has become intolerable, the Collector should immediately take measures to put a stop to this oppression. If the Collector does not, the Government ought at least to bestow some attention on the matter.

53. A paragraph in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd November, referring to the proposed visit in January next of Eralpad Raja to His Excellency Sir A. E. Havelock, expresses the hope that the Raja may then be accorded such a treatment as may compensate for the grievance caused to him and the people of Malabar by his being lately denied an interview with the Governor at Calicut.

Eralpad Raja's proposed visit to the Governor.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 23rd, 1896.

54. Referring to a London telegram, of the 12th November, announcing that the Russian press is persuading the Russians to afford relief to the famine-stricken people of India, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 16th November, says the Russians wish to have connection with India in some way or other.

The Russian press and the people of India.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Nov. 16th, 1896.

55. Referring to a London telegram, of the 15th November, announcing that as the price of silver is on the increase the London press, in order to save the London bankers from loss, suggests the transmission of sovereigns to India in large quantities, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 23rd November, sarcastically remarks that it is no matter if India suffers.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 7th December, reports that in German Africa nearly twenty-three Indians had been sentenced to be hanged for having taken part in a riot and that subsequently the punishment of death was commuted to one of imprisonment. The paper prays the Government of India to institute inquiry as to the nature of the offence committed by the accused and the procedure adopted by the German authorities.

Sajjana Patrika, Negapatam, Dec. 7th, 1896.

A prayer regarding the sentence of death passed on some Indians in German Africa.

2. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd December, says that the French Governor of Pondicherry said, at a recent meeting of the Conseil Général, that, as the French are put to great loss and trouble owing to an excise duty being levied by the British Government on articles imported into the French territories from the British since 1894, and as the British Government is likely to abolish that duty in case the French levy a tariff equal to that levied by the British, the councillors should pay their immediate attention to the matter.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Dec. 2nd, 1896.

British Government to abolish the excise duty levied on articles imported into the French territory.

3. Referring to a London telegram, of the 1st December, announcing, on the authority of the London Times, that the Russian mission sent to Abyssinia has been greatly honoured and that so long as the British Government continues its occupation of Egypt it will remain in Abyssinia, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 7th December, says that the action of the Russian Government is intended to rival the policy of the British Government, the object being to oblige the British Government to evacuate Egypt. It is possible that very bitter enmity will gradually be created between the two powers.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1896.

England and Russia.

II.—Home Administration.

4. The Pariyan, of the 28th November, writes as follows:—The Commissioner of Police for the city of Madras has directed the head constables to observe during their beats and report on the light afforded by the municipal lamps of the town; but the head constables go on their beat only at midnight, when most people are asleep. It would be well if constables who are to be found in every part of the town during the earlier hours of the night be required to report on the state of the municipal lamps when they must be of the greatest use to the public.

Pariyan, Madras, Nov. 28th, 1896.

An order of the Commissioner of Police.

5. The Asthika Dutan, of the 3rd December, draws the attention of the authorities to the various kinds of mischief caused to passengers by jutka-drivers at Mannárgudi, and wishes the authorities to enforce the Hackney Carriage Act in that place also.

Asthika Dutan, Mannárgudi, Dec. 3rd, 1896.

Desirability of enforcing the Hackney Carriage Act in Mannárgudi.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 7th December, says that for some time past there has been no protection for person and property in Malabar, especially in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad. Some of the well-to-do families of the above taluks have deserted their homes and gone to Cochin. The number of dacoities is increasing in Walavanad and Calicut taluks, while many petty robberies are taking place in various parts of the district. During the last Calicut sessions, three cases of dacoity attended with murder were thrown out by the judge for want of evidence. These cases are (1) the dacoity committed in Tavanur Nambudri's illam (house), Calicut taluk, Manorama, Calicut, Dec. 7th, 1896.

Dacoities in Malabar.

(2) the Olavanna theft case in which a mother and her son were murdered, and (3) the case of dacoity in which one Vandur Embrandri was murdered. In all these three cases the police had not, it appears, arrested all the real offenders. If the Government call for a return showing the grave crimes committed in Malabar during the past year, the properties stolen and discovered in each and the number in which convictions were secured, they will readily find that what is stated above is true. The article then condemns the action of the District Superintendent of Police in the matter of the promotion and degradation of certain police inspectors. It appears that the Superintendent has on certain trivial grounds degraded inspectors who have discharged their duties honestly and who look to the welfare of the people, but at the same time supported the cause of those who have gained his favour and in whose divisions grave crimes are largely occurring.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th December, in referring to the dacoities in Malabar, says that there is great excitement and a feeling of horror throughout the district owing to the increasing dacoities and to the rumoured Mappila outbreak. That the British Government, which is so very powerful and which has restored peace to several turbulent countries, is unable to repress the crimes and dacoities committed in the Ernad and Walavanad taluks is really very derogatory to its dignity.

Remarks on the degradation of a police inspector.

7. A correspondent to the same paper writes that it is very unjust on the part of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, to have degraded one T. Sekhara Menon, Police Inspector of Kuthuparamba, to the rank of head constable and transferred him to Manantoddy. The correspondent says that Sekhara Menon was not a corrupt police officer as is generally the case. He was an exceptionally conscientious and upright police officer, and it was after his arrival in Kuthuparamba that dacoities and other grave crimes which were rampant in the division were greatly repressed. The people of Kuthuparamba were greatly satisfied with him and his present unfortunate condition is deeply deplored by them.

A leader in the same issue of the paper, while endorsing the opinion of the above correspondent, characterises the action of the Superintendent as unjust.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1896.

Desirability of having two sub-courts in the district of Tinnevelly.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Dec. 2nd, 1896.

Delay in the trial of a petty criminal case.

9. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 2nd December, says that in a certain village in Tanjore a man who had been charged with stealing a few plantain leaves worth a few pies has this criminal charge hanging over him for the last six months and yet the inquiry is still pending.

European officers' partiality to missionaries.

10. The same paper says that in Bengal a certain physician complained to a native Joint Magistrate that his son was kidnapped and converted to Christianity by a missionary, and the Joint Magistrate issued a warrant for the production of the boy; but the missionary wrote privately to the Commissioner of the district (sic) and the latter called for the records and not only cancelled the warrant issued by the Joint Magistrate, but transferred the Joint Magistrate himself to some other place.

11. In thanking His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock for the appointment of Saiyid Muhammad Sahib Bahadur as Sheriff of Madras, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 7th December, says it is a matter for great gratification that His Excellency has not overlooked the request of the Muhammadan community of Madras.

Appointment of a Muhammadan to the Madras Shrievalty.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Dec. 7th, 1896.

Referring to the same subject, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 5th December, notes, with great gratification, that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock has fulfilled his promise made to the Muhammadan deputation that waited on His Excellency at the time when His Excellency received charge of the Government of Fort St. George, and says no better selection could have been made as Saiyid Muhammad Sahib Bahadur not only possesses educational qualifications but also belongs to the royal family of the late Tippu Sultan. The Muhammadan community of Madras appears very much gratified thereby. The Jaridah, after enumerating the services of his father, the late Mir Humayun Jah Bahadur, who was for many years an additional Member of the Madras Legislative Council, hopes that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will include his name in the New Year's Honours List.

(d) Education.

12. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th November, asserts that native physicians or quacks are clever in administering medicine and in diagnosing diseases by feeling the pulse, whereas English doctors are experts only in surgery. The correspondent says that, if medical students were taught both the Native and European systems of medicine, they would not only prove clever surgeons but also skilful physicians, and some of the most painful diseases, which make the life of a man very miserable, for which European medicine affords no cure, would be radically healed.

A suggestion to the medical authorities.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1896.

13. Reviewing the report of the Agricultural College for 1895–96, the Rajayogi, of the 30th November, writes thus (in English):—"The reports published year after year show that the number of students instructed is so very small that the enormous sum of 40,000 rupees spent in keeping up the institution every year may be considered to have been very nearly wasted. India is an agricultural country, and, if our educated countrymen had resorted to this noble calling instead of seeking service under the Government, the country would have been threefold richer; but even the very few that seek admission into this college do not do so with the object of taking up the independent profession, but with the object of seeking Government service as revenue inspectors. Unless the Government open a vast field for the employment of people who receive technical education, it will be impossible to attract many students to the Agricultural College, and, unless the institution has at least a hundred students undergoing instruction, it is altogether waste of public funds to maintain a costly institution like the Agricultural College. As it stands at present, we think it is an unnecessary luxury."

The Agricultural College.

Rajayogi, Cocanada, Nov. 30th, 1896.

14. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 30th November, says that, with a view to lessening the work of inspection, &c., a Sub-Assistant Inspector of Schools is said to have recommended the conversion of some of the Malabar district board schools into result schools. The opinion is expressed that, if the board approves of this recommendation and resolves to act accordingly, the expenditure will be increased and primary education will seriously suffer. The article therefore hopes that the president of the board will consider the matter well before introducing any change.

Condemning the proposal to convert the board schools into result schools.

Manorama, Calicut, Nov. 30th, 1896.

15. A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 3rd December, says that the reason why the attempt to spread education among the Mappilas is a failure is that the educational rules on the subject are defective. It is the masses that really Mappila education.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Dec. 3rd, 1896.

require to be educated and the masses are generally extremely poor. The Mappilas in the interior parts of Malabar are so miserably poor that, in order to keep body and soul together, both young and old among them have to work alike. To such, therefore, the idea of sending their children to school for education means depriving them of part of their daily bread. The Mappila schools in the interior parts, therefore, though favourably reported on, do not educate as many Mappila boys of the above description as is desirable. Again, owing to a groundless belief that it may be against the principles of Muhammadanism to allow Mappilas to acquire education from Hindu teachers, the Mappila schools are placed separately under the immediate supervision of Mappila heads. Though it is desirable that Mappila inspectors and other officers should be appointed, the above arrangement certainly is one that should be discouraged, and efficient Hindu and Christian teachers, &c., should be appointed to impart education to the masses of the Mappilas. Mappila schools under the management of Hindu and Christian teachers, &c., produce better results than others is amply evidenced by the prominent place now occupied by two such Mappila schools in Calicut. It is, therefore, hoped that the defects in Mappila education here pointed out will be duly considered and removed by Dr. Duncan after his visit to Malabar to inquire into the present condition of education in that district.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1896.

A reminder to Government regarding the memorial of the people of Villuppuram.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 24th November, reminds Government of the memorial of the people of Villuppuram regarding the action of the chairman in transferring their burial-ground to a place far remote and marshy and very inconvenient. He says that it is nearly two months since the memorial was submitted to Government and that the delay in passing orders on it causes great anxiety to the people.

A suggestion to the municipality.

17. A correspondent to the same paper complains that the street leading from Nallatambi Chetti street in the 7th division to Mount Road is so narrow that no two carts or carriages can go abreast, or can clear their way if they happen to meet from opposite directions, and that the inconvenience in the said street is much increased by the presence of a stable. The correspondent says that if the municipal authorities are pleased to take the trouble of removing the western wall of the premises, now occupied by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and a road be constructed, it would redress the grievance here referred to.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1896.

Necessity for a road in a certain village in Nannilam taluk, Tanjore district.

18. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 27th November, requests the authorities to construct a road, in length about a mile and a half, to the south of the village of Achuthamangalam in Nannilam taluk and thus remove a long-felt want.

Pig-styes, a source of insanitation in the taluk of Avanási in Coimbatore district.

19. A correspondent to the same paper complains that there are many pig-styes in the taluk of Avanási, which seriously contribute to the defilement of the place and to the outbreak of such epidemics as cholera. He hopes that the authorities concerned will attend to this subject.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Nov. 28th, 1896.

A grievance regarding the constitution of taluk boards.

20. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 28th November, speaking of the constitution of taluk boards, remarks that, whenever a seat in such boards falls vacant, the president of the board, who is invariably a European officer of Government, without making any notification of it in the District Gazette, generally nominates persons who are wholly under his control, such as a Government official, or a pleader, or one of his own friends, to the vacant seat, and thus rules supreme over that body—a state of things not desirable for the welfare of the taluk. The paper says that the mirassidars, who contribute to the revenue of the taluk and whose interest in its welfare would be genuine and deep, are never given the opportunity of representing the taluk. This state of things needs a remedy.

21. The Asthika Dutan, of the 3rd December, dwelling on the unsatisfactory nature of sanitation in Mannárgudi, says that the appointment of an additional sanitary inspector would do much to improve the sanitation of the place.

ASTHIKA DUTAN, Mannárgudi, Dec. 3rd, 1896.

Necessity for an additional sanitary inspector in Mannárgudi.

22. The Darma Samvarthani, of the 5th December, describing the wretched and the extremely miry condition of the road leading from Tiruvádi to Kumbakónam in the district of Tanjore, and the dangers sustained by carts and people in consequence, requests the local fund authorities to attend to its repair.

DARMA SAMVARTHANI, Tiruvádi, Dec. 5th, 1896.

Wretched condition of the road leading from Tiruvádi to Kumbakónam.

23. A correspondent to the Rajayogi, of the 30th November, states that Vedurupaka, a fertile village in the Gódávari district, has a population of 5,000 inhabitants, paying a land revenue of Rs. 30,000 and a local cess of Rs. 2,000, and complains that such a village has not secured any conveniences from Local Fund Board. Although the village exports paddy and sugar and occupies a central position and although travellers have to pass through it to the neighbouring villages, it is quite destitute of roads, even the passage leading to the Cocanada canal, at a distance of a mile, being sandy, thorny and infested by snakes. The people are therefore obliged to walk on narrow field-ridges often covered with thorns and hedges. He notes that there are roads at a distance of five or six miles from the village, but that there are no branch lines to connect them with the village. The villagers have already submitted a large number of petitions requesting the local board to take in hand at least the road leading to the Cocanada canal and to form the said village and the neighbouring village of Konkuduru into a union and to appoint a teacher to teach English in the village school; but none of their prayers have been heard by the board and the correspondent does not know where to seek for help.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Nov. 30th, 1896.

Want of roads, &c., in Vedurupaka.

24. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th December, says that it is a matter for regret that the chairman of the Calicut municipality has not thought it worth his while to consider the reports sent by the town police inspector and the sanitary inspector regarding the insufficient lighting of the municipality. It appears that it is the custom to light the municipal lamps till twelve o'clock at night, and the above inspectors had stated in their reports that even this was not regularly done. The article, while condemning this system of lighting, remarks that it not only inconveniences the pedestrians but also affords ample facilities for thieves to carry on their trade with impunity.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 5th, 1896.

Insufficiency of light in the Calicut municipality.

(h) Railways.

25. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th December, speaking of the resolution of the Government of India concerning the hardships of third-class railway passengers, suggests the appointment of independent travelling inspectors to prevent overcrowding and to see that the provisions in regard to the convenience of passengers are fully carried out, and exhorts the Indians to be a little more self-assertive in the interests of the public at large.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 7th, 1896.

Resolution of the Government of India enjoining on railway companies a greater regard for the comfort of third-class passengers.

(i) Public Works.

26. The Sasilekha, of the 4th December, notes that in the district of Nellore 132,000 acres of rice fields are watered by the Pennéru and 118,000 acres more by various tanks and canals. It regrets that even the limited quantity of water that was available in the Pennéru during the months of July, August and September was wasted instead of being collected and preserved. It states that the river was in floods for twenty days in August and that the water flowed over the anicut for six days, and remarks that, if the water had been collected and preserved in tanks and then distributed to the fields, 16,500 acres of land would have yielded a good crop. It ridicules the Government for having made worthless arrangements, in consequence of which not even 1,000 acres could be benefited although 4,000 (?) cubic feet of water flowed in the river. It finds fault with the present system of filling the tanks under the Sangam anicut only after the canals under the Nellore anicut have been allowed a sufficient supply, that is, 8 feet over the latter anicut. By the present system of supplying water to the fields first, instead of collecting it in the tanks, while the river is in freshes, the fields do not get a sufficient supply of water when the canals become dry. The paper remarks that, if there had been proper arrangements, 3,000,000 cubic feet of water could have been collected in July, August and September and a six-months' crop could have been raised over 16,000 acres, i.e., one-eighth of the total area. Instead of doing this, the Government imprudently allowed the limited quantity of water available to be distributed over a large cultivable area and pleaded helplessness when rains failed. The seed sown and the labour expended by the ryots have been thus sacrificed to the imprudence of Government. Cultivation, says the paper, has therefore to be adapted to the supply of water.

(k) General.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Dec. 5th, 1896.

Desirability of appointing a native as Hindustani Translator.

27. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 5th December, announces that Mr. Marsden, Inspector of Schools, has been appointed as Hindustani Translator to Government. It remarks that it is desirable that the Hindustani Translator also should be a native, Muhammadan by race, even as other Translators to Government are. The paper expresses a wish that the Mahajana Sabha will speak out its mind on this subject, as it was by its representation that the Sanskrit chair of the Presidency College was conferred on a native.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1896.

Vagaries of the adhikaris of Palghat taluk.

28. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th November, referring to the vagaries of the adhikaris of Palghat taluk, writes that, in the matter of registering vakalatnamas, they collect a certain fee from the parties though they are strictly prohibited to do so. It appears that, when a vakalatnama is required for the purpose of filing a suit against the relatives or friends of the adhikaris, they refuse to register it even on payment of the fee usually levied by them. The correspondent gives an instance in which a certain adhikari refused to register a vakalat presented by an anantravan (a junior member) of a certain well-known family in that taluk for the purpose of suing his karnavan (senior) on the ground that the latter was a friend of the adhikari. The matter was represented by the anantravan to the tahsildar, who has called upon the adhikari for an explanation. The correspondent hopes that the tahsildar will take serious notice of the adhikari's conduct so that it may serve as a warning to his brother-officials who might similarly put the people to trouble and inconvenience.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 2nd, 1896.

Inviting the attention of the Malabar District Magistrate to the disturbed state of certain taluks.

29. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd December, invites the attention of the District Magistrate, Malabar, as well as the local officers to the necessity of adopting immediate steps to check the robberies and dacoities that are now being freely committed in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad. It appears that these taluks have not been restored to order since the last outbreak, and the people being alarmed at the disturbed state of the country have already begun to quit their homes to settle down in Cochin or Travancore.

30. Referring to the measures which are being adopted by the Russians for the relief of the famine-stricken people of India, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 26th November, says there is no doubt that by such philanthropic acts on the part of the Russians the people of India will be captivated, and that it behoves England to keep an eye on the tricks and stratagems of the Russians and to be careful that the hearts of the people of India in general be not wounded by any acts of Government.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Nov. 26th, 1896.

The Russians and the people of India.

31. Referring to the annual exodus to the Hills, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 30th November, says that neither any Governor nor the Home authorities have up to this time tried to put a stop to the illegal and unreasonable expenditure incurred annually in consequence of this arrangement. So long as the Government remains on the Hills, the establishment of each Secretary works there up to 7 or 8 P.M., which causes great inconvenience and trouble; the authorities, who have regard only to their own ease and comfort, take no notice of it. It further says that it is now understood that, in order to curtail the expenditure, each Secretary of Government will hereafter take only a few junior and a few senior clerks with him, but such a procedure, the Shams thinks, will not tend to reduce the expenditure.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1896.

The annual exodus to the Hills.

III.—Legislation.

32. The Lokopakari, of the 30th November, writes as follows:—In the Local Legislative Council the number of the non-official members is twelve, of whom seven are elected by the people and the remaining five are nominated by Government. Among these five men, only three deserve the nomination of Government, viz., the members representing the Planters' Association, the Landholders' Association and the Muhammadan community. The other two may be elected by the people. It is therefore suggested that it should be ruled that in future the Local and Municipal Boards should return six instead of four members as at present, so that on the whole there may be nine members in the council representing the people.

Lokopakari, Madras, Nov. 30th, 1896.

A suggestion regarding the constitution of the Local Legislative Council.

Sasilekha, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1896.

The Madras Legislative Council.

34. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th December, while approving of the Malabar Testamentary Bill recently introduced into the Madras Legislative Council, hopes that it will soon be passed into law. As a law enabling the followers of Marumakkatayam system of inheritance to dispose of their self-acquisitions by will in favour of their children was a long-felt desideratum, there can possibly be no objection on their part to the Bill in question being passed into law. The article further says that another piece of legislation, which is very much needed by the Marumakkatayam Malayalis, is a partition law which will give them power to get their joint-family property divided according to their will, and, if the legislature also pass a law to this effect, it will be doing an immense good to the district.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 9th, 1896.

Landlords in Malabar evicting tenants owing to the Tenancy Bill.

35. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 9th December, writes that, after the visit of Mr. Ross to Malabar in connection with the Tenancy Bill, the landlords are busy sending registered notices to their tenants, stating that, if the latter do not get back the kanam amount within the time specified therein and return their lands, civil suits will be instituted for their eviction.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Dec. 3rd, 1896.

Ill-treatment of Paraiyas by their neighbours in Mandyada taluk, Mysore.

36. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 3rd December, says that in the village of Madigoudana Koppalu, in the taluk of Mandyada, in Mysore, the ryots, with a view to driving away the Paraiyas that have been living in the village from time immemorial, have filled up with rubbish a well from which the Paraiyas drew their drinking water, thus making it impossible for the poor people to get drinking water and to live in the place. The editor therefore calls the attention of the Government concerned to this outrage and to deal out due punishment to the offenders.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Nov. 28th, 1896.

Remission to be granted in certain parts of Travancore.

37. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 28th November, publishes the memorial presented by the inhabitants of Alangod taluk in Kottayam division, Travancore, to the Diwan Peishkar of that division, praying among other matters that, as the crops have been entirely destroyed by the heavy floods which occurred in that taluk, the revenue paid by them in money and kind this year might be remitted. The paper hopes that, as there are several lakhs of rupees lying idle in the Travancore treasury, the Maharaja, who is a kind and sympathetic ruler, will grant the prayer of the memorialists and furthermore open relief works in the above taluk, where, owing to famine, the people have been reported by the tahsildar to be in great distress.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Dec. 1st, 1896.

Complaint against the forest officers in Cochin State.

38. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 1st December, complains of the unusual delay made by the forest officers in Cochin State in stamping timber cut from the Sirkar forests by contractors. As on some urgent occasions the contractors cannot afford to wait until the blocks are stamped by the Sirkar officials whenever they choose, they (the contractors) have no other alternative than carry away the blocks to meet such emergencies which would otherwise put them to serious loss; and, during the transit, the very forest officers, whose remissness obliged the contractors to carry away the timber unstamped, detain the timber and levy black-mail. It appears that, if any person detects contraband timber, the forest officers do not regularly and speedily pay him the reward to which he, under the forest rules, is entitled, and, consequently, the public do not take any interest in the matter. The article invites therefore the attention of the Sirkar to the necessity of adopting measures for checking the iniquitous practice of the above forest officers which causes great hardship and loss to the contractors.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Dec. 5th, 1896.

Remarks on the transfer of officials in Travancore.

39. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 5th December, referring to the frequent transfer of officials in Travancore, says that although the occasional transfer of officials exercising independent powers from one place to another is good to the public welfare, yet the constant transfer of postmasters, schoolmasters, and other ministerial officers, who do not fill places of trust and responsibility, is quite unnecessary as no evil arises from their being retained in one place.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

40. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 21st November, speaking of the impending famine, suggests to Government the advisability of prohibiting the export of food-grains from different stations in the presidency. The paper says that the Native States of Hyderabad and Travancore have followed the same policy.

Vettikkodiyon, Madras, Nov. 21st, 1896.

A suggestion to Government regarding the impending famine.

41. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 4th December, regrets that the wages paid to the coolies working on Gooty relief works are insufficient for their subsistence and that they are therefore obliged to give up working under the relief system. He observes that Government itself is dependent for its very existence and revenues upon the labours of the coolies that cultivate the soil, and asks how they can be expected to work hereafter if they are driven to starvation during the famine.

Sasilekha, Madras, Dec. 4th, 1896.

Relief works in Gooty.

Rajayogi, Cocanada, Dec. 7th, 1896.

Famine in India.

43. The Alhami, of the 6th December, bitterly complains that terrible rumours are being heard from every direction regarding the prevalence of famine throughout India, but the British Government, the Government of India, Local Governments and District officers, instead of adopting adequate preventive measures, persistently deny the severity of the famine. In consequence of this neglect, the people of India are becoming more and more discontented. The mere sympathetic words uttered by Her Majesty, the Secretary of State, the Viceroy, the Governors and the Lieutenant-Governors cannot save the hungry from death. According to a telegram (from Reuter) it is understood that measures are being adopted in Russia, which is an old foe of England, for the relief of the people of India. Is this not a disgrace to England? The reason why Government puts forth excuses for not taking up important matters, but attaches great weight to unimportant affairs, is that no one may blame it for "doing nothing." Orders have been recently issued to all Local Governments for the curtailment of contingent charges. This item affects the poor servants of Government, both permanent and temporary, and the slightest reduction therein at this time of scarcity means starving them to death. On the one hand Government servants, who draw small salaries, are clamorous for famine batta, and, on the other, Government is making arrangements for poisoning them and their families. If Government is out of pocket, why does it not stop the compensation allowance and curtail the salaries of highy paid officers?

Alhami, Madras, Dec. 6th, 1896.

Remarks on the prevalence of famine.

N.B.—The meaning of this is doubtful.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 24th November, hearing that the Government of Transvaal has passed a Bill compelling the Indians, who are settled there, to vacate the place and settle in another locality specially allotted to them, for the reason that they are dirty in habit and therefore do not deserve to live in the midst of Europeans,

Swadesamitran, Madras, Nov. 24th, 1896.

An advice to the people of India regarding the Indians in Natal.

advises the people of India to hold public meetings throughout the length and breadth of this country and to memorialise the Colonial Secretary to adopt such measures as will prevent the authorities of South Africa from indulging in the maltreatment of the natives of India repeatedly complained of.

45. The same paper writes as follows on the necessity for giving the Congress a permanence:—Although the Congress has been in existence for twelve years, it has not acquired a permanent footing in the country. No rules have been framed yet for giving the Congress a regular constitution. The Congress has existence only during the time that it sits. The delegates chosen by the people meet together for business, and, after the business is over, they disperse and the Congress ends. This is not as it should be. The question of a permanent constitution to the Congress will, as agreed at the last Congress, come up at the Congress of this year. There are some who are of opinion that it is well to leave the Congress to the growth of time and not bind it by fixed rules. They say that in England and France national institutions grew of themselves; but what is good for one country is not necessarily so for another. In America in the United States—the constitution is fixed by law and it works well. In India also it is necessary to give the Congress a form fixed by rules and to arrange for permanent committees, central and subordinate. Such committees are necessary for carrying out the resolutions of the Congress. All things considered, the wisest course would be to give the Indian National Congress a written constitution and a permanently working form.

An exhortation to the congress leaders to make the congress a permanent constitution.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Nov. 27th, 1896.

46. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th November, writes as follows:—It seems that some of the coolies in Natal being unable to bear the maltreatment of their masters proceeded to the city of D'Urban to prefer complaints to the magistrate of that place. A police sergeant of Natal also arrived there with a warrant to arrest the coolies and to take them before the Protector of Emigrants. The coolies, on seeing the police, attempted to hang themselves with the cloths which they had tied around their waist. They did so with the object of escaping the police arrest; but their attempt proved unsuccessful, as the sergeant soon came up to the spot where they were and cut the cloths. After a while the sergeant got them chained and directed the police to carry them on their shoulders, who, being unable to carry them beyond some distance, unmercifully threw them on the road that was full of granite stones which seriously injured them. The sergeant, moved by their shrieks and agonies, ordered the constables to carry them in carriages. Whether this story is true or untrue, it is difficult to tell; but it may not be untrue as the account was published in the Natal Advertiser of the 7th October. The fact that the coolies set no value on their precious lives is itself unquestionable proof of the cruel treatment they receive at the hands of their European masters. It is hoped that Europeans in this country will take steps to moderate the severity of their brethren in Natal.

Maltreatment of natives in Natal.

The paper advises Government not to send Indians to Natal and advises its countrymen not to emigrate thither so long as they are allowed no protection against the ill-treatment of the European settlers in that colony.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 7th, 1896.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th December, in a leading article, compares the merits of the present and former English servants of Government and says that the latter were more in sympathy with the people, they knew more about them, and believed they had more interest in the country than the present men. They were sometimes rather rough in their treatment of the people, but on the whole they felt for them and tried to do them good; but the present men, says the editor, owing to the increased facility of communication with England, feel that their sojourn in this country is only temporary and that they have nothing in common with the people and think more of home than of India, and yet they do not take into account

English officials, past and present.

the changed circumstances and expect to be looked up to by the people with the same affection and respect as their predecessors enjoyed. The present officials, says the editor, will, by running counter to the aspirations of the people, lose their influence with all thinking men, and, instead of earning their gratitude may earn just the opposite.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 14th, 1896.

The coming Congress.

48. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 14th December, in speaking of the coming Congress, blames the Bengalis for their indifference in paying money for the expenses of the Congress, and says that the two questions that will chiefly engage the attention of the Congress are the famine fund and the growing expenditure of the Government. The editor says that no royal commission on the expenditure is necessary to make it plain that the military expenditure of the Indian empire is becoming larger and larger, and asks: "Are all the soldiers now employed required?" If India could do for some time without the force that was sent to Suakim, it must be able to do without it for ever. The editor then exhorts the delegates not to relapse into indifference after the meeting of the Congress is over, but to educate the people in Congress matters.

Another matter which, in the opinion of the editor, should be attended to is education. The Government seems inclined to cut down the amount allotted to education. This must not be allowed. Government should be urged to spend more on technical education. It is becoming harder every year for young men to find employment. It is not much use giving them privileges if they have nothing to eat. They must be provided with work of some kind and technical education alone can give this.

MYSORE DESABHIMANI, Bangalore, Dec. 13th, 1896.

Russian sympathy for the distressed in India.

49. The Mysore Desabhimani, of the 13th December, says that the Russian newspapers have collected about Rs. 17,000 to aid the distressed people in India, but they are very sorry that the English are unwilling to allow them to help the famine-stricken. The English Government, remarks the editor, would neither themselves give nor allow them to give.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 2nd, 1896.

Delegates to the National Congress to be elected, &c.

50. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd December, regrets to find that the people do not take to much interest in the Congress movement as they were doing formerly. Delegates to the Congress are generally elected by the end of October, but this year no preparations have as yet been made in this presidency for convening meetings to elect delegates though there is only one month for the Congress. It would not matter much if the indifference now shown by the people was at the time when there were eminent men in the Congress. Mr. Hume, who was the life and soul of the movement, has owing to his old age finally retired and gone home. Mr. Norton too has practically ceased his connection with the Congress. Men like Messrs. Subrahmanya Aiyar, Tyebji, Ranade, &c., who were the pillars of the movement, have became Government servants and so they cannot openly render us any assistance. Lately there was a great loss to the congress in the death of Mr. Mano Mohan Ghose. When such calamities have happened to the Congress, it is needless for us to say what will be the fate of the Congress if all the Indians do not unanimously and zealously work for it. As majority of the people are well aware of the manifold advantages we have derived from the Congress, it is unnecessary to recapitulate them here. Although the Anglo-Indian editors used to show all the symptoms of a fit when the Congress men urge the improvements to be effected in the administration of the country, yet experience has taught us that our benevolent British Government will not refrain from gradually effecting such improvements as are deemed expedient and feasible.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st December, says that Egypt owes to England alone her preservation, and the British occupied the country on the express understanding that they would evacuate it when it could stand by itself. The British have done a great deal for the country, but still it is not yet in a fit state to be left alone. The editor therefore says that, as England has an interest in it, she cannot allow it to relapse into disorders, and that therefore no amount of pressure from France should induce her to evacuate Egypt until the Egyptian Government can be safely left to itself.

II.—Home Administration.

2. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 12th December, remarks that whenever police constables are obliged to have recourse to arms they prove themselves to be very bad aimers, and very often kill persons when their object is only to wound them. The paper thinks it desirable that police constables should have rifle practice at least once a week, and hopes that the authorities will adopt measures accordingly.

Vettikkodiyon, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1896.

Expediency of training police constables in rifle practice.

3. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th December, writes in English as follows:—"We do not know how many persons among the murderers of Andia Pillai, 1st-grade police head constable of Gópichetti-pàlaiyam, were arrested. If they are not arrested and punished we doubt that the lives of Government servants will be safe. We hope the District Magistrate as well as the District Superintendent of Police will take such steps as to arrest the real murderers by deputing Mr. Devarajulu Nayudu Garu or Mr. Mitchel or any other able police officers."

Kalanidhi, Coimbatore, Dec. 15th, 1896.

A hint to the District Magistrate of Coimbatore for the arrest of persons concerned in the murder of a head constable at Gópichetti-pálaiyam.

4. The Lokopakari, of the 21st December, hearing of the rumour that a second Mappila riot is anticipated and that the police constables of Ernad and Walavanad have a hand in the matter, advises the authorities to have the constables transferred elsewhere as early as possible.

Lokopakari, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1896.

A suggestion to the authorities.

5. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd December, reports that, on Monday, the 21st instant, a certain turbulent character, while the God was carried in procession at Tiruvettesvaranpetta, struck one of the visitors of the temple with a broken bottle and made him bleed profusely and that not a single constable was there to go to his help. The correspondent, in this connection, makes a general complaint that Tiruvettesvaranpetta is infested with troublesome men—specially the nooks and corners thereof—so much so that people are afraid to go about the streets even in broad daylight. It is to be hoped that the Commissioner of Police will post constables on beat at different parts of this portion of the city.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 22nd, 1896.

A request to the Commissioner of Police regarding the wicked characters who wander about Tiruvettesvaranpetta.

6. The Andhraprakasika, of the 16th December, referring to a police bribery case in the North-Western Provinces detected by a Civilian officer and a Deputy Collector, remarks that, as uneducated men of lower classes are taken into service in the Police Department, their standard of morality is naturally very low, and that there has consequently been constant agitation throughout India for a thorough reorganisation of the department. It regrets that the people are not yet destined to enjoy the benefits of such a blessed change.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1896.

Police reform.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1896.

7. The Sasilekha, of the 18th December, observes that the neighbourhood of Kamalavinayakar's temple, Mint street, Madras, is infested by thieves. It states that, on the night of the 11th December, they attacked five persons returning from Tiruvattiyur and robbed one of the party of a gold watch and chain. It requests the Police Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner to trace them out and see them properly punished.

Theft in Madras.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 19th, 1896.

8. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 19th December, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar and the Superintendent of Police to the highway robberies and assaults that are frequently committed at Ferôk near Calicut in broad daylight by a gang of Mappilas who are backed up by certain wealthy and influential men of that place. It appears that even the local police are afraid of these Mappilas and most of the crimes which occurred in Ferôk have not yet been detected owing to the inefficiency of the police. The article says that the local inhabitants are terribly afraid of going along the public road lest they should be waylaid and assaulted and cites two recent instances in point. If the Collector goes to the place and makes personal inquiries into the matter, several persons will be forthcoming to give the required information about these bad characters and their mischievous doings. It is said that matters have now come to a serious crisis, and, if they are allowed to continue, these assaults and disturbances will develop into murders.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 3rd, 1896.

9. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 3rd December, says that its contemporary, the Vizir-i-Hind, states, on the authority of the Police News, that it has been urged by competent authorites that whipping is a brutal mode of punishment for the reason that it leaves marks on the persons of those who are punished and that, however honest they may become subsequently, they will always be suspected and treated as bad characters in consequence, and hence suggests the substitution of some other punishment for whipping.

In expressing its concurrence with the above view of its contemporary, the Qasim remarks that, if it be not advisable to abolish the whip entirely, cases of punishment by whipping may at least be made appealable.

Whipping.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 7th, 1896.

10. Referring with great gratification to the appointment of Saiyid Muhammad Sahib Bahadur to the Madras Shrievalty, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 7th December, thanks His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock for the same on behalf of Muhammadan community, and says Saiyid Muhammad Sahib Bahadur is a respectable young gentleman of high qualifications and is connected with the Muhammadan Royal family of Mysore. In connection therewith, the Qasim requests the Government of Madras to elevate Muhammadans to the Small Causes and High Courts' benches, respectively, selecting them from amongst the Deputy Collectors who, it says, possess sufficient judicial qualifications. It further notes that the Mysore official world was entirely devoid of the Muhammadan element, but Mr. Bowring, the late Chief Commissioner, introduced it therein with the result that the Muhammadans appointed were gradually promoted to the Town Magistracy and to Deputy Commissionerships where they have proved themselves painstaking and honest. It solicits His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock to confer on Muhammadans higher judicial appointments having regard to political grounds as well as to the welfare of the Muhammadan community. This act on the part of His Excellency will tend to the advancement of education amongst the Muhammadans.

The appointment of Saiyid Muhammad Sahib Bahadur as Sheriff of Madras.

(d) Education.

11. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th December, announces that the Connemara Library was formally opened by His Excellency the Governor on the 5th instant, and remarks that it is desirable that Government should, apart from the appeals for help which it has made to the Madras University and to the wealthy classes, do its best to replenish it with a large collection of books on various branches of knowledge and to make it an ornament to the city even as the London Library is at present.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Dec. 8th, 1896.

A hint to Government regarding the Connemara Library.

12. A correspondent to the Vijayathvajam, of the 16th December, requests the Department of Education to publish vernacular translations of the Grant-in-Aid Code and C. Form application, Nominal roll, Pass list and Primary application, for the benefit of Primary school teachers who are generally ignorant of English.

VIJAYATHVAJAM, Devikota, Dec. 16th, 1896.

Desirability of having the Grant-in-Aid Code and certain forms of application translated into vernaculars.

13. The Lokopakari, of the 21st December, alluding to the recent Matriculation examination scandal that was much talked of in the newspapers, advises the Madras University not to be indifferent in the matter lest the evil should seriously impair its prestige.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1896.

An advice to the Madras University.

(e) Local and Municipal.

14. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 9th December, reports that people living in the town of Manjakuppam (Cuddalore) burn dead bodies in the middle of the bed of the river Pennéru and also in parts of the river which are used as public baths and thus defile the stream. He also reports that jatkawallahs drive their carriages during nights without lights and often indulge in rash driving. The correspondent hopes that the municipal authorities will attend to the matter here complained of.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Dec. 9th, 1896.

A complaint that dead bodies are burnt in the middle of the bed of the river Pennéru at Manjakuppam.

15. The Lokopakari, of the 21st December, reports that the municipal administration of Palni is very unsatisfactory and that cholera is raging in the locality.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Dec. 21st, 1896.

Unsatisfactory municipal administration at Palni.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd December, complains that the metalled road leading from Arur to Nannilam is in a wretched condition hardly fit for traffic, and requests the authorities concerned to take steps to repair the said road as early as possible. The correspondent says that the President of the Board and its members generally travel by rail and that they can therefore hardly realise to themselves the dangerous condition of the road.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 22nd, 1896.

Wretched condition of the road leading from Arur to Nannilam.

17. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st December, says that the sanitary condition of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore, is very bad. There is a sanitary officer, but he does not appear to be doing much. His work seems for the most part to consist in making experiments which cost a good deal of money. He wants to have some grand sanitary scheme which will keep the place clear for ever; but, in the meantime, he does not do all that might be done to mitigate the evils that exist, and, should the plague appear, it would have a good field for its operations.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 21st, 1896.

The sanitation of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.

(g) Forests.

18. A correspondent to the Vibudhaarnjani, of the 9th December, states that the levying of forest fees, when darkhasts are made for waste lands, is a great impediment in the way of poor people obtaining them in the

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Dec. 9th, 1896.

Waste lands in the Agency and the applicants.

Gódávari Agency tracts. Such fees may be justified in the case of such useful trees as afford timber, but the poor ryots feel it too hard to have to pay fees even in the case of those trees which can never yield timber and those which are useful only for fuel. Such trees are not saleable. The correspondent says the poor ryots are obliged to borrow money for the said forest fees, and, when the debt accumulates in course of time, the land and cattle are brought to sale by the "sowcar." He prays the Government will show consideration to the poor ryots in charging "fees" on the trees on waste lands yielding timber.

(h) Railways.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1896.

Harsh treatment accorded by the European stationmasters in the South Indian Railway.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th December, commenting on the evils of appointing Europeans or Eurasians as stationmasters in the South Indian Railway, cites as an instance in point a case, where a servant of the Traffic Manager of the South Indian Railway, who arrived at the Egmore station, was struck on the nose by the European stationmaster at Egmore so severely as to cause profuse bleeding. The paper remarks that, while a servant of a leading official in the same railway service is accorded such brutal treatment, the nature of the treatment which other people are likely to meet with at the hands of such European stationmasters can be better imagined than described.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Dec. 21st, 1896.

A complaint against the South Indian Railway authorities.

20. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 21st December, complains that the space adjoining the booking office of the Villuppuram railway station is too incommodious to afford shelter, specially in rainy weather, to the large number of passengers who crowd in that station, and hopes that Government will draw the attention of the South Indian Railway authorities to this subject.

(i) Public Works.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Dec. 16th, 1896.

Damages from Tammiléru flood.

21. The Vibudharanjani, of the 16th December, remarks that 4,000 acres of cultivated lands are annually inundated by the floods in Tammiléru to the great loss of the ryots. As the flood runs over the aqueduct of the Kistna canal, it not only sweeps the crops clean away, but creates sandy mounds from one to three feet high, thus making the lands quite sterile. Further, in Ellore taluk, the delta water being unavailable to the upland parts, and as these have to depend upon the rains, they do not yield any crops in certain years and the Government revenue suffers while the ryots are sadly disappointed. To prevent these two contingencies the paper recommends the construction of an anicut over the Tammiléru, near Vijayarayi, and the diversion of Tammiléru water to the upland villages by means of irrigation channels, and remarks that this is a better scheme than the one recommended by some, viz., the digging of a discharge channel to carry the freshes from Tammiléru to Kollair. By the scheme it proposes, the paper is sanguine that the annual injury to 4,000 acres of cultivated area by the floods in Tammiléru would be prevented, and that the crops securely raised in upland parts that are generally dependent on rains would contribute to the prosperity of the ryots, while the Government revenue could be regularly collected and fears of famine obviated.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 18th, 1896.

A suggestion to the authorities for suppressing drinking.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th December, referring to the attempts made by Government for the suppression of drinking, remarks that the mere imposition and enhancement of a tax on spirits of local manufacture would be of no avail, but that the imposition of a tax on the imported spirits will go very much to abate the evil of drinking. The correspondent also wishes that the authorities should appoint a commission in each presidency for suppressing the vice of drinking.

(k) General.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th December, requests the authorities to furnish the village of Panchamadevi lying on the river Amarávati with a ferry boat. He says that the river in question is subject to sudden floods and under such circumstances, the villagers, who proceed to its opposite bank either for cutting grass or for any other purpose, are unable to return to the village, and, if they happen to be in the middle of the river at the time of the flood, they are obliged to save their lives at considerable risk and expense. The correspondent, after citing the particular case in which a grass-cutter narrowly escaped drowning in the flooding river, thinks that the sanction of a boat for the village in question will greatly help the villagers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 11th, 1896.

Advisability of providing the village of Panchamadevi with a ferry boat.

24. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 12th December, requests the authorities to provide the port of Pulicat with an additional boat for facilitating the boat traffic between Pulicat and Coromandel (Karumanal). He complains that one boat is insufficient to meet the heavy traffic between the said places.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Dec. 12th, 1896.

Necessity for an additional boat at Pulicat.

25. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th December, is of opinion that the new rule passed by the Government of India with regard to newspaper book-posts, namely, that for every newspaper not exceeding twenty tolas an half-anna label may be affixed from the 1st January 1897, gives no advantage to the native press, for the reason that the vernacular newspapers rarely weigh twenty tolas. The paper suggests that, if newspaper book-posts weighing ten tolas are allowed to be affixed a postage stamp of three pies and those weighing less a postage of one pie, the measure would benefit the native press which now so largely contributes to the education of the masses.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 15th, 1896.

A remark on the order passed by the Government of India regarding newspaper book posts.

26. The same paper complains that the draft rules framed by the Board of Revenue underAct III of 1895 (Hereditary Village Officers Act) have not been translated into vernaculars although it is more than a month since they were published in the Gazette. The paper says that, as the said rules materially concern the village officers only, they alone are competent to express an opinion on the subject. The paper hopes that Government will give the widest publicity to the administrative measures which it proposes to introduce and practically evince its desire to solicit the opinion of the people most interested in the contemplated measures.

A complaint that certain rules of the Board of Revenue have not been translated into vernaculars.

27. A correspondent to the Vibudharanjani, of the 9th December, states that survey operations are being carried on in certain parts of the Agency, and remarks that the ryots cannot obtain justice if the Agency lands requiring settlement of disputes as to title, &c., be surveyed in these days of famine and prays therefore that the operations might be postponed to a future date.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Dec. 9th, 1896.

Survey in the Agency.

28. The Andhraprakasika, of the 16th December, speaking of the intolerable mismanagement of Hindu religious endowments, regrets that Government has undertaken only a partial but not a complete management of them. A complete control might perhaps have aroused popular suspicion and discontent some fifty or sixty years ago, but it would not have such effect now. It is high time, it thinks, for the Government to interfere in the matter of religious endowments, and it humbly suggests that, if Government were not disposed to exercise direct control, it might place them in charge of the local municipalities, the trustees managing the same under the direction of the municipal councils.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Dec. 16th, 1896.

Hindu religious endowments.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 21st, 1896.

Reduction of postage on newspapers.

29. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st December, is glad that the proprietors of the Madras Mail have memorialised the Government of India to fix the postage on newspapers weighing less than 10 tolas at 3 pies, and says that the proprietors of almost all newspapers in India would be grateful if the Government could see its way to grant the prayer.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 16th, 1896.

Kalppakancheri sub-registry office to be removed to another locality.

30. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th December, writes that, as the sub-registry office newly opened at Kalppakancheri in Ponnani taluk is held in a building situated in the middle of the market and bazaars, much inconvenience is experienced by women who go to the office for registration. As a more convenient and suitable building can be easily procured for Rs. 6, which is now paid as office rent, the authorities should attend to the matter.

Wanted a post office at Chokkli in Malabar.

31. Another correspondent in the same issue of the paper invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of opening a branch post office at Chokkli in Kóttayam taluk as the letter-box kept there is not cleared daily but only once a week. He says that the local inhabitants have now to go to Tellicherry, which is nearly six or seven miles away, to send registered letters, money orders, parcels, &c. The correspondent hopes that the postal authorities will pay attention to the matter as it has been already brought to their notice by means of a memorial.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 10th, 1896.

Establishment of a grain-stall in Bangalore by the (Mysore) Government.

32. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 10th December, mentions that a grain-stall has been established by the (Mysore) Government in Nabipet, Bangalore, where, grain is sold at a cheaper rate than elsewhere and says that the establishment of a similar stall at the Civil and Military Station is much wanted and invites the attention of the proper authorities to the subject.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 14th, 1896.

Complaints against the conduct of military pensioners employed in the Civil Departments.

33. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 14th December, states that under a resolution of the Government of India passed at the instance of Lord Roberts, the late Commander-in-Chief in India, military pensioners have been provided with appointments on railways, in municipalities and in all branches of the public service, but unfortunately complaints come from every direction that they are generally dishonest, that some of them who held appointments in post offices and municipalities as letter-carriers and tax-collectors have been convicted of breach of trust and sentenced to undergo imprisonment, and that recently a military pensioner, who held the appointment of storekeeper in the Lunatic Asylum, has been sentenced to imprisonment for theft. It has been held by a high officer that military pensioners commit breach of trust in such a crafty manner that it becomes impossible to detect the offenders and get them punished. The Qasim thinks that all this is due to their indiscriminate appointment without having any regard to their character, and says there are good and bad people in every class. Such being the case, it behoves employers to make thorough inquiry into the character of the persons to be selected and to take some security from them before they are appointed to responsible duties.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Dec. 17th, 1896.

Want of a grain-stall at the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore.

34. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 17th December, states that the people of Mysore are thankfully taking advantage of the grain-stall established by the Mysore Government, but no attempt has been made by the British authorities to reduce prices or to relieve the starving at the Civil and Military Station, and asks whether it is not the duty of the municipality of the place to establish a grain-stall for selling grain cheap. It inquires whether it is human policy to leave the starving people of the Civil and Military Station, who have the honour of being under the British Government, to the mercy of hard-hearted grain sellers.

35. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 21st December, mentions on the authority of a correspondent that recently a full-grown she-goat was devoured by a rock snake, 12 feet in length, while it was grazing on the bund of the tank in Kávérippakkam, a village in the North Arcot district. The snake was afterwards killed and dissected and the devoured goat was taken out of its belly and eaten by the Paraiyas of the place. The Shams, after giving a short description of the said village, says the gigantic bund which was covered with all sorts of thorny bushes and prickly-pear and which gave cover to different sorts of venomous snakes was cleared some years ago when thousands of snakes were killed. Since then bushes have again sprung up harbouring snakes. It finally asks the proper authorities to clear the bund again and offer a reward for killing the surviving mate of the rock snake killed as it causes alarm to the inhabitants.

III.—LEGISLATION.

36. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 12th December, referring to the proposed Malabar Tenancy Bill, remarks as follows :—The tenants in Malabar hold lands on two sorts of tenures, viz., kanam tenure and verumpattam tenure, of which the former lasts for twelve years and the latter one year. Whatever may be the tenure under which a land is held by a tenant, the landlord is at liberty to evict the tenant irrespective of the period of tenure. Owing to this insecurity of tenure, the tenants are greatly disheartened and consequently they take no interest in improving their land at their own expense. Moveover, if they make any improvements they not only do not get adequate compensation for them but have also to lose whatever they have in litigation and other purposes. The unnecessary interference of the landlords is the cause of these troubles and it is to check this that Government ought to adopt means. We do not think that, by putting a stop to melchart (overlease), this can be achieved. Where there is no melchart, there exists a contract system among the landlords which is even more pernicious than melchart. Under this contract system a landlord receives money in advance from another tenant on condition that the former should evict the tenant on the land by a suit instituted at his (the new tenant's) expense and lease it out to him on kanam tenure. No document is executed by the landlord for the money so received in advance which is only secured by a verbal promise, and, owing to the scarcity of land, the tenant has no alternative but to take the word of the landlord. When the suit is over the landlord does not generally lease out the particular land to the tenant who advanced money unless and until he squeezes out of the tenant all he can possibly do. By this practice the landlords enrich themselves, but the tenants are ruined. The prosperity of the tenants cannot therefore be secured by merely putting a stop to melchart. It is only by giving a tenant a permanent right in the land that he can be expected to prosper, and this right should be obtainable by him whenever he takes a land on lease. Landlords should not be given power to evict a tenant from his land on any account except by selling his right in it. If a tenant falls into arrears in respect of his rent or does not pay the proper renewal fee, he should be given a notice to the effect, and, if he does not comply with this notice also, his tenancy right should then be sold in auction before a civil court. Then in that case the landlord can realise his rent in full and the tenant the market-value of his right; but, if, on the contrary, the tenant is evicted he cannot hope to get an adequate price. Some of the landlords say that, if the tenants effect extensive improvements, it is difficult to get buyers, but the loss resulting therefrom cannot in any way affect the landlords alone. So long as there is fixity of tenure it cannot be said that there will be no buyers. Under the circumstances to give an occupancy right to the tenant in the land will not only conduce to the welfare of both the landlords and tenants, but will also improve the land. The fixity of tenure obtained by the tenant should be renewed every twelve years subject to a slight modification in the existing system. The levying of renewal fees depends upon the wealth of the tenant. As agriculture is the only occupation of the Malayalis, they are very eager to get lands at any cost, and so the landlords get a good chance of making arbitrary demands. A restriction should therefore be made in this matter also. It should be in the following manner. One year's rent should be taken as the renewal fee. Then neither parties will be subjected to any loss. The limitation for janmam title is sixty years, and so we do not think that it is necessary to write fresh documents till the expiry of that period. As the kuchit document given by the tenant is kept with the landlord, it will be enough for the tenant if the receipt granted by the landlord for the renewal fee paid at the end of every twelfth year is registered and given him.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 12th, 1896.

Considering that the replies given to the questions put in the Legislative Council are unsatisfactory.

37. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 12th December, refers to the questions asked at the last meeting of the Legislative Council and to the replies of Government thereto and says that there were as usual too many questions, and that some of them were quite absurd and out of place. It also says that the replies given by Government to some of the questions, such as the admission of children of all classes into the railway schools, the training of young civilians as tahsildars, and the taking of minors under the Court of Wards to Ootacamund, &c., are, in the public opinion, equally absurd and unsatisfactory.

Referring to the same subject, the Manorama, of the 21st December, expresses a similar opinion.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Dec. 26th, 1896.

Suggestions in connection with the proposed Malabar Tenancy Bill.

38. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 26th December, referring to the proposed Malabar Tenancy Bill, makes the following suggestions to be carried out in drafting the Bill. There are two kinds of pattam rent levied by the landlords in Malabar—(1) kanapattam (residual rent) and (2) verumpattam (simple-lease rent). The balance paid to the landlord after deducting the cultivation expenses, interest for kanam amount and the revenue is said to be kanapattam. From verumpattam there is nothing to be deducted as interest for any sum. Both these pattams ought to be regarded as the interest paid for the janmam value. Although a scale was formerly fixed for the payment of this interest, yet it is doubtful whether there is now any landlord who acts in conformity with that scale. To squeeze out of the poor tenants as much as possible is the order of the day, and this has pauperised the tenantry. It is therefore absolutely necessary to adopt some remedial measures. It is the opinion of the majority that of the balance, after deducting cultivation expenses and price of the seed-corn, one-third should be allotted to the tenant and three-fifths of the balance then left should go for revenue and the rest to the landlord. No one will say that, in case a proper and reasonable rent is fixed, one-third is not sufficient for the tenant. As there is no fixed system at present for calculating the rent, the matter which ought, to be chiefly considered is how to reduce this to a regular and established scale. Government is now going to fix its revenue and so the landlord's rent should be fixed at a certain proportion of the revenue. If this is done, nobody can possibly take any objection. As the landlord has the right to renew the kanam demise every twelve years, the question to be considered is whether he should not enhance the rent according to the benefit from time to time enjoyed by the tenant. Of course, if the tenant gets more produce, a share of the increase ought to be given to the landlord; but our objection is that it should not be according to the previous scale, for it is owing to the subsequent improvements effected by the tenant that he gets an increased produce. So three-fourths of the increase should go to the tenant and one-fourth to the landlord. As this increased rent is obtained by the landlord without any labour and expense to him, a proportion higher than this can never be given him.

The next question to be considered is how to collect rent from a tenant who falls into arrear. If the rent is in arrear it should be recovered by selling his tenancy right by auction, any balance then left due being realised by selling his moveables. As there is no necessity for prescribing any limitation for such suits, the landlord can proceed against his tenant at any time, and as this becomes applicable only to those tenants who violate the rule it does not matter much how rigorous the law is. If a Bill is prepared on the lines we have suggested there will be no loss and hardship to either the landlords or the tenants and it will be conducive to the prosperity of the district. As the land tenures of Malabar are quite different from those of other districts the special attention of Government should be bestowed upon the matter.

IV.—Native States.

39. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 23rd December, complains that the amildars in Mysore have so many powers in their hands that they have no time to attend to all of them, while it gives them too many opportunities for oppressing the people. The editor hopes that the Government of the State would relieve them of some of these powers and give them time to attend to their revenue work which ought to be their only legitimate duty.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Dec. 23rd, 1896.

The powers of amildars in Native States.

40. In denying the statement of the Bombay Gazette, which was to the effect that "the starving people of the different districts of Mysore are coming in large numbers to the British territories in Dharwar," the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 21st December, says the case is quite the contrary, for the statistics prepared by the district officers in Mysore show that the famine-stricken people of British India are coming to Mysore, but not a single soul has yet left Mysore for British territory. A few weeks ago many starving people had come to Mysore from around Dharwar for procuring labour for themselves and pasture for their cattle; perhaps these might have returned to their respective homes after the recent heavy rain. Notwithstanding it was reported that the number of starving people, who had come from Bellary and other British territories to a single district of Chittaldrug, was 360. What more evidence is required of the good government of Mysore? This State has advanced under the management of the sensible, painstaking and wise Sir K. Seshadri Aiyar as is admitted by the British Government. Hence the above statement of the Bombay Gazette shows what good feelings the Anglo-Indian papers entertain towards the Native States whose management may be far better than that of the territories under the British Government.

Denying the statement of the Bombay Gazette that "the starving people of Mysore are coming to British territories."

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

41. A correspondent to the Desopakari, of the 13th December, states that the Executive Engineer, Gódávari Western Division, suggested the improvement of the drainage channels in Bhímavaram taluk for purposes of famine relief, and remarks that there is no necessity for the same as the crops in that taluk cannot be said to have failed. He considers that relief works are more urgently needed in Yernágudem taluk, where the people are greatly suffering from a total failure of crops and scarcity of drinking water, and suggests that "the construction of a project for the Red canal" would not only promote the happiness of the people but would also increase the revenues of Government, protecting at the same time the Bhímavaram and Tanuku taluks against annual inundation.

Desopakari, Ellore, Dec. 13th, 1896.

Relief works for Yernágudem taluk, Gódávari.

42. The Sasilekha, of the 25th December, believes that there will very probably be famine in these districts. The people are much concerned as they have not had any rains while all other districts had them. The prices are rising although paddy is being brought in largely from Jaipur. There is not only no water for cultivation purposes but drinking water also is becoming scarce. The labouring classes are suffering for want of work on fields. To remove the difficulty, the paper recommends the construction of railway lines from Chicacole to Parlakimedi and from Vizianagram to Parvatipur as a very profitable concern. It is sure that the existing railway companies will bid for the purchase of the same after they are constructed. A further recommendation is also made to construct anicuts on Vamsadhara and Nagavalli rivers like the Pennéru and Sangam anicuts. By these schemes, the paper thinks that the Government lands as well as inam lands would be greatly benefited while the labouring classes could find work.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Dec. 19th, 1896.

Deprecating the custom of levying commissions for cashing currency notes in banks and treasuries.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 19th December, says that if currency notes other than the Calicut notes are taken to be cashed to the bank or treasury at Calicut they are not cashed unless a commission of about four annas is paid to the treasury officers. There is some fairness in levying a commission if currency notes cashed in British treasury are those issued by a foreign Government, but in the matter under reference it is quite improper on the part of Government to levy a commission on notes issued by its own authority in the same presidency and which eventually go to the same treasury. The article hopes that Government will remove this anomaly.

Remarks on the proposed postal rates on newspapers.

44. A leader in the same issue of the paper, referring to the rates of postage proposed to be levied on newspapers posted under the privilege system, says that, if Government really intend doing good to the newspaper editors at large, they ought to increase the weight carried for three pies from three tolas to six.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Dec. 13th, 1896.

Dacoities in Malabar.

45. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 13th December, writes that a day seldom passes without dacoity or house-breaking and theft in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad. Person and property have become insecure. The dacoits not only carry away property, but also inflict severe and heinous torture upon the inmates of the house. In some cases they even outrage the modesty of women. The authorities are trying their best to repress these crimes, but it is of no avail. What would be the fate of the public if the police themselves are beaten and wounded.

The Calicut papers,—the Kerala Patrika, of the 12th December, and the Kerala Sanchari, of the 16th December,—also publish two correspondents' letters in reference to the same subject. The losses sustained in some of the dacoities are estimated to be very great. The people are greatly alarmed at these dacoities and the rumoured Mappila outbreak, and the attention of Government is therefore invited to the desirability of adopting such repressive measures as will restore peace in the district.

A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th December, writes about some six dacoities which were recently committed in the houses of certain Nambudri Brahmans of Walavanad taluk. Property to the value of several thousands of rupees has been lost. The terror-stricken people of the taluk are seriously thinking of leaving it for some other part of the country. Formerly the dacoits used to go to a house at midnight, but now they reach the house they have in view by 7 P.M. or so and commence their depredations, inflicting severe torture upon the inmates of the house including children and outraging the modesty of women. The people say that their life is not worth living. They have no peace of mind. They have no courage to keep a pie with them. They are dreaming of Mappila! Mappila! During the rule of native princes these Mappilas had not the courage to wag their tails. If the Government do not afford protection to the people of this taluk, it will be reduced to great distress indeed. It is reported that at this juncture the Sub-Magistrate's court at Cherpalcheri is to be removed to Ottapalam. This will make matters worse.

Referring to the same subject, a leader in the Manorama, of the 14th December, says that dacoities and robberies are increasing day by day in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad, that only a very few of these are detected and culprits punished, that in cases which are proved only a very small portion of the stolen property is discovered and that a very few of the real offenders are convicted and punished. The Ramzan festival is fast approaching, and there is a general talk that, if precautionary measures are not speedily and promptly adopted beforehand, these dacoities will end in an outbreak which will be even more terrible than the last. The measures suggested by the editor are (1) to transfer elsewhere the police stationed in places where crimes are not detected and to appoint honest and able police officers instead, (2) to take some four or five hundred sepoys from Madras and station forty or fifty of them at each of the affected parts, viz., Manjeri, Pandikad, Tuvar, Kottakal, Tuthakkal, Melattur, Angadipuram, &c., and (3) to take security for good behaviour from persons suspected to be thieves or to be aiding and abetting thieves no matter how respectable they may be.

A leader in the Kerala Chandrika, of the 23rd December, alluding to the above subject, expresses a similar opinion, but suggests that, when the police go to inquire into a dacoity or other grave crimes, a party of sepoys should go with them and that the inspectors and head constables of the Ernad and Walavanad police should be either Europeans or Eurasians.

Authorities to remove the Kallai bar.

46. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 26th December, invites the attention of the authorities to the necessity of removing the bar at the mouth of the Kallai river as it seriously hampers the timber trade that is extensively carried on there. The article regrets to observe that nothing has yet been done to remove the bar though the matter was represented to His Excellency the Governor during his visit to Malabar and His Excelllency personally inspected the bar and promised to do the needful.

II.—Home Administration.

1. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th December, remarking that police officers in the city of Madras freely resort to concocting criminal cases against innocent persons, in view to convince the public more or less of their great power and the danger of incurring their displeasure, says that it is desirable that magistrates should award exemplary punishment on such police officers as are convicted of the offence in order that it may have a deterrent effect on the whole police force.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1896.

A suggestion to suppress the concoction of cases by the police in the city of Madras.

2. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 26th December, hearing of the rumour that the station-house officer of Tiruvádi (B-II. division, Tanjore district) is to be transferred to Arantángi, observes that the people of Tiruvádi, in consideration of the meritorious service rendered by the said officer, wish that he should be retained there for some time longer. The paper thinks it desirable that Government should comply with the request of the people of Tiruvádi.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Dec. 26th, 1896.

A request regarding the station-house officer of Tiruvádi.

3. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 29th December, requests the police authorities of Tiruvárúr to direct police constables to go on beat round the town as the place is infested with wicked characters, who now freely commit theft and incendiarism.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Dec. 29th, 1896.

A request to the police authorities of Tiruvárúr.

4. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 9th January, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar and the Superintendent of Police to the desirability of recommending Kelappa Menon, stamp-vendor in the Calicut Munsif's court, to Government for a reward as he showed great courage in arresting one of the two Mappila thieves who committed theft in his house at night and was about to run away with the stolen property. The thief, Husain, who was caught, tried his best to escape, but Kelappa Menon did not leave him though he was badly handled by the thief. Husain is an absconded thief and has been living for a long time in a house close to the Kallai police station. Yet the fact that he was not arrested by the police hitherto ought to be seriously considered by the authorities. The editor says that Kelappa Menon deserves some recognition at the hands of Government for the bravery shown by him in arresting Husain and handing him over to the police in spite of the injuries caused to him during the struggle between them both.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Jan. 9th, 1897.

Government to grant a reward to Kelappa Menon who caught a thief in the action and handed him over to the police.

5. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 11th January, writes that thefts and robberies are increasing day by day at Ferôk. It appears that it has become difficult for people to go out with money in their pockets. These depredations are alleged to be carried on with the connivance and support of certain so-called respectable and influential men of the place and they in return receive the greater portion of the stolen property. Lately one Cherukatt Achyuta Kurup, who belongs to a respectable family at Ferôk, was not only beaten on the public road, but an attempt was also made to rob him of his money, and the matter is now pending in the criminal court. When a popular and local inhabitant like the said Achyuta Kurup was dealt with in this manner, what would be the fate of others belonging to other parts of the district? It is a matter for regret that the local police do not endeavour to repress these crimes. The rumour is that even the police are afraid of the leader of these depredators. If it is true, how can there be security of person and property in the place?

Manorama, Calicut, Jan. 11th, 1897.

Inefficiency of the Ferôk police.

(b) Courts.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1896.

A request to the High Court of Madras.

6. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th December, observing that nearly 69 original suits on the file of the District Munsif's court of Tiruvárúr have been transferred to the District Munsif's court of Tirutturaippúndi, remarks that such transfers subject the parties to suits to serious inconvenience and unnecessary expense, and hopes that the High Court will give the subject their earnest consideration and adopt measures to lessen the hardship and the expense to which the parties will otherwise be put.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 7th, 1897.

A remark on the decision of the Guntur conversion case.

7. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th January, does not approve of the decision in the Guntur conversion case. It says that the decision is based on two points, namely, the alleged immoral character and the old age of the mother which alone do not constitute sufficient ground for vesting the guardianship of the child in the European missionary lady.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 4th, 1897.

The evil effect of acquitting dacoits so freely by the Sessions Judge of Calicut.

8. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 4th January, writes that there have been several docoities in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad since the last Mappila outbreak, and, as in the majority of cases the police fabricate evidence and the magistrates before whom the culprits are charged commit them to the sessions on meagre evidence, the judge or the jurors, under the impression that whatever the police do is dishonest, acquit the prisoners freely. Owing to these acquittals an impression has been created in the minds of the law-breakers that they will surely be let off by the Sessions Judge if they are committed by the magistrates and many petty thieves have consequently become full-blown dacoits. Unless adequate punishments are awarded in all cases committed to the sessions there will be no diminution in dacoities which are increasing in numbers day by day. The attention of the Sessions Judge, the High Court and the Government is invited to the matter.

(d) Education.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1897.

Lower Secondary examination.

9. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 11th January, referring to the recent Government order, which is to the effect that applicants for posts carrying a salary of below 15 rupees per mensem should have passed the Lower Secondary examination, and in consequence of which no one can be obtained to fill the posts of constables, remarks that the above order is too rigid and that it is impossible to obtain persons who have passed the Lower Secondary examination for constables' posts. It further says that, in some of the police stations of the City Police, unpassed and incompetent persons hold the posts of station officers and draw Rs. 20 to 30 per mensem, which is contrary to the recent orders of Government. Only those persons should be appointed to these posts who have passed the Matriculation examination and the Police test. It is matter for regret that, notwithstanding the fact that there are hundreds of matriculates and persons who have passed still higher examinations available, such disqualified persons are still retained. It suggests to Government that they should be removed from the Police Department and competent and passed candidates appointed in their stead.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Dec. 28th, 1896.

A request to the Negapatam municipality.

10. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 28th December, describing the wretched condition of Kallukara street and Kathachetti street in the town of Negapatam and the inconvenience suffered by the people in consequence, requests the municipal authorities to have them repaired without any loss of time. As regards the sanitary inspector deputed by the municipality to remove railway passengers affected by the bubonic plague, the paper is of opinion that he is not competent to test the symptoms of that disease, and that the appointment of a hospital assistant for the work would seem more desirable.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 29th December, regrets to report that the Tiruvárúr union has directed the removal of Local Fund lights from the town to the great inconvenience and hardship of the people.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 29th, 1896.

Removal of the Local Fund lights from the town of Tiruvárúr.

12. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th January, criticises the administration of the Cannanore municipality. He writes that some of the lamps, roads and lanes are not in good order. If any shed is erected in a compound far away from the public place, legal steps are taken against the owner; but, on the other hand, no notice is is taken of houses built on the public roadside without the sanction of the municipality. Although the chairman or the councillors are not individually responsible for such a state of affairs, yet it is in any case disgraceful for the municipal council of Cannanore.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 13th, 1897.

Unsatisfactory administration of the Cannanore municipality.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

13. A correspondent to the Janamitran, of the 2nd January, draws the attention of the authorities to the impoverished condition of the mirassidars of Tanjore and to the damage done to the crop by the floods, and prays the authorities to collect the kist in eight instalments instead of four.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 2nd, 1897.

A prayer to the authorities regarding the collection of kist in the district of Tanjore.

14. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th January, publishes a memorial submitted to the Collector of South Arcot by the people of Vanur division, in Villuppuram taluk, requesting him to permit them, in consideration of the damage sustained by the crops owing to the failure of rain in the month of November last and also of the severity of famine now prevailing in India, to pay the kist in four monthly instalments beginning from the month of March.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 7th, 1897.

A memorial submitted to the Collector of South Arcot.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th January, says that some of the village officials in Malabar are in the habit of giving receipts in cadjan leaf or on bits of paper for the money paid towards revenue, and remarks that, as this practice affords the said officials facilities for defrauding the tax-payers, the Collector should publish in the District Gazette the order No. 3418 of 1886 sent to the officials of Eramam amsam in Chirakkal taluk by the then Tahsildar Annasami Aiyar to the effect that the receipts given by them for the revenue paid by pattadars should be written in printed forms instead of cadjan leaves or bits of paper and that if they disobey the order they will be severely dealt with. The opinion is expressed that the publication of a notice regarding this matter in the District Gazette will be equally, if not more beneficial to the people than that published by the Collector some time ago in the matter of the registration of vakkalats.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 12th, 1897.

Corrupt practices of village officials in Malabar.

(h) Railways.

16. The Lokopakari, of the 3rd January, in consideration of the prevalence of cholera in the district of Tanjore and Trichinopoly, suggests to the South Indian Railway authorities the advisability of carrying chlorodyne and other cholera medicines in the train and reserving a compartment for the purpose, in order that cholera-stricken passengers may have the benefit of medical help in the train itself.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 3rd, 1897.

A suggestion to the South Indian Railway authorities.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Dec. 23rd, 1896.

17. The Vibudharanjani, of the 23rd December, states that the railway regulations aim only at making as much money as possible from passengers to make the railway companies rich, but fail to look to the comforts of the passengers. Although there are rules that each compartment ought not to hold more than ten persons on the Madras Railway and eight persons on the Southern Mahratta Railway, yet generally twice the number is quietly thrust into it, and the passengers are frequently obliged to quarrel with each other for want of room, while the weak and the lame helplessly give up journeying by rail.

The wailings of the travellers on Madras and Southern Mahratta Railways.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 2nd, 1897.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 2nd January, while inviting the attention of the Madras Railway authorities to the desirability of making Baliyapatam the terminus of the proposed Calicut-Cannanore line, says that the Madras Railway Company, which has undertaken the construction of the line, cannot hope to make the line financially successful unless and until it is extended up to Baliyapatam, a distance of six miles from Cannanore, as it is a place of large business and affords easy communication between South Canara and Malabar.

Baliyapatam to be made terminus of the Calicut-Cannanore Railway.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 4th, 1897.

19. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 4th January, while thanking Mr. Caine for all he has been doing on behalf of the people of India in England, does not approve of the object of his mission to India which it considers to be to have the Abkári Department in India abolished. The editor says that Mr. Caine before he can diminish drinking in India must first put an end to the import of European liquor into India, for it is this which is consumed by the higher classes. As regards the Abkári Department itself, the paper says that the department rather checks drunkenness than encourages it by increasing the price of liquor manufactured in the country. The abolition of the department would involve an enormous loss of revenue to Government without any corresponding good to the country.

The object of Mr. Caine's visit to India.

(k) General.

SATYA VARTAMANI, Pasumalai, Jan. 1st, 1897.

20. The Satya Vartamani, of the 1st January, points out the desirability of having one uniform standard of weight and measure throughout the presidency and remarks that each part of the presidency has its own weight and measures—a state of things which greatly helps the practice of fraud.

Desirability of having one common standard of weight and measure in this presidency.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 3rd, 1897.

21. A correspondent to the Janamitran, of the 3rd January, requests the postal authorities to fix a pillar-box in Mahadeva street, in Tiruvadamarudur, where its absence is much felt.

A request to the postal authorities.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, Dec. 23rd, 1896.

22. A correspondent to the Vibudharanjani, of the 23rd December, remarks that civil, criminal and revenue duties are entrusted to the deputy tahsildar in the Agency tracts, while in other districts even criminal and revenue functions are separated; so people do not obtain full justice. He hopes that the Government will give the subject due consideration and grant the needful redress.

Deputy tahsildars in Agency tracts and their several duties.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Dec. 31st, 1896.

23. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 31st December, says that it has received a complaint from the inhabitants of Chamarajanaggar against the local postmaster, stating that he does not do his duty properly, treats people who come to register letters or present money-orders very discourteously, and annoys them in various other ways. The paper therefore calls upon the postal authorities to attend to this and redress the grievance.

The conduct of the postmaster at Chamarajanaggar in Mysore.

24. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 31st December, says that in Salem the officials superintending relief works refused to admit Panchamas (Paraiyas) and chucklers into the relief camp; but this fact having somehow come to the notice of the higher authorities strict orders were given that relief should not be refused to anybody on the ground of lowness of caste. In spite of these orders the high-caste Hindus in charge of relief camps still throw obstacles in the way of the poor people joining the relief works. The editor therefore hopes that the conduct of such officers would at once be inquired into and they would be made an example of.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Dec. 31st, 1896.

Caste prejudices in famine relief works.

25. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 4th January, says that the alterations made by Government in the privileges under which newspapers are posted are not just and equitable. The article says that no journals in India except the Pioneer will be benefited by the altered rates, for the Pioneer is the only paper that weighs nearly 20 tolas. The opinion is expressed that this increase in weight was effected with a view to do good to the Pioneer, which is the special organ of the Government or rather of the Anglo-Indians. In conclusion, it remarks that no room will be given for any complaint if the Government either raises the weight allowed for half anna from 3 to 10 tolas or prescribes another weight above 3 and below 20 tolas.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 4th, 1897.

Remarks on the alterations made in the privilege postal system.

26. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 9th January, invites the attention of the postal superintendent to the irregularities of the postmen attached to the Alattur post office. As letters, &c., are sometimes entrusted by them to some of the persons who go to the market or bazaars to be delivered over to the addressees, the owners do not get them. The correspondent says that the matter has been represented to the local postmaster, but that he does not take any notice.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 9th, 1897.

Irregularities of postmen attached to the Alattur post office.

27. Referring to the New Year Honours list, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 4th January, remarks that it is matter for regret that the name of no deserving officer of the Mysore State nor that of any Muhammadan of the Madras Presidency has been included in the list and hopes that the claims of the leading members of the Mysore State as well as those of the Muhammadan nobles of Madras will not be overlooked when honours are dealt out in June next, when Her Majesty the Queen-Empress closes the sixtieth year of her reign.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 4th, 1897.

New Year honours.

28. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 11th January, says that famine is raging in the Central Provinces and that there is not a sufficient stock of food there to last even for three months. In spite of this critical state of affairs, there is no one among the councillors of the Viceroy who is able to suggest remedial measures. The Shams regrets that the Viceroy has misrepresented facts to the Home authorities.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Jan. 11th, 1897.

The prevalence of famine in India.

III.—LEGISLATION.

29. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 4th January, refers to the rules published under the Malabar Marriage Act. Under these rules the district registrars of Calicut, Tellicherry, South Canara and Madras and all sub-registrars in the several sub-districts in Malabar and South Canara are appointed to be registrars of marriages; but, as some of the registrars are likely to be Christians, Mappilas or fishermen, the paper disapproves of such registrars registering the marriages of Nayars on the ground of their social inferiority. It is a great pity that, owing to excess of zeal in bringing the Act into force, it was decided to break whatever customs and usages were in vogue. A law providing for the registration of marriages of one class of people by persons belonging to a different class and creed cannot but be unpopular in any country, and it is therefore hoped that this anomaly will be removed at an early date.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 4th, 1897.

Reflections on the rules under the Malabar Marriage Act.

IV.—Native States.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Jan. 13th, 1897.

Salaries of teachers in the Travancore Educational Department to be increased.

30. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th January, writes that although the Travancore Sirkar has introduced several desirable changes in the Educational Department of that State, yet it is a matter for regret that the salaries of teachers have not yet been increased. He hopes that the Sirkar will pay its immediate attention to the matter.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Jan. 14th, 1897.

Riots in Anantapur.

31. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 14th January, says that the ryots of Anantapur having been informed in the District Gazette that good rain might be expected during the year sowed all the grain they had; but having been sadly disappointed they think that the Government is responsible for their losses and have begun to plunder and commit riots.

Famine in Cuddapah.

32. The same paper says that although Government has opened relief works in the Cuddapah district, the people are unable to avail themselves of the relief because the locality where relief works have been opened is too far from their homes and they in their poor bodily condition are unable to walk such distances and are therefore dying in large numbers. In some cases the wages paid by Government are so inadequate that they hardly suffice to keep body and soul together.

Shams-ul-Akhar, Madras, Jan. 4th, 1897.

Remarks on the policy of Lord Elgin regarding the existing famine.

33. Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 4th January, says that the Statesman, of the 31st December, in a long article on the famine in the Central Provinces, states that no sufficient measures have been adopted by Lord Elgin to alleviate the sufferings of the famine-sticken people. The Government inasmuch as it does not exert itself as much as it might to relieve its subjects, neglects its duty and lays itself open to the censure of the world. It is not known what remedial measures have been adopted by the British Government in this respect. Instead of grain a ship full of carrot seeds were sent to India. This shows what wisdom the authorities have. The Statesman further remarks that Lord Elgin informed the Home authorities that there was no necessity for collecting funds in England for relieving the famine-stricken people of India as the Government of India could do what was needed to mitigate the famine raging over a part of India. With reference to the above, the Shams remarks that Lord Elgin has misrepresented facts and thus deceived the Home authorities, as the famine is raging everywhere in India and the people, especially the poorer classes, are much embarrassed in consequence. In conclusion, the Shams observes that it is a pity that the authorities have, instead of concerting relief measures, caused the destruction of the people.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, Dec. 24th, 1896.

Desirability of imposing a tax on horses imported from Australia or poll-tax on Europeans.

34. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th December, hearing that the British Government of Australia imposes a poll-tax of £100 on every Asiatic who settles there, suggests to the Government of India the advisability of imposing a tax on horses that are imported from Australia, or a poll-tax of Rs. 100 on Europeans domiciled in India.

35. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 25th December, reports that, on a certain evening, two Europeans who were drunk were found riding on the pathway lying between the Esplanade and the road near Fort St. George and causing great mischief to the passers-by, such as running their animals at them, throwing off the loads they carried, and startling female passengers, and the like. There were no policemen at hand to stop the mischief. If Europeans are free to annoy people in this manner in the broad light of day, where, says the correspondent, is protection to the poor people of this country ?

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Dec. 25th, 1896.

Mischief caused by two Europeans near Fort St. George.

36. The Janunukulan, of the 26th December, reports that the Manamohana Nataka Company has been giving performances for the last two weeks in the town of Tanjore. The paper seriously objects to the continuance of such performances which detain the audience till an unusually late hour at night and thereby seriously injure public health at a time when cholera is raging in the district. The paper hopes that the district authorities will adopt necessary steps to stop the evil.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Dec. 26th, 1896.

A suggestion to the authorities regarding a certain dramatic company.

37. A correspondent to the Satya Vartamani, of the 1st January, observes that the zamindari of Ramnad is not in a solvent condition, that many of its villages have been sold and mortgaged and that the ryots suffer much in consequence. He says that the mortgagees of villages do not allow the ryots to make use of the forest timber, grass and other vegetable products without payment, rigorously exact the kist and pay no heed to their poverty. The correspondent remarks that during the regime of the rajas the ryots enjoyed many privileges and that, should the present unhappy state of things continue longer, the villagers would have to abandon their villages altogether.

SATYA VARTAMANI, Pasumalai, Jan. 1st, 1897.

State of things in the zamindari of Ramnad.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 7th January, writes as follows :—Can there be such a Viceroy as Lord Elgin ? When owing to the failure of rain all Northern India is suffering from severe famine, the Viceroy alone is calm and says that the distress is not severe as if ashamed to own the existence of famine in the country ruled over by him. Apparently it concerns him little to see millions starving. Yes, starvation and death of the people cannot affect his pay. The subordinate officers of Government from the District Collector downwards to the pettiest village officer will conceal the true state of things and say that there is no famine anywhere. The public press has however been loud in its cry of famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 7th, 1897.

Remarks on the action of the Viceroy and the Secretary of State with reference to the present famine in India.

The same paper, in the same issue, writes as follows:—When the people of England, hearing of the distress prevalent over a vast area in India, offered their subscriptions for the relief of the Indian people and asked the Secretary of State for India to remit them, he replied that measures were being concerted by the Indian Government for adequate relief being given to the distressed people and that he was expecting a reply from the Viceroy and so forth. The telegram sent by the President of the Congress to England, calling for immediate help, and published in the leading journals of that country, roused the attention of the British public to the gravity of the situation in India, and thus pressure was brought to bear on the Secretary of State who has responded sympathetically to the call and promised to remit to India all funds that may be collected for the relief of the Indian people and to arrange for the proper utilisation of the money for the purpose.

The same paper, in the same number, writes again as follows in connection with famine :—The suggestion of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal that seed-grains of different kinds should be bought by the Government of India in large quantities in Europe and America and supplied to the ryots in Bengal did not commend itself to the Viceroy who said that such action on the part of the Indian Government would materially interfere with free trade and prevent merchants from doing their best for importing corn into India from other countries—a policy highly to be deprecated. True, says the paper, that free trade is all important and should not in the least be hampered by any action of Government; but what will the merchants lose by the poor ryots being supplied with seed-grains to enable them to carry on cultivation?

High-handed dealing of the Natal Government.

39. The same paper reports that a telegram has been received that the Natal Government, owing to the agitation made by the Congress, refused admission into its harbours to a steamship which left India last week, carrying native emigrants to that country. The paper asks whether it is reasonable on the part of the Natal Government to treat the Indians in this manner, and whether the Government of India is justified in its attitude of indifference with regard to the sufferings of its subjects in Natal. The paper remarks that it is incumbent on Her Majesty's Ministers to check the high-handed action of the Natal Government.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 11th, 1897.

The Viceroy's refusal to appeal to England for funds.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 11th January, says:—There is a strong feeling against the Viceroy for his obstinate refusal to appeal to the Lord Mayor for funds. It is said that the Viceroy is obstinate because he thinks that any such appeal will reflect great discredit on the Indian administration in general. His councillors advise him not to appeal. The Statesman condemns the policy of the Viceroy and publishes a sad tale with photos regarding the maladministration in the Central Provinces, where it says that more than a lakh-and-half have perished.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Dec. 30th, 1896.

Suggestions regarding the removal of the Kallai bar.

41. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 30th December, says that although the difficulties experienced by the timber merchants at Kallai owing to the bar which is occasionally formed at the mouth of the Kallai river were brought to the notice of one or two Governors when they visited Calicut, it is a matter for regret that nothing has yet been done in the matter. In consequence of the bar there has been a great fall in the local timber trade. If Government renders a little assistance whenever it is necessary, this trade is likely to develop into a large one in the near future and also afford means for thousands of people to earn their livelihood. There will be sufficient water at the Kallai bar provided Government cuts a canal from the Mammalli river somewhere below the Manakkadavu ferry and above the Arappuzhakkadavu ferry and takes it along the side of Karuvathiruthi temple joining it to the Mampuzha. The construction of the canal will not put Government to any great expense, for the distance is only two and-a-half miles and there is only one paramba containing fruit-bearing trees, the rest being only fields of no high value. If a canal is constructed in the manner described above, the obstruction to the flow of water will be removed and the merchants, who now bring down timber by a circuitous route, will be enabled to bring it easily and conveniently through a short one.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 13th, 1897.

Dacoities in South Malabar.

42. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th January, writes that the rumour that the dacoities committed in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad are done by the Mappilas alone is not true, for the recent events have proved that one Govinda Panikkar and some persons of certain respectable Hindu families are also behind the scene. Some eighteen dacoits were arrested in the house of a certain Mappila near Cherpálcheri and they not only admitted that all the dacoities in Walavanad taluk were committed by them but also gave to the police officers some of the stolen properties. That the permanent transfer of a certain official should be closely followed by the arrest of the dacoits, who were till then at large, is, observes the correspondent, a matter for great surprise.

II.—Home Administration.

1. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd January, advises the authorities to cancel the rule,—now promulgated at Kumbakónam in connection with the "Mahamaham" festival,—that persons committing nuisance shall be charged before the authorities and fined then and there, on the ground that the rule, if enforced, will prove a great hardship and inconvenience to the pilgrims that will resort to the place for the festival. He says that, if a person is arrested for committing nuisance and separated from his friends and relations, the latter, not aware of what happens to him, will naturally be induced to search for him, and thus great confusion will be caused during the festival. The correspondent suggests that constables should be posted in all places where people are likely to commit nuisance and should be instructed to guide them to the latrine.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 23rd, 1897.

A certain order regarding the commission of nuisance during the festival at Kumbakónam.

2. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th January, while giving a detailed account of the capture of Kunhormu and four other notorious Mappila dacoits, who were living within a mile of Manjeri, by Mr. Wilkinson, the Assistant Superintendent of Police, Malappuram, assisted by the Inspector Vasu Menon and the European head constable Tomlinson, says that Mr. Wilkinson is not only doing his best to suppress dacoities, but has also become a terror to dacoits and known depredators. The capture of the above five dacoits has been a great boon to the country. The article therefore hopes that Government will carefully ascertain the names of the officials who captured these dacoits or assisted in capturing them and give them fitting rewards.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Jan. 20th, 1897.

Capture of dacoits in Malabar by Mr. Wilkinson, Assistant Superintendent of Police.

(b) Courts.

3. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 19th January, speaking of the multifarious powers vested in the village officer and the inconvenience suffered by the villagers by the arbitrary exercise of such powers, observes that, as there was a surplus balance of three lakhs and forty thousand rupees in the village fund in the beginning of the year 1896, it might be utilised by Government for appointing duly qualified men as village magistrates without saddling them with revenue work. The correspondent also suggests that appeals to divisional magistrates should be allowed on the decisions of village munsifs.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding village officers.

4. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 16th January, invites the attention of the District Magistrate of Malabar and Government to the corruption, high-handedness and oppression of the sub-magistrates in Malabar. It is said that all the sub-magistrates, with the exception of a few, have now begun to take bribes though bribe-taking was at one time put a stop to. If anybody tries to expose their corrupt practices, they somehow get cases concocted against him and remand him and then convict and punish him according to their will. It appears that some of the landlords taking advantage of their intimacy with certain magistrates to whom they have given melcharts or mortgaged their lands have actually concocted cases against their tenants who hold land on some perpetual lease and got it assigned, the tenants under the circumstances having no other alternative but to relinquish their right and hand over the land to the landlords. If these magistrates are allowed to continue their high-handed and corrupt practices for some time more, there will be greater trouble in Malabar than that resulting from dacoities.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Jan. 16th, 1897.

Corruption and high-handedness of the sub-magistrates in Malabar.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 23rd, 1897.

Iniquitous actions of certain judges in Malabar.

5. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd January, writes that some of the judges, with a view to clear the file of their court, either come to the court very early and take up cases and then dismiss them, saying that the parties are not present, or refuse to grant extension of time in appeal cases even under reasonable circumstances, or confirm the original decree, or dismiss the case for some trifling cause or other. Although these methods are not adopted in all courts, yet some of them are said to be in vogue in the Sub-Court, Palghat, and the Munsif's court, Temmalapuram. The correspondent requests the editor to bring the above to the notice of the judges of these courts as their actions are most injurious to the people.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 21st, 1897.

Kasaragod taluk in South Canara to be added to Malabar.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st January, referring to the removal of the Mangalore Sub-Court to Nellore, strongly supports the proposal to add the Kasaragod taluk in South Canara to the Malabar district. The article says that, if the Kasaragod taluk is brought under the jurisdiction of the Tellicherry District Court, there will be no necessity for re-establishing the Sub-Court at Mangalore. Further, it will be a great boon to the people of Kasaragod taluk, who are mostly Malayalis, if the taluk is added to Malabar and if Malayalam, the language spoken by them, is declared the court language of the taluk instead of Kanarese.

(d) Education.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 18th, 1897.

The pay of Dr. J. C. Bose.

7. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 18th January, learns that Dr. J. C. Bose's pay is on the two-thirds scale, and says: "What an irony! Fair Science frowns not on his Indian birth, but the Anglo-Indian Government does."

(e) Local and Municipal.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 9th, 1897.

A suggestion to the Madras municipality regarding the contemplated erection of a market.

8. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 9th January, is glad to hear that the Madras municipality has resolved to erect a new market for the city of Madras at a cost of one or one and-a-half lakh of rupees. The paper doubts whether the structure would have an imposing appearance, as the sum sanctioned is small, and thinks it necessary to allot at least two lakhs of rupees for the purpose.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 9th, 1897.

Complaints against the Tirutturaippúndi union.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 9th January, speaking of the Tirutturaippúndi union, complains that the lighting of the town is unsatisfactory, that some of the public bathing places on the river Mulliyar have no steps, and that Mariyamman Koil street and certain other important streets leading to the said river are in a very wretched condition. He requests the union authorities to attend to the matter here complained of.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 14th, 1897.

Affairs in Chingleput and the apprehension of the authorities.

10. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 14th January, referring to the agitation made by the people of Chingleput with regard to the opening of a municipality in that place, writes as follows:—A deputation, consisting of two hundred persons, waited on the Sub-Collector and represented to him the grievances of the people. The Sub-Collector replied to them that he could not help them in any way in the matter and directed them to address the chairman on the subject. The authorities apprehending that a riot was likely to ensue sent a telegram to St. Thomas' Mount for the despatch of a police force to guard the town. Rumour has it that a military force is also expected. The people all along showed no symptoms of disloyalty, but represented their grievances in a most humble and courteous way. It is also rumoured that the local merchants, owing to their inability to pay enhanced tax, have resolved to close their shops and abandon the town altogether. If no hearing is given to their just representation, Government alone will be to blame.

11. A correspondent to the Janamitran, of the 23rd January, complains that the three roads leading from Védárannıyam to Tirutturaippúndi are in a wretched condition and that the authorities concerned pay little or no attention to their repair.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 23rd, 1897.

Wretched condition of certain roads leading from Védárannıyam to Tirutturaippúndi.

The same correspondent complains that passengers using the boats which ply in the canal at Negapatam experience great inconvenience, worry and trouble from the boatmen and that it behoves the authorities to adopt remedial measures promptly.

12. The Susilekha, of the 19th January, states that the Cooum river and the fort ditch will very soon begin to stink, and that, unless it is prevented, pestilent fevers, &c., will rage and pave the way here for the plague which devastates Bombay. It hopes that Government will take precautions.

SUSILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1897.

The Cooum river and the plague.

13. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 25th January, speaking of the increasing virulence with which the plague is spreading in Bombay, says that, while some places are preparing against the coming of the disease, nothing is being done in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore to prepare the place against an attack of the fell disease.

KARNATKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 25th, 1897.

The sanitation of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore.

14. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 18th January, says that cholera has broken out in several parts of Malabar and that in the Calicut municipality the epidemic is very largely prevalent. Out of two hundred attacks, nearly one-hundred and fifty have proved fatal. If the municipality had taken proper precautions, there would not have been so many deaths. Several roads and lanes in the municipality are filthy, and it is therefore no wonder if the disease spreads rapidly. There is no time for the chairman to visit all these places, and the councillors very seldom come out at this time for fear of the disease. If the authorities do not thoroughly inquire into the extent of the disease as well as the correctness of the mortuary reports and adopt precautionary measures, cholera is not likely to leave the town of Calicut so soon.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 18th, 1897.

Cholera in Calicut municipality.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th January, referring to the contest between Mr. Narayana Kurup, B.A., B.L., who is practising in the District Court of Tellicherry, and Mr. Fernandes, head clerk in the Sub-Collector's office, for the chairmanship of the local municipality, remarks that it is not praiseworthy on the part of Mr. Fernandes to aspire to the office of municipal chairman. The article says that Mr. Fernandes should withdraw his candidature; if he does not, the Sub-Collector ought to prevail upon him to do so, or at least the councillors who support him ought to do what justice and expediency require under the circumstances.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 27th, 1897.

The Tellicherry municipal chairmanship.

16. The Manorama, of the 25th January, and the Kerala Sanchari, of the 27th January, say that Mr. Dance, the Collector of Malabar, disallowed the re-nomination of Mr. K. Kristna Nayar, B.A., B.C.E., a member of the Taluk Board, on the ground that he lodged a complaint against the Calicut police for having detained his carriage on the public road. The papers, while condemning the action of Mr. Dance, invites the attention of Government to the matter. Mr. Kristna Nayar was, it appears, a useful member on the board.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 25th, 1897.
KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Jan. 27th, 1897.

Why Mr. Dance, the Collector of Malabar, disallowed the re-nomination of Mr. Kristna Nayar, a member of the Taluk Board.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

17. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th January, writes in English as follows:—"We request the Government to insist on its district officers to show more sympathy for the ryots in their present condition. A correspondent

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Jan. 15th, 1897.

A request to Government regarding the collection of kist.

from Kávérippákkam in the North Arcot district complains of the excessive zeal and vigour with which the collection of kist in the taluk is prosecuted."

(h) Railways.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 16th, 1897.

A suggestion to the South Indian Railway authorities.

18. A correspondent to the Janamitran, of the 16th January, does not like to see male and female passengers promiscuously mingling together at a crowded booking office, as they are now obliged to do, even in such an important junction station as that of Tanjore. He requests the South Indian Railway authorities to open a booking office and an egress gateway at the station of Tanjore exclusively for the use of female passengers.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Jan. 25th, 1897.

Salaries of the employés on the Madras Railway to be regularly disbursed.

19. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th January, referring to the inconvenience experienced by the low-paid employés on the Madras Railway owing to their late receipt of their salaries every month, invites the attention of the Agent and Manager to the necessity of taking early steps to have their salaries regularly disbursed.

(i) Public Works.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 14th, 1897.

A hint to the Irrigation Branch, Public Works Department.

20. The Swadesamitran, of the 14th January, pointing out how agriculture forms the chief source of livelihood for the people of Southern India and how produce of agriculture entirely depends upon the irrigation of the fields under cultivation, regrets to observe that the authorities of the Irrigation Department seldom spend the whole sum sanctioned for a particular work, or pay sufficient attention for securing water in tanks in times of rain which may serve as good reservoirs of water-supply during a season of drought. The paper hopes that the authorities will in future spare no pains to store water in tanks whenever it is available and bestow particular attention to their repair.

(k) General.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 9th, 1897.

A complaint against Mr. Murugesam Pillai, Deputy Collector of Tanjore division.

21. The Janamitran, of the 9th January, complains that Mr. Murugesam Pillai, Deputy Collector, Tanjore division, holds his cutcherry in his own house to the great inconvenience of parties and pleaders. The paper wishes that such a procedure should be avoided in future.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1897.

Desirability of exempting newspapers from postage.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 16th January, after pointing out how newspapers serve to dispel the ignorance of the masses and enable them to appreciate the administrative acts of Government, says that the high rate of postage now levied operates to check wide circulation of newspapers. The correspondent requests the authorities to exempt newspapers from postage altogether even as is done in America.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1897.

A remark on the construction of railways by Government in these days of famine.

23. The Swadesamitran, of the 19th January, does not like that Government should spend its revenue in opening railways in these days of famine, while it can profitably utilise that sum in carrying out works of irrigation which may serve to mitigate the severity of famine.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Jan. 19th, 1897.

The General Hospital, Madras.

24. The Susilekha, of the 19th January, remarking that the General Hospital, Madras, is maintained by India and not by England, expresses its surprise to hear that native gentlemen are not allowed there as in-patients, while European gentlemen are admitted as such, being also allowed to occupy officers' quarters till recovery on payment of some fees. It is at a loss to see why the natives are not allowed to enjoy the same privilege, and is sorry that, though it is maintained at people's cost, it is shut against them and they are denied the said privileges It doubts whether such can be the orders of the Government, and hopes His Excellency the Governor may consider this matter deeply; otherwise, Members of the Legislative Council must, it says, interpellate on the subject.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Dec. 1896.

Mr. Atkinson, the Collector of Kistna.

25. The Hindujanasamskarini, for December 1896, says there is a rumour that Mr. Atkinson, the Collector of Kistna, is not kind to the people, that he treats them very harshly, that he imposes income-tax very unjustly, that he tortures the ryots and drives them away from their homes by prohibitory taxes and seeks opportunities to oppress the principal members of the district and taluk associations. It complains that the Collector had made a report to the Revenue Board and Government stating that there was no famine when the people were actually starving and that he made the industrial school maintained by the District Board at Bezwada serve the interests of Christians as if it were a missionary school.

A contrast between the Travancore and British Government.

26. The same paper says that in the Travancore Government taxes are very low and therefore the subjects are very happy and peaceful, while the British Government, which thinks that it is allwise and does not care for the people's good-will, increases all sorts of taxes. It is sorry that this procedure will one day bring ruin to it.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 23rd, 1897.

Jamabandi.

27. The Andhraprakasika, of the 23rd January, regrets to find that no good can result from jamabandi either to Government or the ryot, but that it affords opportunities for Government servants, from the tahsildar down to the village karnam, to extort bribes from the poor ryots. The prayers of the ryots are generally unheeded, and, if at all heard, the reply from the jamabandi officer is that he cannot interfere in the matter, or that he will consider the same in future. Remissions are supposed to be granted, but they are never really granted to any ryot.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 23rd, 1897.

Salaries of postmasters, &c., to be increased.

28. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 23rd January, invites the attention of Government to the necessity of appointing educated men on higher salaries as village postmasters and also of increasing the number of post-peons attached to the post offices. The article suggests that, instead of appointing many postmasters on less salaries, it would be better to reduce the present number of postmasters and give them higher pay and also to increase the number of post-peons. The report for 1895–96 shows that there is a large saving in the department and the reform above suggested could be easily effected without any extra cost to Government. If the pay of the postmasters is increased, educated and competent men, who would satisfactorily and diligently discharge their duties, would be readily available, and then the complaints now made about the irregularities of post-peons in the matter of delivering letters, &c., would be a thing of the past.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 20th January, while reviewing the administration report of the Indian Postal Department for 1895–96, expresses a similar opinion.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 14th, 1897.

The prevalence of famine in India.

29. Referring to the statements of the Financial Member of the Government of India and of His Excellency the Viceroy made recently as regards the prevalence of famine in India, in which His Excellency promised to make a request through the Secretary of State for collecting funds in England for the relief of the famine-stricken people of India, the Qasim, of the 14th January, thanks His Excellency for the promise and says the condition of the starving people of the affected parts of India is such as to deserve sympathy. The relief afforded to them by the Government is insufficient and this being the case the collection of subscriptions in England is not only a matter of necessity but also of obligation.

ALHAMI, Madras, Jan. 17th, 1897.

The bubonic plague.

30. Referring to the bubonic plague, which is raging in Bombay and which is now beginning to spread, the Alhami, of the 17th January, fears that it will possibly reach Madras also, and hence hopes that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock will adopt suitable measures preventing it from reaching Madras.

The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 23rd January, mentions that a man has died of the bubonic plague at Tellicherry, and, attributing the causes thereof to refugees from Bombay, suggests to Government that measures be taken to prevent inhabitants from leaving Bombay, so that the plague may not reach Madras and other places.

The same paper states that it has been held by the Marine Surgeon of the Government of India that the inhabitants of Bombay should not be allowed to leave Bombay until the plague has been completely suppressed. Referring to this, the Hindustani (place of publication not known) remarks that, if the Government adopts the suggestion as it is likely to do, it is feared that the city of Bombay will be completely destroyed.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 10th, 1897.

The state of Native Princes under Political Agents.

31. The Lokopakari, of the 10th January, instancing the sad fate of the Raja of Jellawar, remarks that Native Princes in India are almost in a state of serfdom under Political Agents, because of the large powers vested in the latter, and that this unhappy state of things indirectly affects the well-being of the people living in Native States. The paper thinks it desirable that the powers of Political Agents should be greatly reduced.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 16th, 1897.

The Honourable Mr. Sankara Nayar to be appointed Diwan of Travancore.

32. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 16th January, referring to the Diwanship of Travancore, says that, as there are several reforms to be introduced in the administration of that State, a foreigner who has no relations of any sort in Travancore and who is capable, resolute, independent, and conversant with the customs and usages of the country should be appointed to the post when the present Diwan Mr. Sankara Subbaiyar retires. The Madras papers, especially the Madras Mail has strongly advocated the appointment of the Honourable Mr. Sankara Nayar as Diwan, and this must be due to Mr. Sankara Nayar possessing all the above qualifications. The opinion is expressed that the appointment of Mr. Sankara Nayar as Diwan will be hailed with joy by the people of Travancore in general as well as by the local officials. The article deprecates the idea of appointing Mr. Kristnasami Rao, Chief Justice of the High Court, as Diwan on the ground of his want of independence and force of character and also his old age and want of knowledge of administrative matters. The hope is expressed that the Maharaja will be guided by the popular sentiment in the matter of appointing a successor to Mr. Sankara Subbaiyar, and His Highness' choice will fall upon a deserving and proper person.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Jan. 11th, 1897.

The Sirkars of Travancore and Cochin to subscribe for the native papers published in those States.

33. The Nazrani Dipika, of the 11th January, has a long article on the usefulness of vernacular newspapers. The article says that the encouragement given by the States of Travancore and Cochin to the editors of newspapers published in those States is not as much as might be expected, nor are they bestowing much attention upon the contents of those papers. It is suggested that both the States should buy and furnish all heads of departments with a copy each of the newspapers published in their respective States, so that the officials may know the grievances and requirements of the people often ventilated through them.

34. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 16th January, invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the desirability of supplying drugs to the dispensaries in that State. It appears that almost all the hospitals and dispensaries, except those in important towns, have run short of useful medicines and those constantly required for the last six months, and the patients resorting to them are obliged to go disappointed. The article, after dwelling upon the matter at some length, urges the Sirkar to devote at least a portion of the large sums of money hoarded in the State treasury for the preservation of the health of the people from whom they have been collected.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Jan. 16th, 1897.

Want of drugs in hospitals and dispensaries in Travancore.

35. Another leader in the same issue of the paper, referring to a case now pending in the First-class Magistrate's court at Kóttayam, in which a mortgage-deed was registered by false personation, invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the necessity of introducing the new system of taking finger-tip impressions in documents for purposes of identification of parties.

System of taking finger-tip impressions to be introduced in the Travancore Registration Department.

36. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st January, says that, as under the new stamp regulation in Native Cochin almost all documents are required to be executed on stamp papers, the demand for such papers has become very great. The number of stamp-vendors appointed in the State being very limited and the vendors themselves being scattered far and wide, the people, especially those in the interior, have no reasonable facilities for purchasing papers. The article therefore suggests that the Sirkar should appoint one vendor in each pravarti (village) in the State, and further remarks that, if the suggestion be carried out, a greater number of stamp papers will be sold and the income derived by the Sirkar under the head will consequently be increased.

KERALA MITRAM, Calicut, Jan. 21st, 1897.

The Cochin Sirkar to increase the number of stamp-vendors.

37. A leader in the Nazrani Dipika, of the 20th January, referring to the insanitary condition of some of the important towns in Travancore and Cochin and also to the unsatisfactory way in which the conservancy system now in force in those States is worked, invites the attention of the Sirkars to the necessity of introducing British municipal laws in both the States.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanum, Jan. 20th, 1897.

The British municipal laws to be introduced in Travancore and Cochin.

38. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th January, bitterly complains that some Muhammadan graves in the Hyderabad Residency bazaar have been converted into a public latrine to the great annoyance of the Muhammadans and attributes the cause thereof to the utter neglect of the present Prime Minister of Hyderabad, who, it says, burdens the subjects of the State with heavy taxations, grants increments to his favourites and confers very high appointments on foreigners to the great prejudice of the Muhammadans. It finally draws the attention of the Resident to the matter complained of, and requests that officer to direct that the latrine may be removed and the graves be enclosed.

TILISM I-HAIRAT, Madras, Jan. 15th, 1897.

Conversion of some graves in the Hyderabad Residency as a public latrine.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 27th, 1897.

Distress in the Gódávari district.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Jan. 18th, 1897.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 18th January, says that the famine is most severe in the Central and North-Western Provinces and that it is to be feared that the authorities in the former country are not alive to the responsibilities thrown upon them. The paper expresses great satisfaction that private charity in England has come to the aid of India and hopes that a regular organisation will be formed to distribute the money thus collected, so that it may be used for the relief of those who cannot for some reason or other join relief works. It believes that during the last famine a good deal of money fell into hands that ought not to have received it and hopes that such misappropriation will be prevented this time.

The Indian famine.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SATYA DUTAN, Madras, Jan. 1897.

41. The Satya Dutan, for January 1897, says that in the State of Denmark there is a law making it obligatory on the part of Government to protect poor artisans, who are above sixty years of age, by granting them a pension. The paper thinks it advisable to have a law similar to it passed in India.

A special law in the State of Denmark.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 9th, 1897.

42. A correspondent to the Janamitran, of the 9th January, reports that the palace affairs in Tiruvadamarudúr are badly managed, as Bavani Bai Sahib, the widow of the late Raja of the place, is a strict gosha lady. The correspondent requests Government to appoint an efficient person to manage the palace affairs and also to adopt measures to enable Bavani Bai Sahib to do such acts of charity as she pleases.

A request to Government to appoint a manager to look after the palace affairs in Tiruvadamarudúr.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1897.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th January, regrets to report that Mr. Gandi, who advocates the cause of the Indians in Natal, on landing in Natal, was rudely treated by the Europeans of the place, and remarks that such brutal treatment reflects great discredit on their civilisation.

Rough treatment sustained by Mr. Gandi in Natal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 21st, 1897.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 21st January, complains that Government does not allow the natives of India, however great their birth and station in life may be, to join the volunteer corps and reserves the higher appointments in the Police, Salt and Abkári Departments to Europeans only. The paper regards this policy of Government as the outcome of the mistrust which it entertains towards the natives of the country. The paper further says that the British Government has been ruling over India for over a period of one hundred years, during which time it has had ample opportunities to understand the people aright, and that it is a wonder that Government should yet cherish such a feeling of mistrust.

Mistrust entertained by Government in the natives of India.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras Jan. 23rd, 1897.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd January, writes as follows:—Government has spent away the accumulated balance of the famine relief fund—a collection intended to relieve the poor and distressed in times of famine—in Kabul expedition and in supplying the Amir and his son with all their requirements. Now when famine is raging in India, Government pleads poverty and feels unable to help the distressed people and drives them to the extreme necessity of appealing to British charity. Government ought to reduce its military expenditure, put a stop to the grant of compensation allowance, and thus, by all possible means, increase its resources and help the people instead of leaving them in starvation and despair.

An advice to Government regarding the impending famine.

46. The same paper writes as follows:—One year's drought and failure of crops have caused a severe famine. This fact sufficiently proves the extreme poverty of the people and their declining material condition.

A remark on the Forty Years' Review.

This is a bitter commentary on the conclusion arrived at by the author of the Forty Years' Review, Diwan Bahadur Srinivasa Raghava Aiyangar. How true, on the other hand, is the assertion of Mr. Naoroji that India is miserably poor.

47. The Hindujanasamskarini, for December 1896, says that it is unjust that the post office should press the proprietors who enjoy newspaper privileges to pay postage for three months in advance. It begs the Government to extend the privilege from three tolas to at least five tolas, and to issue orders to post offices to receive the postage only when each issue of the paper is posted.

The newspaper privileges.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Dec. 1896.

48. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 27th January, says that Indian women are taken from the Negapatam harbour to foreign countries to be sold there for immoral purposes. Unless this kind of slave trade is put down with a strong hand, says the editor, India cannot rise high in the scale of civilisation.

Slave trade in India.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Jan. 27th, 1897.

49. The same paper says that the appointment of the Honourable Mr. Bhashyam Aiyangar as Acting Advocate-General has given great satisfaction to all natives of India and that the Government of Madras is entitled to their hearty thanks.

The Acting Advocate-Generalship.

50. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 25th January, reviews the Government order on the last Mappila outbreak in Malabar. It points out that Mr. Winterbotham, who is ever ready to attribute the Mappila outbreak to agrarian discontent, has himself admitted in his report embodied in the above Government order that, on a careful inquiry, he has ascertained that the agrarian discontent was not the cause of the particular outbreak. Yet Mr. Fawcett, the District Superintendent of Police, Malabar, who figured so conspicuously in the Calicut torture case, has in a long essay recorded, among other matters, that the oppression of landlords is the chief cause of the outbreak, and this essay, with an endorsement of the Inspector-General thereon, has also been incorporated in the report. It is a great misfortune to Malabar that Mr. Fawcett, who is a penman and who has the knack of making true things false and false ones true, was not transferred from the district along with his companions Mr. Moberly and Dr. Carruthers.

Reviewing the Government order on the last Mappila outbreak.

I.—Foreign Politics.

Indians in Natal.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th February, speaking of the refusal of the Secretary of State for the Colonies to interfere with the Government of Natal on behalf of the Indian emigrants, who are ill-treated there, says that this refusal is very unsatisfactory. The colonists ought not to have been given the liberty to prevent British subjects from settling in their countries. The objection of the colonists seems to be that the Indians, who settle there, do not spend the money earned by them in the colony, but send a part of it to their own native land. If this were a good objection, says the paper, Englishmen ought to be made to spend in India every pie they earn in this country. The way in which Indians are treated in Natal at the present time is a disgrace not only to the colonists but also to the people and Government of England.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Feb. 8th, 1897.

The Czar's attempts to win over the people of India.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st February, says that it is a remarkable circumstance that in St. Petersburg a concert has been held under the patronage of the Czar on behalf of the famine-stricken people of India and that large quantities of Russian grain from the State depôts will be sent to this country. This is interpreted by the paper as preparing the way for the Russian propaganda in Asia.

II.—Home Administration.

Advisability of posting constables on beat at paracheries.

3. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd February, complains that a riot between two sections of Paraiyas living in Valaparacheri, Madras, ensued on the 29th January at about half-past one in the afternoon, when stones were very freely exchanged and one of the Paraiyas was seriously injured, so that he bled profusely. The correspondent is surprised to see that there was not a single constable to go to his rescue although the police station was within two furlongs from the scene of the said riot. The correspondent suggests the desirability of posting a constable on beat at paracheries as riots are likely to break out in such places.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 2nd, 1897.

Dacoities in Malabar and the police.

4. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th February, says:—Owing to the special attention bestowed upon the affected taluks of Ernad and Walavanad by the authorities, there is now a great diminution in the number of dacoities in these taluks. Although the majority of the dacoits are the poverty-stricken Mappilas, yet there is no doubt that there are some influential men to back them up. Without the strong support of some influential men it is impossible for these Mappilas to commit so many dacoities and retain the properties. As the majority of the village police are the dependants of these influential men, the latter have no reason to be afraid of the former. Owing to the mischievous propensities of the Mappilas, the word law-breaker has become identified with the names of that class; an impression has therefore been created in the minds of some of the influential members of other classes that whatever crimes may be committed by them the blame will be thrown upon the former. As the Mappilas have earned a bad reputation, opportunity has been afforded to other classes to do anything. Some of the influential Nayars of Ernad and Walavanad and their followers have become more notorious depredators than the Mappilas themselves. Almost all the people know thoroughly well that these are the real offenders, but, as they are afraid of the latter and as the police secretly support them, they are very reluctant to give out the names of these publicly. As the district officers, the military and the police are moving from place to place in these taluks, there is a temporary cessation of dacoities in them; but, if the dacoities are to be completely repressed, it is absolutely necessary that the authorities should arrest the above influential men and deal with them severely as far as the law permits.

A correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes that although several men have been arrested by the police in connection with dacoities and riots, yet the police arrest and torture some of the respectable and innocent men alleging that they have received stolen properties from the dacoits and let them off in case they give bribes to the police. This is a matter for great regret. The correspondent gives two instances in which two persons, one a Mappila and the other an oil-monger, were so arrested and tortured at the instance of certain Nayars and then let off when each of them gave bribes to the police.

(b) Courts.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Regretting the rumoured transfer of Mr. O'Farrell, District Judge of Calicut.

The grievances of the accused under trial.

6. A leader in the same paper says to the following effect:—It is the common custom to remand to jail the accused under trial in the Sub-Magistrates' courts in some cases as soon as they are arrested and in others after framing the charge-sheet. Although, after the examination of the witnesses for defence and the hearing of the arguments of vakils, it may be proved that the accused is not guilty, yet it is the general practice of the magistrates to keep him in jail until judgment is pronounced by them. It is needless to say that this is a great grievance to the parties. It is very unjust that innocent persons should suffer for the delay or neglect of the magistrates. If the magistrates discharge their duties justly and with a feeling for the sufferings of others, the parties would never be put to such trouble. It is surprising that the circumstances above referred to have not come to the notice of the higher authorities. In conclusion, the article hopes that the Collector, the Sessions Judge and the Government will pay special attention to the matter.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Feb. 1st, 1897.

Mr. P. Rajaratna Mudaliyar, the newly-appointed Fourth Presidency Magistrate.

7. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 1st February, mentions that Mr. P. Rajaratna Mudaliyar, who was appointed as Fourth Presidency Magistrate, assumed charge of his office on the 25th ultimo, and remarks that the Mudaliyar is a highly qualified and well experienced officer.

(d) Education.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Feb. 1st, 1897.

A request to Mr. N. Vaidyanadha Aiyar regarding the annual reduction of pay of schoolmasters.

8. The Lokopakari, of the 1st February, while thanking Mr. N. Vaidyanadha Aiyar of the valuable service he has rendered to B.A. students in causing the repeal of a certain bye-law, which required failed students to join colleges again, requests him to plead before Government the cause of teachers of schools also. It says that Law students do not scruple to accept any teacher's post for a small pay and this induces the managers of schools to reduce the pay of permanent teachers year after year without paying the least consideration to their past services, and that this annual reduction of pay works a hardship on teachers.

9. The Janamitran, of the 30th January, remarks that teachers of salary result schools in the district of Tanjore get very low pay, hardly sufficient for their own sustenance, and that they are obliged to purchase registers about half-a-dozen times a year and pay postage, &c., from out of their own petty salary. It further says that the said schools are not well provided with ordinary school furniture and that the absence of peons for those schools increases the hardship of the teachers.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Observation regarding the salary result schools in the district of Tanjore.

10. A correspondent to the same paper reports that Mr. Marsden, Inspector of Schools, compels the teachers of schools to buy his text-books even as Dr. Bradshaw used to do. He asks whether there is no remedy for this way of making extra income.

A complaint against Mr. Marsden, Inspector of Schools.

(e) Local and Municipal.

11. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 30th January, draws the attention of the municipal authorities of Bangalore to the insanitary condition of the slaughter-house of that place which is unfortunately located in the most crowded part of the city.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Insanitary condition of the slaughter-house in Bangalore.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Chairmanship of the Tanjore municipality.

13. A correspondent to the same paper complains that cess-pools in the streets of Negapatam are not properly cleaned and this facilitates the outbreak of cholera.

A complaint against the Negapatam municipality.

14. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd February, reporting that cholera is severe in Coimbatore, suggests to the medical authorities that it is desirable that the bedding and clothing of cholera patients should be carried in air-tight tubs to some distant and uninhabited place and should be reduced to ashes there rather than be allowed to be burnt in the very residence of the patient, as such a procedure is likely to facilitate the spread of the disease.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 2nd, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the prevalence of cholera in Coimbatore.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 31st January, regrets that Mr. K. Krishnan Nayar, B.A., B.C.E., who was a member of the Calicut Taluk Board, was not renominated by the Collector at the expiration of his term though Mr. Krishnan Nayar was asked whether he liked to be renominated, and he replied that he was willing. The article, after dwelling upon the matter at some length, requests Government to grant the public the privilege of electing at least half the members of taluk boards, as otherwise local self-government will be a farce.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 31st, 1897.

Taluk boards to be given elective franchise.

16. The Alhami, of the 7th February, with reference to the proposed demolition by the Bombay municipality of the mosque at Narulwari (in Bombay), remarks that this palpable encroachment on the religious rights of Muhammadans or undue interference in religious matters is likely to produce very serious results and is certain to irritate Muhammadans greatly. The Alhami urges the municipality to abandon their insensate project and suggests that Muhammadans should one and all appeal to Government for the redress of their grievances in this matter.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 2nd, 1897.

A remark on the collection of kist in the taluk of Villuppuram.

17. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 2nd February, regrets that the authorities in the taluk of Villuppuram collect kist in that place with great rigour notwithstanding the heavy damage sustained by the crops by the severe drought of last year. It is the heavy assessment and severity in the collection of land revenue that so impoverish the people as to reduce them to starvation when the rains fail even during a single year.

(h) Railways.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Jan. 26th, 1897.

A request to the South Indian Railway authorities not to overcrowd compartments during the ensuing Mahamakam festival at Kumbakónam.

18. The Lokopakari, of the 26th January, referring to the ensuing Mahamakam festival at Kumbakónam, particularly requests the railway authorities not to allow overcrowding in the railway compartments, as is generally done in times of festival, for overcrowded carriages not only cause great inconvenience to the passengers, but facilitate the outbreak of epidemics. The paper wishes that the South Indian Railway authorities should see even in ordinary days that each compartment is occupied by not more than eight passengers as in the Madras Railway.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 26th, 1897.

Advisability of constructing urinals in the third-class carriages of the South Indian Railway.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th January, reports that, on the 20th January, as the mail train which left Cuddalore was passing midway between Madurántakam and Pattalam stations, a third-class passenger opened the door of the carriage in view to enable his child to ease itself, and that, as the child lost its balance, it dropped down from the carriage and was picked up dead. The paper remarks that, owing to the absence of a urinal in the third-class carriages, passengers are obliged to open the doors, and requests the South Indian Railway authorities to provide third-class carriages with urinals even as is done in the third-class carriages set apart for female passengers.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Mr. Caine's charge that Government encourages drinking among its subjects..

20. The Swadesamitran, of the 30th January, publishes an extract from the article written by Mr. Caine and published in the Abkári, in which Government is charged with encouraging drinking among its subjects and refers to facts and figures in support of this statement of Mr. Caine. The paper remarks that it is the bounden duty of the people to take steps to prevent Government from encouraging drinking.

(k) General.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 16th, 1897.

A request to the authorities regarding the relief works at Jammalamadugu in Cuddapah.

21. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 16th January, feels sorry to learn that coolies working in the relief works at Jammalamadugu in Cuddapah are obliged to walk daily a great distance to reach their scene of labour, and requests the authorities to adopt measures to avoid such hardship.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 26th, 1897.

A complaint against the Serishtadar of Chittoor.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th January, complains that the present Huzur Serishtadar of Chittoor is bent upon appointing his own relations in the collectorate, that he did the same while he was serishtadar in the districts of Bellary and Cuddapah, and that, in order that he may exercise his authority over the whole district, he declines to accept a Deputy Collector's post when it is offered to him.

23. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th January, reports that the gun practice in the Fort battery has seriously affected the walls of the new High Court buildings and that many cracks have been formed in them, which render the structure unsafe. The paper says that the edifice was constructed at a cost of sixteen lakhs of rupees and that it should be incapable of withstanding the vibrations caused by the gun practice in the Fort speaks very much against the engineering skill of those responsible for its stability. The paper blames Government for squandering its revenues on such weak buildings, while it is unable to render a little to help the poor in times of famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 28th, 1897.

Damage caused to the walls of the new High Court buildings.

24. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 23rd January, observes that the rulers of the Native States of Mysore and Hyderabad send their leading officials to such parts of their territory as are affected by famine and direct them to relieve the famine-stricken subjects, be the cost of relief what it may. The paper wishes that the same policy were tried in the Madras Presidency also.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 23rd, 1897.

A suggestion to Government regarding famine relief.

25. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 30th January, objects to the sale in the Madras markets of dates imported from Bombay as thereby the plague may be imported into Madras. The caution adopted by the postal authorities of disinfecting letters coming from Bombay may be wisely extended to all articles likely to spread the infection.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Inadvisability of selling dates imported from Bombay.

26. A correspondent to the Janamitran, of the 30th January, referring to the ensuing Mahamakam festival at Kumbakónam, makes the following suggestion:—That one or two postal clerks be stationed in some central building in the town, such as the office of the registrar of births and deaths, and be required to receive letters for registration and money orders, &c.

JANAMITRAN, Tanjore, Jan. 30th, 1897.

A suggestion to the postal authorities.

27. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 6th February, hears that the Sub-Collector of Vellore, on a prayer made by the Muhammadans of that place, permitted them to use a certain mosque which had been closed for public worship for a long time on account of a riot that took place several years ago; but, as the loud noise of the devotees was unbearable to him, he has withdrawn his permission and the mosque has again been closed for public worship. The irregular procedure of the Sub-Collector, or other officer who is responsible for this, requires the attention of Government.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Feb. 6th, 1897.

A request to Government regarding a certain mosque in Vellore.

28. The Andhraprakasika, of the 30th January, referring to the order requiring Tahsildars and Deputy Collectors to keep saddle horses and to the present practice of these officers going to sleep in their carriages while touring and submitting false reports of inspection, suggests that it would be advantageous to substitute horse allowance in the place of travelling allowance and recommends that the same might be allowed to the Deputy Tahsildars also.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Equine equipage.

29. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st February, after pointing out that the present famine in India will necessarily cause a considerable reduction in the revenue for some years to come, suggests that savings may be effected in one or two directions. It says that the army is too large, and, as Mr. Caine says, ten British regiments may be dispensed with. The native army might also be cut down to a great extent. The country is now covered with railways and troops could be sent with ease from one part of the land to another.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 1st, 1897.

Famine expenses—how they may be met.

In the next place, says the editor, many of the salaries are too high and could with much propriety be cut down. They are higher than the country can pay and are believed to be higher than in any other country in the world, and this too when the country is one of the poorest in the world. Then again there are many useless establishments which might be abolished without the least inconvenience to the country or to the Government.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 6th, 1897.

The Officiating Advocate-General of Madras.

30. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th February, is glad to notice the appointment of the Honourable Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar as the Officiating Advocate-General of Madras and remarks that, as His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock has, by appointing Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar, removed the doubt whether a vakil can fill that office which has been hitherto held by a European barrister, the people of India should be ever grateful to His Excellency.

Referring to the same subject, the Kerala Chandrika, of the 10th February, expresses a similar opinion.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 28th, 1897.

Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick and the grain-sellers.

31. Referring to a remark of His Honour Sir Dennis Pitzpatrick to the effect that the grain-sellers, who had been storing up grain in large quantities in the hope of selling it at famine prices and thus making their fortunes, had been committing a great blunder and would possibly suffer loss, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 28th January, remarks that the Muhammadans consider a king for the time being as the shadow of God, whereas the Hindus consider him only as a tenth part of Ishwar (God). No man can deny that none can be a ruler of hundreds of thousands of people without the special favour of Almighty God, and hence anything proceeding from the mouth of such a high personage must have some truth in it. Likewise, the Qasim observes that His Honour's prophecy has been fulfilled, and these grain-sellers, who disregarded his advice, are selling the grain which they collected at a loss in consequence of the recent rains.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Jan. 20th, 1897.

Bubonic plague.

32. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 20th January, says the bubonic plague, which has been prevailing in Bombay for the last four months and committing great havoc there, has also spread to Karachi, Poona and Surat. Such being the case, if effectual preventive measures are not adopted, it is feared that it will spread throughout the length and breadth of India. The heaven-born people of Europe, it says, do not mind its spreading here; but they fear Europe may become a second Bombay, and, to avoid the infection, a notification has been issued by the European monarchs that no commodities shall be imported into their countries from the affected ports. The European monarchs are adopting every possible measure to prevent the disease reaching Europe, but it is a wonder that no effectual preventive measures have been adopted in India. Thousands of terror-stricken people are leaving Bombay for other towns—Bangalore, for instance, where it is feared the disease will break out in consequence. It is not known whether the refugees are detained in quarantine and their clothes, &c., are disinfected. The placing of a hospital assistant at railway stations with orders to find out whether any infected person comes from Karachi or Bombay is defective, inasmuch as no infected person will admit that he has been attacked by the plague. The report submitted by these hospital assistants to the effect that no affected person has up to this time arrived is entirely untrustworthy. It is therefore advisable that a high medical officer with some subordinates may be placed at the railway station of each city for the purpose of carefully examining the passengers from Bombay, Karachi, Poona, &c., and placing them in quarantine for at least four days.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Jan 30th, 1897.

Picture of the prophet at the Calcutta Museum.

33. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 30th January, quotes an item from the Paisa Akbar, of Lahore, as follows:—The Superintendent of the Calcutta Museum is perhaps unaware that Mussalmans are not pleased at seeing the pictures of their prophet Muhammad, and from a religious point of view consider that to keep or even to look at a picture of the prophet is a sin. They regard a picture of this sort as a reproach to their religion. To hang pictures of this description in the Calcutta Museum grieves by the heart many loyal subjects of Her Majesty. The editor of the Paisa says that he himself saw the picture of the prophet and of the two imams, Hasan and Husain, among the other pictures in the museum and that the picture of the prophet represented him as beardless and having long moustaches. It need scarcely be said that such a representation is simply absurd and preposterous and shows the stupidity and ignorance of the artist.

34. The Alhami, of the 7th February, in an article on the dismissal from the Ceylon Civil Service of Mr. Lee Messurier, who has lately embraced the religion of Islam, regards with regret the action of the British Government and Parliament and their refusal to his repeated remonstrances against the harsh and unjust order passed in his case, and remarks that it is incumbent upon the British Government to protect and uphold the religious interests of all parties; but, on the contrary, its action in the case of Mr. Lee Messurier casts a slur on the fame and justice of the British Government and offends the religious feelings of all Muhammadans. The article winds up by saying that Muhammadans condemn the action of Government in the case in question.

ALHAMI, Madras, Feb. 7th, 1897.

Mr. Lee Messurier of the Ceylon Civil Service.

35. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 8th February, mentions that the Englishman, referring to the bubonic plague, remarks that traders have suffered a heavy loss in consequence of the plague and they will suffer still more if it continues, and hence suggests to Government the adoption of every possible remedial measure and the expenditure of as much money as is required for the purpose.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Feb. 8th, 1897.

The Englishman and the bubonic plague.

The Shams, in concurring with the above suggestion of its contemporary as reasonable, observes that the development and progress of every empire depend entirely upon education and trade.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

36. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st February, speaking of the statement that the Resident of Hyderabad has a sum of a lakh and sixty-five thousand rupees ready to be handed over to the Nizam as surplus revenue of the Berars, asks if there is no means of obtaining a guarantee from the Nizam's Government that the surplus will be spent for the benefit of the people of Berar, who paid the revenues, and will not be squandered away for the pleasure of the Nizam himself or for the benefit of his favourites.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 1st, 1897.

The surplus revenue of the Berars and the Nizam.

37. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 6th February, requests that the Government would be pleased to publish the report made by Mr. Biddulph on his inspection of the accounts in the office of the Comptroller, Mysore.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Feb. 6th, 1897.

Inspection report upon the accounts in the Comptroller's office, Mysore.

38. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 11th February, speaking of the administration of the Native States generally, says that the Native States form an important portion of India, and, when they were independent, their sovereigns were in constant dread of enemies and were therefore obliged to secure the good-will of their subjects by good government lest these latter should rise and overthrow their sovereigns with the help of other Rajas. Now that the British Government has given to every State absolute security from all enemies, external and internal, the native sovereign does not feel himself bound to his subjects for anything but his revenue, which he can exact from them with the British power on his back. The subjects cannot revolt against the oppression of their sovereign without incurring the wrath of the British Government. The Rajas can therefore act pretty much as they please with their subjects, and, when the Political Agents

VRITTANTA PATHIKA, Mysore, Feb. 11th, 1897.

The administration of the Native States and the British Government.

sympathise with the subjects as against the ruler, a cry is raised that the Political Agents are unnecessarily interfering with the internal administration and annoying the ruler. Thus good administration in a Native State has become a mere matter of chance. The native Rajas of the present day do not think it necessary to take any part in the administration of their States. Once, when a certain Raja was asked why he was always travelling away from his province, replied that he was not a daily labourer working to earn his wage. Such sovereigns look upon their States as their own personal property and think that their subjects pay taxes for their personal enjoyment.

It is, therefore, incumbent on the British Government to bring these sovereigns to a sense of their responsibility, to make them feel that they are the paid servants of their subjects, that they should give an account of their stewardship every year, and that they should always live among their subjects and that the good administration of their province is their bounden duty.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Feb. 10th, 1897.

Extraordinary powers granted to Mr. Plowden.

39. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 10th February, is informed that Mr. Plowden, Resident at Hyderabad, has obtained from the Government of India power to go into any telegraph office and see all telegrams received within the State. He has further ordered that all telegrams received by any of the newspapers should be submitted to him before being published. The editor remarks that people are disgusted with the arbitrary powers exercised by the Resident in a province belonging to a native Prince.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, Feb. 1st, 1897.

Cochin Sirkar to discontinue the practice of catching elephants at its expense.

40. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 1st February, while deprecating the practice of the Cochin Sirkar catching elephants from the State forests at its own cost, says that, as the expenses involved in catching elephants sometimes exceed the sale-proceeds thereof, it should be left to private enterprise, a royalty being levied per head of elephants so caught. If the Sirkar adopts this method, it could grant the waste lands now reserved for catching elephants for cultivation to persons who had applied for such lands times without number, and thus get additional revenue.

Vagaries of the Changanasseri police.

41. A correspondent in the same issue of the paper invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the vagaries of the Changanasseri police. It appears that illiterate persons, such as Pulayas and Paraiyas, who take vegetables, firewood, &c., to be sold in Changanasseri market, are very much harassed by the local police if they refuse to part with the things at the prices offered by the latter. The correspondent adds that the oppression of the police has become more intolerable than that of a gang of Mussalman bad characters who live by plundering these poor persons of what they carry to the market for sale.

Cochin Sirkar to pass an Abkári law in that State.

42. Another correspondent in the same issue of the paper says that, as there is no law at present in the Native Cochin for controlling the administration of the Abkári Department or for the collection of the abkári revenue, the abkári contractors make their own rules for the conduct and guidance of sub-contractors, toddy-drawers, &c., and levy such rates from vendors as are determined by themselves. As this anomalous practice affords ample facilities for the contractors and sub-contractors to oppress the toddy-drawers and levy fees from them arbitrarily, it should be put a stop to. It appears that, owing to the illegal and exorbitant demands of these contractors, even riots have occurred occasionally. The correspondent therefore invites the attention of the new Diwan of Cochin to pass an Abkári law at an early date.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Recommending the nomination of certain gentlemen as Fellows of the Madras University.

43. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 30th January, while remarking that the nomination by Government last year of Mr. Sankara Subbaiyar, Diwan of Travancore, and Mr. Govinda Pillai, a Puisne Judge of the Travancore High Court, as Fellows of the Madras University, says that, as the time for nomination of Fellows this year is fast approaching, it will not be out of time now to mention the names of some more distinguished gentlemen deserving that honour, and cites the names of Martanda Varma, B.A., First Prince of Travancore, Mr. Nagam Aiyar, B.A., Settlement Peishkar, Professor Sundram Pillai, Mr. Thanu Pillai, M.A., Chief Secretary to the Travancore Sirkar, Mr. Kuruvila, a retired Engineer of Travancore, and Mr. Ponnan (Barrister-at-Law), the late Zilla Judge of Ernakulam.

44. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th February, writes that cholera is largely prevailing in and around Tiruvillamalai in Native Cochin, and invites the attention of the Sirkar to the desirability of establishing a hospital there and of deputing some medical men on cholera duty till that epidemic subsides.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 6th, 1897.

Cochin Sirkar's attention invited to cholera prevailing in Tiruvillamalai.

45. A leader in the Malayala Manorama, of the 6th February, says that, as it is quite inadvisable to appoint persons other than those employed in Civil Courts as commissioners for estimating the value of improvements, &c., claimed by parties to suits, the High Court of Travancore should invite the attention of the zilla judges and munsifs in that State to the necessity of discontinuing the practice of appointing outsiders as commissioners and of submitting to it a list containing the names of clerks and others in their courts who are competent to act in the capacity of commissioners.

MALAYALA MANORAMA, Kóttayam, Feb. 6th, 1897.

Remarks on the appointment of commissioners in civil suits.

46. Another leader in the same issue of the paper referring to the irregularities in the Registration Department in Travancore invites the attention of the Sirkar to the matter, especially to the corruption prevailing in the copying department.

Irregularities in the Travancore Registration Department.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

47. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 4th February, says that the havoc caused by famine and cholera in the Central Provinces can be judged from the number of deaths occurring there. In the district of Jabalpur, out of a total population of 76,000, so many as 27,000, died of starvation and 20,000 of cholera.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Feb. 4th, 1897.

Severity of the famine and cholera in the Central Provinces.

48. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 6th February, says that, although relief works have been opened in Cuddapah, the suffering people cannot avail themselves of them as the place where such works are opened is situated at a great distance from the homes of the sufferers, many of whom being unable to walk the distance die on the way or in their homes. In many cases the famine wages are so low that they are quite insufficient for the maintenance of the sufferers.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Feb. 6th, 1897.

The unsatisfactory state of the famine relief in Cuddapah.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

49. The Swadesamitran, of the 26th January, regrets that the Government of India has sanctioned for the Madras Government only a crore and twenty thousand rupees—a sum which is only a half of what was sanctioned during previous years—for being spent on public matters. The paper thinks that this sum would not be sufficient to meet the requirements of this presidency in matters concerning the giving of grant, Public Works, &c., and requests the members of the local Legislative Council to pay heed to this subject.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 26th, 1897.

A hint to the members of the local Legislative Council regarding the sum sanctioned by the Government of India.

50. The same paper is glad to hear that Legislative Councils are to be opened in Burma and the Panjab from the 1st of May. It says that from its first sitting the Congress has been urging upon the attention of the authorities the desirability of giving to the Panjab and Burma a local Legislative Council and a High Court. The paper regrets however to learn that the members of these councils will not be representatives of the people, but will be appointed by Government. The paper hopes that the Central Provinces may soon be given a local Legislative Council, that the Panjab may have a High Court of its own, and that Burma may enjoy the benefit of a University.

Opening of Legislative Councils in the Panjab and Burma.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Jan. 28th, 1897.

Observations on the proposition moved by Sir William Wedderburn at the last meeting of Parliament.

51. The Swadesamitran, of the 28th January, regrets to learn that the proposition moved by Sir William Wedderburn at the last meeting of Parliament for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the sufferings of the Indian people caused by sowcars (money-lenders), heavy taxation, and court fees was lost. The paper observes that Sir William Wedderburn is fully acquainted with the actual condition of the people of India and that his assertions therefore cannot be incorrect. The paper further says that it is a fact that the bulk of the people in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay are on the verge of insolvency owing to heavy taxation, and mentions, in proof of the statement, the present famine caused by a single year's drought.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Feb. 8th, 1897.

A remark on the Ecclesiastical Department.

52. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 8th February, regrets that Government should spend every year nearly Rs. 34,00,000 on Ecclesiastical Department—a large sum which might be conveniently utilised in relieving the famine-stricken poor. The paper says that Government is not justified in lavishing its revenues in this manner and appealing to British charity under the pretext that famine in India is the result of excess of population.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Madras slave trade.

53. The Andhraprakasika, of the 30th January, regrets that some merchants in Negapatam are exporting slaves to Rangoon and that the police secretly connive at the same. It states that these slaves are young women of lower classes, purchased from the villages in the neighbourhood of Negapatam. They are taken to Burma under some pretext or other and there sold to the highest bidders at private auctions to be kept by them as their concubines. It refers to a case in which a Negapatam woman is in the possession of a Paraiya in the Government kitchen at Rangoon and another in the possession of some other person in the cantine (?) cantonment. The Government is therefore earnestly solicited to put a stop to this horrible trade by issuing strict orders to the police and customs officers in Rangoon, Madras and Negapatam to closely inspect every ship arriving at, or leaving, those ports.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 2nd, 1897.

Traffic in slaves.

54. The Sasilekha, of the 2nd February, referring to the same subject, prays that Government may put a stop to this traffic in slaves.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Jan. 30th, 1897.

Unauthorised establishment and collection of a toll by a private individual near Temmalapuram in Palghat taluk.

55. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 30th January, writes that, under the orders of Kannampra Nayar, a toll of four annas is levied on all carts passing over a certain bridge on the foot-path leading from Kannanurpattola amsam in British territory to the Cochin State. The bridge in question was out of order and it was repaired by the said Nayar. It may, perhaps, be owing to this that he levies the toll above referred to. The land, where the toll is levied, is the janmam property of Kannampra Nayar and lies within the British territory. As it is not in conformity with the policy and justice of Government that any private person should establish and collect an unauthorised toll like this, the matter is brought to the notice of the Collector and Government through the medium of this paper in order that it may be put a stop to.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Feb. 1st, 1897.

How to put a stop to Mappila outbreak ?

56. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 1st February, while reviewing the Government order on the last Mappila outbreak, says that the statement of Mr. Fawcett, in his essay on the Mappila outbreak, embodied in the Government order, that agrarian discontent is the cause of the Mappila outbreak is quite incorrect. The article gives a translation of the war song sung by the fanatics which Mr. Fawcett has extracted in his essay, and remarks that one of the effective measures for putting a stop to these outbreaks is to appoint educated Mappilas, such as Syyed Sanavulla Mukkti Tangal, to give lectures in the affected taluks on the true principles of Islam, to translate the Koran into Malayalam and to print and distribute it among the Mappilas in order to make them understand that the preachings and writings of the ignorant mullas are quite unfounded and absurd.

Public ferries in Malabar.

57. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 10th February, referring to the next auction sale of public ferries in Malabar, says that although the ferry rules framed by Government are good and beneficial, yet in the administration of those rules great irregularities prevail. It appears that the renters do not keep a sufficient number of boats in readiness at each side of the ferry, and passengers, animal and goods are unnecessarily delayed. As mails and Government servants are expeditiously ferried over, the authorities have no opportunity to realise the extent of the inconveniences and difficulties to which the passengers, &c., are put by the renters. As some of the renters do not employ an adequate number of men to work the boats, the passengers themselves have to work them sometimes. The article, in inviting the attention of the Collector of Malabar to the desirability of taking steps for removing the irregularities above referred to, suggests that the men employed to work the boats should be appointed and paid by Government, the sum so paid being credited to the account of the ferry contractors.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 25th February, says that the Russian project of constructing a railway through Siberia will make the Russians practically masters of the whole of Asia, and with China and Japan as their allies they can conquer any country they like on the continent.

Trans-Siberian railway.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Feb. 25th, 1897.

2. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 22nd February, publishes a rough sketch map of the Turkish empire and Greece, and states that Greece, which was formerly under the Sultan of Turkey and afterwards declared independent by the European powers, has been sending troops to Crete against the Sultan with the intention of annexing the island; recent telegrams, a translation of which it inserts, show that Greece has been exceedingly disrespectful to the Sultan and the powers. The editor does not know what will happen after the despatch of Turkish troops and war vessels to the island, but thinks that the powers will interfere and prevent the breaking out of hostilities, which, if declared, will tend to a general war.

II.—Home Administration.

(b) Courts.

3. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 22nd February, regrets to hear that there is no such harmony between the district bench and the bar at Calicut as could be desired. It appears that, when one Sivarama Kristna Aiyar, District Court Vakil, was arguing a case before Mr. O'Farrell, the District and Sessions Judge, some dogs began to bark from outside the court compound, and the Judge, who, as is widely known, could not bear any noise, even that of a crow, seemed to have remarked: "I cannot hear your arguments unless the barking of those unlicensed vakils outside is put a stop to." If what the Judge is alleged to have said to the vakil is true, it is doubtful whether there is any more aggravated form of insulting that could be offered to a vakil. It had been frequently brought to the notice of the editor that Mr. O'Farrell more or less ridiculed the vakils of his court at different times, and these vakils patiently and coolly submitted to it. As this remark of the Judge has enraged the vakils, who are already in a state of excitement by the constant sarcasms and abuses from the bench, some of them recently convened a private meeting for the purpose of concerting remedial measures. The opinion is expressed that, if the District Judge did really say so, he ought to withdraw his remarks.

The Calicut bar resenting certain remarks of the District Judge, Mr. O'Farrell.

Manorama, Calicut, Feb. 22nd, 1897.

The Kerala Patrika, of the 20th February, referring to the same subject, condemns the conduct of Mr. O'Farrell and remarks that, as it is the innocent parties who have to suffer on account of the strained relations between the bench and the bar, the High Court ought, as a matter of necessity, to bestow its attention upon this affair.

4. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th February, says:—The Quilandy Sub-Magistrate is a Graduate in Arts. In a case, which was recently tried at his residence, he had to examine a Pulaya (slave). The magistrate thought that even on the occasion of trying a case, according to the English laws, he could not, at the end of this nineteenth century, violate the Hindu custom which requires a Pulaya to stand at a distance of sixty-four feet from a Brahman. We know, as a matter of fact, that the Pulaya in question was ordered to stand at the distance enjoined by the custom and examined through the medium of a court peon. Although this procedure is allowed in Cochin and other Native States, the attempt to put it into practice in British territory is rather audacious or inconsiderate.

(d) Education.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Feb. 25th, 1897.

Tax on private school-buildings and play-grounds.

5. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 25th February, says that the resolution of the Madras Board of Revenue to tax buildings and play-grounds of private schools is very unjust.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Feb. 27th, 1897.

School Inspectors and text-books.

6. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 27th February, speaking of the question asked at the last meeting of the Madras Legislative Council concerning text-books published by Inspectors of Schools, says that the question elicited something not very creditable. The paper is of opinion that though there is always a danger of Inspectors using their influence with the managers of schools to get a good sale for their books, yet it cannot be denied that Inspectors of Schools are by their experience best fitted to bring out text-books to meet the requirements of the schools within their circles.

(e) Local and Municipal.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Feb. 10th, 1897.

Wretched condition of a certain portion of the Salem frontier road.

7. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 10th February, describing the wretched condition of that part of the Salem frontier road, which extends from the 54th to 73rd mile, requests the authorities concerned to repair the said road and to plant avenue trees on both sides of it.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 11th, 1897.

Bad condition of a certain road leading from Palamcottah to Nágalápuram.

8. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th February, draws the attention of the authorities to the bad condition of the No. 2 road leading from Palamcottah to Nágalápuram viâ Vilathikulam, and requests them to get it repaired so as to make it fit for traffic.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 4th, 1897.

Inadvisability of exacting Government dues from the ryots of the Gódávari district.

9. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, requests Government to take a lenient view of the memorial submitted by the managing committee of the District Board of Gódávari, describing the severe damage caused to the crops by the floods in the month of August and the heavy loss sustained by the ryots in consequence and pointing out the inadvisability of exacting from the ryot land-tax and water-cess under such circumstances. The paper says that nearly 40,000 acres of nanjai land and 10,000 acres of punjai land were severely damaged by the floods and the whole district of Gódávari has been reduced to a state of pauperism, and that, in these circumstances, it would be extreme hardship to the ryots if they should be made to pay the land assessment now.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 9th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the transfer of patta to the heirs of a deceased pattadar.

10. The Swadesamitran, of the 9th February, dilating on the various disadvantages of the present joint patta system, is glad to learn that Government, in view to avoid the great delay which is now made by revenue officials in cases of transfers of pattas, has ordered the tahsildars and other revenue authorities to give their special attention to such cases. This order, the paper says, will remove a great hardship.

The same paper observes that, in the case of a patta being transferred to the heirs of a deceased pattadar, Government generally transfers the patta to the heir who manages the family to the exclusion of the other members. As this system gives rise to many inconveniences and difficulties in the collection of kist, &c., it is suggested that, in such cases, the patta should be transferred to all the heirs jointly, and that the Revenue Regulations should be modified accordingly,

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 18th February, describing the poverty of the ryots living in Malayankulam in Madurántakam taluk caused by the failure of crops, thinks it desirable that the authorities should postpone the collection of kist in that place till the next harvest season.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 18th, 1897.

A hint to Government regarding the collection of kist at Malayankulam in Madurántakam taluk.

(h) Railways.

12. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 13th February, reporting that cholera has broken out in Vadakkancheri, requests the authorities to subject the railway station of Shoranur to a quarantine, and also to appoint there an hospital assistant to treat persons who may be suffering from cholera.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 13th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the outbreak of cholera in Vadakkancheri.

13. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th February, invites the attention of the Traffic Manager, Madras Railway, to the inconveniences experienced in getting passes for goods booked at the Tanur station. The correspondent adds that, if the station employés are not given bribes, they receive the freight of the goods from the consignors and order them to present themselves the next day for the pass. It appears that, if the goods are left at the station, the contents thereof are partly extracted by the porters.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 20th, 1897.

Complaint against the railway employés of the Tanur station.

14. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 22nd February, states that, on the 9th idem, on the arrival of a passenger train at the Hyderabad station, some passengers reported that, while coming from Wadi, they lost some six thousand rupees in cash and jewels, and says that thefts like this rarely occur on other lines for the reason that the police keep passengers on the alert awakening those who are asleep every now and then. The Shams suggests the immediate adoption of the same measure on the above line.

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Feb. 22nd, 1897.

Theft in a passenger train.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

15. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th February, writes as follows:—In the district of Kurnool there is very little sale for toddy at present owing to the prevalence of famine. Toddy shops have been leased at low rates; but the vendors, though paying for the license, are obliged to close their shops, as there is little consumption of toddy. The abkári rules require that a licensed vendor must keep his shop open. The Collector of the district, Mr. Mullaly, in spite of the recommendation of the Deputy Collector, Mahdi Husain Sahib Bahadur, insists on a strict compliance with the rule. This proves a hardship on the lessees, for they have to pay at high rates to the owners of toddy-drawing trees, draw toddy, keep it unsold, and throw it away. None benefits by the strict enforcement of the rule, while the contractors suffer a heavy loss. In a time of famine like this, poor people deserve consideration.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 4th, 1897.

A severe order of Mr. Mullaly, Collector of Kurnool.

16. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th February, publishes a newsletter in which it is stated that, when the Sub-Inspector of Salt and Abkári, Manantoddy Range, inspected the local liquor depôt, he found some difference in the strength of the liquor in the depôt and that sold in shops. The sub-inspector accordingly brought a charge against the depôt-keeper, but curiously enough the depôt-keeper was let off by the sub-inspector the next day on the ground that it was not a case in which he could be charged. The writer of the article says that he is at a loss to understand why such a clear case detected by the sub-inspector was given up, and hopes that the inspector will see to the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 13th, 1897.

Complaint against the Sub-Inspector of Salt and Abkári, Manantoddy.

(k) General.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Feb. 10th, 1897.

A request to the postal authorities.

17. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 10th February, suggests to the head of the Postal Department the advisability of making the experimental post office at Sirupakkam in the taluk of Vriddháchalam a permanent office, with a peon for delivering letters.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 16th, 1897.

A remark on the attitude of Government regarding the suggestions of Mr. LeFanu, Famine Commissioner.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 16th February, does not like that Government should disregard the suggestions of Mr. LeFanu, the Famine Commissioner, who is earnestly working to afford relief to the famine-stricken people. The paper remarks that it is unseemly that Government should indulge in finding fault with his suggestions.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 18th, 1897.

A suggestion to Government regarding the publication of fortnightly reports on vernacular newspapers.

19. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th February, suggests that reports on vernacular newspapers, submitted by the various Translators to Government, should be published once a week instead of once a fortnight as at present. The same paper requests the said Translators to represent to Government the grievances of the ryots caused by famine by giving an accurate translation of the salient portions of the account given in the vernacular newspapers.

Delay by the Board of Revenue in the disposal of the memorials submitted by the ryots for the postponement of the collection of kist.

20. The same paper asks the Board of Revenue why it has not as yet disposed of the several memorials submitted by the ryots praying for the postponement of the collection of the arrears of kist due for the current fasli year. The paper remarks that such long delay in the disposal of the memorials must cause heavy grievance to the ryots, especially at a time when they feel themselves unable to pay their Government dues owing to failure of crops, and the revenue officials are very active in the work of collection. The paper hopes that the subject will attract the notice of Mr. LeFanu, and calls on the English press and the Government Translators to help the ryots by representing to Government their grievances which are really unendurable.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Feb. 22nd, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the famine.

21. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 22nd February, thinks it advisable that schools and colleges in Madras should be moved to subscribe for the Famine Relief Fund even as was done in Bengal at the suggestion of the Director of Public Instruction of that province.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Jan. 1897.

Income-tax in North Arcot.

22. The Hindujanasamskarini, for January 1897, observes that the Head Quarters Deputy Collector, North Arcot, imposed an income-tax of Rs. 245 on the Zamindar of Bangarupálaiyam and dismissed his appeal for default a few days after it was filed without giving him any notice of the date of its hearing. The paper hopes that the Government will take the matter into consideration.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 13th, 1897.

Irregularities in the Manantoddy post office.

23. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th February, publishes a correspondence inviting the attention of the postal authorities to the inconvenience experienced by the people going to the Manantoddy post office to buy postage labels and embossed envelopes. It appears that, whenever the people go to the post office, the doors of the office are found to be shut and they have therefore to return disappointed.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 20th, 1897.

Promotions in the Registration Department.

24. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th February, invites the attention of the Inspector-General of Registration to the injustice done to M. S. Rama Pattar, B.A., who has been a clerk in the District Registrar's office, Calicut, for the last three years nearly and who has passed all the departmental tests for the post of a sub-registrar, by the overlooking of his claims in filling up five vacancies that had from time to time occurred in the Malabar district since he entered the department. This Rama Pattar is said to have acted as sub-registrar on three or four occasions, but he has not been given a permanent sub-registrarship nor a promotion in the clerical line.

The Manorama, of the 22nd February, referring to the same subject, expresses a similar opinion.

Patan murderers.

25. The Qasim-ul Akbar, of the 11th February, writes that a Patan killed with a dagger Mrs. Band, the wife of a signaller of the telegraph office at Lahore, while she was coming out of some shop, and that, on seeing this, the husband attempted to seize the dagger, but the Patan dealt him a severe blow on his hand and escaped. A native pluckily seized the murderer who confessed his guilt and made a statement before the magistrate that he had come from Peshawar to kill all the Feringhis (Europeans). The editor regrets that these "wild frontier Patans" invariably commit similar crimes and that Government takes no steps whatever to prevent them.

QASIM-UL AKBAR, Bangalore, Feb. 11th, 1897.

Enlistment of natives in the volunteer force.

26. The same paper, in mentioning with great pleasure on the authority of the English newspapers that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock has sanctioned, as a tentative measure, the enlistment in the Madras Volunteer force of Mr. C. Sankara Nayar, Narayana Rao and M. Venkatasami Nayudu, observes that the gentlemen selected are not congresswallahs and that presumably their fidelity was tested by Government prior to their enlistment, and hopes that they will prove themselves second to none in fidelity to Government. In conclusion, the Qasim hopes that Government will sanction the enlistment of some more deserving and capable gentlemen in the volunteer force.

Murder at Rawalpindi.

27. The same paper writes that Lieutenant Powell, of the 23rd Pioneers, at Rawalpindi, having lost his box and gold watch, suspected his Gurkha servant of the theft of the articles and reported the matter to the police. The police arrested the butler, who afterwards admitted the theft. The police, thereupon, asked him to show the place where he had secreted the articles. The culprit along with three police constables went to his master's bungalow. Here he took up a revolver, shot one of the constables who died, and wounded the other two. Thence he proceeded to his own house, shut the doors, killed his wife and finally shot himself. With reference to the above, the editor remarks that crime of this kind is still rampant in Rawalpindi city, and this proves the carelessness of the police at Rawalpindi which in this case resulted in the loss of five lives.

The Muhammadans and the British Government.

28. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 15th February, quotes as follows an article from the Overland Mail:—"The Indian Muhammadans are with great enthusiasm making preparations to celebrate the jubilee of the sixtieth year of the reign of Her Imperial Majesty. The action taken by England against the Sultan of Turkey in connection with the recent Armenian atrocities has slightly hurt the feelings of the Moslem subjects of Her Majesty, but they have at last come to the conclusion that the above action was not intended to extirpate or injure the Moslem religion, but only to compel the Porte to provide for the better government of his country. In short, the Muhammadans are beyond doubt faithful and loyal subjects of the British Government. The editor, in echoing the above sentiments, remarks that Moslems are not only faithful and loyal, but forbearing and contented, and that, because of their love for the British Government, they do not co-operate with other classes of the population in any political movements, and it is therefore only fair that Government should look to their well-being and prosperity."

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Feb. 15th, 1897.

29. The same paper writes that the strong protest of the Madras Government, the Madras Municipality, the Chamber of Commerce, Harbour Trust Board, Trades Association and the Mahajana Sabha to the effect that the port of Madras should be closed to pilgrims has so far not been attended with success inasmuch as the Government of India, by a telegram, dated Home Department, 6th February (Sanitary), expresses its opinion that there is nothing to prevent intending pilgrims from embarking on steamers lying in the Madras harbour as most of them do not belong to the infected tracts, and directs the Government of Bombay to isolate for ten days in Nasik or in some suitable place pilgrims who intend to embark on steamers lying either in Madras or in Calcutta harbours, and orders the Government of Madras to adopt measures to remove from the railway train and isolate in some place any pilgrim who may attempt to disobey the order. The Government of India is not willing to pass any orders that may prevent people from undertaking the pilgrimage to Mecca, or to interfere in any way with the religious sentiments of Moslems. With reference to the above, the editor tenders his sincere thanks to the Government of India and says that all intending pilgrims should also feel very grateful, inasmuch as the Government of India, in spite of the terrors of the plague, has vetoed the suggestions made by local Governments and considered it impolitic to interfere in this matter, and thus offend the religious susceptibilities of the pilgrims, and, in conclusion, strongly hopes that the British Government will adopt the policy of "non-interference" with respect to other religious matters however trivial and insignificant they may be.

Pilgrimage to Mecca.

The same paper says that a public meeting was held in the Victoria Hall with the President of the Municipal Commission in the chair, at which it was resolved to ask Government to prohibit the embarkation of pilgrims from Madras. The editor remarks that the pilgrimage to Mecca is not enjoined by religion on poor men, but only on the rich.

SHAMS-UL AKBAR, Madras, Feb. 22nd, 1897.

30. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 22nd February, mentions that at Bombay a disease, which is very much like the bubonic plague, has broken out amongst the horses which have been recently brought from Australia, and observes that, as the disease is contagious, the authorities should try to prevent the horses from being sent to other places.

Horse disease in Bombay.

III.—LEGISLATION.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Jan. 1897.

31. The Hindujanasamskarini, for January 1897, states that the wages paid to the coolies working on relief works are too insufficient for their subsistence and that they are therefore unwilling to serve on the works. It considers that the cooly rates in the Famine Code should be modified.

Famine Code.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 20th, 1897.

32. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 20th February, while commenting upon the questions put and the replies given at the last meeting of the Legislative Council, remarks to the following effect:—While the honourable members could very well have gathered from Government records and reports the information sought for, it was discreditable to them to have put such questions and to have been referred by Government to such records. It is to be regretted that, as some of the members do not show much discretion in exercising the right of interpellation conferred upon them by the new Councils Act, opportunity is afforded to Government and the public to laugh at them. Formerly the Muhammadan members of the Legislative Council were not breaking their silence at the council meeting, but that the present member, the Honourable Muhammad Sharif Khan Bahadur, is not a man of that stamp is clear from the number of questions put by him at the last and the previous meetings of the council. At the last meeting he asked not less than twenty eight questions, and, although several of them were conducive to the welfare of the Muhammadan community, yet nearly half of them were absurd and out of place. As regards the answers given by Government, Right of interpellation is said to be abused by the non-official members of the Madras Legislative Council.

it should be said that it disposed of the majority of questions by replying "yes" or "no" or "Government has no information on the matter." The Government knew very well what the object of the questions was, but it did not depart from its traditional custom of replying. We do not think that such absurd and unconnected replies will in any way help the administration of justice. It is to improve the administration of the country that the right of interpellation has been granted, and, if this fact is kept in view both by the Government and the honourable members, that object can be achieved. When we hear the replies of Government to certain questions that "Government has no information on the matter," we are led to believe that Government shuts its eyes to the irregularities prevailing in the departments under it. Whose duty is it to take notice of such irregularities? Is it not the duty of Government as the controlling head of all the departments? Is it not the bounden duty of Government to make inquiries and give proper replies if it is not in possession of the information asked for? At the last meeting just before the questions were put and answered, the Honourable the President said that, although, according to the rules, the members were required to send in their questions six days prior to the meeting, yet, as the great bulk of the questions were sent just within that time, great difficulty and inconvenience were experienced by Government in giving accurate and complete answers. We very well remember Government to have given the same stereotyped reply "Government has no information on the matter" even before this. If a member puts the question whether the attention of Government has been drawn to a certain article in a certain paper, the Government replies that the article referred to is anonymous and not an editorial. Granting that it is not such, is it not incumbent upon Government to inquire and ascertain whether the allegations therein contained are true or not? Again, in the matter of certain questions, the Government desired the members who put them to repeat those questions at the next meeting of the council. What earthly benefit is there by repeating those questions? In the matter of certain other questions, the Government declined to answer on the ground that they were of a confidential nature. If the Government considers certain questions to be of a confidential nature, is it not better for it to disallow them rather than give unsatisfactory replies?

In referring to the same subject, the Kerala Patrika, the Manorama and the Kerala Sanchari, of the 13th, 15th, and 17th February, respectively, express similar opinions. The last-named paper, the Sanchari, says that the reply given by Government to the Honourable Mr. Rangayya Nayudu's question ("Will the Government be pleased, in view to the present disturbed condition of the Ernad and Walavanad taluks in Malabar, to appoint a special officer to deal with the grave crimes in those taluks?") was very appropriate. An impartial observer can never deny that the present Collector and other officers are exerting their utmost to repress crimes in the affected taluks, and the inhabitants of those taluks have already begun to enjoy the fruits of the extraordinary labour of those officers. It is easy for a person, who is far off from the scene, to criticise and say that the disturbances in those parts should be immediately put down, but that it is in fact a difficult task cannot be denied. The opinion is expressed that the above reply which was given by Government appreciating the hard work of the district officers will be a strong incentive to them to work with increased zeal in future.

IV.—Native States.

33. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 15th February, says that the condition of Hyderabad is most deplorable; that although Sarwar Jung has been expelled, there is still great corruption among the officials and the delay in business is fearful; that justice is very badly administered, the magistrates being all corrupt and even the High Court not above suspicion; that Government interferes in the decisions of judicial courts; that a large part of the country being under nobles, who are all independent of the Nizam and paying him nothing out of their revenue, the people who are directly under the Government of the Nizam have to bear the whole of the burden of taxation; that the finances of the State are mismanaged, only one-third of the money collected finding its way to the Nizam's treasury; and that the State is burdened with heavy debt and has lost its credit. The paper, therefore, calls upon the Government of India to set matters right.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Feb. 22nd, 1897.

The wants of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore.

34. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd February, complains that the frequent change of Residents in Bangalore is detrimental to the good government of the place, because there is no continuity of policy, and the Residents as well as Assistant Residents are unacquainted with the wants of the city. The Municipal Commissioners' opinions are treated with scant respect. The city has been asking for a water-supply for the last fifty years and still the Government has not done much. The sanitation is bad. The editor therefore hopes that Residents may be appointed for fixed periods in future.

NAZRANI DIPIKA, Mannanam, Feb. 10th, 1897.

Inviting the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the extension of a certain road.

35. A leader in the Malayalam Nazrani Dipika, of the 10th February, while noticing that the Travancore Sirkar has sanctioned two and-a-half lakhs of rupees for the repair of the Kóttayam-Peerimid road, says that, instead of spending such a large sum of money for the upkeep of a road which passes through forests infested with wild elephants and through uninhabited localities, and which is not consequently much used by the public, it is better to extend the Kóttayam-Punhattur road to Peerimid. It remarks that the Kóttayam-Punhattur road is in a good condition, and, as the construction of a new road from Punhattur to Peerimid, a distance of thirteen miles, will not cost more than fifty thousand rupees, the Sirkar could save nearly two lakhs out of the sanctioned allotment above referred to.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 13th, 1897.

Inviting the attention of the authorities to the scarcity prevailing in Malabar.

36. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th February, while referring to the scarcity of food-grains in Malabar, says that as rice, which is the staple food of the district, is now sold at very high prices, it would be a blessing if Government would take early steps to collect a fund and make the merchants import rice from Burma and other places and sell it at a moderate price. It remarks that the object of Government in appointing Collectors as members of the Madras Famine Committee was to enable such officers to immediately bring to the notice of Government the distress, if any, prevailing in their own districts; but, as Mr. Dance, Collector of Malabar, is obliged to spend his whole time in wandering about from place to place in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad, he could not possibly devote his attention to the scarcity existing in the district. The article hopes that the authorities will speedily adopt the necessary measures before the matter assumes a serious aspect.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 20th, 1897.

Cholera in Temmalapuram, Malabar.

37. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th February, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar to the desirability of sending a medical officer to Temmalapuram, where cholera is said to be largely prevailing. The correspondent adds that the neglect in this matter of the Collector may perhaps be due to the matter not having been reported to him by the local officers. It is said that, as the Kollangót hospital, which is situated at the fartherest end of Temmalapuram, is unable to cope with the diseases occurring in its immediate neighbourhood, it is vain on the part of the people of Temmalapuram to expect any medical aid from it.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

38. The Swadesamitram, of the 11th February, regrets to learn that the three native gentlemen who joined the volunteer corps, artillery section, were obliged to resign their connection with it because of the cry raised by the Eurasians who constituted the corps that they would rather cease to serve as volunteers than work with natives and be placed on a footing of equality with them. The paper adds that, whatever be the spirit of the principle of equality enunciated in Her Majesty's Proclamation of 1858, where racial prejudices exist, Government has to shape its rules so as to avoid the fostering of such prejudices. The paper concludes by advocating the formation of pure native volunteer corps, as the natives of India have given ample proof of their devotion and unswerving loyalty to the throne of England.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 11th, 1897.

Expediency of granting the natives of India the privilege of forming a volunteer corps of their own.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th February, says that His Excellency Lord Elgin, at first, persisted in ruling that Madras and Calcutta should be pilgrim ports, but afterwards changing his opinion has ruled that no Muhammadan pilgrim leaving Bombay can take ship for Mecca either at Madras or at Calcutta, and that, if any such pilgrim should be found in either of these ports, he would be sent back to his country at the expense of the State. The paper presumes that the agitation made on the subject, both in Madras and in Calcutta, must have induced the Secretary of State to direct His Excellency Lord Elgin to pass the order referred to. The paper regrets to remark that the Viceroy should place himself in the position of being overruled by the Secretary of State for India.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Feb. 18th, 1897.

A remark on a certain order of His Excellency Lord Elgin.

40. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 20th February, makes the following complaint against the sowcars or money-lenders in Madras. When a person pawns a jewel with a sowcar he is not given a receipt for the pawned article, and the consequence is that, when he takes the money to the sowcar for the redemption of the jewel, he is often told that no jewel has been received from him. Again, the rate of interest demanded by the sowcars is simply ruinous. The subject deserves the serious attention of Government so that the sharp practices of these greedy men may be checked and poor and helpless men may be saved from their grasping hands.

Vikata Dutan, Madras, Feb. 20th, 1897.

Malpractices of sowcars in Madras.

41. The Hindujanasamskarini, for January 1897, observes that the British people are incapable of dispensing political and administrative justice unless their actions are controlled by a checking body like the "Parliament." It therefore believes that the formation of an Indian Parliament is absolutely necessary.

Hindujana-samskarini, Madras, Jan. 1897.

Indian Parliament.

42. The same paper remarks that, as early marriages are formed only among the Brahmans, the same cannot be said to be a sufficient cause for famines occurring in India as has been stated by the English papers. The paper is of opinion that the famine is due to the imposition of taxes at the maximum limit. It observes that, if the English Government is afraid that India will fall into the hands of the Russians, the military expenditure must be met by money from the United Kingdom.

The famine.

The same paper asks why there should be such a frequent breaking out of famines when the British Government is reputed to be the best of all the administrations that have existed in India, and further asks why on the mere approach of famine the people die of starvation. It is shameful of Government to raise money by subscriptions, while it is skilful enough to exact money from the people by enacting laws. It regrets that the beneficent British rulers have no mercy to protect their servants, while even a private master is ashamed to see his own servants suffer. Why should the wealth of India, asks the paper, be squandered away and why should even the revenue expressly collected for the purpose of famine relief be spent otherwise. It regrets that the present condition of India is obviously the natural outcome of the vain and useless expenditure in various ways and of the bestowal of all higher appointments on Europeans for want of confidence in the natives, and of the importation of foreign merchandise into India and of the transmission of the wealth of India in various ways.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 20th, 1897.

The deteriorated state of the Malabar District Gazette Press.

43. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th February, invites the attention of the Collector of Malabar to the necessity of improving the District Gazette Press. It appears that, as the types, both English and Malayalam, are very old and worn out, the characters are not legibly impressed on the paper and consequently it is very difficult to read what is printed for publication in the monthly gazettes.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 3rd March, says that the offer of a loan by England to Egypt has given offence to the Governments of Russia and France, inasmuch as such a loan would tend to the permanent establishment of the British power in Egypt.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Mar. 3rd, 1897.

The British occupation of Egypt.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 1st March, says that the affairs of Europe are in a most complicated and unsatisfactory condition. The rule of Turkey is bad and the people of that country, both Christians and Muhammadans, want a change, and the affairs in Crete are such as to lead to a great war in Europe in spite of the precautions the powers may take.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 1st, 1897.

European complications.

II.—Home Administration.

3. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 10th March, says to the following effect:—The Ramzan festival was over without any disturbance in the affected taluks of Ernad and Walavanad. The Collector returned to Calicut. Mr. Fawcett and other officers also will shortly go back. Many were afraid that there would be an outbreak in those taluks this year also, but it is a matter for great congratulation that the Ramzan ended without the slightest disturbance. It can be said without the least fear of contradiction that the timely arrangements made by the Collector and others for maintaining peace and order in the affected parts were highly commendable and effective. We hear that it was due to the fearless action of the Assistant Superintendent Mr. Wilkinson in particular that the campaign was so speedily brought to a termination in such a highly commendable manner. Mr. Wilkinson first arrested some of the leading dacoits and placed them in the lock-up, which not only created great terror in the minds of the other dacoits, but also cowed them down. If there be one European officer always in the district who knows the state of the country and the circumstances of the people as well as Mr. Wilkinson does, the Mappilas will not be so bold as to cause any disturbance, much less can they succeed in it. It is difficult to secure another European like Mr. Wilkinson who is so thoroughly acquainted with the ins and outs of these two "Mappila taluks," and so the permanent retention of Mr. Wilkinson in these taluks should form one of the chief measures adopted for the repression of crimes in them. We know as a matter of fact that some of the respectable and influential Hindus secretly assist the Mappilas in committing dacoities, and it appears that some of the Mappilas who are now in custody have also given out the names of certain of the abettors. If these persons who are known to be behind the scenes and who assist the dacoits are arrested and punished, and if those who buy for nominal value properties acquired by dacoity are also removed from those parts, dacoities and robberies will greatly cease.

Kerala Sanchari, Calicut, Mar. 10th, 1897.

Remarking that the arrangements for repressing dacoities in Malabar were highly commendable and that the credit is due to Mr. Wilkinson, Assistant Superintendent of Police, Malapuram.

(b) Courts.

4. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 1st March, referring to the rumour that the District Judge of Calicut intends closing all the courts for midsummer vacation on or about the 17th May next, says that the proposal of the judge to close the courts just at the beginning of the rainy season might suit his own convenience, but it will seriously inconvenience the parties, vakils and the court establishments, inasmuch as they would have to attend the courts in the hottest part of the weather to avoid which the midsummer vacation is allowed by Government; the authorities should therefore rule that the time when the vacation should begin should not be altered by the judges according to their convenience.

Remarks on the closing of courts in South Malabar for the midsummer vacation.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 6th, 1897.

The reason why the Sessions Judge of Calicut throws out the majority of dacoity cases, &c., committed to the sessions.

5. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th March, says that some of the dacoity and robbery cases which were committed to the last Calicut sessions by the Magistrates of Ernad and Walavanad taluks were thrown out for want of evidence. It says that as the police had purposely manufactured evidence with the view of having the cases thrown out, and as the magistrates who committed such cases had not weighed the evidence properly, the Sessions Judge had no other alternative than to acquit the prisoners in most of the cases. It appears that the Government Pleader had to withdraw a certain dacoity case during the trial at the sessions as he found that the case could not stand on the flimsy evidence brought forward by the police. The editor remarks that the police simply care for the case being committed to the sessions, and the evidence put forth by them serves only that purpose; but they do not care whether the prisoners are convicted or not.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 2nd, 1897.

Certain suggestions regarding the criminal court vakils.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 2nd March, says that as some of the unlicensed vakils practising in criminal courts are unpassed men who have been dismissed from the lower ranks of the public service and who do not possess the necessary legal knowledge, the High Court should prescribe a Third-grade Pleaders' Test examination for such vakils, persons who are not matriculates not being eligible to appear for the test. If such an examination be introduced and persons other than those who have passed it are forbidden to practise in criminal courts, the tone and character of the criminal court vakils who are of very great use to parties who cannot afford to engage first and second grade pleaders for high fees will be greatly improved.

(d) Education.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 20th, 1897.

A hint to the educational authorities regarding the publication of Nithimanjari.

7. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th February, observes that the publishers of Nithimanjari, a Tamil text-book prescribed for the Lower Secondary examination, give different versions of one and the same stanza and thus mislead the young pupils. The correspondent suggests that the editing of the work may be entrusted to some one competent scholar, and that an authorised edition may be used in all schools, even as is the case now with regard to the Tamil text-book for the Matriculation class.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 4th, 1897.

Remarks on the report of Dr. Duncan on the education of this presidency.

8. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th March, makes a few remarks on the report of the Honourable Dr. Duncan on the progress of education in this presidency during 1895–96. The paper regrets to concur with the Director of Public Instruction in thinking that female education is at present in a very unsatisfactory condition, and opines that it cannot thrive well in this presidency unless Government encourages it by the offer of liberal grants. The paper observes that primary education is not as it ought to be as the local and municipal boards to whose charge its maintenance is entrusted reduce their grants year after year. In the continental countries of Europe, such as France, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Greece and Switzerland, primary education is in a flourishing condition chiefly for the reason that it is compulsory, and that its cost is borne by the State. As regards the proposal of Dr. Duncan to introduce in this presidency a compulsory system of education, to be maintained by a special tax levied from the people, the paper is of opinion that Government should first see whether its present resources are not adequate for the purpose before resorting to the imposition of a special educational tax.

9. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 27th February, says that the Calicut public have prepared a memorial to be submitted to the Director of Public Instruction protesting against the retention of two male teachers on the staff of the Moyan Girls' Training school, Calicut, and hopes that as the prayers of the memorialists are just and reasonable the Director would give a favourable decision in the matter. The article remarks that, owing to there being two masters on the staff, several respectable persons refuse to send their girls to the above institution for training. It is said that the retention of these two masters in the school would seriously interfere with the education of several girls.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 27th, 1897.

The two male teachers on the staff of the Moyan Girls' Training school, Calicut, to be removed.

(e) Local and Municipal.

10. A correspondent to the Viveka Thivakaran, of the 28th February, requests the Chairman of the Nilgiris Municipality to direct his attention to the unsatisfactory lighting of the town as well as that of the market and hopes that remedial measures will soon be adopted.

VIVEKA THIVAKARAN, Tiruchengód, Feb. 28th, 1897.

A request to the Chairman of the Nilgiris Municipality.

11. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 27th February, complains of the unusual delay made in compounding and giving medicine to persons who are in large numbers attending the out-patients' ward in the Calicut municipal hospital. It says that as one compounder is unable to cope with the increased work in the out-patients' ward, the District Medical Officer should ask the municipality to appoint one or two additional hands. It is further complained that the required drugs are not to be had in the hospital and consequently the mixtures given to the patients do not generally contain all the drugs mentioned in the prescription. If the patient is an acquaintance of the compounder the latter tells him that a particular drug has not been added, which he could buy at Boyce & Co.'s and mix it with the medicines given from the hospital. The opinion is expressed that if the present state of affairs continues the native public will lose faith in the hospital treatment and the maintenance of the hospital will be in vain.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Feb. 27th, 1897.

Mismanagement of the Calicut municipal hospital.

12. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 6th January, in noting with pleasure the appointment of Sufdar Husain Sahib, Deputy Collector of Kurnool, as the revenue officer of the Madras Municipality in place of Diwan Bahadur P. Ramaswami Chetty, observes that Sufdar Husain Sahib, besides being an able officer, is also very popular and that the municipality should be congratulated for obtaining the services of such an able, energetic and popular officer.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Jan. 6th, 1897.

Appointment of Sufdar Husain Sahib Bahadur as revenue officer.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 23rd February, reports that kist is being collected with great rigour in Vayalpad, Cuddapah district, and no consideration is given to the actual miserable condition of the ryots caused by failure of crops. It says that the Board of Revenue has ordered the revenue authorities to begin the collection of kist from January instead of from December and to collect it in three instalments instead of four. The paper regrets that the order of the Board subjects the ryots to great hardship and that the procedure of Mr. Tate, the Collector, who ignores the real condition of the poor ryots, only tends to make matters worse.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 23rd, 1897.

Rigour of the collection of kist in Vayalpad in Cuddapah district.

14. The same paper remarks that the mirasidars in the Bengal presidency are in an affluent condition owing to the settlement being a permanent one, whereas in this presidency revision of assessment is made once in every twenty-five years and that this system tends to reduce the material well-being of the ryots. The paper asks why should this presidency be subjected to the ordeal of frequent settlements? The paper regrets to observe that the authorities in this presidency provoke misunderstanding between the mirasidars and their tenants by the introduction of new laws and enactments and that the mirasidars are in consequence obliged to spend their capital in litigation. The paper concludes by saying that the treatment accorded to the over-taxed people of this presidency is unquestionably harsh.

Settlement and its effect on the material condition of the ryots.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 20th, 1897.

A suggestion to His Excellency Lord Havelock.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Feb. 24th, 1897.

Comment on the appointment of a new Secretary on a salary of Rs. 2,500.

16. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th February, referring to the appointment of an additional Secretary on a salary of Rs. 2,500—a post reserved exclusively for civilians—says that it is rumoured that Rs. 2,000 of this salary would be paid from out of local and municipal funds. The paper asks how has Government which pleads want of funds for opening hospitals, repairing roads, and giving grant to pial schools, and the like been able to spare Rs. 2,000 a month for a new Secretary? It concludes with the remark that it is a matter for surprise that Government which would not sanction one rupee for the purchase of curds or butter-milk to be used in public water sheds has sanctioned Rs. 2,000 for the employment of a civilian.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 25th, 1897.

An appeal to Government regarding the famine-stricken people in the northern parts of the presidency.

17. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th February, appeals to Government as well as the famine committee to protect the famine-stricken people in the northern parts of this presidency which His Excellency recently visited. The paper requests the authorities to extend their help even to those respectable persons whose past condition in life makes them feel it an indignity to go out for relief and who are therefore starving in their homes. The paper strongly advises Government not to be guided by the opinion of Mr. Tate regarding the present famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 27th, 1897.

A suggestion to Government regarding the condition of the weaving classes and the poorer class of ryots.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th February, makes the following remarks on the effects of famine:—The classes most affected by famine are the poorer ryots, such as those who pay an annual kist of Rs. 30 and below, and the weaving classes. In the Ceded districts and Salem their present condition is one of extreme suffering. It behoves Government to give its best help to these suffering sections of the population by remitting their taxes, by feeding them while in distress, and by giving to the weavers advances of money for carrying on their trade.

19. The Kalanidhi, of the 1st March, writes in English as follows:— "We are glad to hear that our Collector, Mr. Herbert Bradley, while he went to Dharapuram on jamabandi, rode on a bicycle from Pulladam to Dharapuram with a view to inspect local fund roads, fields and cultivation thereon. So the bicycle is also a blessing to the public. We hope other Collectors and Presidents of our presidency will imitate this profitable example.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Mar. 1st, 1897.

Bicycle a blessing to the public.

20. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 6th March, complains as follows:—A certain youth named Ponnusami Naicker attended the Monegar Choultry with his females at about half-past eight on a certain day and took a prescription from Mr. Ramasami Mudaliyar, First-class Hospital Assistant. After sending away the females home in a carriage he waited for about a quarter of an hour at the dispensary, and as no medicine was given to him he referred the matter to "H. A. compounding in charge 3rd C.," and got a reply that he could not get medicine unless he waited for half an hour longer. Ponnusami Naicker thereupon resolved to return home. On the matter having been reported to Mr. Halge, the apothecary, he and the dresser met Ponnusami Naicker, and, addressing him as "stupid" and "impertinent," seized the prescription from his hand and asked the peon to drive him out in a very insulting manner. Ponnusami Naicker waited for half an hour more to represent his grievances to Dr. Walker, but, as the gentleman did not turn up, the said Ponnusami Naicker returned home with a heavy heart. The correspondent asks "is it to insult people that a hospital is opened and maintained from out of the funds collected from us"?

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1897.

A complaint against medical officers in the Monegar Choultry.

21. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th March, gives due credit to Mr. Dance for the efficient arrangement he has made for preventing, as far as possible, a Mappila riot during Ramzan in Walavanad and Ernad. The paper says that insecurity of life and property is still felt by the people of those parts and advises Mr. Dance not to transfer Mr. Wilkinson, Assistant Superintendent of Police, from the district as he is a capable officer likely to prove useful where he is by reason of his local knowledge and experience. The paper also advises Mr. Dance not to proceed to Palghat or Calicut as soon as the Ramzan should be over under the impression that all danger would be then at an end. The paper says that plunder and bloodshed are still indulged in by Mappilas, as well as by some Hindus, and that it is rumoured that some respectable persons aid and abet them secretly, and requests the authorities to adopt every measure not only to prevent danger and anxiety to the people, but also to bring to punishment all those men who work from behind the scene and instigate lawlessness.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1897.

Plunder and bloodshed in Malabar.

22. The Sasilekha, of the 26th February, remarking that the rule under which people above the age of 25 are debarred from entering Government service is seriously affecting them, asks why persons even in temporary employment should be bound by the said rule, while the Europeans, Eurasians, Probationary Deputy Collectors, and Pleaders and Vakils seeking District Munsif's places are free from the operation of such a rule. It argues that as people acquire mature powers of understanding only at about the age of 25, and as the grant of pension depends not upon one's age but upon one's service, the rule is useless, nay, it is a serious impediment in the way of young men anxious to prosecute their studies. It therefore recommends the cancellation of the rule.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Feb. 26th, 1897.

Age limitation for public service.

23. The Messenger of Truth, for March. stating that village schoolmasters are entrusted with village postal duties also on an additional salary of Rs. 2 or 3 per mensem, remarks that, though the said arrangement may profit the Postal department, it is wholly prejudicial to the education of the pupil children, as the schoolmasters are obliged to attend to postal duties both at night and during school hours. It suggests that Government will do well to entrust the postal business to other persons, granting decent salaries to schoolmasters so that they may not be under the necessity of seeking additional employment to obtain an increment to their salaries thereby.

ALHAMI, Madras, Mar. 7th, 1897.

The panic-stricken people of Bombay.

24. The Alhami, of the 7th March, states that large numbers of people are daily leaving Bombay by boats, &c., for other countries and suggests to Government that it should issue a preventive order in the same way that it has in the case of pilgrims, otherwise, it says, fear and consternation will never subside.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Feb. 27th, 1897.

A suggestion to appoint Mr. Plowden as the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab.

25. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 27th February, observes, with regret, that although Mr. Plowden, during his five years' tenure of office as the Resident of Hyderabad, conducted the administration of the State admirably Government did not reward him with promotion. The vacant Lieutenant-Governorships have all been filled up. The junior officer, Mr. Macworth Young, some time Resident in Mysore, superseded Mr. Plowden as the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab. Mr. Young, who has gone home on leave, is, owing to his ill-health, not expected to return to his duties in March and now the editor thinks that Mr. Plowden should be appointed in his place.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Mar. 11th, 1897.

Suspension of the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz.

26. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 11th March, reports, with great pleasure, that the Muhammadans of Madras held a meeting on the 8th instant under the presidency of Nawab Muhammad Mahmud Khan Bahadur in which a resolution was passed to send a telegram to the Secretary of State informing him that the suspension of the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz had greatly wounded the feelings of the Muhammadans, and stating that the meeting fully concurred with the measures taken by Government for the suppression of the bubonic plague and requesting permission for the Madras pilgrims to proceed on the pilgrimage on such conditions which His Lordship might think it proper to impose.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1897.

The Sultan of Turkey and Anglo-Indian papers.

27. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 6th March, on the authority of the Persian newspaper, The Habl-ul-Mateen, of Calcutta, writes that certain Anglo-Indian papers states that the Shiahs do not regard the Sultan of Turkey as their lawful Caliph, and remarks that this statement is incorrect inasmuch as both Shiahs and Sunnis are at one in sympathy with the Sultan and that the British Government should beware of taking as correct the statement of hypocrites and flatterers who, actuated by political motives, assert the contrary.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 23rd, 1897.

Expediency of amending section 206 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

28. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd February, suggests the expediency of so amending section 206 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as to make it apply only to first and second class magistrates. The correspondent is of opinion that third-class magistrates are not competent to try cases that are likely to be committed to the sessions. He says that head clerks of Collectors' offices, whose knowledge of criminal law is generally imperfect, are usually appointed as third-class magistrates, that the responsibility of their office makes them timid and nervous, and that consequently their investigation is unsatisfactory. The correspondent remarks that the section of the Code in question subjects third-class magistrates to great risk and trouble.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 27th, 1897.

Comment on the draft Bill on Hindu devastanams by the Hon'ble Mr. P. Ananda Charlu.

29. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th February, rejoices to hear that the Hon'ble Mr. P. Ananda Charlu has prepared a draft Bill for the better management of Hindu devastanams and is trying to have it passed by the legislature. The paper observes that the Bill in question as it makes it obligatory on the managers to publish accounts of receipt and expenditure of devastanams, aims at removing many of the grave irregularities in their present management, and hopes that the Bill will be passed ere long.

IV.—Native States.

30. A correspondent to the Vrittanta Patrika, of the 4th March, draws attention to the fact that certain roads in the Mysore Province are infested with robbers who have caused a great panic in the neighbouring taluks of Simoga, Sagar, Theerthalli and others. The robbers are said to be very powerful and attack even Government officers as they pass by those roads.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Mar. 4th, 1897.

Highway robberies in Mysore.

31. A correspondent to the Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 13th March, says that robberies and dacoities are being committed on a large scale in the west of Mysore and gives a number of instances of such crimes committed in the taluks of Chickmagalur, Shimoga, Kadur and on the roads near those places.

Mysore, Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Mar. 13th, 1897.

Robberies and dacoities in Mysore.

32. The Suryodaya, of the 11th March, in speaking of the burning of the Mysore palace, insinuates that the fire could not have been accidental and that some interested person or persons must have been at the bottom of the whole affair to serve their own ends. The reasons which it assigns are thus stated :—

Suryodaya, Bangalore, Mar. 11th, 1897.

Fire at the Mysore palace.

It is a very curious and suspicious circumstance that the fire should have occurred at a time when the Auditor-General was about to examine the palace accounts.

There seems to be no reason why some loyal and respectable citizens who offered to extinguish the fire in the very beginning should have been prevented from entering the palace. It could not have been from any fear that the palace jewels might be stolen by them, for they offered to go in with only a single piece of cloth on their body and to be searched before being let out. Moreover in the beginning it was not necessary for them to go into the room where jewels were kept, because the fire was confined at first only to those rooms which contained nothing but furniture.

It is also noteworthy that the water-supply to the palace had been stopped on the day on which the fire took place so that no water could be had immediately to extinguish the fire.

It is not true, as a correspondent writes to the Madras Mail, that some members of the royal household were seen attempting to appropriate the jewellery in the palace when the latter was on fire. This is only what some people have said in order to induce the Government to drive these princes out of the palace. There are no more loyal subjects of the Maharaja than these princes.

The key of the strong room in the palace was missing just when it was wanted and Mr. Fraser had to break open the doors by force.

This is the first instance of a fire breaking out in a royal palace in the history of India.

The Viceroys and Governors in British India are changed every five years, but in Mysore the Diwan has been in office for fifteen years and yet he is as far from being retired as when he first entered on the duties.

The paper therefore calls upon the representatives of the people of Mysore to assemble together in Mysore and, on discussing the cause of the fire, to wire to Her Highness the Maharani-Regent and the Viceroy what they consider to be the true state of things.

33. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitran, of the 11th March, strongly protests against the maintenance of Ottupuras (feasting houses for Brahmans) in Travancore and Cochin at the expense of those States. It appears that these Ottupuras which have been established in every taluk were originally intended for feeding Brahman travellers gratis, but now even the Ottupuras in Travancore and Cochin to be abolished.

Brahmans who are permanent residents of the place are also fed therein daily. The article, while criticising the matter at some length, remarks that it is quite improper and unjust on the part of the Sirkars of these two States to spend a large portion of the revenue collected from the people of various castes and creeds for the sole benefit of one particular caste—the Brahmans—and suggests that, if the expenses involved in maintaining these Ottupuras be utilised in establishing orphanages for children of all denominations, it will be highly beneficial to the people at large.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Feb. 27th, 1897.

The notification of the Government of India suspending the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz.

34. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 27th February, reports that on the 25th February a meeting was held in the Falaknuma Palace, Hyderabad, under the presidency of the Nawab Viqar-ul-Umra, the present Prime Minister, for the purpose of considering the notification of the Government of India suspending the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz this season, and says the notification has been approved unanimously and proposals passed for inviting intending pilgrims to a general meeting to be held in the People's Park and explaining to them the reasons for the suspension. It has also been proposed by the Prime Minister to feed pilgrims and give them money for their return journey to their respective homes. The editor, in expressing concurrence with the notification, observes that no better arrangements could have been made during the present state of affairs.

Military expenditure of the Government of the Nizam.

35. The same paper states that there is no doubt that the military expenditure of the Nizam's Government is enormous. The cost of the irregular troops is fifty lakhs, whereas that of the regulars inclusive of the Imperial Service Troops is twenty-five. These items do not include the expenses of the subsidiary force and of the contingent, which are met from the revenues derived from the Balaghat, the Northern Circars and Berar which have been ceded for the purpose. The editor remarks that it is now understood that the Resident suggests the curtailment of the expenditure by a reduction in the strength of the army and wishes to relieve the Government of the Nizam from the charge of the Imperial Service Troops as in the case of the contingent which was organised for the purpose of rendering aid to that Government but which has since been considered to belong to the British Government. The editor further observes that the expenditure incurred on account of the irregulars is extravagant for the reason that they are useless and, in time of need, instead of preserving peace, will create disorder; but troops are necessary for the internal administration of the country and the preservation of peace. Expenditure may be reduced by turning the irregulars into regulars who will become serviceable for the frontier defence and this measure will promote the diginity of the State.

QASIM-UL-AKBAR, Bangalore, Mrs. 11th, 1897.

The proposed appointment of the Honourable Maulavi Jabbar Khan as the Prime Minister of Bhopal.

36. Referring to the proposed appointment of the Honourable Maulavi Abd-ul Jabbar Khan, of Calcutta, as Prime Minister to the Begam of Bhopal, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 11th March, says no better selection could have been made and enumerating his services under the British Government, requests the Government of India to approve of the proposal.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Mar. 1st, 1897.

Suggesting to grant money with grain to the famine-stricken people.

37. Referring to the order of the Government of Madras passed on the recommendation of the Board of Revenue for granting grain in lieu of food to some people of the Ganjam district, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 1st March, requests Government to give them something in cash together with the grain.

38. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 5th March, states that an Indian contemporary on the authority of the Almuvied (Arabic paper of Egypt) observes that since India came under the British Government the people of India have seen nothing but poverty and starvation. They have been burdened with heavy taxes. The British Government have outwardly made every arrangement for bettering their condition. Railways and roads have been constructed, but it has not done that which the Spaniards have for the Arabs. The British merchants have enslaved thousands, who are paying half their income by way of taxes, whereas they paid only one-sixth during the time of the former kings. If anybody fails to pay the taxes his property is forcibly taken away. In the Madras Presidency alone four crores are levied for the army and five sent every year to England.

Condition of the people of India.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Mar. 5th, 1897.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th February, reports that the great mass of evidence placed before the Royal Commission appointed for inquiry into the expenditure in India shows unmistakably that the expenditure of the Indian Government on the military is excessive. The paper remarks that if Government does not strive to reduce this high rate of military expenditure, it will always be in financial insolvency. The paper adds that the British Parliament is not justified in burdening the Government of India with the cost of maintenance of the British troops in India.

A remark on the expenditure in the Military department.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Feb. 20th, 1897.

40. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 8th March, speaking of the approaching movement of the Government of India to Simla, says that while famine is raging in a large part of India and the local officers are all working hard the Government of India is failing in its duty and has already made arrangements to flee to the hills. The editor thinks that the people would appreciate the self-denial of the Viceroy and those about him if they would make up their minds to show their sympathy with the people by remaining amongst them in their sufferings. The moral effect of the step contemplated by the Viceroy would, in the opinion of the editor, be very detrimental to the well-being of the country and be one of the greatest of the several blunders committed by the present Viceroy. He therefore trusts that Lord Elgin will even now change his mind.

The exodus to the hills condemned.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 8th, 1897.

41. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 10th March, says that the admission of the three native gentlemen who offered themselves for admission into the Volunteer Corps having been objected to by the Eurasians against the wishes of their officers these officers have resigned their commands in the corps and the paper thinks that the case deserves to be taken into consideration by Government.

The admission of Indians in Volunteer Corps.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Mar. 10th, 1897.

42. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 6th March, says that at a recent meeting held at Calicut under the auspices of the local port officer it was proposed that as the present Calicut pier is situated nearly three-fourths of a mile away from the business centre of the town, and as the merchants are consequently put to much inconvenience and expense in sending and receiving goods by sea, it should be pulled down and a new one constructed near the old customs house, a locality which is said to be more convenient than the present one. The article, while approving of the above proposal, suggests that if the work be undertaken at once it will be a great relief to the poor who are in distress on account of famine.

Remarks on the construction of a new pier at Calicut.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 6th, 1897.

43. A correspondent to the same paper writes that, owing to the untiring efforts of the European officials, robberies and dacoities are not now heard of in the taluks of Ernad and Walavanad. The correspondent

When dacoities will cease in Malabar.

adds that if the Collector, the Superintendent and the military should leave these affected taluks before arresting some of the influential persons who are assisting the robbers, the matter will assume a serious aspect again. These influential persons are said to include some of the chieftains, vakils, Pattar Brahmans and police officers.

How to repress dacoities in Malabar.

44. A correspondent to the same paper writes that although it is for the good of the people that a company of sepoys has been stationed on the Kottupara Hill near Pandalur, yet it has on the other hand become a source of trouble to them. It appears that some of the notorious dacoits captured by the sepoys are left off instead of being kept in lock-up. There may perhaps be no outbreak this year, but one thing is certain—that whatever little money the people have earned by the sale of ginger and pepper will be carried away from those parts as was done by the head constable who came to inquire into the outbreak that occurred some two years ago. The correspondent adds that unless all the suspected dacoits as well as some of the influential Hindu and Mappila supporters of thieves are either arrested and transported or bound down for good behaviour, the dacoities and robberies in the affected taluks of Ernad and Walavanad can never be repressed.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 17th March, thinks that, as the attempts made by the combined powers of Europe to persuade the Greeks to give up the war against Turkey have been unsuccessful, the Government of Greece must have the secret support of the Russian and British Governments, as otherwise such a small power as Greece would not dare to go against the will of the whole of Europe without such a moral support.

War between Greece and Turkey.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Mar. 17th, 1897.

2. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 27th March, expresses surprise at the news it has received that England is sending large quantities of war stores to Malta and the Cape, and that Russia has mobilized the Black Sea fleet and two army corps in the Southern Provinces and that the allies of Russia are also preparing for war. The editor finds an explanation for these war preparations in the telegraphic news that Russia is urging Turkey to attack Greece, and thinks that, since public opinion in England would never permit an attack on Greece in concert with Turkey, a war between Russia and England is inevitable. Russia has already defeated England in diplomacy in China and Turkey, and England cannot count upon any allies in Europe. If the designs attributed to Russia are founded on fact, there is little doubt that England would be compelled to evacuate Egypt.

War preparations in England and Russia.

Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, Bangalore, Mar. 27th, 1897.

3. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th March, speaking of the affairs in Crete, says that the Greeks have received assurances of support from some of the Members of Parliament and they are therefore defying the powers of Europe, but the paper thinks that Greece cannot afford to do this and she would have to yield; for, if she does not, a European war would certainly follow. On the other hand, if the powers should decide to allow her to take possession of Crete, it would not put an end to the difficulties in the island, for then the Christians would oppress the Muhammadans and thus the strife would continue, only the parties now fighting will change places. The only solution seems to the editor to be to bring about a radical change in Turkey.

Affairs in Crete.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Mar. 29th, 1897.

4. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 15th March, while giving a short account of the telegraphic summaries of the crisis in Crete appearing in the English newspapers, remarks that when Greece is conscious of her weakness among the nations of Europe and is thoroughly aware of her inability to successfully wage a war with Turkey, she would not have prepared for the Cretan war had it not been for the strong support she has behind. The rumour has it that England and Russia are secretly backing Greece though they outwardly condemn her procedure, and the public meeting at Hyde Park in London denouncing the policy of the Sultan and extolling the action of Greece and also the departure of the English volunteers to Crete to assist Greece sufficiently tend to confirm that rumour. The article, after dwelling at some length on the subject, asks that if the Christian Governments in Europe consider it their duty to adopt measures for relieving the Christians from the oppression of the Sultan, why don't these governments think of affording relief to the Hindus and Mussalmans who are suffering great hardships at the hands of the Christian rulers and the Christian population of Natal, Cape Colony and other countries of South Africa? Is it because of their knowing that the Hindu princes and the Sultan of Turkey are unable to adopt retributive measures that the oppression and the ill-treatment of the Indians in South Africa are steadily carried on? If the British Government is a Government that dispenses justice impartially, it could have very easily interfered and put a stop to these iniquities.

Remarks on the crisis in Crete.

Manorama, Calicut, Mar. 15th, 1897.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

5. Referring to a London telegram, of the 20th March, announcing that, in the House of Lords, Lord Salisbury alluded to the gravity of the statement made by Lord Kimberley in a speech at Norwich, and said that it was impossible to treat the solemn pledges given for the maintenance of the integrity of Turkey as waste paper, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 22nd March, says that it appears from the speech (made by Lord Kimberley) that the European powers will never allow Turkey to exist. The island of Crete forming a part of Turkey has been separated from it as announced by the telegrams of the 18th and 19th instant. All the powers are tyrannizing over Turkey and the results are yet to be seen.

Cretan affairs.

Alhami, Madras, Mar. 21st, 1897.

6. Referring to the refusal of Lord Salisbury to join the other powers in the blockade of Crete, the Alhami, of the 21st March, hopes that His Lordship will not stick to his opinion in this matter and will not fall under the influence of Russia relying on the unjust and unreasonable speeches of Mr. Gladstone, as such a procedure will not only be productive of very serious results but also wound the feelings of the Indian Muhammadans and thus jeopardize the safety of the British empire.

Blockade of Crete.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

7. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 22nd March, reproduces a letter written by Zya-ud-din Akmal from Europe to the Paisa Akbar, of Lahore, in which the writer bitterly complains that thousands of Mussalmans of Crete and of Turkey are being daily massacred indiscriminately and yet the Mussalmans of other countries do nothing, and says their inactivity alone has been the cause of emboldening England and the other European powers to resolve on the ruin of Turkey. There is no reason why they should fear Europe which is no match for a capable invader. The writer also states that, by writing this note, his object is not to stir up sedition, but to make Muhammadans in general acquainted with the true aspect of Turkish affairs, to which, he asks the Muhammadan press, to give wide publicity in order that the British Government may not think that the Muhammadan world is indifferent to Turkish matters.

Turkish affairs.

II.—Home Administration.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Mar. 13th, 1897.

8. The Jananukulan, of the 13th March, reports that there is some misunderstanding between the police of Pattukkóttai in the district of Tanjore and the people of the place, and cites, in support of the statement, a number of criminal cases mutually lodged against each other. The paper trusts that the matter will receive due attention at the hands of the higher authorities and good feeling will be restored. The paper quotes the remark of the Madras Standard on the subject, which is as follows:—"Reports are rife about the misdeeds of the police in the Pattukkóttai taluk of the Tanjore district. Mr. Agar, the Police Superintendent, is not likely to tolerate them."

Want of harmony between the police and the people of Pattukkóttai in Tanjore district.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Mar. 16th, 1897.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 16th March, recommends the discontinuance of the present practice of allowing the so-called private vakils to conduct criminal cases in the courts of subordinate magistracy. A private vakil is an unpassed man, often ignorant of law and procedure and owing his practice to the favour of the magistrate before whom he appears. In these days, when passed men are available in large numbers, there does not appear to be any necessity to allow unpassed men to conduct criminal cases.

Remarks on the system of private vakils and a few suggestions in respect of them.

In the district of Tanjore, for instance, in which there are hundreds of passed men, the correspondent asks, where is the necessity for encouraging the private vakils? And yet in every Sub-Magistrate's court they are found practising.

The correspondent proposes that, if unpassed men are found necessary at all, their practice may be confined to courts located in rural tracts unconnected by railways and that they should be required to pass some examination at least in law, and that license to practise should not be given them by sub-magistrates.

A few suggestions regarding village munsifs.

10. A correspondent to the same paper writes as follows:—Village administration is at present far from satisfactory as the office of the village munsif has lost much of its dignity owing to the post being conferred on incompetent men. It behoves Government therefore to amend the Act relating to village officers so as to make them really useful to the people. In most villages there are only a few persons who are competent to discharge the onerous duties of a village munsif; but these persons seldom wish to be appointed as village munsifs for the reason that the office is honorary, that the officer is not respectfully treated either by the people or by revenue officials, and that he is subjected to great hardship in collecting kist, in rendering accounts to superior revenue officials, in attending to works of irrigation, in supplying provisions to jamabandi officers and in several other ways. The post therefore falls on poor and incompetent men. To improve matters the following suggestions are made:—

(1) The same person should not be a village munsif and a monigar.
(2) Men appointed as munsifs should be required to pass an examination and be paid a monthly salary ranging from Rs. 10 to 30 according to the population and importance of the village or group of villages or town in which they may be employed.
(3) Their courts should be public.
(4) To meet the proposed cost of pay, &c., a stamp fee may be levied.
(5) The office of a munsif should not be hereditary.

Desirability of increasing the salary of village munsifs.

11. A correspondent to the Jananukulan, of the 20th March, describing at length the multifarious duties discharged by the village munsif, remarks that the salary paid to them is highly inadequate. He recommends some increase to their pay.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Mar. 20th, 1897.

Considering that the trial held by the District Judge of Calicut in respect of the confiscation of properties belonging to certain Mappila rebels was mere sham.

12. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th March, referring to the trial that was recently held by the District Judge of Calicut in respect of the confiscation of properties of those 39 Mappilas who were shot down in Pallikurup temple in 1894 says that judicial proceedings partaking so much of the nature of sham could never have been witnessed in a British court of justice. It appears that the cases against these 39 offenders were disposed of on the strength of the deposition of an only witness—the head constable Kumaran Nayar. There is no doubt that the Mappilas who were killed in the temple of Pallikurup had committed offences against the State, and that the Government has therefore every right to confiscate their property in accordance with the law, but such a ludicrous trial as was held in the district will only give the public cause for great dissatisfaction. As the Collector has had power to give orders to shoot down these Mappilas who rose in arms against the Government, it would have been better to have empowered that officer to hold a summary inquiry and confiscate their property rather than allow such a mock trial. If the Government thinks that the property should be confiscated only after a due judicial inquiry, then that inquiry ought to be conducted to the satisfaction of the public. It is a matter of common experience that the evidence of the police cannot, as a rule, be accepted as true. Such being the case, how far will the evidence of a head constable be credible? The editor says that he referred to the matter at such a length as he is of opinion that it is disgraceful for Government to treat lightly of matters to which it ought to give serious consideration.

(d) Education.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 11th, 1897.

An injustice done to some candidates for the Primary School examination.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th March, complains that pupils sending in their applications for the Primary School examination as private candidates in consequence of their not having attended any school for the prescribed number of months are not allowed to appear for the said examination, nor are their fees refunded to them, and thinks it unjust to decline to refund the fees of those who send in their applications from ignorance of the rules.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Mar. 1st, 1897.

Private candidates for B.A. and Matriculation examinations.

14. A correspondent to the Rajayogi, of the 1st March, referring to the following resolution of the Cocanada Teachers' Association that "in view of the removing of the hardships worked by the present system of disposing of applications for exemption to appear for Matriculation and B.A. examinations as private candidates, the Cocanada Teachers' Association strongly recommends the adoption by the syndicate of definite rules to guide them in granting such exemptions, in order that candidates fulfilling the conditions laid down in those rules may, as a matter of right, claim the exemption," writes thus in English:—"We endorse the resolution word for word. We are strongly of opinion that the way in which the exemption applications are disposed of is arbitrary. In the case of Matriculation, when several candidates satisfying the same conditions apply for exemptions and get their applications supported by one and the same man, competent by the rules, only some of them get the exemption. Is there any secret rule to grant exemption only to a small number of the applicants? If we are to understand that the number of private candidates has a limit, we should like to know if they would be rejected, if they were sent up from recognized schools.

"We know of one notorious case of high-handed arbitration, and we had almost said tyranny, barefaced tyranny. It deserves a full mention here. In 1893 a boy studied in the sixth form of a recognized institution, and for some reason or other sought exemption through the head of another high school, who happened to know him closely. Exemption was first given, but was withdrawn on the representation of his Principal to the Registrar that his age was only 18. The boy then produced a certificate, we learn, from the District Medical officer, who declared his age to be 21; but the Registrar would not believe that a certificate which is conclusive evidence in all age disputes in law courts. The Registrar's card to the boy was as laconic as it was, what shall we say? No heed will be paid to further correspondence on the subject, we quote, as if any heed had been taken of the previous correspondence . . . This monstrous piece of injustice can be measured only by the sanctity of the cause of education.

"Since the unfortunate boy's case was lost on the ground of insufficiency of age (!), we feel called upon to say a word on this point though we first reserved it for separate notice. When we put side by side the maximum age for the intellectual ordeal of the Covenanted Civil Service and the minimum age required for the insignificant Matriculation, and, when we see the Indian graduates of 17 and 18, we cannot pretend to be able to reconcile the Matriculation age minimum to reason . . .

"Coming to the private candidates for B.A., we see no definite rules, except of course that they should be F.As. Here, as in the case of Matriculation, some get the exemption and some do not, though under similar circumstances. We would be obliged for a satisfactory reply to these queries. Why should an exemption granted be tenable only for one year? Why should the same candidate once exempted be in some cases refused exemption a second time?

"As things stand at present, the candidates for B.A. and Matriculation are put in considerable suspense of the result of the applications, and, in the cases of refused exemption, the money and labour spent on the examination books are a waste."

15. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 18th March, learns that the head-master of the Calicut school refused to admit a Paraiya boy into the school in spite of the order of the Assistant Inspector of Schools on the ground that the admission of a Paraiya would drive away all high-caste students.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 18th, 1897.

Admission in a Government school refused to a Paraiya boy in Calicut.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th March, says that the Government Order, No. 31, Educational, dated 18th January last, prohibiting the issue of a "Teacher's certificate" to K. Kannan Nayar, a teacher in Parlakimedi school, is very severe. It remarks that when the "trained teachers' certificate" granted from the Teachers' College, Saidapet, after Kannan Nayar's undergoing the necessary course in that institution as a Government stipendiary student is in force, the above order is not only conflicting but is also unjust and unreasonable. The article is of opinion that if the offence which he committed in 1887 in his capacity as a police officer then and for which he was convicted had been committed after the Madras Act No. III of 1889 came into force, no charge could have been laid at his door. The remark is made that when the lightness of the charge that was brought against Kannan Nayar and the manner in which he was convicted are taken into consideration, the Government Order above referred to cannot but be viewed with great dissatisfaction by the public. The editor hopes that Government will reconsider the hard case of Kannan Nayar as the order in question is likely to affect his occupation which he after so many years of toil and hardship has secured in a distant country.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 13th, 1897.

Considering that G.O., No. 31, Educational, dated 18th January last, is unjust and unreasonable.

17. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th March, referring to the list of University Fellows who were recently nominated says that it is a pity that not a single person from Malabar was nominated though there are several persons there deserving that honour. The persons suggested by the paper are Messrs. T. V. Anantan Nayar, B.A. and B.L., Mulizil Krishnan, B.A. and B.L., and U. Achyutan Nayar, B.A.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 24th, 1897.

Recommending certain Malayalis to be nominated as Fellows of the Madras University.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 27th March, referring to the indifference of the Educational department in the matter of encouraging both the higher and elementary education of the country, say that it is greatly to be regretted that the Government does not devote its attention to the education of the masses as much as it used to do before. The undue raising of the school fees in college classes and the constant changes in text-books have, it is remarked, placed higher education beyond the reach of the middle classes and the reduction of results-grants given to village schools is also said to have seriously retarded the progress of primary education in Malabar.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 27th, 1897.

Government to devote more attention to education.

(e) Local and Municipal.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 9th March, observes that the people of Poonamallee are pressed by the authorities to pay land revenue, income-tax, and house-tax, all at the same time, and that the majority of them being poor are unable to meet so many demands. The correspondent requests Government to inquire into the actual condition of the people and have the house-tax either abolished, or its collection postponed till next year.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 9th, 1897.

A suggestion to Government regarding the collection of house-tax in Poonamallee.

MUNICIPAL AND LOCAL BOARDS' JOURNAL, Rajahmundry, Jan. 1897.

Private latrine reform.

20. The Municipal and Local Boards' Journal, for January (received on 16th March), remarks that, by taking care not to expose the filth in latrines to air or sunlight and by making arrangements to remove the same to the fields outside the town or village, great improvement in sanitation might be effected and the number of diseases largely diminished. It hopes that the District Medical and Sanitary officers will consider the question deeply and offer necessary advice to the municipal and local boards concerned.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, Mar. 20th, 1897.

The municipal budget of the Civil and Military Station for 1897–98.

21. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 20th March, finds fault with the municipal budget of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore, for the coming year for making unnecessary additions to the salaries of the municipal employés this year again. Some two years ago, when similar increases were proposed, the Resident refused his sanction, but the increases were drawn in spite of the orders of the Resident. This year again the Commissioners have betrayed the same contumacy in the preparation of their budget. The paper therefore thinks that, if Government made them pay the unauthorized expenditure from their own pockets, it would be a justifiable and equitable proceeding.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 17th, 1897.

Mr. O. Raman, pensioned tahsildar, to be appointed chairman of the Cannanore Municipality in preference to Mr. Sorabji, a rival candidate.

22. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th March, referring to the resignation of Mr. Rego, Chairman of the Cannanore Municipality, says that the rate-payers will not regret his resignation as they were very much dissatisfied with his administration and were longing for his resignation. It appears that Mr. Oyitti Raman, pensioned tahsildar, and Mr. Sorabji, a pleader, are both trying hard for the chairmanship, and of these two the appointment of Mr. Raman as chairman is strongly recommended by the editor as he has more experience in administrative matters and more leisure than Mr. Sorabji and he is the proper person to bring the municipality to a better state. The article therefore hopes that Government will appoint Mr. Raman as the chairman.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 13th, 1897.

Difference between the British Government and the French Government of Yanam as regards settlement and collection of land revenue.

23. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 13th March, says that, in former days, mirasidars were in a happy and prosperous condition for the reason that lands yielded rich harvest and Government received its revenue in kind, and the kist was limited to one-fourth of the harvest realized; whereas, in these days, the payment of kist in cash, heavy assessment under the recent settlement and frequent failure of crops have seriously affected the material condition of mirasidars and reduced them to poverty. The paper adds that, unless the land assessment is reduced and the settlement rules are revised, there is no chance of any improvement in the condition of the agricultural classes. The same paper then contrasts the land assessment in British India with that in the French Settlement of Yanam, and declares that land-owners living in the French Settlement are more prosperous than their brethren of British India for the following reasons:—

(1) The settlement of Yanam is permanent, Government receiving as revenue one-fourth of the produce realized. Lands are so fertile that eight acres produce a harvest worth about Rs. 150, and Government assesses these eight acres at Rs. 37–8–0 including water-cess at the rate of Rs. 4–11–0 per acre. In the adjoining district of Gódávari mirasidars are obliged to pay one-third of the produce as land-cess together with Rs. 4 per acre as water-cess.

(2) In Yanam pasture lands and uncultivated lands intended for the benefit of cattle are assessed at the rate of ten annas per acre. Under the British Government, however, no such distinction is observed.

(3) When there is a failure of crop, total or partial, the French Government grants a remission; but in the British dominions a ryot is obliged to pay full kist how little soever may be the yield of the land.

(4) In Yanam assessment is collected in four instalments in the months of February, April, October and December when grain sells at a higher rate in the market; but in British India no such concession is allowed.

(h) Railways.

24. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th March, remarks that Paraiya passengers in the South Indian Railway meet with rough treatment at the hands of high-caste passengers while they pay the same fare as the latter. The correspondent suggests to Government as well as the South Indian Railway authorities the advisability of reserving a carriage for Paraiyas as is done for Eurasian and European passengers.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 11th, 1897.

A suggestion to the South Indian Railway authorities.

25. The Sasilekha, of the 16th March, complains that the East Coast Railway servants are not paid their salaries at proper time. It hears that the salaries for January were paid on the 27th February, and, observing that the railway servants on small salaries are put to considerable inconvenience, it prays the railway authorities will remedy the evil.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 16th, 1897.

East Coast Railway servants.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

Suggestions regarding reserved compartments.

27. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 22nd March, invites the attention of the Agent and Manager of the Madras Railway to the inconvenience and loss caused to the merchants by the delay and corrupt practices of the railway employés at the Calicut station in delivering or sending goods. It appears that when goods are received in the station they are not delivered over to the consignees at once, and the object of the railway servants in doing this is to get sufficient time to abstract a part of the contents.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

Complaint against the railway employés of the Calicut station.

(k) General.

28. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 6th March, observes that, ever since the abolition of lock hospitals, venereal diseases are on the increase and the health of British soldiers returning to England from India is very unsatisfactory. The paper advises Government to re-establish lock hospitals for giving medical aid to prostitutes and thus check the spread of venereal diseases.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Mar. 6th, 1897.

Advisability of opening lock hospitals once more.

29. The same paper reports that the seat of the Honourable V. Bashyam Aiyangar as a non-official member in the Legislative Council, has fallen vacant owing to his appointment as Advocate-General, and that the Mahajana Sabha has requested His Excellency the Governor to fill up the vacancy. The paper adds that it is the opinion of a section of the people that His Excellency would do well to wait for some time before making his nomination to the vacancy.

A request to His Excellency the Governor.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 11th, 1897.

Grievances of the officials of the Postal department regarding holidays.

30. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th March, observes that officers of the Postal department enjoy few holidays and are seldom permitted to be absent on leave, for the reason that it is so difficult to relieve them, and that their health must suffer by continued strain of work. The correspondent suggests the appointment of a relieving post officer for each district.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, Mar. 15th, 1897.

Remarks on the reduction of ghât talayaries.

31. The Kalanidhi, of the 15th March, writes in English as follows:—"The Government of Madras, like other local Governments in British India, believes a great deal in petty savings and economies and orders reduction of establishments accordingly, though, when all things are taken into account, the seeming reductions carried out in the interests of the people only tend to the real impoverishment of the latter and an aggravation of the latter's condition. The reduction of the ghât talayaries noticed in our leader is a sample of this. The dismissed ghât talayaries will at once betake themselves to robbery and pursue their admittedly hereditary profession unchecked. This reduction is, therefore, by no means beneficial to the country, as the saving involved, viz., Rs. 235 a month, is so little and the eventual loss to the people from unchecked robbery and theft enormous. Why cannot the Government instead reduce the pay of the big officials by, say, Rs. 50 each? But such a course is never to be thought of."

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 15th, 1897.

Remarks on the exodus to the hills.

32. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 15th March, does not like that Government should go to the hills this year during summer at a great cost while the people are suffering from famine of a severe type. While Government says that it has no funds to help the famine-stricken people, it does not scruple to spend its revenues on an exodus to the hills and to impose fresh taxes on the already over-taxed people of India for meeting extra charges.

PARIYAN, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

Mr. Tremenheere, Collector of Nilgiris.

33. The Pariyan, of the 20th March, praises Mr. Tremenheere, Collector of the Nilgiris, as a very able and a conscientious public servant, clever in putting down corruption among his subordinates, and sympathetic to the Paraiyas. The paper says that, if this officer were posted as a permanent Collector for some time in any of these districts, namely, Chingleput, North Arcot and South Arcot, he would render meritorious service to Government.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 16th, 1897.

Exodus to the hills.

34. The Sasilekha, of the 16th March, regrets that their Excellencies the Viceroy and the Governors should think of departing to the hills with their Councillors during summer. The heat in the plains may no doubt be severe for them, but it is not intolerable because they have all sorts of comforts at their command. The Judges of the High Courts, the Members of the Revenue Boards, the Collectors of the disticts and the European merchants, all work at their stations as usual. Remarking that these merchants and officials bear the expenses themselves, if they ever resort to the hills, the paper is at a loss to know why the Governor and his members with high salaries should not bear the cost of their own comforts. Besides the Viceroy or Governor and his Councillors, it says, a numerous train of officials—secretaries, under-secretaries, clerks and peons—go to the hills increasing the public expense, and remarks that the European rulers require innumerable and expensive comforts only if they can be procured at others' expense.

35. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd March, in writing on the subject of Indian expenditure, says that the injustice done to India in the matter of distribution of expenditure between England and India has now been fully pointed out to the commission now sitting in England. It further goes on to say that it is chiefly as regards the army that India is dealt unfairly by. That the army in India is much larger than is required for her needs. There is no reason why India should keep soldiers only for the use of England. If war is declared in Europe it would be against England and not against India; it is therefore but fair and just that England should pay for the surplus troops. The army in India costs the people the enormous sum of 17 millions sterling and the burden it inflicts upon the people is frightful.

Indian expenditure.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

36. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 24th March, says that it is high time that the authorities should check the corruption and high-handedness of some of the officials in the Malabar district. A few years ago some of the high officials in the district were convicted and punished for bribery and since that time the other officials were somewhat afraid to do any injustice; but now some of the officials are said to be perpetrating more glaring acts of injustice than those of former days.

Corruption and high-handedness of some of the officials in Malabar.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 24th, 1897.

37. In approving of the order of the Government of Madras issued to all Collectors, District Boards and Municipalities as regards the destruction of rats, which are, from a medical point of view, the cause of the breaking out of the bubonic plague, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 29th March, says grain is in fact infected by dead rats and various diseases break out in consequence, and asks the authorities to adopt thorough remedial measures in this respect.

The order of the Madras Government regarding the destruction of rats.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Mar. 29th, 1897.

III.—LEGISLATION.

38. The Prabhavati, of the 22nd March, referring to the Mysore law prescribing the minimum age for the marriage of young boys and girls, remarks that the pernicious custom of early marriages would very soon disappear if the British Government followed suit and passed a similar law prohibiting the marriage of boys and girls below the age of 16 and 8 respectively.

Early marriages.

PRABHAVATI, Cuddapah, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

39. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd March, says that great indignation prevails owing to the publication of the rules under the Plague Act in the North, and that the wildest rumours are afloat about the possible blackmailing and oppression by the police. The examination of female passengers to see if any are suffering from the plague is very much resented by the Muhammadans, and a Muhammadan at Ruk is said to have killed his wife rather than hand her over for examination to the doctor.

The rules under the Plague Act.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 22nd, 1897.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

40. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 18th March, blames the Diwan of Mysore for not having insured the Mysore palace against fire, and says that he had neglected to do so although he had been warned some years ago by Mr. C. E. M. Russell, who was then a forest officer in the Mysore State.

The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 22nd March, says, that people of Mysore are very much excited by the terrible calamity, and an impression is abroad that there was culpable negligence on the part of the authorities. The paper thinks that this excitement is increased owing to the inquiry into the causes of the fire being held within closed doors, and hopes that the report of the commission will soon be made public.

The fire in the Mysore palace.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 18th, 1897.

The Suryodaya, of the 18th March, says that none but the Diwan must be held responsible for the fire in the Mysore palace. He is paid such a high salary that he may look after everything. He ought to have taken the necessary precautions by keeping a constant supply of water ready in the palace. At all events there was no reason for his preventing people, who offered themselves, from attempting to put out the fire at the very commencement. Even ordinary houses with thatched roofs have been saved from total destruction by timely aid, and the palace being a substantial building with iron pillars could easily have been saved if the people had only been allowed to do so.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Mar. 25th, 1897.

The Diwan of Mysore.

41. The Suryodaya, of the 25th March, makes the following remarks about the present Diwan's administration of Mysore :—It is now fifteen years since Sir Seshadri Aiyar has been the Diwan of Mysore. During his administration the Mysore State Railway was made over to Southern Mahratta Railway Company; the Mysore Postal service was amalgamated with the Imperial Postal department. While there was poverty and distress he submitted returns exhibiting increased wealth and prosperity of the State, which resulted in higher pay to himself and enhanced subsidy to the Imperial Government.

The increase in the revenue is owing not to any new industry introduced by the Diwan, but to the retransfer of lands vacated by poor ryots in their inability to pay the taxes at the time of the famine in the years of Dhatu and Ishwara, to the confiscation of the permanently-settled villages for arrears of revenue, and to the sale of accumulated sandal and teak wood. No doubt there is vast increase in the revenue under the two heads, Salt and Abkári, but this has in no way improved the condition of the people at large as the penniless people to indulge in their vices will have recourse to such illegal means as theft, robbery and the like to come by money wherewith to buy liquor. The increase so obtained he has devoted to enhance the salary of his own favourites. For these 10 or 12 years the low-paid servants of the taluk offices are crying for an increase of pay, but there is no one to hear their grievances.

There is loss to the State in every direction. The late Maharaja died at Calcutta and his palace is now consumed by fire, but the Diwan is still in his place. All this has caused great dissatisfaction to most of the subjects who seriously question why he should any longer be retained in the office and anxiously wait for a better man. Many wonder why he is not advised either by Her Highness the Regent to enjoy some rest after such a long service. There was some anxiety to find a fit successor to Diwan Purnayya who served Tippu Sultan and Maharaja Krishna Wodeyer, but the difficulty was somehow got over. The editor hopes that it would not be difficult in these enlightened days to find a fit successor to the present Diwan.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 18th, 1897.

Remission of revenue on dry lands.

42. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 18th March, says that the ryots of the districts affected by famine must feel grateful to the Government of Madras for the order given to the Collectors not to sell lands for arrears of revenue as the Government has under contemplation the remission of revenue on dry lands.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 18th, 1897.

An advice to the Madras Famine Committee.

43. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th March, says that the famine-stricken people of this presidency have a stronger claim than their brethren of the other presidencies on the funds collected in England for famine relief, because the poverty of Madras is due to Government draining away nearly all its wealth in the shape of taxation. The paper persuades the Madras

Committee to demand from the Calcutta Committee a larger share of the British charity and have it distributed among all the famine-stricken people of this presidency.

44. The Vikata Dutan, of the 20th March, referring to the contemplated celebration of the Diamond Jubilee, remarks as follows:—The proposal to give a treat to school boys and to feed the poor on the day of celebration does not appear to be very commendable. The best mode of celebration will be to help the poor ryots in the famine suffering districts by a remission of their taxes for the year.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee.

45. The Sasilekha, of the 19th March, notes the observation of Mr. Caine that the contributions from the various countries in the world are altogether inadequate for famine relief in India, and that the British Parliament will do well to deserve the gratitude of the Indian subjects by voting a sum of ten lakhs of pounds sterling, and remarks that India would not have been reduced to such straits had it not been for the high salaries paid to European officials and for the large remittances out of its wealth to England. The people are groaning under oppressive taxation and heavy military expenditure. It is therefore but just, says the paper, that the British Parliament should help India in times of distress by granting a large sum of money.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 19th, 1897.

Parliament and Indian famine.

46. The Andhraprakasika, of the 20th March, regrets very much that the Government has not yet put a stop to the slave trade that obtains in the presidency. It refers to a case reported in the Rangoon Times, in which the young wife of a poor ryot in the Vizagapatam district was taken to Rangoon by one who lives by such trade and confined there for some time in a private room in a certain house, and then transferred to another house, and after a time she was sold to the owner of the house for Rs. 95. The woman remained there as his wife, and, waiting for an opportunity, made her escape and sought the protection of a barrister-at-law. The paper remarks that, as these slaves are exported from ports in the Madras Presidency, it is necessary that the Madras Government should take particular care to put a stop to this illegal traffic.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

Madras slave trade.

47. The Hindujanasamskarini, for February, admits that India should ever be governed by the British, but says it should either have a parliament of its own or be represented in the Parliament of the United Kingdom. The taxes in India, it remarks, must be reduced to their minimum. The Imperial Government should bear the cost of every undertaking in which it is interested. Qualified natives should be encouraged and given higher appointments. The military expenditure should be curtailed. A native volunteer corps should be raised, and, as the Indians are at present becoming weaker for want of sufficient food, care should be taken to improve their physical condition and to save the country with their aid from foreign invasion.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Feb. 1897.

India and its grievances.

48. The same paper says that it is freely opined by the ryots that the British Government in India can only interfere with revenue settlement too frequently and transmit large sums of money to England, but cannot improve the condition of the Indian subjects.

British Government in India.

49. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 18th March, says that the waiting sheds now existing near taluk cutcherries are appropriated by high-caste ryots alone who do not give admission into them to Paraiyas and other low-caste people and therefore hopes that Government would erect separate waiting sheds for the exclusive use of the lower castes of ryots.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, Mar. 18th, 1897.

Necessity for erecting waiting sheds for low-caste ryots near taluk cutcherries.

50. The same paper does not approve of the agitation set-up against the move of the various local Governments to the hills in this year of famine, and says that it is but reasonable that the hard-worked officials, who cannot bear the heat of the plains, should go to some cool place for a short time.

The move of Government to the hills.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Mar. 29th, 1897.

51. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 29th March, says that the migration of the various Governments to the hills is a great mistake at this juncture and will have a very injurious moral effect on the famine administration in the various districts just at a time when the greatest effort is required.

The exodus of Government to the hills.

52. The same paper says that although the Mussalmans in India have hitherto tried to keep aloof from the Congress and have been doing all they could to thwart its objects, yet in a meeting recently held by the Muhammadans in Alighar they have passed resolutions which are identical with those of the National Congress. This, the editor thinks, is a sure sign that they now see their error, and, therefore, exhorts them to make common cause with the Hindus and join the Congress to make its voice more powerful than it would be if the Muhammadans kept aloof and agitated independently.

Mussalmans and the Indian National Congress.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 13th, 1897.

53. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 13th March, commenting upon the famine relief fund meeting at Calicut, says, among other matters, that the constant recurrence of famine in India is due to the imposition of various heavy taxes and also to the drain on the Indian exchequer in several unnecessary ways, such as the payment of exchange compensation allowances, home remittances, expensive frontier wars, &c. The article, after dilating upon the matter at some length, remarks that although the Government has neglected its duty which is to administer the country by regulating its expenses in proportion to the income, yet it is the duty of all loyal and philanthropic citizens to come forward and assist Government in saving the lives of millions of their fellow-creatures by contributing their quota even by curtailing their necessaries of life.

Famine relief fund meeting at Calicut.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 17th, 1897.

54. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 17th March, referring to the rumour that Azhuvanchari Tamprakkal (a Nambudri Brahman) intends to petition Government to exempt him from appearing in civil courts as witness, says that if there is any truth in the rumour, Government should deeply consider before granting the prayer of the petitioner. The opinion is expressed that if Government intends to exempt any body at all in Malabar from appearing in civil courts as witness it ought to be done only after the Zamorin has first been exempted therefrom.

Government to consider deeply before granting the prayers of a petition that would be submitted by a certain Nambudri Brahman.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Mar. 20th, 1897.

55. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 20th March, referring to the iniquities committed by the medical officers in granting health, post-mortem and other certificates, says that such certificates are incorrect and untrustworthy as their tenor depends mostly upon the weight of the purse of the person to whom they are granted. In the matter of granting post-mortem and other certificates, the medical officers are forbidden to take money, but, it is alleged, that they receive money secretly and give false certificates. It appears that if in criminal cases persons who have suffered injury are sent to the hospital for treatment the medical men in charge are said to receive bribes and convert simple hurt into grievous hurt and vice versâ. To make the offence a grievous hurt the patient should be kept in the hospital for more than twenty-one days; and the medical men to effect their purpose are, it appears, in the habit of discharging from the hospital patients who are not cured of their wound and retaining those who have undergone a complete cure. The article, after referring to the matter at some length, invites the attention of the authorities to the desirability of making stringent rules in the matter of certificates granted by the medical officers of Government who, it is remarked, are completely demoralised.

Medical certificates.

The Mappilas again!

56. The Malayalam Manorama, of the 22nd March, writes that on one of the festival days of the Karimpuzha temple a Tangal residing in the locality went to the temple after 3 P.M. and wanted to get admission into it, but the Nambudris and others who had assembled in the temple raised a strong objection remarking that the temple would be polluted if the Tangal were admitted. An altercation took place between the Hindus and the Tangal and when the latter found that his demand would not be conceded, he stepped into the temple and caught the Nambudri priest. A scuffle then ensued between them, but the by-standers interfered and separated them both and ruled that the Tangal should not enter the temple. At about half-past five some twenty Mappilas, armed with clubs, arrived at the temple gate; then the temple authorities at once gave information to the nearest police station at Srikrishnapuram. By the time the police and the Eralpad Raja's sepoys reached the place these Mappilas, it appears, ran away to the neighbouring forests. The correspondent says that the above took place during the late Ramzan, a month ago.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 29th March, with reference to the present crisis in Crete, writes as follows:—The devoted loyalty and gratitude of the Muhammadans is well known to all. The Cretan question causes much sensation in and exercises the minds of the Muhammadan community. The insurgent Greeks have committed all sorts of atrocities upon the poor Muslims. The Muhammadans fervently hope that the British Government, who rules over numberless Muhammadans, will, with a view to safeguard their religious interests, use their best endeavours to free the innocent Muslims of Crete from the oppression of the incendiary mob of Greeks. The incriminating articles of Mr. Gladstone, the mass meetings of the Hyde Park and the fact that the British volunteers are ready to render help to the Greeks are calculated to prove that the British nation, being a Christian nation, is a bitter enemy of the Muslims of Turkey and Crete. The German Emperor is now fully prepared to help Turkey. Muhammadans will feel grateful to any one who may help Turkey at such a critical time as this is. It would be advisable for the British Government to adopt the friendly policy of Germany towards the Sultan. The Muhammadans in London, after the performance of the Eed-ul-Fitr prayers on the 4th of March, entertained Haji Muhammad Daly Sahib and prayed to God for the welfare of the Sultan of Turkey and the German Emperor and for the stability of the Ottoman Empire. The editor states that the Emperor of Germany supports the cause of the Sultan of Turkey openly and the Muhammadans in London have every reason to bless the German Emperor's beneficent rule.

The present crisis in Crete.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 29th, 1897.

2. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 5th April, has an extract from the Mukhbir-i-Dakhan, of Madras, to the following effect:—It is admitted that the Muhammadans aided the English in gaining a footing in India to a far greater extent than any other nation did and they are still ready to sacrifice their lives for the British Government should any necessity arise therefor. This being the case, it is not known why Government should wound their feelings. The Age of Consent Act, the Pilgrimships' Act and the notification suspending the pilgrimage to Mecca have already wounded their feelings, and now the treatment of the Sultan by the British Government as regards the Cretan affair is an additional cause of amazement to them. When a Christian rebel is hanged at Crete for breach of discipline, the Turks are represented as tyrants and murderers, and, in sympathy with the rebel hanged, the English press is filled with exaggerated accounts and the rebels are helped with arms, ammunition, &c., for the continuance of their rebellion. The editor, addressing the Muhammadans, says: "You, O Muhammadans, are the most loyal and faithful subjects of the British Government which will take into its serious consideration everything you may represent to it and will have regard to your sufferings. Hence it behoves you at this critical time to place before it your views as regards the Cretan affair by calling committees and request Government not to annoy its faithful Muhammadan subjects." The editor observes that, should the spark of the latent ill-feeling existing between the Turkish and the British Government be fanned into a blaze, and the relations between them become more strained, the peace and tranquillity of the whole world will be jeopardized.

The Sultan and the British Government.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Apr. 5th, 1897.

3. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 29th March, states that a correspondent named Muhammad Ghouse, schoolmaster of Savrapatam, Malur taluk, in the Kolar district, controverts the opinion of certain (bigoted) Englishmen that only very few Muhammadans in India recognise the Sultan of Turkey as their lawful Caliph and observes that Muhammadans in general, rich or poor, learned or illiterate, coolies or peasants, are devotedly attached to the Sultan and would not hesitate to sacrifice their lives for him. The correspondent requests all Muhammadans to follow the policy of the Aligarh Muhammadans in holding public meetings with a view to pray to God for the welfare of the Sultan of Turkey and to petition Government to treat their spiritual head, the Sultan, humanely.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Mar. 29th, 1897.

II.—Home Administration.

Pariyan, Madras, Apr. 3rd, 1897.

Desirability of training police constables to work fire-engines.

4. The Pariyan, of the 3rd April, remarks that, in times of accident by fire, police constables, either by the fire-engine being out of order or by laziness, are unable to work the machine which, therefore, fails to serve the purpose for which it is intended. The paper thinks it desirable that police constables should be trained to work a fire-engine on occasions of emergency.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, Mar. 27th, 1897.

Unsatisfactory nature of the police administration in the district of Tanjore.

5. The Jananukulan, of the 27th March, remarks that the police administration of Tanjore has been unsatisfactory ever since 1897, and more so after the transfer of Mr. Agar, the Superintendent of Police, and quotes six criminal cases in which the police executives of the district are concerned and which are pending inquiry. The paper requests Government as well as the Inspector-General of Police to adopt measures to render the police administration in the district of Tanjore satisfactory.

Kerala Chandrika, Calicut, Apr. 1st, 1897.

Natives to be appointed as Assistant Superintendents of Police.

6. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st April, while noticing with pleasure the appointment of Mr. P. S. Srinivasa Chari as a permanent Assistant Superintendent of Police, says that in the reply to the address presented by the public of Bellary to His Excellency Sir Arther Havelock on the occasion of his visit to that district in October last, His Excellency said that, as an experimental measure, a native gentleman would be appointed as Assistant Superintendent and if the results proved satisfactory other similar appoinments would follow. As the appointment of Mr. Srinivasa Chari as Assistant Superintendent has proved a great success and has been made permanent, it now behoves His Excellency to fulfil his promise. The opinion of the general public is that it is not in the nature of His Excellency to indulge in words calculated to afford momentary pleasure to the people and that if he once gives a word he will act up to it; and so the article trusts that His Excellency will select some able and competent men from among the natives and appoint them as Assistant Superintendents. It is further remarked that the appointment of natives as Assistant Superintendents will remove the impression now rightly or wrongly entertained by the people that such posts have been created only for giving employment to the sons of some influential Englishmen who have not or could not pass any University examination. As the natives are in a better position to easily and correctly understand the nature of the country and the people than their European compeers, their appointment would render greater assistance to the administration of justice than it does now. When responsible offices including the judgeship of the High Court are held by natives and the duties connected therewith are ably and satisfactorily discharged by them, is it possible that there are no able natives available in large numbers for a comparatively less responsible and onerous post such as that of Assistant Superintendents of Police?

Manorama, Calicut, Apr. 5th, 1897.

Vagaries of the Kottakkal police.

7. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 5th April, invites the attention of the Superintendent of Police, Malabar, to the vagaries of the Kottakkal police. It appears that the persons who take things for sale to the local market which is held every Saturday are not only molested by the police in various ways but are also prevented from selling their goods as they choose.

(b) Courts.

Serious allegations against a Stationary Magistrate, Malabar.

8. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 31st March, says that a petition was recently presented to the Collector of Malabar by a Warriyar, charging Subrama Aiyar, Stationary Magistrate of Bettutnad, with criminal intimidation and extortion, and the Collector forwarded the same to the Head Assistant Magistrate, Palghat, for inquiry and report. The paper remarks that it has often before this heard several other serious allegations against Subrama Aiyar, and the civil suit in the matter of his having purchased an elephant in a suspicious manner, which is now pending in the Sub-Court, Calicut, is one of the instances in point which would amply suffice for his superior officers to form a very bad impression of him. It is not now possible to pronounce an opinion as to the truth or otherwise of the allegations contained in the petition, but as the charge brought against him is very serious, it is not so easy to ascertain the truth if the inquiry is conducted at Bettutnad where Subrama Aiyar, by virtue of his office, wields so much influence. The paper suggests that, for the purpose of a satisfactory inquiry, Subrama Aiyar should be either removed from Bettutnad or suspended.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 31st, 1897.

A complaint against the Sub-Magistrate of Bettutnad to be thoroughly inquired into.

9. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 7th April, while concurring in the opinion expressed by the editor of the same paper in a former issue in the matter of the inquiry ordered by the Collector of Malabar into the complaint made by a Warriyar against Subrama Aiyar, Sub-Magistrate of Bettutnad, adds that however wealthy and influential the complainant may be it is impossible to find persons to give evidence so long as an unscrupulous official exercising magisterial powers is retained at the place of inquiry. The correspondent remarks that although it is opposed to policy to suspend Subrama Aiyar until a primâ facie case has been made out against him, it is highly necessary, in the interests of justice and equity, that he should at least be transferred from the station in order to render the inquiry thorough and satisfactory.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Apr. 7th, 1897.

Predominance of European Fellows in the Madras University and its effect.

10. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th March, remarks that out of the nineteen Fellows recently appointed by Government in the University of Madras, only four are natives, the rest being Europeans, including five or six Christian missionaries. The paper thinks that the predominance of European element among the Fellows in the University is likely to be prejudicial to the interests of natives, and is at a loss to know why Government as well as the Director of Public Instruction were induced to adopt such a course.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

Primary education.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Apr. 9th, 1897.

serious consideration and sanction a larger expenditure (from Provincial funds) for primary schools. It regrets to note that while legislature provides for the compulsory education of children in almost all the civilised countries, such as England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Greece, Switzerland and even in the rising country of Japan, no such provision has as yet been made in India—a country governed for the last 100 years by the most enlightened nation in the world. It suggests that, if Government be unable to allot a larger sum of money for primary education, it might impose a small cess, such as road-cess, specially for the said purpose and establish a school in each village however small it may be.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, Mar. 31st, 1897.

Suggestions regarding the education of Mappilas.

12. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 31st March, says that in a minute which was written by the President of the Malabar District Board regarding the improvement of education of the Mappilas and laid at a recent meeting of the board, he had suggested, among other matters, that a liberal grant of free scholarships and stipends to the Mappila youths will be a great stimulus to the members of that community to educate their children. The article remarks that although the methods suggested above may act as a strong incentive to the poor, yet it is doubtful whether they will be of any effect in the case of the children of wealthy Mappilas whose education is to be devoutly wished for. The opinion is expressed that nothing short of making education compulsory among the Mappilas will be an adequate plan for furthering the progress of education among them.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

Bad condition of a certain road leading from Pollachi to Darapuram.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th March, describing the bad condition of a great portion of the road leading from Pollachi to Darapuram, requests the authorities concerned to have it repaired ere long.

JANANUKULAN, Tanjore, Apr. 3rd, 1897.

Butchers' strike in Tanjore and the indifference of the municipal authorities.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Apr. 5th, 1897.

Desirability of securing water-supply for the towns of Negapatam, Velippalayam and Nagore.

15. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 5th April, regrets that Government should have declined to lend money for a water-supply project for the town of Negapatam and its suburbs. The paper observes that the question of supplying Negapatam, Velippalayam and Nagore with good water has been before the local municipality and Government for the last ten years, and, now that a scheme has been matured, it is a pity that Government should decline to sanction the expenditure. The municipal council, it would seem, has again pressed the question on the attention of Government.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Mar. 8th, 1897.

The Gódávari District Board.

16. The Rajayogi, of the 8th March, quotes the letter in which the Vice-President, on behalf of the President, Gódávari District Board, required Mr. K. Rao Seshayya to tender his resignation for his seat on the Cocanada Taluk Board as he could no longer represent the Pithapuram Estate on behalf of the adopted son of the late Raja, as well as Mr. Rao Seshayya's letter in reply, and makes the following observations in English:—"It is clear from the reply given by Mr. Seshayya that he was never given to understand that he was to be a representative of the Pithapuram Estate on the taluk board. And it is a high-handed and arbitrary procedure to ask people to resign their seats while no existing rule disables them to continue as members. If the Act contemplates that people should cease to be members under certain circumstances, why could not the Vice-President remove Mr. Rao Seshayya from the membership and why did he wait until he obtained the resignation from him. Even according to the District Municipalities Act nobody ceases to be a councillor when he ceases to fulfil the conditions under which he was nominated or elected. We cannot for one moment believe that Rao Seshayya was intended to represent the interests of the adopted son better than Mr. K. Subba Row, the Diwan, who was also a member. Besides this, nobody can understand how the Vice-President expected Mr. Seshayya to represent the Pithapuram Estate while the latter, according to his reply, held no appointment under the adopted son.

"We are told that Mr. V. Rama Row, B.A., of Cocanada, has been appointed to fill the place vacated by Mr. Seshayya. Are we to understand that Mr. Rama Row is to represent the interests of the Pithapuram Estate? We believe Mr. Rama Rao has as much to do with the Pithapuram Estate as darkness has with light."

Fire in Calicut.

17. A paragraph in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 31st March, regrets to learn that when a fire recently broke out in Calicut the local municipality did not render any material help in extinguishing it. The editor asks on what occasions is the municipality that levies taxes from the people in various ways to render them any assistance if it is not on occasions like this when their life and property are in danger? Further, how discreditable it is that the municipality has no fire-engine of its own.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

A remark on Mr. Abbas Ali Sahib, Tahsildar of Tanjore taluk.

18. The Jananukulan, of the 3rd April, gives a very unsatisfactory account of the work done by Mr. Abbas Ali Sahib, Tahsildar of Tanjore, and supports the same by quoting the remarks made against him in the Swadesamitran, the Muhammadan, the Janamitran, and the South Indian Post. It says that during his tenure of office as Tahsildar in Tanjore, the revenue has fallen in arrears to the extent of Rs. 65,000 according to the Swadesamitran and is at a loss to know why Government has not taken notice of such heavy arrears which speak against the Tahsildar as a revenue officer. The paper says that the taluk of Tanjore is a wide taluk yielding a large revenue and containing chiefly Tamil-speaking population, and that a Muhammadan Tahsildar who is not much acquainted with Tamil and whose revenue capacity is questioned should be appointed for the said taluk is highly undesirable. The paper requests Government to do the needful in this matter.

A request to the authorities concerned to begin the survey of the contemplated Muttupet-Avadiyarkoil line.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 23rd March, requests the authorities concerned to begin soon the survey of the contemplated Muttupet-Avadiyarkoil line for which a sum of Rs. 20,000 has been sanctioned by the District Board of Tanjore. The correspondent says that the said line has many facilities with regard to acquisition of lands and the securing of labour, materials, &c., and that the average cost per mile would be only three-fourths of the cost per mile of the Mayavaram-Muttupet line.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 23rd, 1897.

East Coast Railway.

20. The Rajayogi, of the 8th March, writes thus in English:—"Though it was some nine months back that this (intermediate) class was brought in, still we do not find adequate accommodation in it. The intermediate carriages are not attached to all the passenger trains running on the line . . . The railway authorities are not justified in announcing to the public the introduction of the inter-carriages before making themselves sure of the stock. By this the Government officials, as well as the public, are put to a good deal of inconvenience, not being certain which train would contain a carriage. Much trouble and worry are experienced by officers in checking the travelling allowance bills of the parties concerned. There is a general cry, as it were, from all quarters against the insufficiency of inter-class room. We invite the attention of the Manager and Engineer-in-Chief of the East Coast Railway to the fact that the absence of these carriages on all the mixed trains is seriously felt and complaints from the public have been very common regarding the fact that the very trains which are, according to the notification of the Traffic Superintendent, supposed to have inter-carriages do not really possess them to the sad disappointment of the public."

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Mar. 8th, 1897.

Wanted a station on East Coast Railway.

21. A correspondent to the same paper writes thus in English :—" I would invite the attention of the Traffic Superintendent of the East Coast Railway through the medium of your columns to the following facts in the hope that they will receive his consideration as they deserve.

" The distance between Nidadavólu and Tadapalligudem railway stations is much longer than that between any other two stations. There is a place called Navabpalem exactly half the way between the said two stations where a railway station is absolutely necessary. At least a flag station as a temporary measure may be opened and tried for a reasonable length of time, subject to closure should its maintenance not be advantageous . . . . Heavy cart loads of goods are daily passing by other routes than railway from many villages of the Tanuku taluk for want of railway stations at proper places. This is all a loss to the Government railway line no doubt. Annually not less than fifty or sixty thousand bags will be booked from the railway station if one be opened at Navabpalem."

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

A report against the dispensary at Vettavalam.

22. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 20th March, reports that the hospital assistant in charge of the dispensary in Vettavalan is frequently sent out on special duty and that the patients of the place are thereby put to much inconvenience as the dispensary is closed on such occasions.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Mar. 27th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the Executive Council.

23. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 27th March, reports that a rumour is afloat that there is some want of agreement between His Excellency the Governor and the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss and that His Excellency has even written to the Secretary of State to say that it is impossible for him to secure the co-operation of Mr. Bliss in administrative matters. The paper thinks that the present constitution of the Executive Council is calculated to give room to such disagreement, and suggests the desirability of either abolishing the council altogether by appointing Lieutenant-Governors to both Madras and Bombay or to nominate His Excellency Lieutenant-General Commanding the Forces as an additional member and thus raise the number of the Council Members to four.

PARIYAN, Madras, April 3rd, 1897.

A request to medical authorities regarding the Royapetta hospital.

24. The Pariyan, of the 3rd April, dilating on the usefulness of the Royapetta hospital to the people living in Adyar, Triplicane, Mylapore, Egmore, Teynampet and Nungambakam, observes that the present rule that the hospital be opened to out-patients for one hour only from 8 to 9 A.M., apparently intended for the convenience of medical students attending there, works a hardship on the patients. The paper requests the medical authorities to extend the time to two hours as before, as it is a first-class hospital, and also to appoint some more compounders instead of entrusting the responsible duty of dispensing medicine to young and inexperienced medical students.

25. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 29th March, draws the attention of Government to rule 732 of the Indian Post Office Manual and declares that the appointment of Europeans to posts carrying high salaries in the department is a violation of the above rule for which the authorities are responsible. The paper says that in the Presidency of Bengal, out of 21 first-grade superintendents only 4 are natives, out of 32 second-grade superintendents only 8 are natives, out of 33 third-grade superintendents only 11 are natives, out of 42 fourth-grade superintendents only 15 are natives, and so forth. The paper further observes that though natives possess examination qualifications they are not appointed to the higher posts of the department, whereas Europeans having no examination qualifications are appointed to them. The paper expresses the wish that the subject may be taken to the notice of the British Parliament.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 29th, 1897.

Rule No. 732 of the Indian Post Office Manual and its violation.

26. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st April, observes that it is not right on the part of His Excellency the Governor to proceed to the hills for spending away the summer while the northern parts of the Presidency are affected with severe famine. It says that, during the famines in the years past, the Duke of Buckingham used personally to inspect the relief kitchens with an umbrella in hand, and Lord Connemara travelled from district to district, and that Lord Wenlock also showed a certain amount of vigilance in inspecting the famine-stricken quarters and that this kind of gubernatorial inspection had the advantage of prompting the district officers to exert their best in supervising relief operations. The paper regrets that the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss that Government should remain in Madras this year was not attended to, and remarks that the present exodus to the hills is really unjustifiable in the present state of affairs.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apr. 1st, 1897.

A remark on the exodus to the hills.

27. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 30th March, regrets that the weavers in Pulivendla taluk, Cuddapah district, are severely suffering from famine. He states that a large number of them are to be found in Kondareddipalem alone, that they number six thousand in the taluk and that there are seven thousand more in Proddatur taluk. He prays that Government would extend to these poor sufferers the same arrangements that have been made for the weavers of Jammalamadugu.

SASILEKHA, Madras, Mar. 30th, 1897.

Pulivendla taluk.

He regrets that the coolies working on the relief works at Pulivendla are obliged to have but one meal a day in the morning, for their earnings have to maintain the sick and the aged at home and those that guard the hut. He therefore recommends payment of money doles to the sick and the aged instead of feeding them in choultries, or to locate the coolies with their disabled relatives in pandals, erecting them close to the relief works.

He further regrets that there is great delay in disposing of applications from ryots for grants of money for sinking wells. They suffer greatly, having commenced digging while no grant is forthcoming. He hears that the revenue inspector has refused his help to the applicants of a certain village unless he was paid at the rate of 4 or 5 per cent. on the amount applied for, and remarks that the magistrate should inquire into such cases and punish the offenders. He hears also that while the Collector has ordered the cess to be collected on lands that produced an 8-anna crop, the village officials are trying to grant remissions, receiving 4 annas for every rupee for themselves. He therefore prays that the revenue authorities will be on the alert and do the needful and protect the ryots.

28. A correspondent to the same paper states that Mr. LeFanu won the people's hearts by personally hearing revenue appeals when he was Collector of Nellore, and observes that the present Collector's indifference to follow the good practice of his predecessor is felt to be a real grievance by the people. He believes that the resignation of Mr. T. V. Venkataramiah, Public Prosecutor, is a considerable loss both to Government and the people. Mr. Venkataramiah's procedure in criminal cases, which was calculated to allow the innocent to be let off and to bring the guilty to condign punishment, was quite praiseworthy. He regrets the authorities place implicit faith in anonymous letters and pay no heed to the testimony of respectable gentlemen.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Apr. 10th 1897.

Batimacherla relief works.

29. The Andhraprakasika, of the 10th April, hears that the relief works at Batimacherla, Kurnool district, are in a regrettable condition, demanding the attention of the Collector. It states that there are no sheds for the coolies to stay in, that there are many women living in absolute nakedness for want of clothing, that the coolies are paid once in six days, that they are enlisted only on Mondays and not on other days, that the drinking-water supplied to them is taken from a dirty pool, and that the articles prepared in the relief kitchens are insufficiently boiled.

SHAMS-UL-AKBAR, Madras, Apr. 5th, 1897.

Dismissal of certain employés of the Government Press.

30. Referring to the dismissal of certain employés of the Government Press, the Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 5th April, says Mr. Hill, the Superintendent of the Government Press, is an experienced officer. The editor does not know whether he has acted in this way after previous warning, and suggests to Government the advisability of reinstating the dismissed employés.

Referring to the above subject and the consequential transfer of their work to the Penitentiary and the appointment of a police guard for the safety of proofs passing from the Penitentiary to the Government Press and vice versâ, the same paper, of the 12th April, considers that the above procedure is defective and asks why such trouble should be taken in this respect. Is there a want of printers in Madras? Is it impossible to reinstate the dismissed employés? If so, it is advisable that the work may be exacted from the prisoners at the Government Press itself in the same way as road-work is exacted from them.

Native Translators to Government.

31. The same paper, of the 5th April, mentions that a few years ago natives were appointed as Translators to Government in all languages with the exception of Persian and Hindustani. From that time the prestige thereof as well as that of these establishments has disappeared. So long as Europeans remained as Translators, they were aiding their native subordinates, especially as regards nautical terms, of which the natives are ignorant, and thus the work was conducted efficiently; but this has not been the case ever since the appointment of natives as Translators, and hence the munshis of the Tamil, Telugu Translators, &c., greatly feel the want of European officers as their Translators, which the editor hopes will be supplied by the appointment of Europeans as Translators.

Bubonic plague.

32. In approving of the remedial measures adopted by the Bombay Government as regards the suppression of the bubonic plague, the same paper says thousands of rupees are ungrudgingly spent in this respect by the Government of Bombay, and prays to God to grant it success.

Embezzlement of famine fund at Calcutta.

33. The same paper, of the 12th April, mentions that an European has been convicted and fined at Calcutta for embezzlement of famine fund and remarks that if such acts are done by Europeans it will be no wonder if natives act in the same way. It is a fact that the money given for the relief of the famine-stricken people is not wholly utilised for the purpose and a moiety and sometimes more than that is embezzled by the executive officials.

Suggesting the appointment of Colonel Proudfoot as Paymaster, Carnatic Stipends.

34. The same paper mentions that at the last meeting of the Legislative council the Hon'ble Mr. J. F. Price, in reply to a query, said that the selection of a competent officer as Paymaster, Carnatic Stipends, was under the consideration of Government, and says at this time we beg to draw the attention of Government to Colonel J. G. Proudfoot who is now at Bellary. It is believed that Government will not be able to find a better officer. Colonel Proudfoot acted in this appointment in the year 1894. During his tenure of office he secured the confidence and trust of the whole Carnatic family. In consequence of this, it is understood, steps are being taken to induce the Government to nominate him to the post. The editor also mentions that the Colonel has twice or thrice acted as General Officer Commanding the Madras district and hopes that His Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock, who is a friend of the Muhammadans, will oblige them by conferring the appointment on him.

III.—Legislation.

Malabar tenancy question.

35. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 3rd April, says that when Mr. H. T. Ross, the special officer appointed in connection with the preparation of the Malabar Tenancy Bill, visited Malabar some months ago to collect information he told the people that he would draft a Bill and again visit the district in February with a view to take their opinion on it; but as he has not yet done so, it has given rise to misapprehension and to different surmises. Ever since the question of a tenancy law for Malabar the relation between the landlord and tenants has become slowly but steadily strained. The delay in passing a tenancy law has given rise to several evils. The tenants who disclosed to him the unjust and oppressive actions of the landlords are persecuted in various ways by landlords; some of them have, it appears, commenced to evict the tenants or to grant melchart (overlease). As the indifference shown by the authorities in hurrying up the matter has tended to create a feeling of distrust in the minds of the people, it is doubtful whether they will in future come forward to give information on the subject. The article next refers to the rumour that Government proposes to pass a tenancy law applicable to the whole presidency, and says that as the land tenures in Malabar are entirely different from those of other districts a special law should be passed for Malabar.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, Apr. 3rd, 1897.

The Act for the prevention of the bubonic plague.

36. Referring to the Act relating to the prevention of the bubonic plague, the Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 5th April, says nearly two centuries have elapsed since the English people began to administer India. It is matter for regret that they have not as yet become thoroughly acquainted with the popular feelings of the different nations of India. If they have anything of the sort it is forgotten at the time of enforcing new orders. The Plague Act recently passed separates a person affected with the disease completely from his relations. The objects and reasons justifying the enactment of the law no doubt appear to be beneficial to the people, but the means which it proposes to adopt for the ease and comfort of the people are quite repugnant to the usage of our nation and country. The law is well adapted to European countries where a child suffering from a contagious disease can be segregated from its parents and placed in an hospital and yet the parents will never object, whereas here if such things were to happen parents would be ready to sacrifice their lives to prevent them. The editor remarks that the Act has caused great sensation amongst the people of India which, it is apprehended, will produce serious results if necessary amendments are not made therein.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Apr. 5th, 1897.

IV.—Native States.

Indignity offered to the widow of the late Nawab of Radhanpore, Bombay.

Swadesamitram, Madras, Mar. 20th, 1897.

husband, that the zenana guard was stopped, that the allowance for household expenditure has been greatly curtailed, that the villages given to her by her husband have been taken away from her possession one by one, that the zenana was searched more than once on the assumption that it contained hidden treasure, that the royal lady was asked to quit the zenana, and that as she was unwilling to do so the zenana was forcibly entered into in violation of all rules of civility and respect due to a royal lady. The paper asks whether the English people, who profess to excel other nations in civilization and politeness, specially in respect to the fair sex, are justified in subjecting a royal lady to such indignities. The paper remarks in conclusion that acts of this kind would seriously damage the prestige of the British rule.

VRITTANTA PATHIKA, Mysore, Apr. 8th, 1897.

The fire in the Mysore palace.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Apr. 2nd & 9th, 1897.

The Mysore Diwan's pleasure trip when his presence was wanted on the scene of the fire.

The Suryodaya, of the 2nd and 9th April, speaking on the same subject, says that as the decision of the commission is being eagerly expected not only by the people of Mysore, but also by people in other parts of India, it should soon be published in the gazette. The editor hopes that the president of the commission has brought to bear a judicial mind upon the subject and that no attempt has been made to shield any officer who is guilty of wilful neglect in the matter of the fire.

39. The same paper, of the 2nd April, wonders how the Diwan could think of going to see the festival at Melkote when the palace had just been burnt down and things worth lakhs of rupees were being dug out of the ruins. It was his duty to have been present on the scene and to have exercised a supervision over the operations. His going away on such an occasion shows his want of loyalty.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apr. 10th, 1897.

Cochin harbour to be improved.

40. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 10th April, invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the desirability of improving the Cochin harbour which is now in a neglected condition. The opinion is expressed that if the harbour in question is improved and connected by rail to Shoranur, it will tend to the development of commerce.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

SURYODAYA, Bangalore, Apr. 9th, 1897.

Famine and drought in Kurnool and other districts.

41. The Suryodaya, of the 9th April, says that in 25 small villages in Kurnool there is not a drop of water to drink, and that thefts on account of famine have so far increased in the districts of Kurnool, Bellary, Anantapur and Cuddapah that the jails are full and there is no more accommodation in them for the prisoners.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Mar. 24th, 1897.

A remark on the contemplated amalgamation of the Taluk Boards of Sivagunga and Ramnad.

42. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th March, says that the people of Sivagunga and Ramnad do not like the idea that the taluk boards of these two zamindaris should be amalgamated into one as proposed by the Collector. The paper is of opinion that one taluk board is not sufficient for the two extensive zamindaris.

43. The Pariyan, of the 3rd April, wishes that Government should furnish the editors of vernacular newspapers with a copy of the Fort St. George Gazette in exchange for a copy of the paper published by them, and thinks that this course would enable the editors to publish in their papers much useful information contained in the gazette, intended for the benefit of the people.

PARIYAN, Madras, Apr. 3rd, 1897.

Desirability of supplying editors of vernacular newspapers with a copy of the gazette in exchange for a copy of the paper published by them.

44. The Swadesamitran, of the 25th March, writes as follows:—Sir William Wedderburn has contributed to the March number of India an article headed the Starving Ryot. The writer says that when a great famine occurs in India, the Government of India bestirs itself and makes an effort to save the lives of those who starve from famine, by starting relief works and opening public kitchens, but when the famine has passed away, the Government lapses into its usual apathy. No endeavour is made to investigate the cause of the periodically recurring famines and seek measures for averting their occurrence. Thus famine after famine does occur, and people suffer, starve and die. In the opinion of such competent authorities as Sir W. Wedderburn Government is more or less responsible for these periodic famines. The Indian ryot has to pay to Government three-fourths of the produce of his land in the shape of land assessment and so he is in a chronic state of poverty. He cannot therefore tide over a single year of drought. When suggestions are made to Government for improving the condition of the people, Government officers, as Sir W. Wedderburn observes, are unwilling to carry them out. In ordinary years the only care of Government is to extort from the ryot as much money as it can get; but when a famine occurs, it shows a little spasmodic activity and there is an end. The Indian ryot remains as helpless as ever.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Mar. 25th, 1897.

Sir William Wedderburn and the present famine in India.

45. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 29th March, regrets to learn that, on the recommendation of the Viceroy, the allowance of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been increased from Rs. 6,000 to 12,000 per annum, specially at a time when Government pleads want of money for giving relief to famine-stricken people who are dying in hundreds and thousands and who are helplessly left to appeal to British charity as a last resort. The paper also condemns the exodus of the Government of India to Simla at such a crisis on the ground that the sum spent on the journey may as well be utilised for affording relief to the poor. The paper says that it would not grudge to see Government officials going to the hills at their own cost.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Mar. 29th, 1897.

Comment on the increase of salary of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal and on the exodus to the hills.

46. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th April, publishes an article from a Poona paper which says how a Muhammadan woman, who went to the market, was caught hold of by two sepoys as suffering from the plague and dragged to the hospital and died on some medicine being administered. Two policemen who communicated the matter to her husband were shot by him as he suspected them of killing his wife, and then communicated the whole matter to the European officer of the district. This European officer had the body exhumed and on the contents of the stomach being examined it was found that she had been poisoned. This fact, says the paper, has convinced the people that Government is simply killing people with poison under the pretence of treating them for the plague in the hospital.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, Apr. 5th, 1897.

Killing people by poison under pretence of treating for the plague.

47. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 10th April, says that as the post office at Bangalore is situated at a great distance from the town, the delivery peons, who were subjected to great hardships on account of three deliveries in a day, complained to the Postmaster-General, who, with a view to giving them some relief, has ordered that money orders shall be delivered only once in the course of a day and that in the afternoon. As this is a source of great inconvenience to the people, such delivery taking place at a time when they are out of their homes, the paper calls upon the postal authorities to make the money orders payable through the branch post offices in the town instead of from the central office direct.

A person who deserves to be honoured in connection with the forthcoming celebration of Her Imperial Majesty's sixtieth year of reign.

48. The same paper points to Mr. Henry Courpalais, a representative of the Eurasian community in Bangalore, as a fitting person to receive the honour of knighthood in connection with the forthcoming celebration of Her Majesty's sixtieth year of reign, and says that this gentleman's charities in various parts of India on different objects are worthy of recognition. His charities, amounting to upwards of a lakh of rupees, were highly appreciated by His Highness the late Maharaja of Mysore who conferred upon him the title of Dharma Niratha.

Exodus to the hills.

49. The same paper wishes that at this time, when famine is raging in India, the Viceroy and the provincial Governments had imitated the example of Her Highness the Maharani-Regent of Mysore who has given up her trip to the Nilgiris on account of the late disaster in her palace and has resolved to remain in Mysore.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Mar. 29th, 1897.

Payment of currency notes.

50. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 29th March, refers to the inconveniences that are experienced by the people in cashing currency notes in circles other than those from which they were issued. If a person in Calicut who has a Madras note with him or vice versâ wishes to cash it he appears to find it difficult to get money unless he pays a discount. Such discount is also said to be taken in Government treasuries. As this causes loss to persons who have either for convenience or for safety converted their money into currency notes, and as it may further create a distrust in them in respect of these currency notes, the editor hopes that, in the interests of both the State and the people, Government will take steps for removing the inconveniences of the people by affording them all reasonable facilities in the matter of payment of currency notes irrespective of the circles of issue.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 26th April, says nearly two thousand Muhammadans have been massacred by the Cretan rebels who have been committing excesses through the persuasion of the Greeks and others, and complains that the tyranny, if any, alleged to be practised by the Turks is very soon noticed by the Christians, but the excesses committed by them are not noticed by any nation, for, it seems, their defects appear in the eyes of Europe as virtues.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Apr. 26th, 1897.

Massacre of the Cretan Muhammadans by the rebels.

2. The same paper thinks that Greece, whose strength is very limited, has commenced hostilities at the instigation of the people of England, and says: "We do not say that the whole of England is inimical to Turkey and sympathises with her adversaries, but there exists a party in England with Mr. Gladstone as its head which desires the eradication of the Muhammadan empire from Europe. After the commencement of the present insurrection at Crete, a party of the British Parliament under Mr. Gladstone, &c., in sympathising with the King of Greece, applauded him for his determination and encouraged the Cretan rebels. By casting a glance at this and at the events which have since occurred, it is clear that the present insurrection has been encouraged by England, and Greece, with the secret help of England, has armed itself against Turkey. The Turks and Greeks cast the blame of the declaration of war upon each other, but recent events point out that the Greeks are the cause of the breaking out of hostilities. The editor, after commenting on the subject at length, says the powers, especially Mr. Gladstone's party, will be surely very much exercised when they see the Greeks suffer successive defeats, and they or some of them will in consequence try to help the Greeks, and Turkey will be left alone on account of religious prejudice.

II.—Home Administration.

3. The Andhraprakasika, of the 17th April, states that two police constables in Madura, while returning from a shooting excursion, were attacked and robbed of their game by some high European officers, and that the constables thereupon brought a charge against the said Europeans. It hears that the accused requested the Inspector-General of Police or his deputy at Madras to instruct the Police Superintendent to punish the constables departmentally, that the charge was thereupon withdrawn, and that the constables were departmentally punished. The paper sarcastically remarks that it is the good fortune of the constables to have escaped with a departmental punishment without dismissal from the service.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Apr. 17th, 1897.

European officials assaulting police constables.

4. The Andhraprakasika, of the 24th April, observes that the people in the Deccan districts are severely suffering from famine. It complains that Government has made no proper provision for the poor sufferers, most of whom find it impossible to leave their families and travel a distance of ten, twenty or thirty miles to reach the centres of relief works. They therefore intentionally take to crime-committing with the sure belief that subsistence could be obtained when convicted and put into jail. The paper next dwells on a recent torchlight dacoity case in a Komati's house in a village in the taluk of Anantapur. It is said that the dacoits had previously informed the owner of the house of their intention, and, true to their word, had forcibly entered the said house and subjected him to severe maltreatment.

Andhraprakasika, Madras, Apr. 24th, 1897.

A torchlight dacoity in Anantapur taluk.

(d) Education.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Mar. 1897.

First-grade Pleadership examination.

5. The Hindujanasamskarini, for March, says that, when one and the same student appears both for the B.L. degree examination and the First-grade Pleadership examination, he generally passes the B.L. examination, but fails to pass the latter. Why is the First-grade Pleadership examination made so difficult? Is it to find out whether the student has enough of knowledge or is it to make him suffer hard. The journal therefore regrets the fate of many a student, who, after passing examinations, dies without being of any use either to this world, or becoming acceptable to the next, and without even discharging debts incurred by his parents on his education, but leaving his wife in starvation.

RAJAYOGI, Cocanada, Mar. 29th and Apr. 5th, 1897.

Handwriting and dictation tests.

6. The Rajayogi, of the 29th March and 5th April (received on the 21st instant), writes thus in English:—"There is dictation and copy-writing in the curriculum of almost every class or standard or form. The inspecting officers have to examine the pupils in dictation. Unless they could obtain the required number of marks in the subject, they would not be promoted to the next higher class. The standard of English Readers is daily becoming higher and higher, and for the candidates preparing for the Matriculation examination there is no prescribed text-book. The standard of the General English is raised now. All these are indications of general tendency towards advancement of learning as well as development of intellectual capacity of the youth. When such is the case, we do not see the necessity of a separate examination in handwriting and dictation after passing the Entrance and the First-in-Arts examinations."

SASILEKHA, Madras, Apr. 27th, 1897.

The Agricultural college.

7. The Sasilekha, of the 27th April, notes that the annual expenditure on each student in the Agricultural college is Rs. 2,400, while it is only Rs. 252 in the case of a student in the Engineering college. It regrets to find only 44 students studying in the Agricultural college, while hundreds of students are in the other professional colleges, and is surprised at it especially when agriculture is the principal occupation of the people and land-tax the main source of Government income. It remarks that, unless Government makes proper arrangements so as to place successful students from the Agricultural college on a footing of equality with those of the Engineering and Medical colleges in the matter of high-salaried appointments and other advantages, the Agricultural college will serve no useful purpose and may safely be closed.

(e) Local and Municipal.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Mar. 1897.

Local Fund Board members.

8. The Hindujanasamskarini, for March, remarks that there are persons in the Telugu districts who ingratiate themselves with the huzur serishtadars and get memberships on the Local Fund Boards and manage to make a living. It further says there is no advantage in having such persons as members, and hopes that the Government will press on the district authorities the necessity of appointing proper persons as members.

DESOPAKARI, Ellore, Apr. 18th, 1897.

Scarcity of drinking water.

9. The Desopakari, of the 18th April, deeply regrets to observe that the inhabitants of Ellore in the Gódávari district are severely suffering for want of drinking water. The main cause of the deficiency in the supply is stated to be the objections raised to the supplying of the two tanks in the town with water before closing the canals. The Municipal Council is blamed for making no attempts to relieve the want so severely felt. The authorities are earnestly requested not to press private individuals to first obtain sanction, which is costly and dilatory, before they begin to sink wells, and the Public Works Department is also solicited to co-operate with one Mr. N. Ramachandra Rao in sinking wells in the Kistna canal. It also hopes that the Municipal Council will not frustrate their designs by raising unnecessary objections.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 19th April, invites the attention of the authorities to the inconveniences and sufferings of the in-patients of the municipal hospital, Calicut. It appears that the hospital assistant in charge of the wards does not attend to the wants and requirements of the patients, nor does he examine them daily or ask them about their condition and do the needful. Although the patients have complained to the District Surgeon several times about their hardships, yet no remedial measures have been adopted. Another matter of complaint is that owing to the bite of ants the patients find it difficult to lie down on their beds comfortably.

Unsatisfactory management of the Calicut municipal hospital.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apr. 19th, 1897.

A leader in the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st April, while reviewing the budget estimate of the Calicut municipality for 1897–98, remarks, among other matters, that the reduction of the funds allotted for the maintenance of the municipal hospital by Rs. 600 when there is already a loud complaint against the bad food and medicines supplied from the hospital is a matter for very great regret. The article says that it is high time that a hospital for women and children should be opened at Calicut.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

11. Hindujanasamskarini, for March, observes that the ryots will be set right, benefited and their lands improved if the Government itself sinks wells in the districts where water-supply is deficient. It remarks that the Government may recover the cost of the same by instalments along with cist from the ryots.

Recommending Government to sink wells.

HIDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Mgdras, Mar. 1897.

12. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 24th April, says that several serious mistakes have been committed in the theodolite survey of Walavanad and Palghat taluks in Malabar, especially in the latter taluk, in which the theodolite survey has been conducted on a system different from that followed in the former. The Deputy Collectors appointed for the registration of janmam lands in that district are said to be acting on the wrong and imperfect entries which have been made in the survey registers by the ignorant surveyors deputed to do that work, and, if the registration is conducted as it is at present, not only the business will not be correctly done, but too much room will be given for unnecessary litigation and ruin will thereby be brought on the people of that district.

Registration of lands in Malabar.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apr. 24th, 1897.

(i) Public Works.

13. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th April, says that owing to scarcity of water in the tank at Káverippákkam, which forms the chief source of irrigation to that village, the late harvest proved a failure and severe distress prevails there in consequence. The correspondent suggests to the authorities the advisability of opening there some relief works. He says that the repair of the sluice of the tank, which was damaged some ten years ago, has been neglected and the consequence will be that in course of two years the tank will be split up into two smaller tanks which will hold water-supply only for six months. There would then be only one crop. The correspondent requests the authorities to begin the repair of the sluice as a relief work.

The correspondent also draws the attention of the Union Board to the scarcity of water in the Somanathan tank in Kávérippakkam, which is the only tank which supplies the village with drinking water, and requests the board to adopt measures for connecting the said tank with Ramapuram channel and thus save the people from the distress.

Suggestions to the authorities regarding scarcity of water in the tank at Kávérippákkam.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apr. 6th, 1897.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Mar. 1897.

14. The Hindujanasamskarini, for March, questions whether public buildings cannot be built without any towers and whether Indian money must be wasted on them. It hears that a lakh of rupees has been wasted as is proved by the dismantling of the new Museum tower now going on.

Towers in new buildings.

(k) General.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apr. 6th, 1897.

15. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th April, alluding to the accident which lately occurred to a horse and a coach near the Triplicane temple tank, suggests the desirability of fencing the tank or of erecting parapet walls around it to prevent similar accidents in future.

Advisability of fencing the Triplicane temple tank.

DHARMA SAMVARDHANI, Tiruvádi, Apr. 15th, 1897.

16. The Dharma Samvardhani, of the 15th April, complains that village postmen are irregular in their delivery of letters; they seldom visit those villages in which they have one or two letters to deliver, but get these letters endorsed as such, namely, "the addressee is not in the place," or "refuses to accept it," and return them to the dead letter office. The paper says that nearly 95 per cent. of the letters addressed to villages are thus returned to dead letter office, while the addressees of such letters anxiously look for them in vain and are sadly disappointed. The paper adds that village postmen sometimes destroy the letters themselves if their delivery involve a little trouble. The paper remarks that the village post offices never exhibit notices regarding arrival and departure of mails, hours of business and so forth, invariably refuse to weigh parcels, and the business connected with money orders, savings bank, &c., is seldom performed satisfactorily. The paper requests the postal authorities to pay attention to these drawbacks and adopt remedial measures.

Complaints against village postal administration.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, Apr. 10th, 1897.

17. The Vikata Dutan, of the 10th April, remarks that it is the general tendency of Government officers to oppress men who are under their authority, and says that the strike in the Government Press, Madras, was due to the severity with which work was exacted from the pressmen, while a little kind treatment would have avoided the strike by which both parties suffer, the workmen as well as their employers.

Strike in the Government Press and its cause.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apr. 22nd, 1897.

18. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 22nd April, complains that no punctuality is observed with regard to the delivery of letters in Milattur, and thinks that the introduction of a diary in which the addressees are required to specify the hour at which letters are delivered to them, with their initials, will ensure punctual delivery. The correspondent further complains that in Milattur the attestation of a karnam or manyamdar is required for the payment of every money-order, while, according to the rules, such attestations are necessary only when payments are made to men who cannot write and sign their names.

Certain irregularities connected with the postal work in Milattur, Tanjore district.

HINDUJANA-SAMSKARINI, Madras, Mar. 1897.

19. The Hindujanasamskarini, for March, observes that under the value-payable parcel system there is no other loss to him who refuses to take the thing indented for at the outset by him except a post-card, whereas to the one that sends the article relying on the card received the postage and money-order commission are lost. The journal suggests that the Government should arrange to avoid the double loss to the merchant.

Value-payable parcel system.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, Apr. 21st, 1897.

20. The Andhraprakasika, of the 21st April, says that the Government laws tend to vest the village civil, criminal and revenue powers in men that are not competent to exercise the same, and to make the karnams that work for the benefit of Government and stand responsible for their duties powerless in the villages. It represents the grievances of the Gódávari karnams in most touching terms and regrets that the karnams are obliged to do every item of village official work, as the village munsifs are altogether illiterate in most cases. The karnams have thus to discharge the duties of two or three officials and frequently suffer punishment for any defects or defaults in the work turned out. The munsifs are not only incapable of performing any of their public functions, but also employ the village servants in the cultivation of private lands and instruct them not to attend to the work set to them by the karnams. They thus deprive the karnams of any help from the village servants. The authorities refuse to punish these servants on the representations of the karnam without a report from the munsif. It remarks that it would be just to make the munsif responsible for the general administration of the village as its headman, or to separate the judicial and revenue functions of the village, entrusting the latter to the karnam. The paper next goes on to observe that the salaries paid to the karnams are too inadequate for the manifold duties thrust upon them. It says that their old service inams are heavily assessed and that all other sources of income disallowed, while their present salaries (about Rs. 6 a month) are spent on survey instruments and hotel meals during their six months' stay at the taluk head-quarters. It is pointed out that munsifs receive poundage commission and timber fees, whereas the karnams are asked to work gratis in land survey and tree-tax work. It is a matter for complaint that new forms of accounts are almost daily introduced without reference to the additional burden thereby thrown on the karnams. The Government is therefore earnestly solicited to intercede on behalf of the poor and petty village karnams with a view to redress their grievances.

Gódávari karnams' grievances.

Desopakari, Ellore, Apr. 25th, 1897.

Grievances of the karnams.

21. A correspondent to the Desopakari, of the 25th April, remarks that the condition of the karnams in the Bhímavaram taluk, Gódávari district, is most miserable, and that the pressure brought to bear upon them to secure an immediate collection of kist dues is really intolerable. The usual practice of allowing some interval to elapse between the kist dates and the jamabandi and of giving previous notice of the latter has this year been abandoned. In consequence of the pressure, the karnams are, says the correspondent, unable to complete any part of their numerous duties, such as the collection of kists, preparation of jamabandi accounts, and attending to second-crop accounts. He states that the karnams have not been permitted to go to their villages lest they should turn out no work at home. He regrets to find that the salaries of the karnams were kept in arrears for four months, and that the same procedure is now required to be observed until the completion of second-crop accounts. He asserts that it is a piece of great injustice to these ill-paid and heavily-worked petty village officials to withold their small salaries and to shift them from village to village.

Vrittanta Chintamani, Mysore, Apr. 14th, 1897.

One lakh of rupees sanctioned for the building of a church at Quetta.

22. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 14th April, says that the Government of India has sanctioned a lakh of rupees for the building of a church for the soldiers at Quetta, and exclaims: "This at a time when the people of India are suffering from famine and when the Government grudges a few pies more for the starving relief workers!"

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, Apr. 21st, 1897.

Peons employed to do private menial work.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st April, referring to the different kinds of private menial work which the peons in public offices are made to do by their superiors, invites the attention of Government to the desirability of taking preventive steps against this abuse.

Shams-ul-Akbar, Madras, Apr. 12th, 1897.

Suggesting the appointment of a Field officer as Paymaster of the Carnatic Stipends.

24. The Shams-ul-Akbar, of the 12th April, in giving a history of the office of the Paymaster, Carnatic Stipends, hopes that Government will appoint a Field officer to the Paymastership, or amalgamate this office, which is held in ill-repute, with that of the Accountant-General.

ALHAMI, Madras, Apr. 25th, 1897.

25. In attributing the cause of the recent fires and thefts at Mandalay to a defect in the Government management, the Alhami, of the 25th April, says that it seems that either the authorities do not sufficiently respect the rights of the subjects of Government or the missionaries unreasonably interfere with the religion of the Burmese. However, the editor advises the authorities to be on the alert and to severely punish the offenders so that they may not be able to foment mischief in future.

The thefts and fire at Burma.

III.—LEGISLATION.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apr. 16th, 1897.

26. The Lokopakari, of the 16th April, says that the answers given by Government, in reply to the interpellation of the Honourable Mr. Vijiaraghava Chariyar regarding criminal administration in the presidency, were not satisfactory, and that such answers induce people to doubt the usefulness of Legislative Councils.

A remark on the unsatisfactory answers given by Government with regard to the question of Honourable Members.

DESOPAKARI, Ellore, Apr. 18th, 1897.

27. The Desopakari, of the 18th April, referring to a recent matrimonial case in the Gódávari district, in which the bride and bridegroom are of equal age (about 10 years), height and stature, invites the attention of Government to suppress all social evils of that kind. It regrets that the progress of India is impeded by many a social evil, such as infant marriages, unequal marriages, &c. It remarks that it is the duty of Government to safeguard the well-being of its subjects, and acknowledges the immense good it has done to the Hindu community by putting down infanticide, satti, slavery, &c. It opines that it is therefore incumbent on the Government to interfere in the matter of marriage customs as well and set them right.

Young brides and bridegrooms.

28. The same paper remarks that private attempts are of no avail to put down infant marriages in India and that the legislature alone can root out the evil practice. It painfully notes that a certain Brahman in the village of Chataparru, near Ellore, recently celebrated the marriages of his daughters, aged 3 years and 10 months, respectively. It believes that he must have so done with a view to save expenses, as two simultaneous marriages generally do not cost much more than a single marriage.

Infant marriages.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, Apr. 21st, 1897.

29. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 21st April, refers to some of the questions asked in the last meeting of the local Legislative Council and the replies given by Government thereto. It says that the replies were not only unsatisfactory but also not to the point. The questions were sent by the Honourable Members long before the prescribed time, but still the replies were evasive and unsatisfactory. From the replies of Government one is inclined to believe that the Government is annoyed with the Honourable Members for exercising the privilege of interpellation granted to them under the new Indian Councils Act. The opinion is expressed that so far as the right of interpellation is concerned the Act in question should be modified, and, unless it is so done, the right of interpellation now granted to the Honourable Members will not be productive of any very good result. Alluding to the reply given by Government to the question put by the Honourable Mr. Vijiaraghava Chariyar regarding the circular issued by the District Magistrate of Tinnevelly requiring the subordinate magistrates to wait upon the Superintendent of Police when he goes to their divisions, the article remarks that it is a matter for regret that the Government had no information on the matter even though the High Court had publicly condemned it.

Remarking that the replies to questions put in the last meeting of the Legislative Council were unsatisfactory.

Referring to the same subject, the Kerala Sanchari, of the 21st April, expresses a similar opinion.

30. The Qasim-ul-Akbar, of the 19th April, mentions, on the authority of its contemporary, the Azad, of Lucknow, that as the Epidemic Diseases Act directs every doctor and hakim to report if he finds any man attacked or suspected to be attacked by the palgue, the people in the North-Western Provinces suffering from ordinary diseases are ceasing to attend hospitals or consult hakims or even to go to druggists, fearing that they will be sent to the plague hospital through the ignorance and indifference or malice of the doctors and hakims and the police as the case may be. The editor, in drawing the attention of the Government to this, observes that the Act, instead of tending to comfort the people, has become a source of the greatest trouble to them.

The Epidemic Diseases Act.

Qasim-ul-Akbar, Bangalore, Apr. 19th, 1897.

IV.—Native States.

31. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 19th April, says that the new water-supply of the city of Bangalore is not properly distributed. The taps and fountains are too near in some streets and too far apart in others. No principle seems to have been observed in the placing of taps except the desire on the part of the employés in charge of the water-works to oblige themselves and their friends. The paper therefore strongly urges that the management of the water-supply should be made over to the President of the Municipality.

The Bangalore City water-supply.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, Apr. 19th, 1897.

32. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 22nd April, says that during the sixty years of Her Majesty's reign India has enjoyed various blessings of peace and prosperity and that Her Majesty takes very great interest in the welfare of Her Indian subjects. The paper therefore has no doubt that Her Majesty's subjects in India are heartily loyal, and hopes that the sixtieth year of Her Majesty's reign will be memorialised in Mysore by the establishment of some important charitable institution, such as a well-equipped general hospital.

The reign of Queen Victoria.

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Apr. 22nd, 1897.

33. The Suryodaya, of the 16th April, remarks thus:—The Diwan of Mysore is nothing if not politic. The inquiry into the causes of the fire in the Mysore palace ought to have been conducted by a special commission from the Government of India. To prevent this, the Diwan, in consultation with the Resident, appointed a local commission, the members of which were all his own subordinates with the exception of Mr. Fraser, who is new to the province. This committee has drawn up a report which has not yet been published, but has been reviewed by the Government. The people are very indignant that the report has not yet been published, and, if it is not published shortly, it would be the duty of the people to hold public meetings in different taluks and to demand its publication.

A politic act of the Diwan.

Suryodaya, Bangalore, Apr. 16th, 1897.

34. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 29th April, says: Now that the Government of Mysore, in its order on the report on the causes of the fire in the Mysore palace, has found fault with some of the responsible officers of the palace for their negligence and want of tact, the people naturally expect that fitting punishment would be meted out to such incompetent men by reducing them to positions considerably lower than those they now hold.

Who is to be hanged for the fire in the Mysore palace?

Vrittanta Patrika, Mysore, Apr. 29th, 1897.

35. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 15th April, bitterly complains that Dr. Laurie frequently enters the female wards set apart for the parda-nishin ladies in the Afzal Ganj hospital, and says that the doctor recently entered a ward on some pretence or other and kissed a beautiful lady in consequence of which she left the ward at once. The editor, in reminding the doctor of the Madras kissing case, says this is due to the excellent administration of the present Prime Minister and prays to God for the speedy termination of his term of office.

Dr. Laurie's alleged misconduct.

Tilism-i-Hairat, Madras, Apr. 15th, 1897.

JARIDHA-I-ROZGAR, Madras, Apr. 17th, 1897.

The Natives States and missionaries.

36. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 17th April, writes as follows:—The Rev. Hopkins, of the American Mission, arrived lately at Gurdwal and occupied a vacant house without the permission of its owner. All the attempts of the owner to oust the missionary from the house were in vain. He then complained to the Raja of Gurdwal. He ordered some of his officials to remove the missionary to a travellers' bungalow and to entertain him there sumptuously. The missionary whereupon complained to the British Resident that the Raja had treated him badly. The Resident demanded an explanation from the Raja, and he, in reply, informed the Resident of the circumstances of the case; but the Resident, not satisfied with the Raja's explanation, warned him that he would be called to account if any complaint of the same sort should be made in future. With reference to the above, the editor remarks that in the same way Christian missionaries in the Nizam's dominions, in spite of the kind treatment they receive from the Nizam's Government, transgress the limit of propriety while the British Government officials wink at the deeds of their countrymen. It is hoped that Government will adopt speedy and effectual measures to check these irregularities on the part of missionaries; otherwise public peace will be endangered.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITHAN, Madras, Apr. 3rd, 1897.

Theory of the Honourable Mr. Rees as to the cause of the present famine.

37. The Swadesamitran, of the 3rd April, refers to the article contributed by the Honourable Mr. Rees to a recent number of the Nineteenth Century, a magazine published in England, in which he ascribes the present famine in India to its over-population consequent on reckless marriages. The paper remarks that marriages are not peculiar to India, but are indulged in freely by people all over the world. The real cause of the famine, the paper says, is heavy taxation under the British Government. The paper censures Mr. Rees for trying to mislead the British public with his crude theories.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apr. 8th, 1897.

A suggestion to the committee nominated for managing the celebrations of the Diamond Jubilee.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 8th April, regards the proposal of the Madras public to enclose the address, intended to be presented to Her Majesty in connection with the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee in a casket, worth about Rs. 2,500, as highly expensive, considering the severity of the present famine, and suggests the desirability of enclosing the address in a locally manufactured casket, which will not cost much, and to feed the poor with the surplus balance. The paper thinks that the adoption of this suggestion will be most pleasing to Her Majesty and will also serve as an opportunity for displaying the excellence of Indian art and industry, and requests the committee nominated for the purpose to pay heed to this suggestion.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, Apr. 10th, 1897.

A hint to Government regarding the bubonic plague.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 10th April, reports that many plague-stricken people in Bombay evade inspection by medical officers and thus cause the spread of the disease. The aversion of people to go to public hospitals for treatment is due to their unwillingness to place themselves under European treatment. As a remedy for the evil the paper suggests the advisability of giving the native patients the benefit of the Indian mode of medical treatment and an observance of caste rules. Such a step will make the hospitals freely resorted by natives and will have the further effect of improving the Indian healing art. The paper thinks that Government should invite the best experts in Indian medicine and consult them as to what may best be done in the matter.

40. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 16th April, observes that prickly-pear thickets in villages are a convenient abode for serpents proving dangerous to human life and are otherwise also a great nuisance to the people. The paper requests the district authorities of Bellary and Anantapur to treat the removal of prickly-pear as one of the relief works.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, Apr. 16th, 1897.

A suggestion that the removal of prickly-pear should form a relief work.

41. The Lokopakari, of the 16th April, reports that a native who had been appointed to supply the famine-stricken people with food was sentenced to be whipped for having been found guilty of criminal appropriation, whereas a European, who misappropriated a sum of Rs. 200, collected on the pretence of raising funds for famine relief, was merely fined. The paper contrasting the two kinds of punishment asks: Is this justice? Is not this a good instance of partiality?

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apr. 16th, 1897.

A remark on the difference in the nature of punishment awarded to natives and to Europeans.

42. The same paper says that it is rumoured that some of the Manipurians, who have returned from their exile, report that the ex-Raja of Manipur had a daughter and that, as her whereabouts are not known, they presume that she must be in the custody of some European officer. The paper requests Government to inquire into the matter and adopt measures to secure her release.

A hint to Government regarding the daughter of the ex-Raja of Manipur, Bengal.

43. The Desabhimani, of the 21st April, writes as follows on the Nellikuppam abkári case:—"It is with feelings of deep regret that we hear the confirmation, on appeal, by Mr F. H. Hamnett, Sessions Judge of Tanjore, of the sentence of six months' imprisonment passed by the Joint Magistrate of Tanjore upon Mr. M. A. Mangesha Rao, Assistant Inspector of Salt and Abkári Department. The result of this appeal was all along awaited with the gravest anxiety. We are not now in possession of a copy of the judgment of Mr. Hamnett, and consequently unable to offer our comments thereon. It can hardly be doubted, and so far as we have been able to gauge public opinion we can say, without any fear of contradiction, that his case has evoked a good deal of public sympathy, so much so that even his worst enemies must now be very sorry for what they had initiated in an unguarded moment. From what we have seen and known of him, we are inclined to think that it is difficult to find a more straightforward and sincere man who has the interest of Government at heart. His prospects have been completely blighted and it is indeed very miserable to see him a ruined man, a foreigner to this presidency, who was specially brought here on account of his merit and ability and who has had 25 years of honest and spotless service. In his anxiety to loyally serve the Government, whose salt he eats, he has involved himself in difficulties which have culminated in placing him in this wretched plight. With a persistence worthy of a better cause, not commendable, though we cannot say not justifiable, the prosecution was pushed and conducted with the result mentioned above. From time to time we were reading the evidence in the case, and we were inclined to hold that the evidence was very meagre and that the case itself admitted of only one conclusion, viz., that Mr. Mangesha Rao was innocent. The judgment of the Joint Magistrate convicting Mangesha Rao belied our expectations and came upon us with a shock of surprise. The sad intelligence that his appeal was dismissed has not a whit lessened our astonishment, and we could not so very easily and readily believe it and further information confirms the truth of the matter.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Apr. 21st, 1897.

Reflections on the Nellikuppam abkári case.

"He has been on leave for a long time and his pecuniary difficulties must indeed be very great, and it behoves every sensible and right-minded person to contribute his mite and thereby to help the family of this unfortunate man upon whom Fate has been so singularly hard. His case is a rare instance of a person suffering for doing his duty honestly, fearlessly and zealously. It is impossible not to sympathise with Mr. Mangesha Rao in his affliction. We do not know what the Government will do in this most unfortunate case. We hope the Government will exercise their prerogative of mercy, and, if at all any case calls for any such exercise, we venture to state that this is one."

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Apr. 14th, 1897.

The resignation of the Governor of Madras.

44. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 14th April, gives a rumour to the effect that His Excellency the Governor of Madras being unable to agree with his Councillors, has sent in his resignation to the Secretary of State, and remarks that gentlemen, who wish to do their duty, never sacrifice their principles for money or power.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, Apr. 28th, 1897.

Acquisition of land in British India by Native Chiefs.

45. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 28th April, approves of the order of the Government of India prohibiting the acquisition of land by Native Chiefs outside their dominions and says that it is inadvisable for native rulers to spend money in purchasing land outside their own provinces.

Absence of religious riots in Native States.

46. The same paper says that in Hyderabad Hindus have their idols of the sacred serpent very close to the extensive garden belonging to the Prime Minister of the State and are daily going there in large numbers to worship and yet there has not been a single occasion of riot between Hindus and Mussalmans. The paper therefore thinks that religious riots are confined only to British India.

MANORAMA, Calicut, Apr. 26th, 1897.

The Karimpuzha temple festival and the Mappilas.

47. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 26th April, seeks to refute the statement of a correspondent in one of the previous issues of that paper that a tangal had been denied admission to the Karimpuzha temple on a festival day by some Hindus and that a body of Mappilas, armed with clubs, went to the temple to wreak their vengeance on the Hindus and they fled to the neighbouring forests at the approach of the police and the Eralpad Raja's sepoys. The correspondent adds that it is true that on the Arattu festival there was a discussion between a Nambudri Brahman and a Mappila Tangal on some topic or other and some harsh words also passed between them and they were pacified by some of the elephant-keepers and others who were standing near, but nothing like that stated by the correspondent in question has ever taken place there.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, Apr. 24th, 1897.

The Madras Provincial Conference.

48. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 24th April, commenting upon the speech of the Honourable Mr. Sankaran Nayar, who had presided over the deliberations of the Provincial Conference, which recently held its sittings at Madras, remarks that it is a sound, sensible and practical one, and that, if Government read it carefully, they will undoubtedly find means to rectify the errors that have been committed by them. The article says that, as the speech under reference is not in consonance with the views and opinions held by Government, it is not likely that it will find favour with them.

The Kerala Sanchari, of the 28th April, referring to the same subject, commends to Government the speech which was delivered at the conference by Mr. Kotieth Ramunni, a delegate from Malabar, on the unjust and oppressive working of the abkári laws and regulations. It says that, as the law applicable to the manufacture of toddy and liquor is also made applicable to sweet toddy, ample facilities are afforded to the abkári officers to harass the tappers in various ways and levy blackmail from them with impunity, and he is of opinion that the Government should exempt the manufacture and sale of sweet toddy from the provisions of the Abkári Act.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st May, says that in the war between the Turks and the Greeks the Turks have been victorious and that the several European Governments are trying to effect peace between the belligerents. It says if peace is not concluded, then a terrible European war will ensue. The paper says that it is a matter for regret that war, famine and pestilence should prevail everywhere during the sixtieth year of the reign of Her Majesty.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 1st, 1897.

Triumph of the Turks in the war between the Greeks and the Turks.

2. The Sudarshana, for March, says that the attempts of the European powers to put an end to the war between Greece and Turkey have proved fruitless. The Greeks seem to have the moral support of Russia or Great Britain. In the whole of Europe, Turkey alone belongs to the Mussalmans and the Christians are looking out for an opportunity to swallow up the country.

Sudarshana, Udipi, Mar. 1897.

War between Greece and Turkey.

A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st May, referring to the same subject, remarks that, if the powers leave the Greeks and Turks to fight on without interfering and settling their differences amicably, there cannot but be great loss of men and money on both sides, especially on the side of the party that would be defeated. The article therefore hopes that the powers will, without any further delay, adopt measures for terminating the war between the Greeks and the Turks.

Referring to the same war, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 3rd May, says that on account of the recent victories of the Turkish army it appears that the European powers intend to interfere to put a stop to the war, and says God alone must do justice in this respect.

As the Turks appeared very insignificant in the eyes of Europe, the powers set them against the Greeks by way of test; but the recent victories of the Turks have caused them to change their opinion, and the Turks, instead of being as heretofore blamed and held in contempt, are now everywhere applauded.

3. Referring to the expected visit of a Turkish envoy to the Afghan court as announced by an Allahabad telegram, of the 26th April, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 3rd May, says the envoy has been sent with the object of bringing about the unity of all Muhammadan monarchs as there appears no other alternative at the present juncture.

Shams-ul Akbar, Madras, May 3rd, 1897.

Visit of a Turkish envoy to the Afghan court.

4. Referring to the speech of Lord Salisbury recently delivered at Albert Hall, as announced by a London telegram of the 7th May, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar (supplement), of the 9th May, thinks that by following Lord Salisbury's advice the Greeks have suffered heavy losses, and yet, it says, Lord Salisbury seems to consider that the European powers have realised their objects. The editor, in inviting the attention of His Lordship to the results of his policy with reference to the alleged intended dismemberment of Turkey, advises him not to act in such a shameless manner in future.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, May 9th, 1897.

Criticising the recent speech of Lord Salisbury delivered at Albert Hall.

5. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 10th May, considers that bitter enmity prevails between the European powers and England as no suggestion made by England regarding Turkey is approved by the other powers. England, by making different suggestions, desired to have her prestige raised amongst the powers, but it is a pity that it has been lowered as not a single suggestion of English statesmen has been approved.

Shams-ul Akbar, Madras, May 10th, 1897.

England and the other European powers.

II.—Home Administration.

Swadesamitran, Madras, Apr. 27th, 1897.

Irregularities of the police in Perambúr, Madras.

6. The Swadesamitran, of the 27th April, regrets to learn that the police of Perambúr outraged a woman who was sleeping in the police station—a case analogous to the Avadaiyárkóvil outrage case which was recently committed to the sessions. It says that waylaying and theft are of frequent occurrence in Siruvallúr and the police take no pains to bring the offenders to punishment. The paper remarks that it has received numerous complaints from Perambúr regarding the inefficiency of the police of that station, and wonders what the fate of people in the mofussil must be when matters are so bad in Madras and its vicinity.

Desabhimani, Cuddalore, Apr. 28th, 1897.

A case of highway robbery near Villupuram.

7. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 28th April, reports that two Muhammadans and a Brahman were waylaid and severely assaulted and ill-treated in the village of Athanur, which is five or six miles to the west of Villupuram, and were robbed of nearly Rs. 200. The correspondent is surprised to observe that highway robbery should still continue in those parts of the presidency, and hopes that the police will bestir itself to check it.

Jananukulan, Tanjore, May 1st, 1897.

Inefficiency of the police in Melalangam, Tanjore, and the mischief of robbers in consequence.

8. The Jananukulan, of the 1st May, reports that owing to the inefficiency of police robberies are committed with impunity in Kaittukkara street (Rope-makers' street) at Melalangam in Tanjore, and much insecurity of life and property is felt in consequence. The paper hopes that the Superintendent of Police of the district will pay prompt attention to set matters right.

Sasilekha, Madras, May 4th, 1897.

Thefts in Perambúr.

9. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 4th May, remarks that Perambúr has become the haunt of thieves in Madras. He asks what the police, with their inspector, are doing, and whether the various thefts committed in Perambúr are entered in the register of crimes. He observes that in "Teed's Garden" street there are 12 arrack shops within a distance of half a mile, and that the drunkards resorting to them assault and cause immense trouble to wayfarers, robbing them of their spare money. The police authorities are therefore requested to take the matter into their serious consideration.

Manorama, Calicut, May 10th, 1897.

Iniquities of the Palghat police.

10. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 10th May, complains of the conduct of the police who investigated a case of dacoity which had recently occurred in the house of a wealthy Tiya in Cannanur near Palghat. The police are said to have intimidated several innocent persons and levied blackmail from them, saying that they would otherwise be connected with the dacoity, and, in this manner, they have, it appears, taken bribes from several persons in Kavasseri, Tarur and Chulanur amsams to the extent of Rs. 3,000, the sum equal to the value of the property lost in the above dacoity. It appears that some men of the place have even taken this opportunity for wreaking vengeance upon their enemies through their influence with the police. The correspondent adds that it would be a great boon if the Superintendent of Police should make a personal inquiry into the nature of the investigation which was held by the police in the dacoity case and also ascertain whether all the dacoits have been arrested and how many of those arrested are the real offenders.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 1st, 1897.

Grievances of the officials of the Madras City Civil Court regarding their pay.

11. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st May, is surprised to learn that the pay of the officials of the Madras City Civil Court due for the months during which the court is closed will not be disbursed until the re-opening of the court, while the officials of the High Court are allowed to receive their pay as usual even during the vacation of the court. It asks, how are officials drawing low pay to subsist during the time the court is closed?

12. A correspondent to the Dharma Samvardhani, of the 1st May, describes in detail a daring murder perpetrated in a certain temple in Tiruvádi, Tanjore taluk, and regrets that all evidence was so ingeniously suppressed that the matter did not reach the notice of the authorities in due time, and that the corpse was removed from the scene of murder at midnight and was cremated the next morning as if the person had died a natural death. The correspondent says that Mr. Muthuchithambara Mudaliyar, B.A., the sub-magistrate of the place, somehow or other received news of the murder and has arrested some of the persons supposed to be connected with the crime. The correspondent regrets to learn that, at this stage of investigation, the sub-magistrate in question has been directed to proceed to Mannárgudi as Stationary Sub-Magistrate—a change which may prove detrimental to the just disposal of the case under inquiry. The correspondent requests the authorities to retain the sub-magistrate at Tiruvádi till the case under reference is committed to the sessions.

DHARMA SAMVARDHANI, Tiruvádi, May 1st, 1897.

A request to Government to retain Mr. Muthuchithambara Mudaliyar, Sub-Magistrate of Tiruvádi, for some time longer at that station.

13. A correspondent to the Desopakari, of the 2nd May, urges the necessity of establishing a District Munsif's court at Bhímavaram, Gódávari. He notes that about 10 out of 128 villages in the Bhímavaram taluk are under the District Munsif of Tanuku, the rest being within the jurisdiction of the court at Narsapur. The latter is from 20 to 35 miles distant from the Government villages in the Bhímavaram taluk. Again only 15 villages of Narsapur taluk are under the Narsapur court, while the others are under the Amalápuram court. The court at Narsapur may, he suggests, be therefore transferred to Bhímavaram, the said 15 villages also being brought within the jurisdiction of the Amalápuram court. As an alternative, the correspondent proposes that a new court may be established at Bhímavaram with jurisdiction over the whole taluk and "Baharjhalli." He also hears the Government is contemplating the institution of a special court and prays that, if this be true, the District Judge may choose Bhímavaram in preference to Tallapudi, which has courts very near it on both sides.

DESOPAKARI, Ellore, May 2nd, 1897.

Wanted a District Munsif's court at Bhímavaram.

14. The Andhraprakasika, of the 8th May, severely condemns the policy of the magistrate in the Ranaghat outrage case. While clearly describing in his judgment the outrage committed upon two native women, the magistrate, it regrets to note, sentenced the European offender to but one month's imprisonment in consideration of the culprit's youth. The paper believes it to be a patent fact that justice is hard to obtain in cases in which the accused are Europeans. It would fain know in what light and with what patience the European magistrates and judges would have taken it if the same outrage had been committed by a Hindu or a Muhammadan upon a European woman.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 8th, 1897.

Ranaghat outrage case.

15. The Andhraprakasika, of the 12th May, says that the public of Madras are contemplating to submit a memorial to Government in connection with the recent Nellikuppam abkári case. It confidently affirms that the conviction of Mr. Mangesha Rao is unique and that his case well deserves the exercise by His Excellency of the prerogative of mercy vested in him.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 12th, 1897.

The Nellikuppam case.

16. The Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st May, says that the elephant case which was pending in the Sub-Court, Calicut, was at last compromised, and the elephant was in the presence of several persons delivered over to the plaintiff by Seshadri Aiyar, brother of Sub-Magistrate Subrama Aiyar. The statement, which was first presented in court by the first defendant, was that Magistrate Subrama Aiyar intimidated the defendant and took unlawfully the elephant from him; but now, in the petition presented in the Sub-Court for compromise, it is stated that the sum of Rs. 3,500, which the defendant in question got from Subrama Aiyar towards the price of the elephant, has been repaid to him. Both these statements cannot agree. It is very doubtful whether the first defendant has the capability of paying this large amount. Moreover, the money was not returned either at the time when the elephant was delivered over or in the presence of the vakils on both sides; nor has the first defendant Nambudri produced the receipt for the payment of the money. The fact that this scandalous case ended in compromise without a thorough legal inquiry has given rise to much suspicion. If the statements contained in the petition presented by the first defendant for compromise are true, then it is highly incumbent on Subrama Aiyar to vindicate his character, and the Collector should call upon him to do so. It is very disgraceful both for the officials and Government if charges like this brought against any public servant are allowed to be compromised in this fashion. The Collector should therefore bestow special attention on the matter.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 1st, 1897.

Remarks on the compromise of a civil suit against a Sub-Magistrate in Malabar.

A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 10th May, says that the civil suit which was filed in the Sub-Court, Calicut, by the trustees of Kedangur temple in Travancore against (1) Chalatirutti Nambudri, one of the trustees of the said temple, (2) Subrama Aiyar, Sub-Magistrate, Bettatnad, and (3) Subrama Aiyar's wife, to invalidate the sale of an elephant belonging to the temple by the first defendant to the third defendant, has been compromised though the Sub-Judge has not formally accepted the application for compromise owing to defects. In the statement which was submitted in court by the first defendant, he stated that he had not sold the elephant to the third defendant, but that Subrama Aiyar had criminally intimidated him and obtained the assignment of the elephant in his wife's name without paying the value thereof; and, in the application for compromise, the first defendant has stated that the elephant has been given back and that Rs. 3,500, which he had received from the third defendant towards the price of the elephant, have been returned to her. If the first defendant has really returned Rs. 3,500 to the third defendant, then Subrama Aiyar ought to prosecute the first defendant for having made a false statement which is damaging to his reputation and character as an official in a responsible position; but, if he drops the matter altogether, his conduct will be highly suspicious. If Subrama Aiyar gives room for such a suspicion, the District Magistrate ought to interfere in the matter and bring out the truth.

(d) Education.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, Apr. 26th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding the contemplated opening of an Oriental branch in the Madras University.

17. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 26th April, referring to Dr. Duncan's scheme of opening an Oriental branch in the Madras University, says that it is desirable that grades of examination in vernaculars should be prescribed for several offices in the service, and candidates who pass the examinations should be given the posts for which the examinations are prescribed and that an encouragement of this kind would go very much to encourage the study of the vernaculars.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 1st, 1897.

The Mappila Primary school at Baliapatam to be improved.

18. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st May, invites the attention of the authorities to the deplorable condition of the Mappila Primary school at Baliapa tam. The correspondent adds that the great portion of the population of the town is Mappilas, and, if the school in question is improved and another English-knowing teacher appointed, the education of the Mappilas in the town will be more satisfactory.

(e) Local and Municipal.

19. The Desabhimani, of the 14th April, complains that municipal councillors take no active part in the supervision of scavengering, lighting and the conservancy of the municipality, and that the chairman seldom goes out to inspect, so that no one outside the council-room knows that there is such a functionary. The paper asks—"Why should not the town be divided among our several councillors for purposes of supervision and some check exercised over the work of municipal servants?"

Indifference of municipal councillors in Cuddalore.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Apr. 14th, 1897.

The paper urges on the townsmen the desirability of forming a Rate-payers' Association.

20. A correspondent to the Desabhimani, of the 5th May, complains that sanitation is ill-attended to in Sirupakkam in the taluk of Vriddháchalam and calls the attention of the taluk board to the matter.

Sanitation ill-attended to in Sirupakkam in the taluk of Vriddháchalam.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, May 5th, 1897.

21. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 10th May, in commenting upon the Malabar District Board budget for 1897–98, as reviewed by Government, says that it is a matter for regret that Government refused to accept the recommendation of the District Board in the matter of the re-establishment of the Alattur hospital on the ground that there are no hospital assistants at present available. The article doubts whether this is the only reason which actuated Government to refuse to sanction the establishment of the hospital, and remarks that, if the Government had taken the least trouble to inform themselves of the situation of Alattur, the distance from Alattur to either the Palghat or Kollangót hospital and the inconveniences suffered by the people, they would not have refused to re-open the Alattur hospital.

Regretting the refusal of Government to re-open the Alattur hospital.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 10th, 1897.

22. The Tilism-i-Hairat, of the 25th April, complains that some of the municipal officials are acting in a very arbitrary manner and are levying heavy taxes on small houses which are in a very dilapidated condition. As, for instance, the editor says the assessment of the small house in the Bishah Begam garden, the rent of which does not exceed As. 12 per mensem, has been raised from Rs. 2 to Rs. 18 per annum. The owners have repeatedly submitted petitions about this, but no justice has been done to the n. The complaints of the poor do not reach the President, and the officials themselves reply to the petitions. The editor, in inviting the attention of Sufdur Husain Sahib Mehkeri, the newly-appointed Revenue officer, to this, requests him to do justice.

Complaining about the alleged enhancement of assessment by municipal officials.

TILISM-I-HAIRAT, Madras, Apr. 25th, 1897.

(i) Public Works.

23. A correspondent to the Desopakari, of the 2nd May, states that in the Bhímavaram taluk, Gódávari, the usual practice is to close the canals in the beginning of April and re-open them by the middle of May. As the canals have been closed this year so late as the 15th April, with the commendable view of supplying water for the second crops in the Kollair tracts, the engineering authorities have issued orders not to re-open them until the 1st of June next, which, the paper says, is prejudicial to the interests of the ryots; for, if the canals be re-opened on the 1st of June and water let in, and if the sowing of fields should begin on the 5th, and if it should rain, as it generally happens, on the 6th, when the sun enters the "Mrigasira" constellation, the rain, however slight, would be sufficient to submerge the fields in these low-lying taluks, and the seeds would not sprout, and, even if they should, transplantation would be impracticable as the rain-water collects in the fields chest-deep. He regrets to find that the engineering authorities have forgotten their own orders, which direct that, as this taluk is Re-opening of the Bhímavaram canals.

DESOPAKARI, Ellore, May 2nd, 1897.

situated much below the general level of the district and as it possesses no satisfactory system of drainage and as the lands in this taluk are annually inundated by surplus waters from the upland taluks, the said lands might be irrigated by the canals. He prays therefore that the Public Works Department officers will arrange to avoid any kind of loss to the ryots by opening the canals as usual by the middle of May.

(k) General.

DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, Apr. 14th, 1897.

A remark on the public conduct of officials.

24. The Desabhimani, of the 14th April, writes in English as follows:—"The conduct of a public servant towards persons coming into official contact with him is a legitimate matter for the cognisance of Government, and we are glad that questions were asked at the last meeting of the local Legislative Council as to the assault said to have been committed by a Sub-Collector on his head clerk. We had hoped that the Government would have shown its officers of all ranks that it will not suffer itself to be disgraced by its representatives, but the manner in which the questions were answered has disappointed us."

Comment on the remark of the Honourable Mr. Crole on the Honourable Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar's Bill to amend the Rent Recovery Act.

25. The same paper writes in English as follows:—"Strong language without sufficient justification always argues a weak cause, as we have been taught by the famous advice to 'abuse the plaintiff's attorney.' When one Honourable Member of the Legislative Council, an official occupying a high position, writes of a measure introduced by another Honourable Member, one who has always commanded the confidence of the Government, as 'positively unjust,' and this in the face of the fact that the measure thus introduced has received the unqualified approval of one of the most conscientious, god-fearing, and impartial Members of the Government, we are inclined to doubt the sincerity of the attack. We would refer our readers to the Select Committee's report on the Honourable Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar's Bill to amend the Rent Recovery Act and to the Honourable Mr. Crole's minute of dissent. One can make allowance for such language if uttered in a speech or in the heat of an argument, but that a sober-minded head of a responsible department of Government should actually commit to paper his opinion that his brother officers are about to perpetrate a 'positive' injustice to the ryot simply passes our comprehension, the more so as no satisfactory arguments have been adduced to point out the 'positive' injustice of committing to the Civil Courts the determination of questions between landlord and tenant. It will be in the recollection of our readers that this same high officer of Government described not long ago the department over which he then presided as being officered by a set of 'efficient blackguards.' Strong language from this source must therefore be liberally discounted."

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apr. 23rd, 1897.

A suggestion to Mr. Narayana Aiyar, Deputy Collector of Trichinopoly.

26. The Lokopakari, of the 23rd April, says that Mr. Narayana Aiyar, Deputy Collector of Trichinopoly, has not yet granted certificates to the karnams who have passed the Survey test. It says that it is long since they passed the test and that it is not desirable that they should be kept waiting for certificates which they are entitled to have, by the rules, within fifteen days of passing the examination.

VETTIKKODIYON, Madras, Apr. 24th, 1897.

Advisability of limiting the working hours in the Press.

27. The Vettikkodiyon, of the 24th April, says that the memorial submitted to His Excellency the Governor by the dismissed pressmen of the Government Press was transferred to the Secretary in charge of the Press for disposal. The paper wishes the Secretary to limit the working hours and also to introduce the system of paying overtime fees for overworked pressmen.

28. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st May, regrets to learn that His Excellency the Governor has dispensed with the long-established custom of honouring zamindars, such as the Rajas of Venkatagiri, Bobbili, and the Maharaja of Vizianagram, by sending troops to escort them from the railway station where they alight; that His Excellency at public dinners does not sit along with and by the side of the officers invited to dine, but takes his seat at a separate table; and that His Excellency took notice of the absence of individual officers at the railway station when lately he proceeded to the Hills. The paper observes that these are matters too trivial to be noticed by His Excellency.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 1st, 1897.

A hint to His Excellency the Governor.

29. The same paper is extremely sorry to learn that the District Judge of Tanjore has confirmed the sentence passed on Mangesha Rao by the lower Court and has not granted a copy of the judgment to the prisoner even till that date. The paper thinks that a thoroughly efficient, honest, zealous and faithful public officer has been unjustly dealt with simply because he chose to expose the irregularities of a European trading firm. Mangesha Rao's fate is truly pitiable, and the paper prays that Government will be pleased to exercise the power vested in it under section 401 of the Criminal Procedure Code and set the unhappy man at liberty.

A prayer to Government in the case of Mangesha Rao.

30. A correspondent to the Desopakari, of the 2nd May, requests the Jamabandi officer in Bhímavaram taluk, Gódávari, who is a very able and patient officer, to inquire as to whether the wages of bearers and coolies employed and the cost of provisions purchased and paid for by him are really reaching the hands of those who are properly entitled to receive the same.

DESOPAKARI, Ellore, May 2nd, 1897.

Jamabandi in Bhímavaram.

31. The Sasilekha, of the 7th May, and the Andhraprakasika, of the 8th May, both regret to note the strange and contradictory orders issuing from the Collector of Nellore in connection with mica-mining in that district. It frequently happens that, when A obtains an order from the Collector to explore a certain piece of land and enters on the work of demarcation, B and C apply meanwhile for the same plot of land and receive similar orders. A, B and C thus begin to quarrel among themselves and fight over their respective rights to the same land. When the officer in charge of the mica mines is appealed to, he simply says he cannot interfere as his duty is solely to obey the Collector's orders, however inconsistent they are. The Government and the Board of Revenue are therefore requested to put a stop to this curious procedure on the part of the Collector.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 7th, 1897, and ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 8th, 1897.

Mica-mining in Nellore.

32. The Andhraprakasika, of the 8th May, is surprised to note the great and sudden fall this year and last year in the revenue realised by the sale of "opium monopoly" in Madras. It observes that the (retail) sale price of opium having been fixed at Rs. 2–9–0 and Rs. 1–14–0 per three tolas' weight, the contractors make a profit of one or two hundred per cent. by the Government revenue falling about one-half or two-thirds. The Government is requested to issue orders to the police to save the people from such exorbitant price demanded by the contractors.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 8th, 1897.

Opium-selling.

III.—LEGISLATION.

33. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st May, is glad to learn that the Madras Mahajana Sabha is concerting measures to present an address to the Honourable P. Ananda Charlu. It says that this gentleman has been for the last two years, at considerable self-sacrifice, rendering yeoman service to his country and has introduced a Bill for the efficient management of Hindu devastanams. The paper wishes that the Madras Legislative Council will again nominate him as member of the Viceregal Council, as it is impossible to choose a better representative.

Desirability of re-electing the Honourable P. Ananda Charlu as a member of the Viceregal Council.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 5th, 1897.

Water-cess Act.

34. The Andhraprakasika, of the 5th May, referring to the Bill to amend the Water-cess Act drafted and submitted by the Board of Revenue for the approval of Government, necessitated as it had been by the decision of the High Court in a certain appeal case, expresses its hope that the Government and the Legislative Council will consider the question deeply and endeavour effectively to prevent a recurrence of inconsistencies and difficulties occasioned at the recent enhancement of water-cess in the Kistna and Gódávari districts.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 7th, 1897.

Legislative Councils.

35. The Sasilekha, of the 7th May, remarks that the present reforms introduced by the Parliament into the constitution of the Indian Legislative Councils are not satisfactory. It suggests that these councils should still further be expanded, adding more members and giving them the right of voting on all the questions discussed. In particular, the Madras Legislative Council might, it says, be so organised as to include a representative from each of the twenty-one districts in the presidency. It observes that the House of Commons in Great Britain consists of 600 representatives though it is a very small kingdom, and that Her Majesty the Queen has no power to spend even a penny without its sanction. Looked at in this view, the councils in India are only a sham and are nominal bodies. His Excellency the Governor convenes meetings of the council according to his will and pleasure, allows only such questions by interpellation as he likes, while the Honourable Members are powerless to increase or curtail even a single item of expenditure. The Parliament, the paper says, must therefore be prayed to introduce the necessary improvements in these respects.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 7th, 1897.

The Sándúru Samsthanam.

36. The Sasilekha, of the 7th May, regrets that the Sándúru Samsthanam is in utter confusion and that the prayers of the widowed mother and guardian of the minor Raja are unheeded by the British Government. The Rani wishes to have a European or a Eurasian as diwan, while the people are for a native. The paper dislikes the idea of appointing a European and recommends the appointment of an experienced and competent native officer in the Government service.

SUDARSHANA, Udipi, Mar. 1897.

The Royal family of Manipur.

37. The Sudarshana, for March, remarks that if it is true that the eighteen members of the Royal family of Chandra Singh and Tekendra Singh, of Manipur, are receiving a pittance of only Rs. 130 a month, we might say no greater injustice was ever committed by the British Government.

V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

PRABHAVATI, Cuddapah, May 3rd, 1897.

Famine relief in Cuddapah.

38. The Prabhavati, of the 3rd May, regrets to hear that even able-bodied persons, drunkards and vagabonds manage to obtain money doles out of the Famine Relief fund in Cuddapah, and that the distributors of tickets and money doles are unable to know the circumstances of each man and woman, however vigilant they may be. It suggests that, if boiled rice or kanji were substituted for money doles, the real sufferers, the disabled and the helpless only would then seek relief. The paper next recommends the Famine Relief committee to import rice and sell the same to the public without any profit, as was done by Government during the last famine, and thereby confer a substantial benefit upon the middle-class people and Government servants. It would thereby be able to actually feed the famine-stricken and help those that are in distress.

39. The Sasilekha, of the 11th May, regrets to note the sufferings of the coolies attending relief works in Cuddapah and other districts. It hears that they are made to work the whole day exposed to the heat of the sun at 112° and that their infant children are often found to faint from sunstroke and that no sheds are erected near the relief works for their shelter. It remarks that transfers of District Collectors in these times of famine are highly prejudicial to the interests of the famine-stricken, as it takes time for the new Collectors to understand the circumstances of the districts. It substantiates the same by observing that Messrs. Stuart, Elwin and Shipley, being new to their districts, are unable to afford relief though their predecessors turned out excellent work. Mr. Manavedan Raja, who is an experienced and vigilant officer, was doing all that could be done for Anantapur, but was transferred, to the regret of the people, as a District Judge. Whether it was out of jealousy or otherwise, the paper is unable to say. It further hears that misunderstandings having arisen between the Revenue and Public Works Department officers, the latter are insisting on the Collector's orders being sent to them through the Chief Engineer, which course, it remarks, must surely cause unnecessary delay. It is most unfortunate that Mr. Forbes, who did excellent work in the Cuddapah district both as Acting Collector and Sub-Collector, should have been taken away to Bengal, and that Mr. Tate should become the Collector in these days of famine and suffering. The relief works are consequently in a melancholy condition and remissions of cess are refused even where crops have completely failed. It prays that the Government will look after the poor and famine-stricken sufferers.

Famine relief works.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 11th, 1897.

40. The Sudarshana, for March, says that famine has made its appearance in Udipi, South Canara, and the poorer class of people are suffering from want of food-grains and the cattle for want of fodder. Thefts are becoming frequent in the neighbouring villages. The import of grain from the Bombay Presidency has stopped on account of the prevalence of the plague and trade is at a standstill.

Famine in Udipi, South Canara district.

SUDARSHANA, Udipi, Mar. 1897.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

41. The Lokopakari, of the 23rd April, writes as follows:—Mr. Dadabai Naoroji questioned the British Civil Service Commissioners whether Indians are eligible to appear for the British Civil Service examination and whether that examination could be held in India. The Commissioners replied that Indians are eligible, but that the examination cannot be held in India, as the successful candidates are to be appointed in the United Kingdom only. The paper observes that one fails to understand the justice of the course adopted, and remarks that it is for the benefit of Europeans.

A remark on the question of Simultaneous examination.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, Apr. 23rd, 1897.

42. The Kalanidhi, of the 1st May, writes in English as follows:—"We hope the Government will bestow some of these Jubilee honours on patriots, reformers and public-spirited native gentlemen of the day instead of wasting them on rich people and officers who have done nothing to their country's good."

A suggestion regarding the bestowal of Jubilee honours.

KALANIDHI, Coimbatore, May 1st, 1897.

43. The Sudarshana, for March, thinks it a great wonder that although India has a population of more than twenty-five millions while England has only four millions, and although there are not more than a lakh of Englishmen in the whole of India, yet this handful of Englishmen have been able to hold India under subjection. Thousands of our people are in the habit of implicitly submitting to a single European whose home is thousands of miles away.

How does a handful of Englishmen hold the whole of India.

SUDARSHANA, Udipi, Mar. 1897.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, May 10th, 1897.

The Congress in London.

44. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 10th May, deprecates the idea of holding the Congress in London in July next, and says that it would be better to hold the Congress in England after the report of the Expenditure Commission is out, as then the Congress could criticise the report.

The Advocate-Generalship of Madras.

45. The same paper trusts that the Government will not, in appointing a permanent Advocate-General of Madras, overlook the claims of the Honourable Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar, and says that the qualifications, which secured for him the acting appointment, must, in the natural course of things, be sufficient for securing for him the permanent vacancy also.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, May 5th, 1897.

The desirability of allowing the Indians to become volunteers.

46. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 5th May, speaking of the war between Turkey and Greece, says that in Greece the police having been taken away to assist the regular troops, the duties of the police are performed by the citizens of the various places, and remarks that, if unfortunately a war should break out with the Russians in India, and the police should be obliged to garrison the various places when the troops are taken away to the frontiers, the people are quite unable to take the place of the police because the people have been rendered quite unfit to bear arms by the suicidal policy of the British Government in refusing the Indians to join volunteer corps.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 1st, 1897.

Use of false measures and weights by the merchants of Calicut.

47. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 1st May, invites the attention of the authorities to the use of false measures and weights by the merchants of Calicut. It is true that the merchants are at perfect liberty to increase the prices of rice and other things according to current market prices, but to use false measures and weights is not only unjust but is also cheating. Rice is the staple food of Malabar and the distress and scarcity in the district depends more or less upon the prices at which it is sold. Now the price of rice has risen very high owing to the famine and distress in other parts of the presidency, and, if the merchants also use false measures in selling such a dear commodity, the condition of the poor will be very miserable.

The Queen's commemoration.

48. The same paper referring to the notification of the Government of India that all addresses congratulating Her Majesty the Queen-Empress on the completion of the sixtieth year of her reign should be presented on the commemoration day to the Viceroy as representing Her Majesty, says, among other matters, that it was quite improper on the part of the authorities to have given no opportunity to the loyal subjects of Her Majesty in India to present their congratulatory addresses through their own representatives to Her Majesty in person. The paper remarks somewhat satirically that, as the Indians looked upon it as a more sacred duty to send deputations to present addresses to Her Majesty the Queen-Empress and to celebrate her Diamond Jubilee out here at great expense as a mark of respect, loyalty and affection towards her than to devise means for affording relief to the starving millions in this country, they deserved such a reply, and the opinion is expressed that this reply of Her Majesty is an act of Providence which could not brook the idea of people spending money for this ceremony while their fellow-creatures are dying of starvation.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th May, says that, in the war between Greece and Turkey, although the former was defeated on several occasions and sustained heavy loss, yet it has not given up further preparations in this direction. The powers are interfering to stop the war for a time in order to settle the matter amicably. The Turks demand, besides the payment of ten crores of rupees as cost of war, the surrender of a portion of Thessaly. The powers are aware of the inability of Greece to meet this demand and are trying their best to save Greece from being annihilated, but want of unanimity among the powers is an indication of the good luck of the Turks.

War between Greece and Turkey.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 24th, 1897.

2. Referring to a London telegram, of the 10th May, announcing that some English volunteers were wounded in a battle fought between the Turks and the Greeks at Pharsala, the Shams-ul Akbar, of the 17th May, says that the scars of the wounds received by those volunteers will be a permanent memorial of the bravery of the Turks. Had Mr. Gladstone gone to the place, he would have also returned with similar scars. The editor presumes that these volunteers will now repent of the part they took in the war.

The English volunteers wounded by the Turks.

Shams-ul Akbar, Madras, May 17th, 1897.

3. Referring to a London telegram, of the 14th May, to the effect that the powers, especially Russia, are not willing that Turkey should be benefited by the present war, the same paper says that, before the commencement of the present war, the Turks were looked down upon by the powers as lacking in discipline and experience; but it seems they have since altered their opinion and now do not like to see Turkey derive any advantage from the war. This, the editor thinks, is a great piece of injustice.

Turkey and the European powers.

4. The same paper reports, on the authority of the Madras Times, that a learned Hindu, named Venkatakristna Nayudu, has forwarded an application through the Turkish Consul at Madras to the Consul-General at Bombay, offering his services as a volunteer against the Greeks and requesting the grant of a passport to proceed to the scene of warfare, and, in applauding the Hindu gentleman for his action, says not a single Muhammadan has up to this time come forward for the purpose, which is a shame.

A Hindu volunteer.

The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 15th May, also applauds the Hindu gentleman, and says that it is a great shame that not a single Muhammadan has yet volunteered his services thus.

5. The Shams-ul Akbar, of the 17th May, mentions that it has opened a subscription list for the purpose of collecting funds for the relief of the wounded and orphans in Turkey at the suggestion of many of its subscribers, and the editor calls upon his co-religionists to subscribe.

Shams-ul Akbar, Madras, May 17th, 1897.

6. Referring to the news that the Arab chief of the Badavins, who has 1,200,000 Badavins under him, has written to the Sultan, stating that he cannot bear to listen to the complaints of the tyranny and oppression practised by the Christians on the Mussalmans and requesting His Majesty to proclaim a crusade so that he may be able to punish the enemies of Islam, and referring also to the news that the Shah of Persia has sent an envoy to the Sultan to inform His Majesty that he may send for as much money as may be required from the Persian exchequer so that he may not fall under obligations to any Christian, the Qasim-ul Akbar, of the 17th May, says that though Turkey has not up to the present time been in need of the aid of the Badavins, nor that of the people of Persia, yet their sympathetic expressions will discourage the Christians who have up to this time been under the impression that Mussalmans do not aid one another.

Turkey and Christian nations.

7. The same paper says that prejudiced Christian nations have hitherto been shamelessly making hundreds of false statements regarding Turkey. They have represented it as the centre of mismanagement and bloodshed and worthy of being effaced from the world, but being unable to do anything for fear of a general war they set Greece against Turkey, secretly assuring that country that the European monarchs would aid it with arms, ammunition and volunteers. The Hyde Park meeting is a proof of this. A hundred members of Parliament telegraphed to the King of Greece, congratulating him on his determination to wage war. Greece, with the intention of annexing the Island of Crete and some places on the Turkish frontier, declared war, but the defeats sustained by it have cast a slur on the character of its army, blackened the face of the whole of Europe and convinced every one that Turkey is a powerful empire quite fit to successfully cope with any European power.

II.—Home Administration.

Dharma Samvardhani, Tiruvádi, May 8th, 1897.

A case of murder in Nannilam taluk remaining undetected.

8. The Dharma Samvardhani, of the 8th May, reports that a lad, eleven years old, was murdered in the village of Nadakudi, adjoining Ammayappan police station in Nannilam taluk, and hopes that the District Superintendent of Police and the District Magistrate will exert their best to bring to punishment the perpetrators of the horrible crime. The paper says that a cousin of the lad, named Subramanya Aiyar, is suspected of being the offender.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 11th, 1897.

A case of highway robbery during the festival at Sríperumbúdúr.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 11th May, reports that a gang of robbers, about twenty in number, waylaid on the night of the 5th instant a crowd of persons who were travelling in bullock carts to witness the festival at Sríperumbúdúr, brutally assaulted them and carried away their valuable articles. It says that one of the pilgrims was missing and several of them were severely injured. The paper thinks that this mishap would have been prevented had proper precautionary police arrangements been made.

Kerala Patrika, Calicut, May 15th, 1897.

High-handedness of the Tellicherry police.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th May, complains of the high-handedness and iniquities of the Tellicherry town police. It remarks that the station-house officer, Kompra Raman, and the head constable, Chandu Kurup, have been in the town station for a long time and the vagaries of the town police are said to be the results of their long retention in that place. The article gives, in support of this statement, a recent case now under inquiry, in which one Mappila Viran, a cart-stand contractor, was wrongfully confined in the station and beaten by the said police because he had, to avoid pecuniary loss in the shape of toll, raised some objection to the police taking away from the stand a cartman who had yoked to the cart a bull that had a sore on its neck. The opinion is expressed that, as the vagaries of the police are not likely to be abated unless the police officers above referred to are transferred from the place, the Superintendent would attend to this matter.

(b) Courts.

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 6th, 1897.

Desirability of appointing lawyers as village munsifs in Trichinopoly.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th May, referring to the Village Munsif's court of the town of Trichinopoly, regrets to learn that persons ignorant of the Civil Procedure Code are appointed as munsifs. He thinks that vakils will do well for the post.

12. The Desabhimani, of the 12th May, commenting on the bigamy case lately disposed of by the Sessions Judge of South Arcot, writes in English as follows:— "To hold that there is a custom and to find that it is valid are two different things altogether. The custom seems to us to be somewhat immoral, and, as it is one of the necessary requisites of a valid custom that it should not be immoral or opposed to public policy, we doubt very much if the judge was right in recognising such a custom. We profess to be no authority upon matters of this kind. Judging from the standpoint of an ordinary individual, it seems to us that to permit such marriages at this time of day is repugnant to all notions of decency and morality. We are not fortified in this opinion by any ruling of the Madras High Court. In fact, there are no reported criminal cases of our High Court directly bearing upon the matter. As the matter is one of sufficient importance, we hope that the case will be carried to the High Court and an authoritative ruling obtained.

[DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, May 12th, 1897.

Opinion regarding the disposal of the bigamy case lately tried by the Sessions Judge of South Arcot.

(e) Local and Municipal.

13. The Sajjana Patrika, of the 3rd May, complains that the municipal lights in Negapatam seldom give good light, and that even the dim light they cast is extinguished before three in the morning very much to the inconvenience of passengers going to the railway station to catch the early morning train. The paper further complains that the municipal authorities have closed the western gate of the market, and this subjects the people living on that side of the town to unnecessary hardship and inconvenience. The paper hopes that the municipal authorities will pay attention to the matters here complained of.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, May 3rd, 1897.

Complaints against the Negapatam municipality.

14. The Swadesamitran, of the 20th May, reports that His Excellency the Governor refuses to pay professional tax to the Madras Municipality on the ground that he was living during the time for which the tax is claimed in Guindy Park, which is outside the municipal limits. The Madras Municipality bases its claim on the fact that His Excellency is the Governor of Madras and that he conducts his business in the Fort St. George. The paper says that, if His Excellency is exempted, many high officials, who now and then go out of Madras, will claim a similar exemption and the revenue of the municipality will be greatly diminished. The paper apprehends that this case may likely go before a magistrate for disposal.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 20th, 1897.

Refusal of His Excellency to pay professional tax to the Madras Municipality.

15. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th May, referring to the incompetency of the members of the Malabar Local Fund Board, says that, as the majority of them are uneducated men who have got into the board by their high family connections, they are unable to realise the extent of their responsibilities. It appears that the members do not generally take any great interest in the management of Local Fund affairs, and, unless the elective franchise is granted to the Local Boards, the local self-government will, it is remarked, be a farce.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 12th, 1897.

Elective franchise to be granted to the Local Boards.

16. A leader in the Kerala Patrika, of the 15th May, says that cholera has made its appearance in Calicut and is rapidly spreading throughout the town owing to the deplorably insanitary condition of various places in the municipality and to the insufficient medical aid given by the authorities. There were several attacks, almost all of which have proved fatal. The medicines given to the patients are said to be of an inferior quality, and, moreover, the medicines administered bring about constipation at once, their stomach is consequently swollen and they meet with an instantaneous death. The article bitterly complains of

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 15th, 1897.

Indifference of the Calicut municipality in checking the spread of cholera.

the indifference of the municipal authorities in the matter of taking precautionary measures against the spread of cholera. The streets and lanes in some parts of the municipality are very filthy, and the smell emanating therefrom is very unbearable. It is remarked that the sanitary officers have not for the last four months visited Chalappuram, Azhchavattam and the neighbouring places where cholera has appeared. The article hopes that the authorities will, without any delay, adopt measures to improve the sanitation of the town and to check the spread of the epidemic.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, May 1st, 1897.

17. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st May, writes as follows:—Mr. Adam made a very good suggestion at the recent Madras Provincial Conference when he advised the land-owners of the presidency to form an association of their own, ascertain the actual condition of the agricultural classes and send to England their agents to lay before the British Government their wants and grievances. Mr. Adam said that land assessment was very high in the presidency, quite as heavy as it was in the days of the Muhammadan Government, the only difference being that what the Mussalman Government did professedly the English Government is doing secretly. Mr. Adam also pointed out that the permanent settlement which obtains in zamindari tracts has not really enriched the zamindars at the expense of Government.

Opinion of Mr. Adam on the present assessment.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 6th, 1897.

18. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th May, draws the attention of Government to the memorial submitted to the Board of Revenue by the people of Chittoor in North Arcot district, representing the sufferings undergone by them owing to the severity of the revenue authorities. The paper says that the Board of Revenue, in order to mitigate the hardship caused to agriculturists by the drought of last year, induced the ryots to cultivate their lands with whatever water was available in the tanks, promising to remit water-cess; but the local authorities seem to ignore the order of the Board and collect the assessment from the ryots oppressively. The paper trusts that Government will pay due attention to the complaints of the memorialists and redress their grievances.

Severity of the revenue authorities in Chittoor taluk, North Arcot district.

(h) Railways.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, May 15th, 1897.

19. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 15th May, requests the Madras Railway authorities to construct a platform at Ennore railway station as its absence subjects passengers, specially female passengers, to great hardship and inconvenience.

Necessity for a platform at Ennore railway station.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 7th, 1897.

20. A correspondent to the Lokopakari, of the 7th May, complains that in the road leading from the Native State of Cochin to Palghat the abkári police officials forcibly put an arrack bottle into the hands of passengers, falsely charge them with carrying spirituous liquors without license, levy a blackmail from them, and get them punished by magistrates. The correspondent regrets that such grave irregularities are never noticed by the higher authorities.

Mischief of abkári police on the road leading from Cochin to Palghat.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 19th, 1897.

21. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 19th May, in commenting upon the administration report of the Abkári department for 1895–96, as reviewed by Government, says, among other matters, that it cannot endorse the opinion expressed by Government that the large consumption of liquor during the year and the consequent increase in the abkári revenue are due to the prosperity of the people.

Reviewing the administration report of the Abkári department for 1895–96.

(k) General.

22. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th May, observes that the minor officials of the Income-tax department worry poor merchants to produce their accounts, extort bribes from them and thus abuse their powers even as the tahsildars did when the magisterial powers were vested in them. The paper suggests that ryots should be exempted from the payment of income tax, and that only incomes of Rs. 1,000 and upwards should be assessed, and thinks that the adoption of these two suggestions will prove a great relief to the poor people of this country.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 15th, 1897.

Suggestion to the authorities regarding income tax.

23. The same paper prays Government to release Mr. Mangesha Rao from jail, reinstate him in his appointment and pass such orders as will save him from loss of pension for his highly meritorious service of twenty-nine years. The paper remarks that Lord Havelock's Government has acquired a name for its justice, and hopes that His Excellency will do justice to the injured Salt officer.

A prayer that Mr. Mangesha Rao should be reinstated.

24. The Swadesamitran, of the 18th May, is strongly of opinion that the exodus of Government to the hills tends to cause considerable delay, more or less measured by months, in the disposal of petitions and appeals submitted to it, for the reason that the minor European officers of Government spend their time in games and recreations of all kinds. The paper says that during the prevalence of famine Lord Connemara and Lord Wenlock took much pains in visiting the famine-stricken tracts and in concerting measures of relief, whereas His Excellency Lord Havelock visited only a few famine-affected towns which are on the railway line and went away to the hills.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 18th, 1897.

A remark on the exodus of Government to the hills.

25. The same paper is at a loss to know why the District Judge of Tanjore did not read his judgment in court in Mr. Mangesha Rao's case as is required by the Procedure Code, why again there was such delay in giving the accused a copy of the judgment, and why the appeal which was put into the hands of the Superintendent of Jail on the 7th of May did not reach Government till the 17th of that month. The paper hopes that His Excellency the Governor will inquire into these irregularities.

A request to Government regarding certain irregularities connected with Mr. Mangesha Rao's case.

26. The Andhraprakasika, of the 22nd May, regrets to note that, notwithstanding the orders of the Board of Revenue requiring all the Collectors to throw open reserve forests for cattle to graze in, Mr. Tate of Cuddapah has not done so as yet. It is also surprised to find that he should refuse remissions despite the Board's repeated calls for remission lists. It hopes that Government will take note of Mr. Tate's disobedience of orders and will no longer tolerate such conduct on his part. The paper is at a loss to know why a Hindu Collector, whose work in connection with relief works was most careful, compassionate, and satisfactory, should, for no assignable reason, be transferred as a District Judge, and why Mr. Tate should be allowed to retain his position in spite of his defiance of the orders of the Board of Revenue.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, May 22nd, 1897.

Mr. Tate of Cuddapah.

27. The same paper regrets to hear that some of the coolies working on the relief works at Cuddapah died of sunstroke. To remedy the evil, the paper suggests that the coolies may be made to work from 6 to 10 A.M. and from 3 to 6 P.M., and hopes that Government will issue orders adopting the above suggestion.

Death by sunstroke.

28. The Sasilekha, of the 28th May, is at a loss to know why relief in the form of paddy doles should be extended only to 240 persons in the Cuddapah district, while the corresponding numbers for Anantapur, Bellary and Kurnool are 2,329,

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 28th, 1897.

Mr. Tate, Collector of Cuddapah.

4,393, 1,197, respectively. It asks whether there is no famine in Cuddapah, or whether all the people there are rich. It is plain, remarks the paper, that Mr. Tate, the Collector, is utterly ignorant of the people's sufferings and the condition of the district. It further hears that he is bringing great pressure to bear upon the village officials for a speedy collection of the kists and believes that, unless the Government and Board of Revenue interfere and immediately remove the Collector from the district, the poor people of Cuddapah would fare very badly. Mr. Manavedan Raja, whose administration of Anantapur had been most praiseworthy, was transferred as a District Judge for no reason whatever. The paper is unable to understand how Mr. Tate, a notoriously useless man, has been retained as Collector so long. Such instances, it observes, give room to the public for asserting that the Government do not treat the white men and the black men alike.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 12th, 1897.

Remarks on the rumoured transfer of Mr. Dance, Collector of Malabar, to Coimbatore.

29. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th May, alluding to the rumour that Mr. Dance, Collector of Malabar, is trying to go to Coimbatore when Mr. Bradley, the Collector of that district, goes on leave, says that it is dangerous and impolitic to constantly transfer the Collector of a district, especially that of Malabar, where the customs and usages obtaining among the people are different from those of other districts and where Mappila outbreaks are of frequent occurrence. The opinion is expressed that, as Mr. Dance is an experienced officer, who is well acquainted with Malabar and its people and as such the best qualified for being the Collector of that district, it will be a great misfortune to it if Government complies with the request of Mr. Dance to transfer him to Coimbatore and appoint an inexperienced officer in his stead.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1897.

Vernacular test for Native Sub-Judges.

30. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 22nd May, referring to the rule requiring Native Sub-Judges to pass the vernacular test in two languages, admits the desirability of the measure, but suggests that out of the two languages one should be made compulsory, and for passing in the language, which is not the candidate's mother tongue, an honorarium should be given as in the case of junior civilians.

Revenue inspectors, &c., to be given travelling allowances.

31. Another correspondent in the same issue of the paper writes that, as the revenue inspectors are put to much expense on account of their constant travels in their ranges and as they have now to meet it out of their pay, they should be granted a monthly allowance of not less than ten rupees. The correspondent adds that the amsam menons (village accountants) attending the taluk office on public duty should also be given travelling allowance, their present salary being very low and insufficient to maintain themselves.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 6th, 1897.

Suggestions regarding the Local Legislative Councils.

32. The Swadesamitran, of the 6th May, remarks that, in order to make the Indian Legislative Councils really useful, a change in their constitution is desirable. The paper advocates that each district should have a representative in the council, and that the non-official members of the council should have the right of proposing any administrative question for the consideration of the council, inviting discussion and of voting on it instead of confining their attention only to legislative measures.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1897.

Remarks on the coming elections to seats in the Legislative Council.

33. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 22nd May, referring to the forthcoming elections to seats in the Madras Legislative Council, says that, as the Honourable Mr. Kalyanasundram Aiyar and the Honourable Mr. Vijayaraghava Chariyar have not, in its opinion, given satisfaction to the constituencies which returned them to the council, others should be elected in their place. The article, while alluding to the rumour that Mr. S. A. Saminadha Aiyar, of Tanjore, and Mr. J. L. Rosario, of the Tellicherry bar, are candidates for the coming elections in the southern group, strongly supports their candidature and remarks that, as the Government have proposed to enact a Malabar Tenancy Law, it is absolutely necessary that there should be in the council a member who is well acquainted with the affairs of Malabar, and, if, as is rumoured, the Honourable Mr. Sankaran Nayar retires from the council, it is doubtful whether a more competent man than Mr. Rosario will be found to fill the place of Mr. Sankaran Nayar.

IV.—Native States.

34. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 17th May, takes exception to some of the rules recently sanctioned by the Government of Mysore for the regulation of the supply of water from Hessarghatta water-works, and says that the clause, "until further orders public connections to houses from Chamarajendra water-works will be limited to houses whose annual rental value is not less than Rs. 300 and to localities where the capacity and pressure of the public water-mains permit of such connections being made without detriment to the street service," should be modified, for this is open to the objection of supplying water to the rich and denying it to the houses of the poor. There have been no such restrictions either in the city of Mysore or in Madras. Further, a scale has also been fixed as to the quantity of water which a house-holder will be allowed to draw from his house connection; should he draw more, he must pay extra charge for such quantity once a quarter. He is entirely forbidden to use the water for any other than bonâ fide domestic purposes. The reason for imposing these restrictions is not far off to seek; the Government having given their consent to supply water to the civil and military station from these works brought on this hardship upon the rate-payers of this town, at whose expense the project was undertaken.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, May 17th, 1897.

The Bangalore Hessarghatta water-works.

35. The same paper says that a certain Deputy Commissioner in Mysore made a reference to the Government of Mysore as to whether there is any objection to affix "Mr." to the names of native amildars, but the Government replied in the negative. The editor says that this is an unjust order; if this question had been asked in the case of Eurasians, the Government would not have given a similar reply. As this distinction would cause some dissatisfaction among the native amildars, the editor hopes that the Government will reconsider its order.

The addition of "Mr." to the names of native amildars.

36. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st May, invites the attention of the Travancore Sirkar to the desirability of adopting measures for repressing the highway robberies and thefts committed in Kozhimukku pravarti, Ambalapuzha taluk, by certain notorious characters at the instance of some of the influential men of the place. It is said that the thieves hand over the stolen property to these men from whom the owners have to recover it on payment. These men are said to carry on this nefarious practice as a trade and the people are put to a great loss. The police are also alleged to connive at them by receiving a share of the booty.

Kerala Mitram, Cochin, May 21st, 1897.

Travancore Sirkar to repress crimes.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

37. The Swadesamitran, of the 11th May, reports that nearly 130 lakhs of rupees has been raised by subscription to aid the famine-stricken people in India, of which the greater portion has come from the British public. It says that what the people in England have subscribed is nothing when compared with the enormous wealth they have carried away from

Swadesamitran, Madras, May 11th, 1897.

Remarks on the present famine in India.

India in one shape or other, and that it is a sad sight to see the Government of India appealing to private charity—a thing which no Government has hitherto done in times of famine. The paper further says that, under the British rule, the people of India in ordinary days can afford to have only one meal a day, and in times of famine even for this single meal they have to depend upon charity. The paper says that the authorities neither realise to themselves nor believe the actual impoverished condition of the people how clearly so ever it may be demonstrated to them.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 13th, 1897.

A prayer to the Government of India and the Calcutta Famine Committee to be more generous in the administration of relief to the poor of this presidency.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 13th May, observes that the Government of India has granted only two and-a-half lakhs of rupees for the five lakhs proposed by the Madras Government for making advances to poor ryots, and that the Calcutta Famine Committee has given only two and-a-half lakhs out of the one and-a-half crores received from the British public. The paper says that this contribution is not sufficient to meet the famine demands of this presidency. The paper regrets to observe that it is not likely that the Government of Madras will move strongly in the matter and appeals to the mercy of the Almighty to move the Government of India and the Calcutta Famine Committee to be generous to the poor of this presidency.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 4th, 1897.

A suggestion that the Congress should hold its meeting in London this month.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 4th May, seconds the suggestion of the Champion that the Indian Congress should hold its meeting this month in London and thus give effect to a resolution which was once passed, but which has not been carried out till now owing to financial and other difficulties. It says that many Indians have gone to England to witness the Diamond Jubilee, and their presence as well as the presence of the European delegates living there may be availed of and the meeting may be conveniently convened. The paper wishes that the Congress should hold its annual sessions at Berar during December as originally proposed.

Evidence given by Mr. Dadabai Naoroji and others before the Royal Commission.

40. The same paper says that the evidence of Messrs. Wacha, Dadabai Naoroji, and Gokhale given before the Royal Commission emphasized the growing poverty of the Indians, the extravagance of Government expenditure, and the appointment of Europeans to posts carrying higher salary in the service. It says that the European salary budget in India is three times greater than that of Ceylon, Australia, and Canada, and asks, why should Government indulge in such unnecessary expense and oppress the people by taxation?

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 7th, 1897.

Sepoys, a source of nuisance in Poona.

41. The Lokopakari, of the 7th May, complains that sepoys in Poona, taking advantage of the authority vested in them under the Epidemic Diseases Act, enter even unaffected houses, drag the inmates to the plague hospitals, and cause great hardship to people. The paper regrets that the authorities pay no heed to the complaints preferred in respect of the misdeeds of the military.

A remark on the jury system.

42. The same paper regards the rule, recently promulgated in Bengal, disqualifying vakils to serve as jurors, as a step towards the abolition of the jury system, on the ground that outside the circle of vakils very few persons can be found competent to serve as jurors.

A remark on the constitution of the Burma Legislative Council.

43. The same paper does not approve of the present constitution of the Burma Legislative Council as it excludes Burmans from membership in the council.

44. The same paper observes that, during the famine that broke out in the reign of Aurangazeb, the emperor forbade the collection of taxes, but also utilised the public treasury for purchasing grain stores and distributed them to all the famine-affected places to be sold at very cheap rates and thus saved the people. The paper says that this noble example deserves to be imitated by the British Government in these famine days.

Method adopted by the Emperor Aurangazeb to save people from famine.

45. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th May, after briefly describing the useful services rendered by the Honourable Mr. P. Ananda Charlu, suggests that he should be honoured with the title C.I.E. which he fully deserves.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 15th, 1897.

Desirability of conferring the title C.I.E. on the Honourable Mr. P. Ananda Charlu.

46. The Sasilekha, of the 28th May, states that the Secretary of State for India requested the Governor-General of India to suggest proper measures to check the growing increase of "appeals" in India. It believes that the appointment of impartial and able men as Judges would ensure sound judgments such as to satisfy the public, and is confident that the "appeals" would go on increasing in number so long as the indifferent practice continues of recruiting the judicial service from civilians who have no knowledge of law and who have not proved efficient District Collectors.

SASILEKHA, Madras, May 28th, 1897.

Indian appeals.

47. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 24th May, has the following leading article: A great disappointment has fallen upon the people of this land with regard to the Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress. They are not allowed to send deputations to England to present addresses in person, but all addresses are to be sent through the Viceroy. When the Jubilee of the Queen was celebrated ten years ago, deputations were sent from India and these were received by Her Majesty, and the people see no reason why this precedent should not be followed on the present occasion. Why should they be compelled to send their addresses of loyalty to Simla or go there in person to deliver them? Although the Viceroy represents royalty in India, he is not of the royal family of England. He is simply the Viceroy, and when he gives up the office he will be a private gentleman. The people are not satisfied with the arrangement, and in some places, Madras in particular, they have expressed this opinion pretty freely. It seems that the Viceroy inquired of the Secretary of State whether the addresses should be presented in person, or whether they should be sent through him. People hold, and they are right, that there was no occasion to ask any such question. He ought to have followed the precedent of 1887, and allowed those who wished to present addresses to do so in person, or send them direct to Her Majesty without any intervention in this land. They do not see any reason why the Viceroy should have gone out of his way, as they think he has done, to arrange the matter. If the home authorities had sent out an order without being asked, the people must have obeyed, and nothing more could have been said, but the case appears to them very different now. An inquiry was made and this, they believe, to have been quite unnecessary and uncalled for. The Viceroy and the authorities at Simla seem to stand between the people and their sovereign, and thus throw a damper on their loyalty. They wish to draw this feeling towards themselves, or, at least, the whole business has this appearance. This is not the course to be pursued to make the inhabitants of this land more loyal, which should be the object of every man in power, more especially the object of the Viceroy. He should not desire to be honoured himself, but that the sovereign should be honoured. It is an unfortunate business, and a good many hard things have been said about the Viceroy for his officiousness, and most people believe that the censure heaped upon him is well deserved. He put himself in the way of it; consequently he cannot complain at what has been said. The case will be harder still if the other parts of the empire—the colonies—are allowed to send deputations to present their addresses in person. We do not know whether such is the case, but this will soon be known. Should it turn out that deputations from the colonies were allowed, the Viceroy ought to be severely censured by the British Government for the part he has thought proper to take in the whole business.

A great disappointment.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 15th, 1897.

The Diamond Jubilee.

48. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 15th May, says that, at the last meeting of the Malabar District Board, it was resolved to send a congratulatory address to Her Majesty on the completion of the sixtieth year of her reign signed by the president and members of the board, and a sum of Rs. 40 was voted for defraying the cost of the casket to contain the address. The article remarks that, as the District Board members are not the elected representatives of the people and as the public have not been previously consulted about the matter, the address cannot be regarded as a public one. It was owing to the famine in India that Her Majesty did not wish that deputations should be sent to England to present addresses in person, and the spending of money on casket instead of in giving relief to the famine-stricken people will not be to the satisfaction of Her Majesty. It is said that the resolution of the board to spend Rs. 40 for the casket out of the public funds without consulting the members and also without ascertaining the opinion of the public is very imprudent.

Referring to the order of Her Majesty that no deputations from India should visit England for the Jubilee, a leader in the Manorama, of the 17th May, says that the order has caused profound regret to her Indian subjects. When Her Majesty has afforded opportunities and privileges to the people of her varied dependencies to display their loyalty and affection by presenting addresses in person, such an order referred to above denying the same privilege to her Indian subjects, who are in no way behind them in loyalty and affection, is unfair.

The Kerala Chandrika, of the 12th May, in alluding to the same subject, disapproves of the order.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 22nd, 1897.

Deprecating the holding of Congress in London.

49. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 22nd May, in deprecating the holding of the Indian National Congress in London as expensive and useless, makes the following remarks:—If the British Government is constituted of members who have the welfare of India at heart, the British Congress Committee and the Congress reports are sufficient in themselves to convince them of the grievances which the people of India are labouring under. A meeting of some hundred or hundred-and-fifty Indians in England cannot possibly effect what the British Congress Committee and the Congress reports could not do. Although the Anglo-Indians, who always deride the Congress, admit the justice and reasonableness of the movement and its demands, yet what they question is its representative character on the ground that it is not an agitation conducted by the representatives of the people of various castes and creeds inhabiting this vast empire; and this impression cannot in the least be removed by some hundred or hundred-and-fifty men holding a meeting in England. What the congressmen ought to do is to hold meetings even in small towns in India and create a public opinion in the country, and, if we succeed in this and if the British Government realise that the public are dissatisfied with the administration, they will readily grant our prayers even though a Congress be not held in England. As long as the British Government rely on the opinion of Anglo-Indians, our cry, however loud, will be merely a cry in the wilderness. It is not because of our being considered incompetent to manage the State affairs or of the Government not being convinced of the reasonableness of the demands of the Congress that we are not given a fair share in the administration of our country, but because it is opposed to their self-interests. Anyone who knows anything about the policy of the British Government can easily understand that India is not governed for the good of India, and, so long as the administration is conducted on this principle, the agitation by the Indians will not be productive of any good result. When the Indians are in dire distress, the British Government have to go abegging for money to afford them relief and this shows that the financial administration of the country is defective. If the Government had the intention of improving the Indian finances, would they have saddled this country with the cost of the Suakim expedition? Taking into consideration these facts, we are of opinion that it is a folly to believe that our grievances are not redressed as they have not been brought to the notice of the British Parliament.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 31st May, inserts a translation of the following address sent by the Hindus of Southern India to His Imperial Majesty the Sultan of Turkey, viz.:— Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, May 31st, 1897.

Hindu address to the Sultan.

"To

His Imperial Majesty the Sultan of Turkey.

May it please Your Most Gracious Majesty,—We, the Hindus of Southern India, humbly crave permission to approach Your Imperial Majesty with words of heartfelt congratulation on the splendid success that has attended the Turkish arms in the ever exciting Turko-Greek war. Ever since its commencement we have been watching with no ordinary degree of interest the progress of the war, and day after day have we been gladdened by the highly cheering telegraphic summary of the events of the war. It is further highly gratifying to us to note the humanity which Your Majesty's army showed to the inhabitants of the subjugated country, and in our humble opinion this conduct of Your Majesty's soldiers, and more particularly of your distinguished generals, deserves the admiration and respect of the whole civilized world. We all earnestly hope and pray that before many days have elapsed the war will be brought to a successful termination and that Your Imperial Majesty will be able to dictate your own terms of peace, and that the Greeks will profit by the lesson that Your Most Gracious Majesty has taught them—never again to measure their strength with men immeasurably superior to them, as the events of the war and the conduct of responsible statesmen in Greece have conclusively proved beyond any room for cavilling or discussion.

We further humbly beg to send herewith a copy of the Hindu of the 14th instant, and we earnestly pray Your Imperial Majesty to be graciously pleased to go through the leader "Greek and Turkish Armies" very carefully, especially the latter portion of it which relates to the reforms to be carried out in Your Imperial Majesty's Dominions. It may be added that the Hindu is a most thoughtful and moderate journal and that its opinions are entitled to considerable weight and much respect. It will give us untold happiness to hear that the very moderate and necessary reforms suggested in the journal have been literally carried out.

In conclusion, we ever pray that Your Imperial Majesty may enjoy sound health and long life, and that Your Dominions may be ever advancing.

We humbly beg to remain,
Your Imperial Majesty's sincere well-wishers,

Madras, 24*th May* 1897. The Hindus of Southern India."

The editor requests Muhammadans to note the sympathy and the good wishes evinced by the Hindus at this time, and to abstain in future from any action which may tend to create ill-feeling between the two communities in India.

2. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 29th May, writes that ignorant and prejudiced Christians have hitherto represented the Sultan of Turkey as "the great assassin," but that recent events have disclosed that the attacks upon the Sultan were quite unjustifiable and were based on malicious motives, as His Majesty not only sympathises with his own people but also with his Christian enemies and helps them with money for the benefit of their wounded. The editor in mentioning that the Sultan has given a thousand pounds to the wounded Greeks remarks that this munificent act on His Majesty's part will tend to elevate him in the eyes of the world and his name will be recorded in the future history of Turkey as "the most judicious and wise Khalif" that has ever ruled over the empire. Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, May 29th, 1897.

Sultan and the Christians.

3. Referring to the Turko-Greek war, the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th June, says that the Greeks have without any reason whatever provoked the Turks, made every preparation for invading Turkey, rendered aid to the Cretan rebels, and practiced tyranny over the Mussalman inhabitants of the island. Greece, which is far inferior in power to Turkey, acted thus expecting foreign aid Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, June 7th, 1897.

Turko-Greek war.

which it did not get and hence suffered a great loss. The editor, in attributing this to Mr. Gladstone, observes that it is quite inexpedient to allow such an intriguer to remain either in England or in any other European country.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, May 31st, 1897.

Rejoicing in Madras on account of the recent Turkish victory over the Greeks.

4. In reporting that on the night of the 31st May all the mosques and bazaars, &c., in Madras were brilliantly illuminated in honour of the recent Turkish victory, the Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th June, remarks that when this news reaches the Sultan His Majesty will understand that even the loyal subjects of Her Majesty the Queen do not hesitate to express their good-wishes towards him in consequence of the religious connection they have with him.

SHAMS-UL-AKHBAR, Madras, June 7th, 1897.

A Muhammadan attached to 17th Regiment stationed at Burma intending to volunteer his services as a crusader.

5. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 7th June, inserts a letter from Muhammad Muzaffar Khan, 17th Regiment, Fort Stedman, Burma, viz.: "I beg to state that I am at present employed in a British Regiment, but in consequence of the recent massacre at Crete, I intend to volunteer my services as a crusader by taking my discharge from the regiment and joining the Turkish army at Crete. I cannot afford passage money. If any Muhammadan nobleman be so good as to send me either to Constantinople or to Crete, he will be amply recompensed. I belong to a high family in the Panjab and am a well-trained soldier."

The editor asks the Muhammadan public to help him with the required money.

Annexation of Thessaly.

6. The same paper says that from the recent telegrams it appears that the powers are divided as regards the annexation of Thessaly. England, Italy and France are against, but it seems probable that Russia, Germany and Austria will be conjointly in favour of it, and for the purpose of avoiding a difference of opinion between Russia and France, the French President intends proceeding to Russia. The editor says that peace will not be very easily concluded, and if the present terms are not accepted, Turkey will again commence war as she is determined to annex the province.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 21st, 1897.

Certain suggestions for improving the moral tone of the Police constabulary.

7. The Lokopakari, of the 21st May, is of opinion that the misdeeds and corrupt practices of the Police constabulary are due to their being uneducated and that the improvement of their moral character is a matter of imperative necessity, and makes the following suggestions on the subject:—

(1) Schools should be opened in all villages and blessings of education should be spread far and wide.

(2) Educated persons with a respectable parentage and kind disposition should be taken into the Police department.

(3) Magistrates should be thoroughly independent and not be under the influence of fear for any body in the disposal of cases before them; and if the accused happens to be a Police official, the Magistrate should have the power to award exemplary punishment so that he might be a lesson to his class.

(4) An officer or a committee should be appointed in each district to see whether the Police officers discharge their duties properly even as is the case in the Salt and Abkári department, and to make reports on any officer guilty of corruption, bribery, &c.; the person or body so appointed should not be liable to prosecution even though the report so made turns out to be untrue.

8. A correspondent to the Vikata Dutan, of the 29th May, reports that gangs of robbers meet at the toll-gate and at the 4th mile stone of the road No. 7 leading from the town of Madura and waylay and plunder cart-drivers and passengers with impunity, and that much insecurity of life and property is therefore felt on the road in question. He further reports that at the channel near Melchatrapatti on the same road, the followers of Piramalainadu Periyandi Thevan invariably surprise the cart-drivers, sever the bullocks from the cart, tie the passengers to the yoke and carry off the bullocks. He requests the authorities to post constables on beat at night on such roads as are frequented by carts and passengers and thus check the perpetration of such daring highway robberies.

Highway robbery on the road No. 7 leading from Madura.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, May 29th, 1897.

9. The Pariyan, of the 29th May, remarks that sepoys in the native army are not sufficiently encouraged in the military service, as they are entitled to a pension of Rs. 4 only after twenty-five years of exemplary service, and therefore wishes that the Lieutenant-General Commanding the Madras Forces should move Government to pass a measure which will make it obligatory on the part of the Police department to confer nearly 50 per cent. of the posts in that department on sepoys who have retired but are still fit for active service, or who belong to a disbanded regiment. The paper condemns the present constabulary as a set of lazy and inefficient men with little or no sense of duty, and thinks that the recruitment of sepoys will impart vigour and life to the present staff and render the Police equal to even such emergencies as a riot.

Advisability of appointing retired sepoys in the Police executive.

PARIYAN, Madras, May 29th, 1897.

10. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th June, invites the attention of the authorities to the large number of cattle-thefts occurring in Karimpuzha, Thachavattukara, Arakkuparamba, and other villages of the Walavanad taluk, Malabar. These thefts are said to be committed through the connivance and assistance of the police by certain notorious thieves of the place whose name, the correspondent says, he is afraid to mention for fear of being molested by them. The police referred to above are those that are stationed at Srikrishnapuram, Nâtakam, Alanallur and Manarkad who receive a share from the thieves. It appears that if the ryots report theft of their cattle to the station-house officers, they do not get justice done in the matter; but are harassed and oppressed in various ways. The correspondent adds that unless the police officers of the above stations are transferred and honest men appointed, there will be no diminution in cases of thefts. The constables have been working in these stations for a long time and they are consequently playing into the hands of the thieves.

Police aiding and abetting thieves.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 5th, 1897.

(d) Education.

11. The Vijiaya Thvajam, of the 24th May, says that in consideration of paucity of teachers in industrial arts, Dr. Duncan proposed the desirability of training persons in industrial arts in the workshop of the Engineering College for three years and that this proposal has been accepted by Government. The paper wishes that a separate "art school" should be opened, as the scheme prepared by Dr. Duncan cannot be useful to a large number of pupils.

Desirability of opening a separate school of industrial arts for training teachers.

VIJIYA THVAJAM, Dévakótti, May 24th, 1897.

12. The Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 2nd June, says that the Director of Public Instruction has forwarded to the headmistress of the Moyan girls' training school, Calicut, for remarks, the memorial submitted by certain prominent citizens of Calicut against the retention of the two male teachers on the staff of the school. It appears that the headmistress has instead of reporting on the memorial put several unnecessary queries to the petitioners touching their request. The remark is made that Headmistress of the Moyan girls' training school, Calicut.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, June 2nd, 1897.

this attitude of the headmistress leads one to suspect that she is against the changes suggested by the memorialists. The Director himself should, in the interests of female education in Malabar, which is in its infancy, give special attention to the matter.

(e) Local and Municipal.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, May 24th, 1897.

Indifference of the Negapatam municipality to the public inconvenience caused by draught and the closing of water-sheds.

13. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 24th May, says that drinking water is a rare commodity in the town of Negapatam, and regrets that the municipality takes no steps to secure a good water-supply for the town. The correspondent is much pained to learn that the municipality has closed the two water-sheds which were opened a few years ago at the railway station and at another place to the great suffering of the people that crowd in the streets of Negapatam.

MANORAMA, Calicut, May 24th, 1897.

Complaint against the indiscriminate levy of profession-tax by the Calicut municipality.

14. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 24th May, says that the Calicut Municipal Council collects profession-tax indiscriminately. It appears that even after the persons on whom profession-tax has been imposed have given up that profession, the municipality takes stringent measures for realizing such tax from them. If petitions are presented to the council regarding the matter, no notice is, it is said, taken of them. If the persons who have left their professions refuse to pay the tax, action is taken against them to recover the amount, and persons who are unable to pay the decreed amount are sent to jail. Owing to the lack of supervision, demands are made for taxes which have been already paid, and an instance of this kind is given in the article. Remark is made that matters will grow from bad to worse if proper attention is not bestowed upon these matters by the chairman.

(h) Railways.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, May 24th, 1897.

A request to the South Indian Railway authorities regarding theft in the goods bags consigned to their care.

15. The Nilalochani, of the 24th May, complains that it is a common grievance among the merchant classes that grain bags tendered to the South Indian Railway authorities for conveyance assume, owing to theft that is freely practised, nearly half their dimensions at the station to which they are consigned, and as the company exonerates itself from all responsibility, the merchants are obliged to suffer loss. The paper says that the goods clerks sometimes enter a wrong weight in the receipts, thereby making allowance for the portion likely to be abstracted. The matter being serious, the paper requests the Railway authorities to give their best attention to it.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 29th, 1897.

Suggestion regarding the appointment of Deputy Collector for taking lands for Railway purposes in Malabar.

16. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th May, disapproves of the contemplated appointment of Mr. Kannan, Head-quarter Inspector of Police, Calicut, as Deputy Collector for the purpose of taking lands for the proposed Calicut-Cannanore Railway on the score of his inexperience in revenue matters. It is true that Mr. Kannan has completed the tests for Deputy Collector's post and is, moreover, an officer of ability, but as he has little or no experience in matters of this sort, his appointment will be unjust and unsatisfactory. The article next alluding to the rumour that either Mr. E. K. Krishnan, retired Sub-Judge, or Mr. Karayi Govindan, Tahsildar of Chirakkal taluk, is likely to be appointed to the post of the Deputy Collector in question, expresses the opinion that as both these gentlemen are competent to fill the post, exception cannot be taken to the appointment of either of them.

17. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th May, referring to the proposed changes from the 1st proximo in the time-table for the arrival and departure of the mail and the local trains to and from Calicut approves of the changes made in connexion with the mail train, but says in regard to the local train that the time proposed, viz., 6 A.M. for its departure from Calicut and 6 P.M. for its arrival, is inconvenient to the majority of passengers who have to travel from distant places, and suggests that the departure should be 7 or 7-30 o'clock in the morning and arrival 5 o'clock in the evening.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 5th, 1897.

Remarks on the changes proposed to be effected in the time-table of the Madras Railway.

(j) Salt and Abkári.

18. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 24th May, requests Government to place at the disposal of the press all the papers connected with the proceedings which passed between Government and a European Salt officer in the settlement of a sum to be lodged by him in the bank for the maintenance of the widow of salt peon who is alleged to have been drowned in his attempt to obey his master's command to fetch a bird which was floating in a certain tank after it had been shot by the said Salt officer. The paper says that when a question was asked by the Hon'ble Mr. Vijayaraghavachariar as to whether Government had any intention of making inquiry into that case, Government gave an answer in the negative and yet proceeded with the inquiry secretly. The paper is at a loss to know why Government has adopted a course which creates a misgiving in men's minds. The paper requests the Hon'ble Member to move the same question again, and if it is not properly answered, to move the British Parliament to do the needful.

ARYA JANA PRIYAN, Madras, May 24th, 1897.

The action of Government in the disposal of a case against a European Salt officer.

(k) General.

19. A correspondent to the Nilalochani, of the 31st May, reports that the present stamp-vendor in Tiruvadamarudúr is ill and people experience considerable difficulty in procuring stamps in consequence. The correspondent requests the Sub-Magistrate of the place to appoint another stamp-vendor.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, May 31st, 1897.

Necessity for a stamp-vendor in Tiruvadamarudúr.

20. The Desabhimani, of the 2nd June, reports that a public meeting was held at Cuddalore in view to submit a memorial soliciting Her Majesty to confirm the Hon'ble Mr. V. Bashyam Aiyangar in the appointment he now holds as the Acting Advocate-General of Madras. The paper writes in English as follows:—"We shall now proceed to state generally the grounds upon which we are entitled to ask Government for confirming him. There can be no two opinion as to the high attainments, legal acumen and profound learning of the present Acting Advocate-General. He is admittedly head and shoulders over every other aspirant for the office. He has achieved a solid reputation as the virtual leader of the Madras Bar for many years. The Government must treat with silent disdain which it merits any indignation that may be raised as regards his confirmation. All the Crown offices at the disposal of Government are held by Barristers. It is undesirable that these appointments should be their close preserves. That Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar has been discharging his duties admirably and with great skill and efficiency goes without saying. There is a rumour, and it seems to be invested with a certain amount of probability, that this fattest plum is to be conferred on Mr. R. B. Michell and that Mr. Bashyam Aiyangar is to be left in the cold. If that be so, anything more outrageous, more calculated to shake the confidence of the people in the administration of justice, it is impossible to imagine. It will be a direct declaration that appointments to high offices are not made by virtue of people's merits but by their color. We are however loathe to give credence to the rumour. We are quite sure that His DESABHIMANI, Cuddalore, June 2nd, 1897.

Desirability of appointing the Hon'ble Mr. V. Bashyam Aiyangar as permanent Advocate-General.

Excellency Sir Arthur Havelock, who first appointed him despite a storm of indignation, will stand by him and see that he is confirmed. A fitting opportunity has now presented itself for redeeming the pledges made in 1858. It will be a fitting act of grace on the part of Her Majesty that the year of Diamond Jubilee should witness a further vindication of the gracious Proclamation of 1858 that in the distribution of patronage there shall be no difference of race, creed or color.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 7th, 1897.

Foresight of responsible administrators.

21. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 7th June, after giving a summary of the order recently issued by the Madras Government to the District officers regarding the urgent necessity of having programmes of famine-relief works prepared in advance, remarks thus:—If precautionary measures had been adopted on the eve of the present famine it would not have done such havoc. The indifference on the part of the Government of India at the outset aided the spread of famine over so vast an extent, making relief works quite impracticable. Sir Arthur Havelock, having the good of his subjects at heart, took into consideration the present state of the country and thought that precautionary measures are necessary to avert such visitations. The order is a clear evidence of his wisdom and foresight.

VRITTANTA PATRIKA, Mysore, June 10th, 1897.

Administration of Burma.

22. The Vrittanta Patrika, of the 10th June, in reviewing the administration report of Burma for the last year observes:—That the country now enjoys peace and prosperity. Eleven years back when the country was governed by King Theebaw there had been nothing but anarchy and bloodshed. He could never bear to see any citizen coming to prominence. He had a number of assassins in his pay. Whenever any member of the aristocratic or influential family attempted to raise his position, he would at once be put to death. So when the British Government assumed its government, there was not a single aristocratic family in Burma. Dacoities were being committed everywhere. To preserve peace and order in the land, the British Government had to encounter great difficulties and had to lose the lives of three or four of its able Chief Commissioners. But anyhow within such a short time it has secured peace and order, established courts and hospitals, introduced railways and several works of utility. The editor, therefore, calls upon the people of the country to demonstrate their gratitude to their sovereign by celebrating Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee in a befitting manner.

III.—LEGISLATION.

KERALA SANCHARI, Calicut, May 26th, 1897.

Coming elections.

23. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Sanchari, of the 26th May, referring to the coming elections to seats in the Local Legislative Council, strongly supports the candidature of Mr. J. L. Rosario, High Court vakil practicing at Tellicherry. The article is of opinion that seats in the Legislative Council should not be monopolised by persons of one class or creed, but opportunity ought to be given to all classes alike to return their representatives to the Council so as to bring the wants and requirements of each class before the Council and to effect the necessary reforms.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 1st, 1897.

Ibid.

24. The Kerala Chandrika, of the 1st June, referring to the same subject, dwells at some length on the qualifications and merits of Mr. Rosario and wishes him success in the coming election. The paper further requests Government to nominate the Hon'ble Mr. Sankaran Nair again even though he has been twice nominated by them.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 8th, 1897.

Insanitary condition of Vadakancheri in Cochin State.

25. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 8th June, complains that the sanitation of Vadakancheri in Cochin State is much neglected, and cholera is therefore very severe in that part of Cochin. There is no officer, says the correspondent, to look after sanitation in that Native State.

26. The Vrittanta Chintamani, of the 26th May, says: In Bangalore the practice of "Purveyance" is still in existence. The Government officials while on circuit or when they require carriages for the troops on march order their peons to procure a number of carts. The peons lie in wait for the carts by the road side and seize every unladen cart, regardless of the inconvenience and loss caused to the poor owner. The carts which have thus been seized, are detained till the requisite number is procured; instead of paying the cartmen detention batta, the peons annoy them in several ways. Some of these cartmen who may have any urgent necessity of their own, get their release by giving to these peons whatever they have on their person—such as a turban, ring, cloth and the like. The editor hopes that the higher authorities will take notice of this high-handedness on the part of their servants and put a stop to this evil practice of impressment.

Compulsory service in Mysore.

VRITTANTA CHINTAMANI, Mysore, May 26th, 1897.

27. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 31st May, says: The question whether the European British subjects can acquire land in Hyderabad was lately decided. The Nizam's Government objected to such acquisitions on the ground that the Europeans domiciled there are not amenable to its criminal jurisdiction. After a long controversy the matter has at last been decided by the British Government by a resolution communicating to the Nizam's Government that it should throw no obstacles in the way of such acquisitions.

Land-owning by Europeans in Hyderabad.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, May 31st, 1897.

28. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 1st June, alluding to the disturbances that are constantly caused by certain rowdy characters in the Cochin taluk and to the consequent inconvenience and trouble to which the people are put, invites the attention of the Sirkar to the desirability of binding them over to keep the peace.

Certain rowdy characters in the Cochin State to be bound over to keep the peace.

KERALA MITRAM, Cochin, June 1st, 1897.

29. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 5th June, condemns the order recently issued by the Diwan of Travancore prohibiting the soaking of cocoanut husk in backwaters in the State. The opinion is expressed that although the order was issued on sanitary grounds, it is likely to discourage the people in the pursuit of coir manufacturing industry, which is not only in a flourishing condition in that State, but also gives livelihood to millions of poor people. The amendment of the order is therefore suggested. The Malayali and the Sarvathra Mitram, of the 25th and 28th May, respectively, referring to the same subject, support the same opinion.

Certain curious order of the Travancore Sirkar to be amended.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 5th, 1897.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

30. The Swadesamitran, of the 22nd May, does not approve of the resolution of the Bengal Famine Committee to utilize the Famine Relief Fund in granting loans to ryots at a small rate of interest. The paper says that the British public have contributed a large share of this fund for the sole purpose of giving relief to famine-stricken people, and not for speculative purposes as at present proposed, and it therefore behoves the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to put a stop to such diversions of the Famine Relief Fund. The paper is surprised to find a large sum remaining unspent in the hands of the Calcutta Famine Committee, while it has all along pleaded want of funds to all the appeals from the committees in the sister Presidencies.

Resolution of the Bengal Famine Committee to grant loans from out of the Famine Relief Fund.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, May 22nd, 1897.

31. The Lokopakari, of the 30th May, wishes that increase of salary to karnams, a class of officials who are inadequately paid, and whose grievances long remain unredressed, should be regarded as one of the items of the programme prepared in connection with the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee, and prays His Excellency to do the needful.

A prayer to His Excellency the Governor.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, May 30th, 1897.

A suggestion regarding relief works.

32. The same paper observes that the famine-stricken people prefer any service under private individuals to doing work in a relief work-house, for the reason that labour there is very heavy while the wages are low. The paper thinks it desirable that men seeking labour in relief houses should be better paid and less worked.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 1st, 1897.

Theory propounded by the Commissioner of Patna regarding the grant of relief.

33. The Swadesamitran, of the 1st June, says that the Commissioner of Patna does not approve of relief being given to the famine-stricken people, but proposes instead the grant of loans to them, and remarks that the recommendation of the Commissioner is uncharitable, seeing that subscriptions are collected from the people with vigour for the express object of giving immediate relief to the poor.

NILALOCHANI, Negapatam, May 24th, 1897.

Comment on the reply of Lord George Hamilton regarding salt-tax.

34. A correspondent to the Nilalochani, of the 24th May, says that the people of India have been loudly representing for the last ten years, through newspapers and meetings like the Congress, the endless sufferings they undergo by the heavy salt-tax, and, nevertheless, Lord George Hamilton replied, to a question put by Sir William Wedderburn on the subject, that he does not think that the people of India wish for a reduction of the salt-tax. The paper remarks that even a child would laugh at such ignorance.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 5th, 1897.

A remark on the grant of compensation allowance.

35. The Swadesamitran, of the 5th June, wishes that the compensation allowance now allowed to European public servants should either be discontinued as it adds considerably to the expenses of India in these days of financial distress, or be given alike to natives also, seeing that the present famine has enhanced the price of ordinary provisions, such as rice, salt, &c., and that the low pay of the native officials is hardly sufficient to enable them to procure even the bare necessaries of life.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, May 29th, 1897.

Arbitrary collection of tolls by a ferry contractor in Malabar.

36. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 29th May, invites the attention of the authorities to the arbitrary collection of tolls by the contractor of the Noorádi ferry between Kottakal and Mallapuram. It appears that if a cartman who has paid the prescribed toll and crossed the ferry returns on the same day, he is not ferried over unless he pays the toll again, the person making the demand for the second time being a different individual. The remark is made that this is due to receipts not being issued by contractors.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 7th, 1897.

Certain fraudulent practices of the rice merchants in Calicut to be checked.

37. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 7th June, complains of certain fraudulent practices of the rice merchants of Calicut in selling rice by bags. It appears that the rice, which is imported into the town from Vellore, Arcot and other places, is sold at Rs. $8\frac{1}{2}$ to 9 per bag, but in each bag there is a deficiency of five or six measures of rice and this is said to be due to the rice being extracted by the merchants from the bags. The article suggests that as this nefarious practice of the merchants puts the buyers to great loss, it should be stopped.

Issued 25th June 1897.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 21st June last, has the following occasional note:—"Some not-over-wise Hindu gentlemen of Madras lately made up their minds to send an address to the Sultan of Turkey congratulating him upon the success that has attended the Turkish arms in the war with the Greeks. We really cannot make out the reasons that induced these gentlemen to poke their nose into a matter which does not concern them as Hindus, in the least, though of course it must be very interesting and gratifying to the Muhammadans to see the Crescent successful and the Cross beaten. The idea of sending addresses to all and sundry is being really overdone, and they are voted and sent off on many occasions unnecessarily."

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, June 21st, 1897.

An address to the Sultan of Turkey by certain Hindu gentlemen of Madras.

2. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 14th June, mentions that a correspondent in Germany, writing of the Turko-Greek war, says that on account of the encouragement given by Mr. Gladstone's party to the Greeks and the aid—in the shape of money, arms and ammunition—which they had received from time to time, they were in high hopes of gaining a victory over the Turks, but the premature declaration of war on their part has frustrated their hopes.

Shams-ul Akhbar, Madras, June 14th, 1897.

What prompted the Greeks to declare war.

3. The same paper has a translation of a telegram extracted from the Al-Muvaid—an Arabic paper of Cairo—which was sent by Mustafa Kámil Afendí to the Head Munshi to His Imperial Majesty the Sultan of Turkey to the following effect:—

Evacuation of Egypt.

"I hope you will on my behalf communicate my congratulations to the Commander of the Faithful for the victory gained by the Imperial forces and for the I'd-uz-zuha.

"All those who are connected with the Sultan earnestly hope that His Imperial Majesty will not forget Egypt, which is at present occupied by the people of England, and will inform the powers that unless the British Government evacuates Egypt, Turkish forces will not be withdrawn from Greece."

4. The Alhami, of the 13th June, concerning the alleged ill-feeling between the British Government and the Sultan, says that the British Government has become inimical to Turkey from the latter part of the year 1894 as the Sultan did not side with the British Government against the Khedive. The British Government tried to set the whole of Europe against the Sultan and to stir up the Christian subjects of His Majesty against him. In the rebellions that followed, the Christian subjects of the Sultan were guilty of great atrocities which were attributed to the Turks. It was then published throughout the length and breadth of Europe that all this was done by order of the Commander of the Faithful, and thus a Turkish revolutionary party was created under the presidency of Murád Bég. The latter by the aid of Lord Dufferin after gaining some influence over Lord Salisbury proceeded to Lord Cromer in Egypt and there spoke disrespectfully of the Khalif of Islam. The reason why this policy was adopted was to make the Sultan detested by the Turkish nation and thus destroy the friendly relations between His Majesty and the Mussalman world; but all this has been upset. The declaration of hostilities on the part of the Greeks against the Sultan has made His Majesty more popular than ever.

Alhami, Madras, June 13th, 1897.

The Sultan and the British Government.

5. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th June, has a translation of an article extracted from the Al-Muvaid—an Arabic paper of Cairo—under the head "England's intrigues in the Cretan rebellion" to the following effect.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, June 28th, 1897.

England and Greece.

"It seems that England intends to get possession of the Mediterranean sea. She has already taken many islands together with Gibraltar and the Suez Canal and has since directed her attention towards Crete, an island best suited for dispelling any enemy coming from the direction of the Dardanelles, and for protecting the Suez Canal and extending her influence over Smyrna and the shores of Syria. She once tried to induce the Sultan to sell the island but in vain. Her hopes, however, have been revived on account of the recent rebellion, and when she saw that the foolish King George had sided with the Cretan rebels, she sent her representatives to Greece to assure the Greeks of her aid in the matter on condition that the port of Sonda might be given to her in case the Greeks took possession of the island through her aid. But the Greeks would not agee and thus England was prevented from attaining her objects."

The paper requests its readers to remember that England also wishes to create mischief in Macedonia for the dismemberment of Turkey.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, June 12th, 1897.

6. The following important extracts from the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 12th and 19th June, are given in full:—

Help to the oppressed Cretans of Turkey.

"Oh Muhammadans! Oh beloved creatures of God! Come quickly. This is the time to earn (a reward). For God's sake help your co-religionists and God will help you. By the help of God you will, if God be willing, become so powerful that no one will be able to resist you, and your enemies and antagonists will be disgraced and put to death. Our own guide * has said that as long as any creature helps his Muslim brother, God will help him. This being the order of our Lord and commandment of our guide, why should we loiter?

* The Prophet.

"Oh Muhammadans! Oh upholders of God's unity! Oh uprooters of the Trinity † and paganism! Oh soul-sacrificing followers of the Prophet! Oh sympathising brethren of the (true) religion! You know that there is but one Turkish empire, viz., that in Europe, and that this is the only support of your dignity in the world. All your enemies have fixed their eyes on that empire and it pricks their eyes like a thorn, and their main object is to snatch away that country from them (the Turks) and establish Trinity ‡ all over Europe. They are trying their utmost to do this. At first they stirred up the Armenians to hoist the flag of opposition to His Majesty the Sultan, but by God's favour the Armenians were defeated and the rebels punished. Again they proclaimed all over the Christian world that the Turks were oppressors and their extirpation necessary. One 'ass' said the Khalifat-ul-Muslimin, the Khalif of Islam, is an assassin. Another 'dog' said that he deserved to be hanged. They acted in a most brutal way but to no purpose. At last they kindled the fire of rebellion in the island of Crete to the south of Turkey. The inhabitants of this island are almost all Greek Christians, and the number of Muhammadans is very small. These Christians are rebellious, unclean, blood-thirsty, brutal and bigoted. The mischievous kingdoms of Europe stirred up the Cretan Christians to such an extent that they dropped the semblance of humanity, chose to rebel against His Majesty the Sultan and began to oppress the Muhammadans. More guiltless and innocent Muslims were butchered by the ruthless Christians than the goats and bulls which are killed in the slaughter-house. The same butchery is going on even now. And the Christian powers of Europe sympathise with these assassins. The Europeans, though they admit that the Christians were the aggressors, have still come to the conclusion that Crete shall be independent. Bravo! is this justice that Muhammadans should be oppressed in a Muhammadan state and the oppressors should in turn become masters of the state? May the curse of God fall on this perversion of justice! and on this one-sided and oppressive decision! The Greeks were certain that all the Christian kingdoms would unite in their help. They thought it would be a good thing to seize on Crete. A force of regular troops came from Greece and helped the rebellious and turbulent Christians. The safety of the Muhammadans was in consequence

† I.e., of Christianity.

‡ I.e., Christianity.

in peril. The Christian powers intervened and became arbitrators and their army surrounded the island of Crete. The arbitration of the European powers is worthy of much praise truly! inasmuch as they simply forbade the rebels to engage in oppression and violence, but took no steps to prevent it. It was quite clear to the rebels that the intimidation of the European powers was a mere pretence. The Grecian state relied on this. The massacre of Muhammadans was their chief aim. They exerted themselves to the utmost to massacre or disgrace the Muhammadans. Their cruelty reached such a pitch that, to quote a Christian reporter, 'amongst the corpses of the Muhammadans that were found in the streets and bazaars of Crete, some were flayed and some mutilated.' Such is European civilization and humanity! In short, Greece was prepared to offer aid to Crete and the bigoted Christians came forth as crusaders (for their faith). Afraid that the Turkish army would attack them, the Greeks commenced operations in Macedonia and in Crete the rebels had every opportunity to oppress the Muhammadans. They shed the blood of thousands, and innocent children were put to the sword: they cut open the stomachs of pregnant women, children were killed with bayonets, thousands of women became widows and numberless persons were wounded: Muslim boys and girls became orphans and destitute. Their houses were looted and they lost their relations and means of sustenance. What are they to do? Are their lives to be saved? Must they search for food? Shall they weep for their martyred friends? Who are they that are reduced to these extremities? They are our religious brothers and sisters, worshippers of one God, and the repeaters of the (Muslim) confession of our one Prophet's faith and standers under one flag on the Judgment day. Alas that such a calamity should befall them and we live on our native soil in peace and comfort! When this news reaches all Muhammadans throughout the whole world, they will be excited, and subscriptions will be raised for the relief of the sufferers. The ladies of Egypt have formed committees and are raising subscriptions for the relief of the oppressed Muslims. The Jews at Rangoon, knowing that their co-religionists are leading a peaceful and tranquil life in Turkish territory, have raised a subscription of Rs. 50,000 and have sent it to the Ottoman empire. It will be a great pity if any Muhammadan should now hold back. It is very necessary that subscriptions should be raised in every city and country and this news be given to our Mussalman brethren. Subscriptions are being raised in Asia, Africa and in the other continents. It is incumbent upon the Muhammadans of the Madras Presidency to help largely in this matter. In short the Divine wrath has fallen on the Greeks and their allies. The Turkish army has trampled down these wretches, and by the blessing of God the Turks have obtained possession of Thessaly. If the enemy does not submit, the armies of Islam * are quite prepared to unfurl the Ottoman banner in the Greek capital. This rebellion will not be quelled unless the Muhammadans are 'fully' aided and these infatuated enemies extirpated root and branch. Now is the time for all Muslims, whether they be Sunnis or followers of the traditions or Shiahs, to join together and help the Caliphate of Islam and give up their partial differences. Consider that our magnanimous King, conqueror of countries, and glorious Emperor Muzáffar-ud-din Qáchar [Sháh of Persia.] has set an excellent example. He offered a regular army of 20,000 Persians to the Caliph of the Muhammadans in order that he might use it whenever he chose to do so, and he has further said that the kingdom of Persia is ready to serve the Ottoman empire whenever the Caliph of the Muhammadans may require it. Oh Sunnis, oh devoted ones! (lit., those ready to sacrifice their lives) now is the time to offer help of some kind. Oh Shiahs, just consider the commandment of the Imam the favourite and executor of God as regards sacrifice. Though he was starving for three days, he distributed bread to the poor, orphan and to the captive and himself and his family starved. You style yourself the sacrificers of lives for this Majestic Imam! Whatever God has given you, more than your wants require dispose of it in the name of God and use it towards the relief of the oppressed Cretan Muhammadans. If you cannot do this, do not call yourself Shiahs. Oh repeaters of the (Muslim) profession of faith! your honour depends on the Turkish empire and the enemies of the faith have fixed their eyes upon it. Be sure, if it suffers even a slight injury no one will be so disgraced as you will be, and your massacre will be the aim of infidels. Help this great empire either with money or life as far as you can and do not let this opportunity slip away from you. You are the descendants of ancestors whose fame has spread over the whole world. Your forefathers sacrificed their lives and property for Islam and thus obtained possession of countries from India as far as Spain. Since you have given up the courage and spirit of your grandfathers, God has snatched away from you some countries. Be thankful for what remains in your possession and try to keep it. Oh Muhammadans! now mark! You have to combat with the accursed followers of the Nazarene; some sympathise with the accursed ones publicly and a few others privately. God's wrath is about to fall on them. One infidel has suffered God's wrath. When he sent reinforcements, his capital was set on fire. A few enemies are at rest now. When they are caught, it will be quite impossible for them to save their lives. Oh devoted ones, we are winning the day now, but still we should not despise the power of the enemy. We should not lose heart till we extirpate our enemies. Know that the loss or gain of a Muhammadan in any case is a gain. If he loses his life in conflict, the next world will be gained, and if he wins, both this and the next world will be his gain. The infidels help Satan and Satan helps them. You are in the way of God, and He will help you. What power have Satan and his adherents to fight with God and his people? Hence, oh Muhammadans! this is the time to display your courage and liberality. Note that Janab Alhâj Muhammad Badshah's son and son-in-law, i.e., * Janab Muhammad Abd-ul Quddus Badshah Sahib and Janab Hakim Muhammad Abd-ul Aziz Sahib, have undertaken the responsibility of the collection of subscriptions for Crete. Haji Muhammad Badshah Sahib & Co. are responsible to forward their subscriptions and are treasurers of the fund. Hence it is incumbent upon Muhammadans to join in the subscription and forward their subscription from every quarter to the above-mentioned gentlemen to their agents and obtain a receipt from the treasurers, Haji Muhammad Badshah Sahib & Co.—Printed at the Hydari Press, Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras."

* The allusion seems to be all Muhammadans throughout the world and looks very like the threat of a jehad or religious war.

7. "We hear from a reliable source that the committee, which has been formed under the orders of the Porte for the subscription for the oppressed Cretans, notifies that, whoever will subscribe 2,000 piasturs (quroosh), equivalent to Rs. 250, will obtain a medal from the Turkish Government. This medal will be distributed in Madras by the Turkish Consul Alhâj Muhammad Abd-ul Aziz Badshah Sahib. Those will be very fortunate who join in this subscription and render themselves eligible for the reward of their Caliph. We beg our generous subscribers to note that if they send us their subscription we will forward the receipt to them duly signed by the treasurers, Haji Muhammad Badshah Sahib & Co."

Reward to the subscribers to the fund for the oppressed Cretan Muhammadans.

VIKATA DUTAN, Madras, June 12th, 1897.

8. The Vikata Dutan, of the 12th June, thinks it necessary that Government should take steps to check the bold depredations of the Kallars—a race notorious for cattle-lifting in Southern India. The paper remarks that it is no good waiting for a special enactment as their mischief is really unbearable, and that it is not possible to improve them by means of education as proposed by some magistrates. The paper is of opinion that greater vigilance on the part of the police, and the infliction of heavier punishment, may serve somewhat to check their mischief.

Mischief of Kallars and the inability of the authorities to check it.

(b) Courts.

9. The Pariyan, of the 12th June, reports that magistrates in mofussil direct prisoners to be whipped on public roads in the presence of their wives and children—a sight horrible to look at. The paper requests Government to rule that such corporal punishment should be executed within the court-house.

PARIYAN, Madras, June 12th, 1897.

Expediency of passing a rule that whipping should be executed within the court-house.

10. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 19th June, invites the attention of the authorities to the delay in paying the stipends of students undergoing training in the Teachers' Training school, Calicut. It appears that these students, who have come to Calicut from distant parts of Malabar and are living in hotels, have not been paid stipends for six months, and are therefore put to much inconvenience and trouble in the matter of paying their hotel and other charges. The paper states that the matter was brought to the notice of the Inspector of Schools by the students who, it is said, have not had any reply.

11. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 10th June, complains of the wretched condition of the road leading from Pattukkóttai to Muttupet, specially of that portion extending from the station to the bazaar, and of the risks to which people and carts are exposed in consequence, and requests the authorities concerned to have it repaired as early as possible.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 10th, 1897.

Wretched condition of the road leading from Pattukkóttai to Muttupet.

12. A correspondent to the same paper complains that the two municipal lights placed at the steps of the Kalingarayan channel, near Erode railway station, are never lit and the people, who are mostly railway passengers, experience considerable difficulty in finding out the steps when they go there early morning for washing, and that the slippery nature of the steps sometimes exposes the passengers to serious accidents. The correspondent requests the Municipal authorities to have the place lighted all through night.

Difficulty experienced owing to absence of lights in the steps of the Kalingarayan channel near Erode station.

13. The Swadesamitran, of the 12th June, thinks it desirable that the name of a certain street in Triplicane, now called the Dancing Girls' street, should be changed on the ground that the name is inappropriate, as the street in question is mostly inhabited by persons of respectable society.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 12th, 1897.

Desirability of changing the name of a certain street, called the Dancing Girls' street, in Triplicane.

14. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 14th June, complains that the presence of a dried-fish depôt, within the straw market, in the town of Trichinopoly, proves to be a great nuisance to the people passing on the road. He wishes the municipality to have the said fish depôt, as well as some of the skin shops opened near Venkatachella Maistry's bazaar, removed outside the town.

evil practice which must prove dangerous to public health. The paper is at a loss to know why a sanitary inspector has not been appointed for the town.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 15th, 1897.

A request to the South Indian Railway authorities.

16. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 15th June, requests the South Indian Railway authorities to post a porter for preserving order at the booking office of the Kumbakónam station, as, owing to the rush of passengers, considerable difficulty is at present experienced in purchasing tickets at that station.

SASILEKHA, Madras, June 29th, 1897.

Medical examination at the Arkonam railway station.

17. A correspondent to the Sasilekha, of the 29th June, regrets to describe the inconvenience to which third-class passengers are subjected at Arkonam. Trains stop there for eight minutes only and yet the medical examination of third-class passengers, in connection with the plague, begins only after that of the first and second class passengers. Further, as each batch of third-class passengers is examined, they are again locked up in the carriages until the whole inspection is completed. The doors are not opened however much the passengers may cry out, and, when they are let out, they find it practically impossible, within the very short time at their disposal, to go to the latrines and return. The correspondent therefore suggests that, as there is latrine accommodation in first and second class carriages, the medical examination may be commenced with third-class passengers first and that as each batch is examined, it may be let out, instead of being locked up, to enable such of them as are anxious to ease themselves.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 14th, 1897.

Alterations in the train service, the Madras Railway.

18. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th June, referring to the alterations proposed to be effected in the train service, the Madras Railway, from the 1st July next, says that as the departure of the mixed train from Calicut at 6 A.M. instead of 11–45 A.M. is likely to cause inconvenience to the public, it should be so altered as to leave Calicut at 7–30 or 8 A.M.

Advisability of repairing the bund of Malayankulam tank in the taluk of Madurántakam.

19. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 17th June, reports that the bund of the tank of Malayankulam, in the taluk of Madurántakam, is much neglected, not having been repaired for many years now. The consequence is that the tank, which is expected to supply water for irrigation for six months, does not hold water enough for three months. The correspondent says that the village—Malayankulam—yields a revenue of Rs. 5,000 and that, if the authorities would spend but a very small fraction of that amount for the repair of the tank, it might be kept in good order. He prays the authorities to give their best attention to the matter.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 6th, 1897.

Advisability of stamping weights and measures every year instead of once in three years in the district of Kurnool.

20. The Lokopakari, of the 6th June, observes that, in the district of Kurnool, measures and weights are stamped once in three years only, and this long interval gives room for fraud. The paper wishes that the authorities should insist on weights and measures being stamped every year as is done in some districts.

Some suggestions to Government for improving agriculture.

21. The same paper deprecates the present policy of Government in spending vast sums of money in the construction of railways which chiefly benefit Europeans and encourage commerce, while the interests of the agricultural are greatly neglected. Improved irrigation by excavation of channels and wells, and reduction in the present heavy rate of land assessment will, the paper says, tend to develop agriculture in the country and improve the prosperity of the mass of the population.

22. The Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 19th June, mentions that the plague has entirely subsided in Bombay, and hence advises the authorities to suspend the quarantine rules. Such an act, it says, will not only tend to the ease and comfort of passengers in general, but will also curtail expenditure.

The plague in Bombay.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, June 19th, 1897.

23. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th June, reports that on the 22nd instant many poor people were fed and many houses were illuminated in Madras by the Hindus and Muhammadans in honour of the Diamond Jubilee of Her Gracious Majesty the Queen-Empress.

Release of prisoners on the Jubilee day.

25. Referring to the grant of a title to the Prince of Arcot, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 29th June, says that though the title of K.C.I.E. conferred on the Prince is a token of favour on the part of Government, yet it is not suited to his dignity and prestige. The editor in inviting the attention of the Government to this, hopes that a higher title will be conferred on the Prince and a salute also sanctioned.

Title of K.C.I.E. conferred on the Prince of Arcot.

JARIDAH-I-ROZGAR, Madras, June 29th, 1897.

26. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 28th June, says that on the 21st and 22nd instant all the State offices were closed, some ten thousand poor people were fed, all the State buildings, police stations were illuminated and many houses of the subjects of the State also lit up. Precisely at 9 P.M. on the Jubilee day a darbar was held to which all the nobles, officers and servants of the State and respectable people were invited. The Nawab delivered a speech in which he, in drawing a contrast between the mis-government of India previous to the reign of Her Majesty and the excellent measures since adopted, spoke in high terms of the benefits derived from the Western arts, sciences and literature and the facilities that now exist for travel and for trade, and in conclusion said that as those benefits depended upon the strength and stability of the British administration in India, it behoved every inhabitant of India to aid Government by every possible means ungrudgingly. After the darbar some prisoners were released and the sentences on others mitigated.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

27. The Lokopakari, of the 13th June, in regard to the contemplation of Government to amalgamate the State of Jellamar with that of Kota, observes that the people of Jellamar do not like the idea that they should be compelled to become subjects of a foreign state as proposed by Government, and that the contemplated amalgamation is therefore undesirable. The paper says that when Government proposed to give away Anjengo and Tangasséri to the Government of Travancore in exchange for certain lands in that Native State, the Secretary of State rejected the proposal as the transfer was distasteful to the people who were British subjects. The paper says that the same liberal policy ought to apply to the case of Jellamar.

A suggestion to Government regarding the proposed amalgamation of the State of Jellamar.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 13th, 1897.

28. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 14th June, says that since the death of Salar Jung, the great minister who did so much for the country, the State has gone back in every way, its servants have failed to do their duty, and in every way there has been a falling off. From Lord Ripon downwards every Viceroy advised the Nizam to look well to the finances, but to no purpose. The treasury is empty, the servants of Government have not been paid, the interest due on the money borrowed cannot be met, and the ministers do not know what to do to carry on the work of the State. They cannot borrow money anywhere, for it is well known that Hyderabad does not meet its liabilities when they fall due; so that those who have money will not pay any attention to the solicitations of the Nizam's ministers. To make the matters worse, there is famine of a rather severe type in a portion of the dominions of His Highness. It is to be feared that the famine-stricken people will be very badly looked after and the number of sufferers will be very great. It is unfortunate that this calamity should have occurred when the country was in such a bad way and the Government is so little able to do what is required. Then this country is full of intrigue and corruption. There is no other part of India that is so corrupt and is so much given up to intrigue as Hyderabad. There is intrigue everywhere—intrigue in the courts, intrigue in the public offices. Men who have influence can easily make money in that place. Sarvar Jung went away from Hyderabad a short time ago with, it is believed, sixty-five lakhs of rupees, and this sum he had managed to get together in the course of three years. He must have plundered the country to a fearful extent and, although it was well known that he was very corrupt, he was allowed to stay in the place till the British Resident interfered and told the Nizam to send him away. There are many in the State who run him pretty close. The editor says that unless a change is brought about soon, there will, to a certainty, be a crisis and one of large dimensions.

The present condition of Hyderabad.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 14th, 1897.

SURIODAYA, Bangalore, June 11th, 1897.

Native Rajahs owning property in British territory.

29. Referring to the order of Government prohibiting Native Princes from owning property in British territory, the Suriodaya, of the 11th June, observes thus:—In all probability, the motive of the Government in giving this order might have been a laudable one. The Native Princes resort annually to the hills in British territory as if they have no proper places in their own States. These pleasure trips absorb a large part of their revenues, and consequently no improvement or progress can be made in their own countries. And as these Native Princes spend a greater part of the year far away from their head-quarters, the government of the State suffers much. These might be the reasons that tended the Government of India to issue that order. But so long as friendly relations exist between the British Government and the Native Princes, the issue of such a prohibitive order is not justifiable. And, besides, Europeans are not disallowed from owning property in Native States. They possess large plantations and there they are their own masters; they can punish the coolies with impunity; they want tracts for hunting and then the natives are sometimes shot down, of course, accidentally. They must have European Judges only and no alien can deal justice to them. All the trade must be in their hands, except perhaps the sale of food-stuffs. In this way the natives suffer a great loss by the owning of property in Native States by Europeans. And the Government of India is not going to remedy this evil.

SURIODAYA, Bangalore, June 25th, 1897.

An open letter to Her Highness the Maharani Regent of Mysore showing the necessity of employing natives of Mysore more largely in the State.

30. The Suriodaya, of the 25th June, has the following:—

"To Her Highness the Maharani Regent of Mysore.

"Humble memorial of the undersigned.

"We are fortunate in having your Highness as Queen Regent, as your Highness takes maternal care of your Highness' subjects. No one knows what would have become of us if the Diwan were all-powerful. Your Highness' rule is very beneficial to your Highness' subjects. The Madrasees being envious of this make different suggestions. Some of the Madras papers go to the extreme and even suggest that it would have been better if the Diwan had been made all-powerful.

"If the Mysoreans were ever to be left in the background, and if the Madrasees were to be brought in for all the highest offices in the State, no Mysorean will ever be competent to look after the management of the State, and it would become a matter of necessity ever to look to foreigners, who will after the term of their offices pack off with whatsoever they can manage to get from the State coffers in the shape of salary or otherwise, thus rendering the State poorer. On the other hand, if the natives were trained to perform the functions of the council, gradually, they will be competent to lend a helping hand to the working of the government.

"The late Maharajah rather at the close of his administration became aware of this and with a patriotic impulse tried to better the position of his own subjects to the exclusion of the foreigners. We trust that your Highness will also follow in his footsteps and employ Mysoreans alone to all the offices of the State, by which means the wealth of the State will remain within the State. In some of the Mahratta States of Northern India the same practice prevails. We hope that your Highness will also do likewise."

Karānchira-Kokāla canal in the Cochin State.

31. A correspondent in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th June, invites the attention of the Cochin Sirkar to the necessity of planting stakes near the demarcation stones fixed on both sides of the Karānchīra-Kokāla canal in order to warn boatmen against danger. It appears that when the surrounding fields are flooded in rainy season these demarcation stones are submerged, and as the boatmen plying boats in the canal are unable to know the exact position of the stones, the boats are dashed against them and spoilt.

Travancore Registration department.

32. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 12th June, referring to the unsatisfactory and inconvenient working of the Travancore Registration department, suggests that it should be reorganised on the British model including the system of taking thumb impressions on documents.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 12th, 1897.

Robberies in the Cochin State.

33. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Mitram, of the 21st June, says that the life and property of persons performing journey in boats through the backwaters in the Cochin State have become insecure. It appears that they are attacked by gangs of robbers at nights and robbed. The robbers are said to inflict severe torture upon the passengers in case they refuse to part with their wearing apparels and jewels, &c. The attention of the Cochin Sirkar is drawn to the matter.

V.—Prospects of the Crops and the Condition of the People.

Famine in Chintalapudi division.

34. The Vibudharanjani, of the 18th June, describes with regret famine that is raging in Chintalapudi division, Gódávari district, for the last six months. It hears that about 2,350 poor people are subsisting on leaves of trees and that even this kind of food is hard to obtain for want of rains. It desires to know if Mr. Brodie, the District Collector, is aware of the famine, and, if he is, why he is indifferent while so many poor people are suffering from want and scarcity.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, June 18th, 1897.

Emigration and famine.

35. The Mysore Vrittanta Bodhini, of the 12th June, referring to the two articles published in the London Times on the subject of the periodical recurrence of famine in India, suggests that emigration more regular and systematic than it is now may prove a permanent preventive of famines, and says that the State should afford material aid by special legislative measures. It says that although the Government of India is doing all it can to facilitate emigration by the Indian peasants, the Governments of some of the colonies have put obstacles in the way. In the Mauritius, for instance, a prosperous Indian emigrant may not become a purchaser and possessor of land. In South Africa, at Natal the laws are cruel and silly. An Indian emigrant may not walk out of his house after dark, and when he walks out in daylight he is not allowed to walk in the middle of the road (!) but must keep to the side of it, and as in the Mauritius he is prohibited from becoming proprietor of land in the colony. These legal restrictions are tantamount to deliberate insults and intentional tyranny which must prevent a number of Indians from taking advantage of the facilities afforded by the Government of India. The Indian emigrants of Natal have addressed a memorial to the Right Hon'ble Mr. J. Chamberlain, the Secretary for the Colonies, on these very points. The editor therefore says that the time for active measures on the part of British Government has long come and they should not be delayed any longer.

MYSORE VRITTANTA BODHINI, Bangalore, June 12th, 1897.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, June 19th, 1897.

Distress in Malabar.

36. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 19th June, gives an account of the distress which prevails in Malabar. The paper attributes the distress to the successive failure of two crops last year and to the scarcity of other food products, such as jack, mango, &c. The poor low-class people are said to be in much distress and if the authorities do not take steps to afford them relief especially during the next two months, when the food-grains will be dearer, the prevailing distress will, it is remarked, end in severe famine.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

TRAVANCORE ABHIMANI, Nagercoil, June 10th, 1897.

A prayer to His Excellency the Viceroy.

37. The Travancore Abhimani, of the 10th June, prays to His Excellency the Viceroy to forbid the exportation of grain from India, on the ground that such exportation aggravates the severity of the present famine.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 15th, 1897.

A complaint that the Famine Relief Fund is not utilised for the purpose for which it was intended.

38. The Swadesamitran, of the 15th June, regrets that the money collected from all parts of the world for charity, for relieving the starving poor of India, is squandered away in a manner not contemplated by the donors thereof. The paper says, on the basis of the statements made by the Amrita Bazaar Patrika, that seventeen European superintendents of famine relief are paid Rs. 6,600 a month in the province of Behar, and condemns the payment as an unjust waste of charity fund. The paper asks—Can they not get men who would work for much less, or even render service gratis? and why should they all be Europeans? There was a secrecy in the way in which the appointments were made, the public having had no intimation that such a costly staff was going to be entertained. The paper urges the Government of Bengal and the Government of India to make due inquiry into the matter.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, June 17th, 1897.

Comment on the reply of Lord George Hamilton regarding the maintenance of a large army and a lunatic asylum in London.

39. The Swadesamitran, of the 17th June, observes that, when it was pointed out before the Welby Commission that the Government of India was lavishing its revenues on the maintenance of a large army and the upkeep of a lunatic asylum in London, the Secretary of State for India replied that the army was necessary for averting the danger of a foreign invasion and that the lunatic asylum was established by the old East India Company. The paper remarks that a large army would be unnecessary if Government would secure the good-will and sympathy of the people of India, and that there is no necessity for continuing a useless institution simply because it was established by the East India Company.

Suggestions for averting the dire effects of famine.

40. A correspondent to the same paper regrets that the accumulated sum, namely, 10 crores of rupees, of the income-tax, which was imposed in view to save people from the dire effects of famine, has not been utilised for that purpose, as Government has been appealing for help to the British public and to the wealthy men of the country. He says that Government is wrong in supposing that mere improvement of irrigational facilities will prevent the outbreak of famine, as such prevention is beyond human powers. He says that, in this Kali yuga, famine will immediately follow failure of rain, and that it is therefore necessary to adopt measures to abate its severity. The correspondent thinks that the following suggestions are likely to avert the dire effects of famine:—

(1) Tanks and wells should be improved as they form the chief source of supply of water to cattle and people.

(2) In times of famine, Government should purchase stores of food-grains and sell the same to the famine-stricken people at cost price.

(3) Relief kitchens should be opened for feeding the poor; and in regard to persons of respectable families who are in very reduced circumstances and who feel ashamed to go to relief kitchens, Government should help them with money and grains.

(4) A separate income-tax should be collected and the funds thereof should be utilised for famine purposes only.

(5) Land-tax should be reduced and the settlement should be made permanent.

(6) Ryots should be again permitted to enjoy the powers and privileges which they once had regarding darisee, poramboke, and forest lands.

(7) Government should import machines and introduce foreign industries in India and thus save the country's wealth from being scattered abroad.

Jubilee honours.

41. The Vibudharanjani, of the 18th June, speaking of the approaching Jubilee and the honours to be conferred on the auspicious occasion, is of opinion that such honours lose their weight and dignity unless they are conferred upon enlightened, patriotic, disinterested and virtuous men who have benefited the public in some way or other. It recommends Messrs. Thimmaraju Venkata Siva Rao Pantulu of Chicacole, Kidanchi Ramanujachari of Vizianagram College, Kovvuri Basivireddi and Duruseti Seshagiri Rao, B.A., B.L., of Cocanada, as deserving to be honoured on the auspicious occasion.

VIBUDHARANJANI, Ellore, June 18th, 1897.

The Diamond Jubilee.

42. The Andhraprakasika, of the 23rd June, devotes its entire issue to the subject of Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee. It describes in glowing terms her splendid reign of the vast empire, and gives a sketch of her life in which it extols the manifold virtues of Her Majesty as daughter, wife, mother and sovereign. It next enumerates the provisions of Her Majesty's Proclamation of 1858 and winds up with verses and songs in her praise.

ANDHRAPRAKASIKA, Madras, June 23rd, 1897.

A serious outrage at Poona.

43. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 28th June, while regretfully announcing the sad news of the outrage committed on the Jubilee day at Poona on Mr. Rand, the Plague Commissioner, and Lieutenants Ayrest and Lewis, says that some persons who bore ill-feelings towards them for having enforced the plague regulations rigorously and indiscriminately must have perpetrated the deed.

KARNATAKA PRAKASIKA, Bangalore, June 28th, 1897.

Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination, Malabar.

44. A leader in the Malayalam Manorama, of the 14th June, brings to the notice of the authorities the inadvisability of appointing Tiyars to all the three posts of Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination in Malabar on the ground of caste scruples. The opinion is expressed that as there are several Brahmin villages in Palghat, the Deputy Inspector appointed at least in that range should be a caste Hindu.

MANORAMA, Calicut, June 14th, 1897.

A Malayali regiment to be formed.

45. A correspondent in the Malayalam Kerala Chandrika, of the 11th June, alluding to the rumour that the authorities contemplate forming a Nayar regiment, dwells at some length on the valour and steadiness which the Indian sepoys displayed in some of the former wars, and adds that as the Malayalis are a brave, industrious and strong race and in every way fit for military work, it will be advantageous to the Government and the country if a few men from among all classes of Malayalis are formed into a corps. The correspondent further writes that if a reduction could be made in the strength of the British army now maintained in India at a great cost and Indian sepoys employed instead, it would not only serve the purpose contemplated but also tend to lessen the financial burden of India.

KERALA CHANDRIKA, Calicut, June 11th, 1897.

The Diamond Jubilee.

46. The Malayalam papers received last week are full of the celebrations of the Diamond Jubilee in Malabar and in the Native States of Travancore and Cochin. All the papers besides giving a short account of the life of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, dwell at great length upon the benefits which India has derived from Her Majesty's sixty years of glorious reign and wish her long life.

The Malayala Manorama, published at Kóttayam, has a portrait of Her Majesty on the front page with a translation of the National Anthem in Malayalam verses printed below it.

I.—Foreign Politics.

1. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 5th July, says that the Sultan of Turkey has sent messages to all Mussalmans in Egypt, Arabia and India appealing to them to employ their wealth and strength in the cause of their Khalif, the Sultan of Turkey.

The Sultan of Turkey's appeal to his co-religionists.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 5th, 1897.

2. The Karnataka Prakasika, of the 12th July, thinks that Turkey is in a dilemma just now with regard to Thessaly. By refusing to abandon it, she has incurred the displeasure of all the other European powers, and a war is imminent. If, for the purpose of avoiding a war, she should consent to give up the post, her own subjects would rise against the Sultan and dethrone him.

Turkey and the Powers.

Karnataka Prakasika, Bangalore, July 12th, 1897.

3. The Qasim-ul-Akhbar, of the 1st July, says that the victorious Turkish army in Thessaly and the Grand Vazier have requested the Sultan to annex Thessaly without minding the Powers, and in this connection states, on the authority of a Constantinople correspondent, that the Turks think that they will have to face a most powerful foe, probably Russia. This impression has been created in consequence of the fact that about once in every twenty years there is a war between Russia and Turkey. However the Sultan is ready to show to the world that he is in fact an independent sovereign and that he, with the support of the Emperor of Germany, is able to defend Thessaly and Crete against the whole of Europe, and that he may deem it advisable to set Egypt free by declaring war with England, if necessary.

Annexation of Thessaly.

Qasim-ul-Akhbar, Bangalore, July 1st, 1897.

4. Referring to the news that the Greek Government has asked the foreign envoys at Athens to adopt measures for the immediate conclusion of a treaty between Turkey and Greece and for the evacuation of Thessaly and has complained to them of the ill-treatment of the Christians in that province by the Turks, the Jaridah-i-Rozgar, of the 3rd July, says that all the correspondents of the London papers have stated that the treatment of the Christians by the Turks in the conquered territory has been extremely kind, and that it is to be regretted that Greece makes such baseless charges following in this respect the example of Mr. Gladstone.

The alleged false complaint of Greece as regards the treatment of Christians in Thessaly.

Jaridah-i-Rozgar, Madras, July 3rd, 1897.

5. The Shams-ul-Akhbar, of the 5th July, inserts a portion of a translation of a lengthy lecture alleged to have been delivered by Mustafa Kamil Afendi at a crowded meeting held in Alexandria on the evacuation of Egypt and extracted from the Al-muvied, an Arabic paper of Cairo, and says that, after the conclusion of the lecture, a resolution was carried asking His Majesty the Sultan to solve the Egyptian question with the aid of Europe.

Evacuation of Egypt.

Shams-ul-Akhbar, Madras, July 5th, 1897.

6. The same paper mentions, on the authority of its correspondents, that the Muhammadans of Alleppey held a thanksgiving ceremony, brilliantly illuminated their houses and fed the poor. Also that on the 12th June a ceremony was performed by the Muhammadans of Mandalay on a very grand scale. The residences of Mulla Ismail Sahib, Minister of the ex-King Thebaw and of Aqa Jawád Sahib, the Muhammadan Club and the Madrasa-i-Islamia were most brilliantly illuminated and many poor people were fed. These houses were also illuminated on the Jubilee day.

Thanksgiving ceremonies for the victory gained by the Turkish forces over the Greeks, held in Alleppey and Mandalay.

7. The same paper, on the authority of a correspondent, states that, on the 28th June, after the Friday prayers, Janab Moulavi Abdul Majid Khan Sahib, headmaster of the Muhammadan school, Vániyambádi, delivered a lecture in the mosque in Govindpore, Opening of a subscription list in Vániyambádi for the benefit of the Muhammadans of Crete.

in which he gave an account of the distressed condition of the innocent Muhammadans of Crete in consequence of the alleged atrocities perpetrated on them by Christians. After the lecture a subscription list was opened and many gentlemen present subscribed.

II.—Home Administration.

Lokopakari, Madras, June 20th, 1897.

8. The Lokopakari, of the 20th June, reports that a daring highway robbery was perpetrated on a certain evening, on the Tiruchendúr road, just half a mile from the police station in the Tinnevelly district, and is surprised to learn that the police has not as yet detected the culprits, even though the offence was committed so near the station. The paper says that a Chetty and his wife, the victims in the present case, were severely assaulted and robbed of their property.

Highway robbery on the Tiruchendúr road in the district of Tinnevelly.

Swadesamitran, Madras, June 26th, 1897.

9. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 26th June, reports that during times of festival in Kunrakkudi, in Madura district, people gamble with impunity, and the police take no notice of it. The correspondent wishes that the authorities should adopt measures to check gambling, which is extensively practised in the district.

Gambling in Kunrakkudi, in Madura district.

Arya Jana Priyan, Madras, July 1st, 1897.

10. The Arya Jana Priyan, of the 1st July, dwells at length upon the corruption of the Police department, that good and honest people dread the constabulary, that blackmail is regularly levied by them from people on an extensive scale, and that those who do not pay them are brought into trouble and annoyed in endless ways. The paper says that this opinion of the police is shared alike by natives and Europeans in this country. Messrs. Gokhale and Subramania Iyer gave evidence to the same effect before the Royal Commission in England. The reply of the President of the Commission, Lord Welby, was that as the Police force in India was composed mostly of natives of the country, it behoved them to improve their morality, and that unless they did so, no improvement in the morale of the Police could be expected. The paper comments upon this remark of Lord Welby and observes that the corruption of the police is attributable to the appointment of uneducated Europeans to the higher offices in that service.

The probable cause of the corruption in the Police department.

Pariyan, Madras, July 3rd, 1897.

11. The Pariyan, of the 3rd July, reports that the police of Tiruchengódu do not scruple to arrest the Koravars of Thogamalai, however innocent they may be, and to keep them in the lock-up fabricating charges against them, for the mere reason that they are Koravars, and that they are therefore likely to commit theft and other offences. The paper regards this high-handed dealing of the police of Tiruchengódu as a gross abuse of their powers, and wishes the higher authorities to take steps to check it.

Koravars of Thogamalai and the police of Tiruchengódu.

Swadesamitran, Madras, July 6th, 1897.

12. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 6th July, reports that burglary and theft are committed with impunity at Méttupálaiyam, and cites a few instances in support of the same. He requests the Superintendent of Police to increase the personal staff of constables and make proper arrangements for their doing their beat duty at nights regularly.

A request to the Superintendent of Police, Méttupálaiyam.

(e) Local and Municipal.

Nilalochani, Negapatam, June 28th, 1897.

13. The Nilalochani, of the 28th June, reports that the benefits of the new water-works have not been extended to certain parts of the town of Tanjore, although all the inhabitants have to pay water-tax alike.

A complaint against the Tanjore municipality.

14. The same paper requests the Negapatam municipality to construct a flight of steps for the Tamarai tank, to avoid the inconvenience and hardship now felt by people resorting to it.

A request to the Negapatam municipality.

15. A correspondent to the Swadesamitran, of the 1st July, says that, owing to the introduction of service pipes in the town of Conjeeveram, the municipality of the place has enhanced the house-tax from 7½ to 11½ per cent., and that this is felt as a hardship by the suffering residents of the place, especially in these days of famine. The correspondent requests the authorities to show moderation in the levy of taxes.

SWADESAMITRAN, Madras, July 1st, 1897.

A request to the Conjeeveram municipality.

16. A correspondent to the Sajjana Patrika, of the 5th July, remarks that the roads in the cantonment of Trichinopoly, which is inhabited by Europeans, are smooth and well-metalled, whereas the roads in the other parts of the town are in an extremely bad condition; and that the Municipal authorities take no notice of them. The correspondent mentions the wretched state of the Shepherd's street in Palakkarai, as an instance in point, and is at a loss to know why the authorities do not metal the road so frequently as they do in cantonment.

SAJJANA PATRIKA, Negapatam, July 5th, 1897.

Wretched condition of a certain road in Palakkarai, in the town of Trichinopoly.

17. A leader in the Malayalam Kerala Patrika, of the 10th July, referring to the notification published by Government in connexion with the appointment of paid secretaries to municipal councils, disapproves of the abolition of the carriage allowance paid to chairmen. It remarks that as the chairman has to go throughout the municipality on inspection, the expense incurred by him on that account should necessarily be paid out of municipal funds.

KERALA PATRIKA, Calicut, July 10th, 1897.

Carriage allowance paid to the Chairmen of Municipal Councils not to be abolished.

(f) Land Revenue and Settlement.

18. The Lokopakari, of the 20th June, observes that, owing to the high rates of the new settlement in the district of Tanjore, ryots are often unable to meet the Government demand for the payment of kist and their lands therefore are being distrained and sold at public auction. It says that in an auction in Tanjore taluk, Government was willing to sell 16 acres of land for 14 annas; but no one was forthcoming to purchase it, as people are convinced that investment in lands in these days of high settlement is unprofitable. Government had therefore no other alternative than to bid themselves for the 16 acres of land in question. The paper observes that at this rate Government may in course of time have to become the sole proprietor of all the lands in the district, and prays Government to reduce the present high assessment.

LOKOPAKARI, Madras, June 20th, 1897.

High rate of settlement in the district of Tanjore.
